The "Social Hour" on Sunday evening has been resumed, and it is pleasant to welcome back so many of our old friends. On two Sundays in November, Dr. Anthony and Mr. Manypenny kindly sang, and other members of the choir have promised their assistance. It is our purpose, this year, to reduce somewhat the time spent in singing familiar hymns, give more time to social converse, to special musical features and to the closing devotional exercise —though this last will still be brief. Our great aim will be to have such variety as may sustain interest and such freedom as may enable the Rector to know his visiting friends better.

In the statement of expenditures from the Church Work Fund—$299.83 was given as the cost of publishing the PARISH NEWS. After the income from advertisements shall be deducted, the net expense of this monthly will be reduced to $150, and as an energetic friend has undertaken to increase the advertisements, it is hoped that the net expense this year may fall still further and be below a hundred dollars. Such a medium of advertising is certainly quite worth the while of people who deal in memorials and Church furnishings and find in the Churches their chief customers. We intend to make the paper more valuable to our advertisers and to the Church by circulating it more widely.

As a rule the Rector is principled against Church Fairs. They are costly ways of raising money, and they are not educative in the best mode of giving. An exception, however, is found to all general rules, and the fair that will be given by "The Mothers," on December 4th, from 3 P. M. to 10 P. M., is such an instance. The articles that will be presented for sale represent honest work, and it is sincerely hoped that the congregation will not leave the purchasing to the same people who did the work; but will take an interest in the fair and patronize it liberally. The object the mothers have at heart is the improvement of the much-loved Farm in Bucks county.

Benevolent Society.

The Benevolent Society opened Wednesday, November 5th, with a good number of officers and women. The dear old Pennsylvania Hospital, as usual, had its work there in time for us to give it right out. This promptness is partially due to one of our ladies who takes a great interest in that hospital. Next week we hope to return it, and begin on the Episcopal Hospital. The Jefferson, as well as several other hospitals, has asked how much we can do for it, so there is no fear of our wanting work. We are sorry that one of our ladies will have to leave us, as her husband is in the army and they are ordered away in January. She will be greatly missed not only for her work, but for herself. We hope some day to get her back. The work has become very great in this society, growing each year, and in each department getting better. It is wonderful to see how dependable the members have become and how faithfully they give of their time each Wednesday, foregoing many pleasures that they may be in their places. Ruskin said a man who made a railing to go around a church was elevated, whereas one who made one for a saloon was lowered. Knowing the good we are doing for the sick and suffering in the hospitals we feel that our society has elevated all its members as well as helped the receivers of work and the hospitals of the city.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER MEETINGS.

The first meeting for the winter of 1913-14 of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held in the Parish House on Thursday, October 30th, at eleven o'clock, thirty-two members being present, including one new member.

Miss Anna Magee, treasurer of the United Offering reported the total triennial offering in New York this year as $307,500, the largest amount ever received by the Board of Missions. St. Stephen's contribution was $650. Miss Magee has $40 towards the next offering.

Miss Farrell, librarian of the Periodical Club, made a request for donations of the Cosmopolitan, Everybody's and Punch. Dr. Grammer announced two resignations among the officers of the Auxiliary—Miss Washington, vice-president, and Miss Bright, secretary.

Mrs. C. Watson McKeehan was nominated and elected vice-president, and Mrs. Wm. H. Hollar, Jr., secretary.

Mrs. F. W. English gave a short, interesting talk on the inspiration of the meetings she attended of the General Convention.

Mr. Daito, of Tokyo, Rector of St. John's Church, reported on his field, one of the fifteen districts of Tokyo and the "darkest spot, morally of all Japan."

There is a population of 250,000 people. It has 314 Buddhist temples, 28 Shinto temples and hundreds of bazaars and theatres. St. John's has one hundred communicants. The building will only seat sixty people and Mr. Daito is in this country to raise $15,000 with which to build a larger church. The sum of $25 was voted to him by the Auxiliary.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

The November meeting was held on Thursday, November 20th

The Treasurer reported a balance of $50.17. The United Offering Fund has now reached $86.

We were fortunate in having two able and interesting speakers: Deaconess Colesberry, of St. Martha's House, and Mrs. Arthur Taylor, of Roanoke Rapids, N. C. St. Martha's House is situated at Eighth street and Snyder avenue, where Deaconess Colesberry and her co-workers try to bring joy, sympathy, proper amusements and material aid to the poor and unhappy people in that section.

They have a Kindergarten, two Home Classes for the girls, a Mothers' Club, a Library, a Dispensary and the largest Junior Auxiliary in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Taylor told a sad story of the suffering at Roanoke Rapids, N. C. The people are dependent upon the cotton industry for work, but men, women and children cannot average three days' labor a week, because of illness.

Mrs. Taylor is trying to raise funds to build a hospital, Roanoke Rapids being in a section of 100 square miles in which there is not one place to care for the sick.

The Auxiliary voted $25 to each of these appeals.

Arrangements are being made to have Mrs. Gardiner, of Lawrenceville, Va., address the next meeting, which will be held in the Parish House December 18th, at eleven o'clock

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

The St. Stephen's Church Periodical Club is in need of subscriptions of periodicals. If you have a magazine or paper that you can spare, will you send it to one of our missionaries or to some member of his family? Anything in the way of literature is acceptable, grave or gay.

The librarian of St. Stephen's Branch of the Club will give you the name and residence to which you can send it. Please address Miss A. Farrell, care St. Stephen's Parish House, 9 S. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

Received from Mr. Potter's Estate in October, through Mr. Hunter Ewing, $33.41.

The King's Daughters will have their next meetings December 3d and December 17th, in the Guild Room, Parish House, 8 o'clock.

November 6th, $5.00 was contributed to the maintenance of the Door of Blessing, 648 North Thirty-third street, which is a home for women just out of prison, established in memory of Mrs. Wheeler.

The King's Daughters have been making some fancy articles for a fair in December to surprise one who has been a kind friend to them. Bibs and skirts and rompers are also in work basket and will be given where needed.

Shoe Fund.

Received in November:
From Church Fund, through Dr. Grammer	$25 00
Donation, Mrs. Hand	1 00
Those receiving shoes	1 00
Total	$27 00

Thanks to all who sent shoes in during the summer, as their names have been lost. Have given out since opening about ten pairs of shoes and two pairs of overshoes.

VIRGINIA VANDERSLICE.

The Sunday School.

On Friday evening, November 14th, the teachers met around the supper table in the Parish Guild Room with Dr. Grammer at the head of the table. Nearly all were present. At the meeting after supper in the Rector's room, committees were appointed to take care of the Christmas Festival. The Festival will be held on Friday evening, December 26th, at 8 o'clock, in the Sunday School room. Carol practice will begin the first Sunday in December.

On Sunday, November 23d, silver badges were awarded to thirteen of the scholars for nine months' constant Sunday School attendance, up to the first Sunday in November, and the gold button will be due the first Sunday in February next. The school had an unusually good attendance and Mr. Edwards made the presentation address. The new plan for awarding these buttons is now in operation for those who may wish to begin with this winter's session.

Mr. H. Fenton Cooke and his assistant are volunteering to help us with violin and cornet whenever they can and we are very grateful for their kind musical help.

The teachers and scholars are now earnestly studying the "Life of the Christ" and the first Sunday morning in January the Superintendent will review the lessons using the lantern and pictures.

On the first Sunday in December, at 9.30 A. M., the teachers and officers will meet for ten minutes of intercessory prayer.

The Alpha Kappa Society.

The Alpha Kappa are planning for the entertainment of the Sunday School and their friends early in December, with a "Trip to Labrador," and in January, with "Memories of the Good Old Summer Time," illustrated with the best of the old summer outing pictures and many new pictures from the Farm vacations and other pleasant summer memories of the scholars and members of the Girls' Friendly Society during the past season.

Parish Visitor's Report.

To all those who contributed money and made it possible for others to have a real Thanksgiving Day, we offer our grateful thanks. Through the generosity and thoughtfulness we were able to fill baskets of good cheer and raise a Thanksgiving hymn in some very desolate and needy homes.

The decoration of fruit in the church on the Day of the Feast of Thanksgiving is never wasted; first it gladdens the eye of all the church-goers, then it refreshes the poor and the sick, in whose homes it finds its way.

Hoping that our friends will be interested enough in our work to follow us into some of the homes we are visiting, we will take them part of one day on our rounds.

A family whose poverty has caused us much anxiety is composed of father, mother and five children. The man earns nine dollars a week and they pay ten dollars a month for rent, which leaves twenty-nine dollars a month for food and clothing for seven persons, and with the high cost of living, and the doctor's bill, there must be a great deal of "doing without." The mother is not yet able to sit up since the birth of the last child at Easter time, as she is paralyzed from the waist down and the doctor at the hospital gives no hope for her ultimate recovery. The Shut-in-Society has promised us a wheeled chair and we are hopeful that she will be able to use it and move around the little home. Although to human wisdom recovery is impossible, yet with God all things are possible, and so we pray in faith for her recovery.

The next visit will take us into one room where the father lies ill and where the mother does laundry work to support the family, consisting of herself, husband and six children. The early part of the week she washes the clothes, ironing them the latter part. On Sunday she has a day off. She has the children to prepare for Sunday School and has also to get their clothes ready for the coming week that they may attend the public school. The children are all too young to be of much help, and she also must attend to the wants of a small baby. It is indeed a wonder with the laundry work she has to do, attending to these children, a sick husband and a small baby, that she will be able to bear up under this terrible load. There are three rooms in the house, but she is compelled to be in the one room continuously in order to be near the sick husband and baby; and so we pass on from day to day.

The Commended Members' Club of the Girls' Friendly Society.

MY DEAR DR. GRAMMER:

I want to thank you for making the Commended Members' Club G. F. S. welcome at St. Stephen's Parish House. As we are not a Branch, only a Club we have no Parish home. For twelve years we held our meetings at Grace Church; when that was closed we were homeless. Then Miss Wilkins, of St. Stephen's, came to our help, and this is our third winter with you. The members of the Club are British girls who have been commended to the G. F. S. in the United States. Many of them live out on the P. R. R. as far as Bryn Mawr, some in Germantown, and it is a good thing for them to have a resting-place and a supper when they come to town on their "day out."

A number of them work down town and they can conveniently stop at the Club on their way home; some live in West Philadelphia as far out as 54th street.

There is no Parish House so convenient as St. Stephen's; it is so near the two railroad stations.

I have thirty-five names on my book and only two of these have mothers in this country. So you can see that my work is somewhat different from that of an ordinary Associate. I give them away when they marry and look after them when they are sick. One of my girls has been for ten years in the hospital for consumptives. One has just gone as missionary to China and a third is doing good work in Roxborough as a visiting nurse.

Yours gratefully,

ELLEN HORNER.

Nov. 14, 1913.

MY DEAR DR. GRAMMER:

You have kindly permitted me to write a letter of appeal for your church magazine. Geographically, our Parish covers a large area extending from 59th to 70th street and beyond. Also north and south from Market street to Overbrook. Not many years ago this was open country with a few houses here and there, now it will soon be as densely covered with houses as any part of the city. Here we have a unique opportunity to do a great work for God and for humanity. But we cannot work without tools. One essential to-day is an attractive church building. This is in part being supplied to us in the creation of a Memorial to good Bishop Whitaker, but for lack of money the committee has had to strike out of the plans all provision for a tower, and for vestries. An altar has been donated, but there is no provision for pews, a reredos, a lecturn, a litany desk and many other things.

At our committee meeting last week no steps were taken to provide an organ for this new church as there seemed no prospect of paying for it.

Our old worn out Hymnolia would be worse than none in a church built to seat 675 persons. Could St. Stephen's undertake the $3,000 necessary for the organ and save us and the Diocese from the humiliation of opening the Memorial Church without instrumental music? To-day our membership is over 200 and our Sunday School 350.

Very gratefully yours,

WM. SMYTHE,

Missionary-in-Charge.

SPECIAL NOTICES FOR MONTH.

The Annual Missionary Meeting of the Sunday School Teachers' Association of the Diocese of Pennsylvania will be held at St. Stephen's Church, on Monday evening, January 19, at 8 o'clock.

Bishop Kingsolving, of Brazil, will speak on the World for Christ. A large attendance is earnestly requested.

Miss Denny's Bible Class will give an entertainment on Wednesday evening, January 28th, 1914.

All notices to be announced from the Chancel or requests for special prayers should be written out plainly and signed, that the person responsible for them may be known, and sent to the Vestry room before the service. Nothing but a serious emergency can justify sending up a notice or request during the service.

The Episcopal visitation for the administration of the Ancient and Apostolic Rite of Confirmation will occur on the morning of the Second Sunday in Lent, March 8th.

Confirmation classes will be held on Saturday nights at 7.30 P. M., and will last 45 minutes, beginning with Saturday, January 31st.

A cordial invitation is extended to those who have not made this personal confession of allegiance to Jesus Christ to attend the class. No one will commit himself by attending. The question of decision will be left to the last. The first meetings will be of an explanatory nature. The nature of the Church, its claims, its teachings and position will be explained first, and later on the motives and spirit by which this rite will become a means of grace.

It is regretable that there is not a different form of service for those who have ratified their baptism in some other household of faith. Our present office lacks applicability, when it is used to bring into our fold a layman who has been for years a communicant and faithful Christian worker in some other Church. In time a suitable office will undoubtedly be passed. But a historic Church is necessarily conservative in such reforms. It prefers to retain the ancient rites, with all their sacred associations, and to use them with regard to their general spirit and intent without any emphasis on details or peculiarities of phraseology. In time these details will be modified, but in the meantime liberal people must be willing to treat old forms liberally.

In spite of the incongruity of the phrasing of the Confirmation service, I am always glad when communicants who come to us from other churches consent to be confirmed. They usually feel that they have made themselves more completely one with us by that act.

I exhort no one, however, to take the step who feels that it will be an act of disloyalty to his own past. Confirmed or not, I welcome all heartily to the Lord's Supper, who truly repent and intend to live in love and charity with the neighbors, and to lead a new life following the commandments of God.

The Envelope System.

I want to call the attention of all our worshipers and new members especially to the Envelope System. If they have not been using it, we should be delighted to provide them with the package containing the envelopes for the next three and a half months. This is a good time for making beginnings. New members are invited to give their names to the Rector or Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr., and the package will be sent to them. They will then know something of the satisfaction that comes from systematic giving and will feel themselves more closely linked to St. Stephen's. The result will be twice blessed, blessing the user of the envelopes and blessing the Church he attends.

Remarks at the Unveiling of the Arrison Window.

St. Stephen's has long been famous throughout the country, for its beautiful marmorean monuments, and in the last two decades a number of richly colored and original windows have taken their place beside them. Next Easter-tide we hope to place a bust of Dr. Wood on the north wall under the gallery, and this morning we unveil a window which is presented to the church by Mrs. Annie D. Arrison in memory of her husband James M. Arrison, and her three sons, James Maurice, Charles Eugene, and William Ernst. The window is by the great firm of Tiffany, which was also the maker of the Pancoast and Atmore windows. The subject, as you will see, when the grandson of Mrs. Arrison, James M. Arrison, 3d, shall unveil the window at the close of my remarks, is Jesus welcoming the children. Nothing could be more appropriate for a window next to the sacred font at which children are officially received into the congregation of Christ's flock and signed with the sign of the cross. The theme is most suggestively and appropriately treated. In most pictures of this incident the mothers of the children are inserted and often the objecting disciples also. But in this window the designer has with a wise insight confined our attention exclusively to Jesus and the children. In this way our thoughts are carried beyond the historical occurrence to the great truth that it so beautifully expressed. We are reminded that our beloved dead, far removed as they are from our ministrations, are safe in the care of the Great Father, whose supreme revelation of Himself to the world was and is through that the strong and loving Teacher of Galilee, who said Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven. All this is subtily and exquisitely suggested by the omission of any figure of woman or disciple in this memorial, and the representation simply of Jesus receiving and blessing the children. A record of undying love thus becomes an expression of unfaltering faith. It is an anticipation, as well as a memorial.

"Full of hope and full of heartbreak.
Full of all the tender pathos
Of the Here and the Hereafter."

As long as the sunlight shall pour through this richly colored glass, these consoling suggestions will stream out upon the worshipers within these sacred walls.

To this present generation, however, it will also bring along with this general message of consolation many definite and fragrant memories. It will speak of a patriotic citizen, whose blood derived from the Netherlands through ancestors who left that home of civil and religious freedom and settled in Pennsylvania in Colonial days, beat with a strong pulse of devotion and courage in the hour of his country's peril; who was one of the first members of the Union League; who enrolled himself at a great crisis in Captain Chapman Biddle's company for State defence; of a Christian merchant who entered our Church in the prime of his life, as the chosen home of his spirit; of a faithful vestryman of St. Matthew's Church for many years; of a regular worshiper in St. Stephen's, and a loyal member of this Parish from the time of Dr. McConnell to the day of his death.

It will speak of three sons, the pride and joy of their parents' hearts who grew up in this Church, consecrated to God in baptism, nurtured by our Church's ministrations, honored by prizes and rewards in our best institutions of learning, and then cut off in their brave youth or in the flower of their young manhood's promise.

It will bring to our minds one of our loyal members, one of our banner-bearers in missions in the hard field of work among the colored race; a widowed mother who has known how to retain fellowship in spirit both with those who walk in the common light of day, and with those, who transfigured by faith and love, have passed on before into the Paradise of God.

With gratitude for this gift which links such sacred memories and hopes with so much beauty of color and charm of design, I formally accept this window in the name of this Church. The congregation is requested to face the window and to remain facing in that direction during the singing of the hymn that I shall presently announce. The window will now be unveiled. [The Hymn was No. 179.]

Obedience to Rules.

On one occasion a great fire broke out in New York when General Grant was visiting that city and the General hastened out unattended and unknown to witness the conflagration. He had hardly taken his stand at a spot favorable for sightseeing, when a policeman came up and ordered him sharply off. The great soldier did not introduce himself and claim any personal exemption from the city's regulations in regard to spectators but obeyed at once and without a word. He knew the necessity of general rules and the obligation of obedience. It was because he knew so well how to obey that he was able also to command.

There is no more important lesson for us to learn than this duty of subordination of self to the rules laid down by authority. Sometimes the rules may not seem wise to our judgment, because we are prejudiced, or fail to take in the whole situation. Sometimes they may seem unjustifiable, because they are really poorly conceived and poorly executed, but in either case it is our duty and our wholesome discipline to observe them till they are repealed by the rightful authority. Society ceases to be an organism, and becomes a mere mob, if every one takes the law in his own hands and keeps it or breaks it as he sees fit.

Besides the teaching that is done by word in our Sunday School and societies there must be the teaching of a wise and firm discipline. Rules should be few, but these few must be enforced and loyally observed. Kind feeling and courtesy ought to suffice for most exigencies, but there will be something wanting in our spirit, a lack of tonic in our atmosphere, if the duty of obedience is not placed in its proper place, obedience not to a person, but to the law framed for the good of all.

The Rector's Bible Class.

As was announced incidentally in the sermon on Bible Sunday, the Rector will have a Bible Class for ladies this winter. He has decided to begin the first week in February, and to continue it through the first week in April. There will be nine sessions, enough for a brief course. The time that has been tentatively selected is Wednesday morning, from 11 to 12 o'clock. Further announcements will be made from the Chancel and also in the February issue. All persons who will seriously consider joining the class are requested to send their names to the Rector, and if there is any preference as to day or hour, it will be helpful if it shall be indicated.

The Sunday School.

On the first Sunday in the new year the Superintendent will review the course of lessons on the Life of the Christ, using the lantern and showing some forty or more pictures, illustrating the course of lessons we have been using this fall and winter. Anyone interested is cordially invited to be present at our regular morning session, 9.45, January 4th, 1914.

Mr. Schoonover has promised us an evening in January with an illustrated lecture on his experiences canoeing, exploring and sketching in Labrador. The date will be announced later. He has not only captured a former teacher of our school (now his wife) but has caught most artistically the beauty and wild charm in this northern country, and we hope all of our Sunday School and its friends will learn the date and be present.

Miss Denny's Bible Class will give an entertainment on Wednesday evening, January 28th, 1914. It is to be a play, given under the leadership of Mr. Hall, entitled, "Mr. Spriggs' Trip to Europe." Contributions of 25 cents will entitle our friends to be present. As the purpose is a Sunday School one, it is hoped many will be there.

The contributions to the moving picture booth are in the hands of Mr. Carrigan, who will be glad to receive any gifts towards supplying this urgent need, which the fire underwriters now require.

Girls' Friendly Society.

The entertainment held on November 24th in the Sunday School Building in aid of the Farm was a complete success, financially and socially, the proceeds amounting to $71.25. The success of the entertainment was entirely due to the kindness of those who participated, to all of whom we are much indebted.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting December 18th, in the Parish House.

The committees had a great deal of active work done during the past month to report.

The Missionary Box Committee had appropriated $75 to Colored Missions; $40 to the Indian Hope Committee, and $45 to the Domestic Committee. The boxes have all been sent so that they will be received before Christmas.

Miss Magee now has $110 toward the United Offering.

Mrs. Gardiner, of St. Paul's School of Lawrenceville, Va., gave a talk on the work done for the colored boys and girls in that Industrial Institution. There are 200 boys and 130 girls who board at the school and 130 pupils who attend the night school.

A fee of $25 was voted to St. Paul's by the Auxiliary.

Arrangements are being made to have Rev. J. H. Kobayashi, of Japan, address the next meeting.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

Parish Visitor's Report.

We have had a joyous Christmas because we were able to give many families much happiness. One hundred and thirty-three homes rejoiced with us when they opened their Christmas baskets and found therein a turkey or chickens, potatoes, celery, cranberries, apples, oranges, tea, sugar, a large mince pie and a box of candy.

Almost all of those who received baskets were the ones who were doing their best to help themselves.

Christmas must surely have been a blessed one to St. Stephen's people because it was through them that all these people were made happy. The King's Daughters of St. Stephen's gave one of the baskets and extra groceries. Mr. Craig Atmore contributed mince meat enough to make 162 pies. Mr. Clement Restein sent us a barrel of choice turkeys. A very lovely offering was made by Miss Culbertson's Sunday School Class. The money donated bought a suit of clothes, which were greatly needed by a little boy. He will wear them to Sunday School as well as to public school. I am sure that the young girls of the class who took the suit to him must have returned to their homes with happy hearts, thankful that they were able to do so much for this little boy, particularly after they had seen the dark and dismal court in which he lived.

Through the generosity of Miss Dankleman we were able to provide special delicacies for some of the baskets.

The toys which made happy hearts among the Infant School were given by Mrs. Colket and Mrs. Austin.

It will be interesting to know into what homes our baskets enter, so I will speak of one case, that of a woman who has not been able to come to church for some time as she is a constant sufferer from rheumatism, which has distorted her hands and bent her back nearly double. I found her sewing hard and thankful for the work. She makes flannellette night-dresses, makes two button holes in each, stitches braid on collar and yoke; for each dozen garments she is paid sixty cents. I asked her how long it took her to make a dozen, and she replied that she could make one and a half dozen in two days if she worked at night. That means two days' work, including thirty-six button holes, as well as completing the garments for ninety cents.

KATE H. LEWIS.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

The King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle will have their next meetings January 7th and 21st in the Guild room of the Parish House at 8 o'clock. At the last meeting money was collected from each member for groceries to be sent to the church to help fil' the Christmas baskets. $4.00 was expended for this purpose. Six postal albums were filled and will be sent to homes or hospitals where most needed. This Circle, although small, is always ready to aid in any good work.

The Sunday School Christmas Entertainment was held on Friday evening, December 26th, and it was a great success. The following were in the caste:

The Racial Missionary Episcopate.

It is a source of gratification and encouragement that the amendment to the Constitution that would make it possible to set apart different races in a racial missionary district was nearly carried at the last General Convention. The provision is intended to apply to the colored people in the South, who can not obtain admittance to the Diocesan conventions and themselves ask for a bishop and convention of their own under the control of the General Convention. A petition for such an organization was presented by the colored people at the General Convention in Boston in 1904, and was referred to the Diocesan Conventions for their consideration. In Pennsylvania a committee was appointed, whose report, presented by Dr. Grammer, favored such an amendment. In the General Convention in Richmond, when an amendment to create such a missionary district was offered by Dr. Grammer, as an exponent of the views of the dioceses of Pennsylvania, North Carolina and East Carolina, the measure was almost ignominiously defeated after a long and animated debate. That convention was the first in the South after the Civil War, and there was the greatest aversion to any legislation on this question that was not cordially endorsed by all the Southern dioceses. The proposal was renewed in the General Convention at Cincinnati in 1910. The sentiment in favor of the measure had by that time grown to such an extent that it was only by the demand for a vote by orders that the proposed amendment was defeated in the House of Deputies. It was noticeable that many of the Virginia and South Carolina clergy favored it. At New York the amendment passed by a large majority in the House of Bishops, and failed in the House of Deputies, because the committee appointed by the chair was a sectional and ill-chosen committee. The whole matter was finally referred to the House of Deputies to a commission, which is to report at the next Convention. The ultimate passage of the amendment now seems assured. It is not only the mills of the gods that grind slowly—the General Convention, which has not all eternity to work in, is incredibly slow in many things. Yet, like Galileo, we can confidently asseverate. "Nevertheless it does move."

A good resolution for the New Year:

"I am only one
But still I am one.
I cannot do everything
But still I can do something.
And because I cannot do everything
I will not refuse to do the somethnig I can do."—Edward Everett Hale.

All Can Help.

This little paper will fly across the broad Atlantic and come to some of our members as news from their distant home-land. It will be opened in many a sick room in our city and read by eager eyes, that long for a sight of the dear familiar Church and for a place again in its busy activities. To all it will come as a call for service. To those who are enjoying life's large opportunities, it appeals for co-operation and assistance as it spreads before them its long list of societies; and from those who are invalided by years or sickness it asks the assistance of their prayers. Who can tell what a help it would be, if at the hour of service those who cannot meet with the congregation should unite with it in spirit, and read over portions of the Morning Prayer, and offer a fervent petition to the Father of Spirits, that he would send down upon St. Stephen's the spirit of service and of fellowship.

The congregation is praying for them, and they must pray for the congregation. We must not be selfish in prayers and commune with God only about our own personal needs. Let the prosperous resolve that happiness shall not make them superficial and shallow, engrossed with their own culture, or pleasure and let the sick and care-laden also highly resolve that they will not allow grief to narrow their sympathies and interests, and make them selfishly neglect the common good. Let this PARISH NEWS bring one message to all: God's work is going on in the world, see that you have a part in it some way.

He hath sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat.
He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment seat.
O, be swift my soul to answer him! be jubilant my feet.
Our God is marching on.

The Episcopal visitation for the administration of the Ancient and Apostolic Rite of Confirmation will occur on the morning of the Second Sunday in Lent, March 8th.

Confirmation classes will be held on Saturday nights as 7.30 P. M., and will last 45 minutes.

The Rector's Letter.

Confirmation will come this year on the second Sunday in Lent. The Confirmation class is invited to meet in the Vestry room at 7.30 on Saturday night. The session will last 45 minutes. No one commits himself by attending. The members of the Sunday School are particularly invited. Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, is the call of the Spirit of God. What a splendid thing it is to bring to God a life still in the bud, and ask Him to make it blossom into full and fragrant bloom. It would be an unspeakable pleasure to all if some of our older members, so helpful in so many ways, would come, as seeking to follow in the steps of Him who taught us the way, who brought us the light, who showed us the life. No man professes to be stronger or better or more aspiring than others by coming forward for confirmation. The step has nothing self-righteous or boastful about it. It is a profession of humility, of the need of bracing our wills by committing ourselves on the right side, and of dependence on human fellowship and friendship for the aid that association brings.

According to the custom of years the collectors will visit the congregation this month, for their contribution to Diocesan Missions. We are pledged to raise $600 for this purpose. Out of this fund we also pay our quota to the Sustentation Fund—about $125. There are other demands. It is necessary to raise at least $750. Let us all do our best. He that soweth liberally shall reap also liberally. If the times are hard for us, they are also hard for the missionaries. The high cost of living affects them, too. Please enter contribution yourself in the book the collector will present.

The projected Bible class will begin on Thursday, February 5th, at 11 A. M., and will meet regularly in the Parish House on that day and hour, except on the third Thursday of the month, when the Woman's Auxiliary has its regular monthly meeting. The session will last to 12 o'clock. The course will be on some of the Old Testament prophets. The messages of Amos, Hosea, Isaiah, Jeremiah and Jonah will be discussed. The form of the teaching will be conversational, and questions from the members of the class will be invited. Use will be made of Sermons, Epistles and Apocalypses of Israel's Prophets, by Professor Kent, of Yale; but the only text book needed by the class is a Bible, that can be marked up—the American Revised Version preferred. A class of at least twenty ought to be formed for the best work. It is pleasant to know that some of the women of the congregation would like the class to meet in the evening. Another year that may be tried; but so many assurances of attendance on Thursday morning have been received that it would be unwise to make any change now. The class ought to be helpful for life, as well as for knowledge, but the benefit will be derived not from hortatory teaching, but from a clearer insight into the meaning of our sacred books, and a better comprehension of the Divine method of leading the race. The invitation is general. Anyone who may care to take the course is invited. It will be re-assuring, if those who intend to join will send their names to the Rector.

While Ash Wednesday will not begin till the very end of the month, February 25th, the congregation will be interested in seeing the schedule that has been arranged. These services are intended urbi et orbi, for the residents of Philadelphia, and for the strangers within our gates; but surely they are particularly entitled to the loyal support of the members of St. Stephen's parish. These speakers have a good message, let us see that they have a good audience. Let us come not in a critical spirit, comparing speaker with speaker; but with a real desire to receive spiritual uplift and with a real purpose of heart to come out of Lent more in love with goodness and more resolutely determined to pursue it.

It may be worth while to explain our acknowledgment of gifts in this paper. The purpose is distinctly not to make known the givers or the amounts of their gifts. The object is to prevent mistakes, and for the sake of those of us who receive and disburse the money, to use all possible safeguards so that the accounts can be checked up. Money is often handed in at different times and places and to different persons. It is difficult with the best intentions to prevent errors and oversight. No other system is so helpful as a public accounting.

In the case of a special appeal such as Archdeacon Phillips made, when the money is transmitted to some special treasurer, it has not been our custom to acknowledge the gifts here.

It is gratifying that over $300 was secured by that appeal in St. Stephen's. There is no colored church of any kind in that part of the city, and as the negroes are moving into that section rapidly we will have a fine chance to develop and train a good congregation. The committee in charge hope to have the building erected by a colored contractor and colored mechanics.

The death of Doctor and Mrs. Mitchell has been a loss to the city of Philadelphia, but outside of their own family circle, they will be missed nowhere more sorely than in St. Stephen's Church. It is impossible to replace them. They have left behind them the splendid legacy of their example, and we must trust God to bring it about that the inspiration of their lives will not be lost. It has been a privilege to know such a gifted and powerful man as Dr. Mitchell, with his wonderful versatility and great achievements, and it has also been a benediction to be associated with such a brave and loving nature as Mrs. Mitchell's. The life beyond is all a mystery to us, but we believe that they are united elsewhere, and that for them to die has been gain.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

Dr. and Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell,

By the death of Dr. Mitchell Philadelphia has lost its most distinguished citizen, who occupied, in this city, by virtue of his birth, civic loyalty, and manifold gifts, very much the same place that Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes held in his day in Boston. Dr. Mitchell showed his patriotism by his arduous service in the Government's hospitals during the Civil War. His love of Pennsylvania and Philadelphia is manifest in all his writings. Learned in the history, antiquities and social traditions of his native state and city, he was zealous to record them in literature, and to bring to proper recognition the contribution of this section to the national life. As a scientist he distinguished himself by his researches in the chemical and physiological action of the venom of snakes and in the effect of atmospheric pressure on the nerves.

As a physician he probably gained his most enduring fame by breaking into that dim borderland where body and spirit react upon each other, and discovering new methods of treatment. By his scientific use of the imagination he was able, as a practitioner, to penetrate to the secret troubles of many a diseased mind. Deeply was he interested in the welfare of his great profession, of which, like his distinguished father before him, he was such an eminent member. The remarkable prominence of physicians in the social life of Philadelphia is probably chiefly due to the city's great medical schools with their famous specialists; but a contributing factor of importance has undoubtedly been the multifarious gifts, activities and social leadership of Dr. Mitchell. While Dr. Mitchell's fame as a physician was European, it is probable that in America he was most widely known as a man of letters. A great student of Shakespeare, his chief devotion was to poetry, in which he made his first literary essays. Though he won high praise from scholars by the finish of his exquisitely worded and imaginative verse, he failed in some way to secure popular appreciation. In his novels, however, he gained a remarkable success, and was widely read and highly appreciated. His last novel, "Westways," describes the social conditions in Pennsylvania before the Civil War and the development of a bashful lad, in chapters that are in themselves charming and instructive, and as the production of a writer in his eighty-fifth year are remarkable and indeed have been rarely paralleled. Another such instance of prolonged creative productivity, it is hard to find.

The parents of Dr. Mitchell belonged to old St. Andrew's, when it was one of the great centers from which evangelical doctrine and spirit spread forth over the country. The great evangelical leader, Bishop Meade, of Virginia, was often in his father's home. The evangelical conception of the Gospel, as essentially simple, remained with Dr. Mitchell to the end. He loved order and beauty, the dignity of worship, the refinements of culture; but he did not care for subtilties of doctrine, or elaborate schemes of dogma. He thought that the sermon ought to aim at influencing life. Sometimes he would suggest to his rector a topic or a text for a sermon, and in such cases the theme would always be simple and practical.

After his second marriage he joined St. Stephen's. Of all his rectors he made warm and admiring friends; but the great clerical friendship of his life was with Phillips Brooks. The well-known carol, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," owes its composition to Dr. Mitchell's urging. Dr. Brooks had appealed to him to compose a Christmas hymn, but Dr. Mitchell declined on the ground that he could not write verse during the season of professional engagements, and insisted that Dr. Brooks ought to assume the task himself. The result was the carol, that was always especially dear to Dr. Mitchell for its association with his friend as well as for the beauty of its musical verse and exquisite sentiment.

During my rectorship, his growing deafness prevented him from hearing sermons with facility. Yet he did not give up his habit of church-going, and on a rainy day, when it was unwise for Mrs. Mitchell to attend the service, he was almost unfailingly in the family pew, and would come into the vestry at the close of the service to invite the rector to a walk. In these conversations he would reveal the wide and diversified interests of a man of letters, the trained powers of observation of the scientist and the delicate fancy of the poet. The readers of "Hugh Wynne" will recall how often the hero of that most popular of Dr. Mitchell's novels, mentions his aversion to speaking of the deep things of religion. The reserve of Washington on religious subjects is also frequently pointed out in that story. Dr. Mitchell seemed to feel with the men of the eighteenth century in this matter. Latterly, however, in our walks he turned the conversation more towards religion. After the death of one of his friends, who was a thorough agnostic, Dr. Mitchell spoke strongly of his aversion to this negative position and his own definite faith. His books show that he was clear on the great fundamentals of God, duty and immortality. But when I urged him to prepare a brief statement of a physician's religious belief, he shrank from setting up as a teacher of religion. Perhaps he thought that he made a sufficient profession of faith, when, in response to the Church's invitation, he came to the communion table and partook of the emblems of Christ's broken body and shed blood.

Like Sir Charles Bell and Sir James Paget before him, he exemplified the truth of the latter part of Lord Bacon's famous saying: "A little philosophy inclineth men's minds to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion."

One of Dr. Mitchell's most remarkable attributes was his genius for friendship and capacity for social converse. He seems to have had friendly relations with all the great physicians, surgeons and leading men of letters of his time. The evidence can be found in the biographies of Phillips Brooks and in the letters of Charles Eliot Norton as well as in the numerous tributes in the press of Philadelphia.

At one of his birthdays, Dr. Howard Furness referred to him as "in friendship consummate." The great literary triumvirate of Philadelphia in the last decade was Dr. Horace Howard Furness, Dr. Henry C. Lea and Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. All three were great friends. I have heard from Dr. Mitchell many encomiums on the literary achievements of his fellow triumvirs.

Like Charles Kingsley, who also was a poet and novelist and also was distinguished as a man of letters outside of his professional activities, Dr. Mitchell was in taste and temper aristocratic, but on principle a believer in popular government and the elevation of the masses. Through his gifts of imagination and temperament he understood and could portray the great French noble of the old regime with his courage, his pride, his superiority to popular opinion, but he also realized the essential selfishness of that society. On all great public questions he rang true to the fundamental principles of our Government. His strong and constructive mind, that shunned the misty cloud-land of metaphysics, admired a great architect of state like Hamilton in preference to Jefferson with his philosophical generalizations; but he never allowed his tastes and his admirations to dominate his judgment and seduce him into the strange by-paths affected by so many gifted men who love to walk remote from the vulgar herd and so lose the common touch. Under all Dr. Mitchell's social, literary and scientific culture, one felt the man. He was more than a great leader in the city's life, more than a great physician, and man of letters—he was also a great man, a tower of strength in time of trouble, a loyal friend, a faithful steward of many talents, a true servant of God.

Eleven days after the death of Dr. Mitchell, died his beloved wife, Mary Cadwalader Mitchell, in her seventy-ninth year. Mrs. Mitchell was a daughter of General Thomas Cadwalader and a granddaughter of Nicholas Gouverneur, of New York. Almost her first act after her father's death was to purchase the pew in which he had sat and present it to St. Stephen's Church, subject to her own use for life. After the death of her only child, Maria Gouverneur Mitchell, she gave $10,000 towards the purchase of St. Stephen's farm in Bucks county, where summer outings are given to members of the parish. The tablet by St. Gaudens to the north of the reredos is in memory of this daughter, who was a zealous worker in the Church. Mrs. Mitchell herself came regularly every Wednesday to the Benevolent Society's meetings and spent about two hours over the books. She was also a member of the board of managers of the Church Home for Girls at Angora, and actively interested in the girls themselves. Every Sunday afternoon when she was in the city and not too ill to go out of her house (and in the latter case she always sent a substitute), she spent from two to three hours reading aloud in the wards of the Orthopedic Hospital where her husband's work had deeply interested them both. Mrs. Mitchell revealed herself to all who came in contact with her as a person of unswerving integrity of character, cheerful fortitude, great unselfishness and sound judgment. In her great bereavements her faith shone forth like a beacon light on a stormy night. No word of repining fell from her lips. She thanked God gratefully for the companionship, broken off for a season. She expressed the steadfast purpose of taking up at once her life's tasks as usual. "I will be back again in my place helping you, soon," were almost her last words to her rector. She felt that she owed it to Dr. Mitchell's memory to go on bravely—but she hoped that it would not be for long.

Her heart's desire was fulfilled when she was taken from earth on January 15th.

They were lovely and pleasant in their lives and in their death they were not divided.

"We give Thee hearty thanks for the good examples of these Thy servants, who having finished their course in faith do now rest from their labors."

CARL E. GRAMMER.

[These resolutions were adopted by the Female Benevolent Society. The first was sent to Mrs. Mitchell after the death of Dr. Mitchell.]

To Mary Cadwalader Mitchell, our oldest and best beloved member:

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father in His omniscient wisdom has called to rest your husband, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, revered as a distinguished physician and as a man of letters, who both by his high order of ability and by the distinction that he brought to this city had endeared himself to his fellow citizens; now we in behalf of the co-workers with you in the Female Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church, extend to you, in your great loss and bereavement, loving sympathy, and in these few lines convey to you the knowledge that you are enshrined in the hearts of each one of us.

St. Stephen's Benevolent Society.

Signed:

CORNELIA L. EWING.

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has taken to rest our much loved sister, Mary Cadwalader Mitchell, whose Christian character, exemplified in a life of daily usefulness, should inspire each and everyone of us to a more sincere and consistent effort toward better living;

Now, we, the members of the Female Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church, desire in this minute to publicly record our sense of irreparable loss in our separation from one who is so deeply enshrined in our hearts. The regularity of Mrs. Mitchell's attendance and her devotion in most faithfully keeping the records of this, her favorite society, for over thirty years; her great executive ability, her wonderful personality and ever cheerful disposition caused the work to grow and expand continuously and made her an inspiration to all with whom she came in contact. We mourn her loss. We shall sorely miss her; but are the more resigned since in leaving us she went to join her husband, who had passed on only a few days before her.

The Female Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular meeting Thursday, January 15, in the Parish House, with thirty members present.

Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. McCollin and Mrs. Lucas gave interesting reports of the activities of their committees on Domestic, Colored and Diocesan Missions.

A letter from the Church Periodical Club was read, which should make all members anxious to donate magazines regularly to some person in the mission field. This letter was a grateful acknowledgment from a teacher whose life was brightened much by the reading matter which she could not have had but for the kindness of a friend. The Librarian of the Club will be glad to furnish names to anyone wishing to donate magazines.

Miss Magee has received $32 towards the United Offering, making a total of $143.

The annual election of officers of the Auxiliary occurs in January. The present officers were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Rev. J. H. Kobayashi, rector of St. Margaret's School in Tokyo, Japan, gave a short address. St. Margaret's school was opened thirty years ago under American management. Ten years later it passed over to Japanese management. There are forty girls who are boarders in the school, and 230 who attend the day school.

Mrs. B. S. Cooper, who spent a year in South Dakota, will address the next meeting on her work among the Arapaho Indians.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM.

Since the last meeting of the Auxiliary, St. Stephen's has been called to mourn the loss of one of her most devoted and faithful members, Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell. Her love for the Church was unfailing from her childhood, to the day of her death, and seemed to grow stronger and deeper until the end.

In St. Stephen's work she found her greatest pleasure and never was she absent from it, unless prevented by failing health.

Gentle, benevolent, pure in heart and life, she exemplified to her associates and friends the beauty of holiness.

Singularly unobstrusive, amiable and loving, she inspired affection by her own beautiful life.

Years of constant intercourse with her in the performance of her duties in the Church of her love, endeared her to all of us, and now that God has taken her to Himself, our hearts are filled with sorrow, but with thankfulness for the bright and beautiful example she has left us.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

The King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle will have their next meetings February 4th and February 18th in the Guild room of the Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock.

This Circle have been working on bibs, outing flannel skirts and filling some postal card albums for the sick.

January 22d was a social evening as all were so interested in Miss Clayton's wedding they did not feel like settling down to sewing. They were surprised by a call from the Rev. Mr. Edwards, which they all enjoyed.

The Thoughtful Circle of King's Daughters held their regular monthly meeting January 6th, their first meeting in the New Year. The members of the Circle were more than pleased to have present with them their President, Miss C. F. Dallett, and our Rector. The regular monthly meeting of the Circle will be held Tuesday evening, February 3d, at 8 o'clock.

The Sunday School.

On Monday evening, January 19th, the Sunday School Institute and Association of Teachers of our Diocese had an unusually fine missionary meeting in our Church. The Rev. L. N. Caley presided, introducing the Rev. T. Capers, of Holy Apostle's Church, who spoke practically, earnestly and ably of the ways and means to create the best missionary spirit in our Sunday Schools. Bishop Kinsolving, of Brazil, was the next speaker and was full of enthusiasm in his address on "The World for Christ." Mr. Longshore, of the Church of the Good Shepherd, very kindly volunteered as organist and brought their choir of excellent singers, so that the music and addresses were all inspiring.

We have introduced a register in our school which shows the number in attendance each Sunday as well as the previous Sunday and the corresponding dav a year ago, together with the same registering of the offering. It has proved excellent. With it we show a large dial whose hour hand indicates our aim of 250 scholars for the coming year. The minute hand shows the number on the roll, and the second hand the new scholars procured each session. The first day the dial was put in, it showed an addition of three scholars, and the next Sunday seven new members. This is most encouraging, and at this rate we will soon reach our aim.

Some six of the younger boys are preparing to be taken into the Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew on probation, so that the spiritual activities of the boys of the Sunday School are progressing along with the social and other activities.

The Cross and Crown Gold Badge is now due to a number of our scholars who have been faithful in attendance from February 1, 1913, to the first Sunday in February, 1914.

Teachers and officers will kindly note that the first of February will be our Sunday for ten minutes of intercessory prayer previous to the morning session.

On Wednesday, January 28th, the young ladies of Miss Denney's class, under direction of Mr. Hall, gave a most delightful presentation of Mr. Spriggs' Little Trip to Europe, Mr. Hall playing Mr. Spriggs, Miss Sherrard, Miss Wilder, Miss Snedden, Miss Corrigan and Mrs. Nissen, each playing their part most acceptably. It was the general opinion it was one of the most enjoyable entertainments ever given in the Sunday School. The proceeds will be devoted to Sunday School purposes. The entertainment was followed by a dance. The incidental music was furnished by Miss Nodine.

A. W. DENNEY.

A letter has been received by the Rector asking if any use could be found for old clothes. We have a garment committee that disposes of second hand clothing with discretion. Anyone having an old overcoat that lies unused in the wardrobe, is invited to decide at once, whether it would not be better on the back of some one during these next three inclement months. Old coats, old trousers, old shoes, old hats, old garments, old clothes of any kind can be used. Send them to the Parish House to the care of Miss Lewis and the proper committee will receive them.

Shoe Fund.

Money received in January for shoes	$3 15
Expended in January	2 21
Balance	$0.94

Have given out in January, 29 pairs of shoes, and 10 pairs of overshoes. Santa Claus' shoes fit so nicely this year, they please the children very much, especially the little girls with their shiny tips, only they are a little jealous of the boys, for they think Santa Claus is more fond of boys, for in the large box he sent there were a few more boys' than girls' shoes. However, every child that has come we have been able to give a pair of shoes to and the work is more satisfactory every year.

On Snow Shoes in Labrador.

Mr. Frank E. Schoonover, artist and writer, has kindly consented to give us an illustrated lecture on his experiences in a winter trip to Hudson Bay on snow shoes. He will show by his beautiful lantern pictures, just how the Indian trapper lives, travels and catches his fur-bearing animals. Anyone interested is cordially invited to be present in the Sunday School Building, rear of Church, on Tuesday evening, February 3d, at eight o'clock. No cards of admission required. Everyone welcome.

The Rector's Letter.

Dr. Johnson has always been regarded as one of the sages of our race. When not provoked by argument or bound, by prejudices, or delighting in opposition, he had the great gift of treating serious questions in a weighty and manly way. His words about church membership in his famous essay on Milton are worth recalling: "To be of no church is dangerous. Religion, of which the rewards are distant, and which is animated only by faith and hope, will glide by degrees out of the mind, unless it be invigorated and re-impressed by external ordinances, by stated calls to worship and the salutary influence of example." Is not this counsel worth heeding?

Confirmation will fall on the second Sunday in Lent, at the morning service. It is a useful custom to have confirmation classes, and as a rule it would be a mistake for a young person to be confirmed without first entering a class. But it is not well that a free man should be tied down by rules. The door of opportunity is still open, and in the case of adults, where the great requirement is not information and instruction, but decision that will conquer procrastination, and courage that will overcome the inertia of habit, attendance on the class is by no means an essential prerequisite. Adults are specially urged not to wait till another season. It is particularly pleasant to have people confirmed who have long found in St. Stephen's a spiritual home, but have never formally connected themselves with it. Their more regular membership will make the church mean more to them. While such additions do not lengthen our cords, they strengthen our stakes.

The great aim in making up a confirmation class is to secure a band of candidates really in earnest. Church members, who are triflers, or shirkers, professors and not doers of the word are only a hindrance to the cause. Jesus always let volunteers understand clearly the nature of His service. He came to seek and save, but He did not try to save any man in his sins. He made it clear that discipleship meant separation from sin.

To our prospective class our Sunday School and societies have made their usual large contribution. It is good to find that this year, as well as last, the Social Hour on Sunday night has made its contribution and thereby given a proof of the value of its meetings. At these social hours we are particularly gratified when the medical students drop in upon us. They live so near, and yet, as a rule, are so far from our reach.

The special Lenten task that I should like to set before the congregation is an increase of our contributions to missions.

The diocese expects large things of us and it will not hurt us to attempt to do our very best. We are helped in our task of supporting this church by endowments, and it therefore is peculiarly incumbent to do our utmost to help others who have no such aid. I suggest that all of us seek to increase, according to the measure of our ability, our contributions this Lent in the pocket marked missions. This is my first suggestion. The second is like unto it: I suggest that all those who do not use the envelopes, make a Lenten resolution to co-operate with this scheme faithfully, and that those who have not received a package, ask for it now, and use the envelopes through Lent, without waiting till the new cartons are issued the Sunday after Easter. Let us not lose the blessing that comes from faithful giving. A religion that costs nothing in self-denial, is found to be worth nothing in temptation or trial. A church that we do not help, is powerless to help us much. The church is like the world, largely what we make it, a savour of life unto life, or of death unto death. It is through the deepening of faith that giving brings that the giver is supremely blessed.

In closing let me say a word about the observance of Lent. Our position has made it impossible, hitherto, to make much of our afternoon services. The cars in the afternoon hours are too crowded to make it feasible for our distant members to use them. There used to be a rule in the Jewish synagogue that a certain number of people were required for a service. At college special courses would be granted, if a certain number would agree to take them. This is the way in which I would provide services. I do not believe in multiplying services that are not really needed, and then calling on the church members to stand loyally by arrangements in which they were not consulted, and in this way heaping tasks on shoulders already overladen. It seems to me that the people ought to express their wishes. If a number of people want a special Litany service, on Friday or Wednesday, either in the morning or afternoon, let them express their wishes and I will endeavor to meet them. Until Mr. Edwards is advanced to the presbyterate, as I prefer to call it, since our word priest is only the Greek term presbuteros, written small, it is difficult to multiply communion services. Personally I believe that quality in communions is far more important than quantity; but I shall endeavor to meet the needs of people of diverse religious preferences and tastes.

It will be greatly appreciated if the members of the church who can attend the midday services will come to their own church. We have secured a splendid band of speakers, and should give them the encouragement and support of our presence. We regret that Dr. Worcester can not be with us, but no one in the church could take his place as acceptably as his genial and gifted associate and coworker, Dr. McComb, who will take the dates assigned originally to Dr. Worcester.

As I think of the work of the parish, I thank God for the peace and harmony that reigns among us, and feel that in this Christian concord, we have a token of God's blessing and a pledge of usefulness in His service.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Rector's Bible Class began on Thursday, February 5th, at 11 o'clock, in the Guild Room of the Parish with an attendance of 56. The subject of the lecture was Hebrew prophecy before Amos, and the political conditions that prepared the way for the first of the literary prophets. At the second session on February 12, there the attendance was 63, the subject was the Message of Amos.

On Thursday, the 19th, the class was praetermitted in favor of the Woman's Auxiliary, which meets statedly on the third Thursday in the month. The third session on Thursday, February 26th, was devoted to Hosea. The attendance and interest indicate that this Bible Class fills a real need in the Parish, and will become a permanent feature of our winter work. The invitation to join is general. There is room for about twenty more members. The only textbook required is a Revised Version of the Scriptures—the American Revision is preferred.

Mr. Richard M. Cadwalader as executor for Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, has informed the Rector that Mrs. Mitchell bequeathed to the Endowment Fund of St. Stephen's $5,000 clear of all taxes. By this thoughtful bequest Mrs. Mitchell will in perpetuity aid our church, and continue the work she loved.

"For years beyond our ken,
The light she left behind will lie
Upon the paths of men."

Such a gift is in keeping with the tenor of her whole life. It will be a great and needed assistance to the Vestry.

The exact date of the unveiling of the Wood Memorial can not be finally determined, but the plan is to have this ceremony on the second Wednesday after Easter, April 22nd, at 8 P. M. The speakers and participants will be announced later. About a hundred dollars more is needed to defray the expenses of the memorial service, provide a lantern to hang in front of the bust, and care for the incidentals. The treasurer of the fund sends the following statement:

A Snowy Day.

There is only one snowy day mentioned in the Bible,—the snowy day on which the redoubtable Benaiah, the son of Jehoida, slew a lion in a pit; but there are numerous snowy days in the history of St. Stephen's, when men went out into the snow and slew the lion of sloth. Certainly there have been several such snowy days in the present rectorship. None of us can forget December 26th, 1909, when there was such a heavy fall of snow in the night that all the car lines were blocked except the Ridge Avenue line, which an energetic official kept open by running the cars all night. Dr. Wood managed to get to the church by the Reading Railroad and found that all his choir had contrived in some fashion or other to be in their places. What a glorious service we had! No curtailing, no skimping, everything done heartily as unto the Lord, and every person present feeling that it was a privilege and achievement to be there; every one responding in the Psalter, everybody saying Amen to the prayers, everybody exchanging greetings, every one resolving that if he ever stayed home from church, he would not let his absence occur on such a glorious occasion, when all the earth was a transfiguration mount, and wore vestments white and glistening, such as no fuller on earth can white them.

Another such day was Monday, February 23, 1914. It had started to snow, the readers will recall, Sunday night, and all day long the feathery flakes descended, very light and almost dry as powder. The wind swept them off the pavement and piled them up on the snow banks, and blew them into the faces of the passers-by. It was a night to make the fires glow and the arm-chair desirable, but it was also the night of the Girls' Friendly. The Rector wondered how many would be present in such weather, on a night in which one would hardly drive the dog that bit him out into the cold, so he bundled himself up and like the Monk of St. Bernard suggested in Excelsior, attended by his faithful hound—in this case a most accomplished and refined water spaniel—ran down to the Parish House. And found—what think you? The iron grating closed, the windows dark? Not at all; light was blazing out from the upper windows, a cheerful sound of many voices was heard when the door was opened and on ascending the stair, 42 members of the Girls' Friendly were discovered celebrating with their secretary, Mrs. Lucas, the legal holiday of the Father of our Country. Could anything have been more cheering? Forty-three in all—think what a fine number! Four more than the 39 articles, to be Ecclesiastical; three more than the 40 thieves, to revert to Ali Baba's immortal story; four more than 40 stripes save one—43, a numeral combined of two numbers, one of which being a perfect square, typifies the city that is four square, the heavenly Jerusalem, and the other the mystic number of the Trinity, and the two added together, making 7, the sacred number that cannot be factored—you see I understand the mystic science of numbers.

Forty-three persons, in brief, to whom the Girls' Friendly meant something so worth while, so cheering, so wholesome, so helpful, so grateful and comforting—like Epp's Cocoa—that neither snow, nor wind, nor cold could keep them at home. Is not it good to know we have such a Friendly Society?

King's Daughters, Whatsoever Circle.

King's Daughters, Whatsoever Circle will have their next meetings, March 4th and March 18th, in Guild Room of Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock.

Shoe Fund.

Donations received for shoes from Miss Laura Bell	$1 00
From those receiving shoes	2 75
Total	$3 75
Expended for shoes	2 25
Balance	$1 50

Have given out in February, 15 pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of overshoes. It is very amusing to see some of the children wrapping their new overshoes in paper very carefully, intending to walk home in the slush and snow because they are new and shiny. Christmas time, a very poor little girl was given a pair of shoes which had patent leather tips, the child was delighted and kept saying, are these for me, turning them over and said aren't they pretty? Not having any shoes, one can imagine her delight.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular meeting Thursday, February 19th, in the Parish House. In spite of the stormy day seventeen members were present, and the usual reports of the various committees were given. The treasurer reported a balance of $105.10.

Miss Farrell urged members to join the Church Periodical Club by sending at least one magazine to some one in the mission field.

Miss Bell made a special request that all members of the Auxiliary read the book, "Emergency in China," which is to be the text book of the Mission Study classes during Lent.

Mrs. B. S. Cooper, of Washington, gave an interesting talk on her work among the Arapahoe and Shoshone Indians near Wind River, Wyoming, in the diocese of Bishop Thomas. Mrs. Cooper is trying to raise funds to build a comfortable church home and industrial school at Wind River. The land has already been purchased through the efforts of the Indians themselves. The mission was established thirty-one years ago by Rev. Mr. Roberts, who is still there. Mrs. Cooper was voted $25.00 by the Auxiliary.

The next stated meeting of the Auxiliary will be held in the Parish House, March 19th, at 11 o'clock. Miss Charlotte Nodine will talk of her work in the Daily Vacation Bible School of St. Stephen's Parish.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

The death of Dr. Snively at Nice France, was announced in the February daily papers. Born at Greencastle, Pa., Dr. Snively gained his title of Doctor by his graduation from the school of medicine of the University of Pennsylvania. After a short career as a practitioner of that art, Dr. Snively took a course at Berkeley Divinity School and was ordained to our ministry. For twenty years he was Warden of the Burd School for Girls, and as such one of the assistants to the Rector of St. Stephen's. He had the art of making friends, and endeared himself to all who knew him. In 1909 he resigned and went to France, where he took charge of the Episcopal Church. He leaves behind a son, the Rev. Alfred de Forest Snively, an Assistant at Christ Church, Springfield, Mass., and three daughters—Misses Margaret and Muriel, and Mrs. Edward Cosbey, whose husband is the Rector of Trinity Church, Collingdale, Pa.

The Sunday School.

Mr. Kirkpatrick and the Superintendent represented our school at the Church House, February 24th, when the male officers of our Diocesan Sunday School Association met at a dinner conference, to consider their responsibilities and make better plans for more successful leadership.

At the County Association's Older Boys' Congress, of February 27th and 28th, held in the auditorium of the Central Y. M. C. A., with Director of Public Safety Porter, the Rev. W. T. Capers and others as speakers, the boys who were delegated from our school, were Robert Brown and James Merchant, who are expected to report the proceedings to our school, our superintendent being chairman of the Committee of Arrangements.

In the second year's awarding of gold badges for constancy of attendance at Sunday School for one continuous year up to the first Sunday of this February, we have had the pleasure of awarding these beautiful emblems to Miss Myrtle Traul, Miss Mabel Ditman, Miss Gertrude Cairns, Miss Dorothy Minster and Miss Edna Vreeland, as well as to Mr. Carl Powers, Mr. John Seeds, and Mr. Wm. Pedrick. Most of these being successful for two years have received the fine encircling gold wreath. Miss Gray and Miss Pearse received a gold badge for this year.

It is most pleasing to note the presence of our older scholars, meeting with the Rector in his Confirmation Class on Saturday evening. There are several more, particularly among the older boys, who should decide to take this important step at once and not let this season's opportunity pass by without their decision to stand up for the Christ.

Five of the younger boys have been taken into the Junior Brotherhood on probation, and meet regularly the second and fourth Sundays of the month and expect to be taken into full membership by the Rector in a special service about the first of April.

e first Sunday in March our course of Lesson Study, on the Life of Jesus, will be reviewed from the platform and our stereopticon will be used, illustrating with a number of beautiful pictures. Any one interested will be cordially welcome in our Sunday School room at 9.45 A. M., March 1st

It is proposed to have our teachers meeting the first Friday in each month, at 8 P. M., in the Parish House, the next one to take place Friday evening, March 6th.

G. H. STREAKER,
Superintendent.

St. Stephen's Aid Society will hold its meetings in the Parish House on Friday mornings during Lent, at 10 o'clock. The object of this work is to provide baby garments to be distributed by Miss Lewis in her work among the poor of the Parish. Members of the congregation are earnestly requested to assist with this work.

G. K. CAMPBELL,
Secretary.

Our Tiffany Windows.

Our church has now three fine specimens of the Tiffany window, namely the Pancoast window, that has recently been provided with a protective back of thick glass, and also generally renovated, the Atmore window, "Nicodemus Visiting Jesus by Night," and the Arrison window, "Christ with the Children." These three brilliant windows, together with the striking and original McDowell window, make the south wall of our church full of color and message. At our request, an expert has pointed out the distinctive merits of the Tiffany windows.

His first point is that the Tiffany process and endeavor is not imitation, but original creation. In his judgment the English and German schools of stained glass aim at copying and emulating the mediæval period. Their method is the old method of flat surfaces of even thickness upon which the colors are painted. The drapery is drawn, there is much shading, and most of the designing is upon the glass. The dominant note is repression rather than expression of feeling. While this glass has a charm of its own, it is a charm that is largely dependent upon the association of ideas. Using conventionalities of treatment that have been hallowed and endeared by illustrious examples through the centuries, it places its pictures, so to speak, at the end of a lovely vista, and while it twines around them the charm of antiquity, also binds them by its limitations. The Tiffany windows, on the other hand, aim at expressing modern ideas in a fresh and living way, our critic claims. The American school has sought to find out new ways and aimed at developing the art. In pursuit of this goal, Mr. Louis C. Tiffany discovered in 1875 a process for making a new kind of glass which he called Favrile glass, a term derived by softening a consonant, from the old English word fabrile, which means "hand-made." By a very thin film-like corrosion of the surface this glass is given a wonderful rainbow iridescence which is equal to the effect of corrosion upon Pompeian and other ancient glass through burial. The Tiffany windows are made entirely on the mosaic method, without the intervention of paint, stains or enamels. The perspective is secured by the use of several platings or layers of glass of various colors. The leading now forms much of the design, which was formerly painted in. The adherents of this school claim for it that it has effected an emancipation for the cult and opened doors that have hitherto been closed to glass workers.

Over and above these artistic merits, it is pointed out that these windows are peculiarly fitted to commemorate Americans in American churches, since they are designed by American artists, made of American glass, in American workshops, by American artisans. The beauty of the windows speaks sufficiently for them, and this last consideration would carry us, like St. Paul's ill-fated ship, to a place where two seas meet, and divergent economic theories contend. I only mention it, that we may learn of the associations that go with these Tiffany windows as well as the artistic ideals and processes of the makers. No one can doubt that they are great ornaments to our church.

Memorial Flowers.

The cost of flowers for the Altar is one dollar and a half each Sunday, which amount should be sent at the same time with your name and address to Mrs. William B. Campbell, 1711 Pine street. It will be assumed unless notice is given to the contrary that these subscriptions for Memorial Flowers for special Sundays will be continued annually on date specified or on the Sunday nearest to it, therefore post cards will be sent to subscribers when their contributions are due.

NOTE.—As Easter Day did not come within this period there is no Easter offering in this account.

JOS. B. VAN DUSEN, JR.,
Treasurer.

The Envelope System.

The package given out last April will be exhausted on Easter day, and a new carton will be sent out for use on the Sunday after Easter. It is a good time, therefore, to inquire how the system is working. Our records show that 276 persons accepted the envelopes, and that of these 172 used them faithfully. By death, removal and other causes, 31 are accounted for. 73 persons used the system only fitfully. It is pleasant to think of those 172 faithful, conscientious ones. It is good to note how unfailingly their envelopes came in, and in how many cases both pockets brought in a contribution. I am sure that the Church means much to such contributors and that they are of incalculable value to the Church. We feel certain that we can rely on those members to accept the envelopes for another year, and will send them the packages without any inquiry.

Of the 31 accounted for by various causes, some died during the year. In most cases the checks indicating the return of the envelopes runs along until it ceases on the Sunday before their deaths. These members were found faithfully discharging their tasks, according to our record, when the summons came to go up higher.

Our hope is that the 73 who returned their envelopes only occasionally, and at hap-hazard will this year conscientiously take up this duty. It is our duty to help on the Kingdom for which we pray, and how can we perform that duty, if we do not aid the Church that spreads the tidings and upholds the banner. It is our desire that everyone who joins the Church should have a package and use it with regularity. If children are old enough to confess Christ publicly, they are old enough to give something regularly. The smallness of the gift is nothing, if it be commensurate with ability, so it be regularly offered. Every regular attendant on the Church ought to get a package. Requests can be left with the Rector, or Mr. Edwards, or the Verger, or the Treasurer of the Envelope Fund, Mr. Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr., Stephen Girard Building.

I ought to add that twelve persons sent in a lump sum their contributions to cover the collections indicated on the envelopes for the whole year.

To the "Shut-Ins."

As I write these words your faces come before me. Some I see quite clearly, for we are well acquainted; some I know but imperfectly, and have been so unfortunate in my hours of calling that I am rarely able to see them; some are only names to me, and I know of their existence through the kind offices of others. Different indeed are your homes; some living in stately houses and waited on by constant attendants, some lying in retired bed rooms, in patient endurance of many lonely hours; some are young and only laid aside for a time, and are expecting a speedy return to the full activities of life; some carry a burden that Time can only make heavier, the benumbing weight of years; some sustain with a serenity a heavy infliction, that has been so long endured with patience, that life would hardly seem real without it; to some it seems a great unreality that they who were lately so full of life in every limb should be bound down in this way; some would have everything it might seem that life has to give, if they had but health, and some are wondering what life has for them that they should be kept lingering here; some in pain, and some in dumb numbness, some in loneliness and some surrounded by helpers who cannot reach the trouble; but all alike in that you are shut-in; that you are separated from the privilege of common prayer and praise; all alike in that you are compelled to sit on the side lines and watch the games; all alike in that you have to fight against weariness and depression, and introspection, and spiritual foes within and without that seek to weaken your faith and hope, and try to trouble the waters of your peace. What message can this little paper bring to you of cheer and courage?

Well, first of all, note that this is the April issue. I know that during this last stormy March with its clouds and winds and changing skies and frequent and heavy snowfalls, you often wondered whether the calendars had not made a mistake and we were actually back in mid-winter.

A girl in Baltimore wrote a poem to March that began—

> "O, naughty March who all these years
> Hast frightened April into tears!"

I can quite understand that to the invalid in the sick room, it must have seemed as if March with his pranks had gone even further and scared gentle April entirely away. How distant seemed last month, the delicate beauty of the fragile jonquil, the sweet fragrance of the shy arbutus, the twitter of the birds and the tender green of unfolding leaves. Yet April is here and all these joys will soon return to earth. Already we have had a foretaste of them. Let us then be of good courage and hope that all our trials at last will pass away, transmuted into blessings by the same mysterious power that changes the wind that blows such a bitter blast in March into the balmy breezes of April. He who changes fierce winter into gentle spring, and the dark night into the gladsome day, can change the limitations that bind us like fetters into graces of faith and hope and patience that will adorn us like stars.

There is one other message that I should like this little paper to speak to you, and that is an assurance that God is not angry but is full of tender sympathy and care. In Mrs. Oliphant's Life of Edward Irving, we are told that that extraordinary man of God, in his parochial visits when he was the assistant of Dr. Chalmers in Glasgow used to salute his parishioners as he entered their homes with the Oriental greeting, "Peace be to this house."

Although the Rubric before the office of the Visitation of the Sick, directs that the minister of the Parish "coming into the sick person's house shall say, Peace be unto this house, and to all that dwell in it," one shrinks from such an un-American greeting. When the Apostles wished "Peace," they adopted the usual salutation of their day and gave it a deeper significance. We are more in accord with their method when we use the conventional and usual modes of greeting and seek to give them reality and heartiness. But this little paper can enjoy the license that belongs to literature, and can without assumption of sacerdotal functions, or straining after effect, bid you the ancient Oriental greeting. "Peace be unto you," is our salutation, to you in your quiet room. Let peace reign in your heart. Let us believe that God is our friend, and that no harm can come from Him to us. Let us be at peace. Let us listen to the inner voice which like a watchman walking through an ancient town at night, proclaiming his message of assurance, tells us "all is well."

The Noon Day Lenten services are so near the end with this issue that it is not too soon to congratulate the congregation on the privilege that it has enjoyed of hearing such helpful messages. Bishop Williams has won a place for himself in Philadelphia as the large attendance proved. A prophet of social righteousness he has gained a hearing in this great emporium of trade and center of manufactures. Dr. McComb, unfortunately, was called away before he had quite completed his course, but he made a profound impression. Mr. Melish's congregations grew slightly in spite of the great Bible Conference, and eloquent speakers elsewhere. Last Lent he spoke for us twice, but this was the first time that we had any adequate opportunity to hear a preacher whose modern message is enforced with the earnestness of the great days of evangelicalism. We hope that the Bishop of Michigan, the clergy of Emmanuel Boston, either Dr. Worcester or Dr. McComb and Mr. Melish will come to us for many a Lenten season. We are also indebted to the local clergy for their invaluable assistance, to Dr. White, of St. Mark's for his three addresses on Love, and to Dr. Tomkins for his fervent and fruitful messages, and to our kind friends who took the trying duty of making the addresses on Saturdays. Dr. Fiske is yet to come, while I write this. We are especially grateful to him for consenting to address us on the three days just before the heavy duties of Holy Week. When I contrast our Lenten services vivified and energized by such prophetic teachers with the prosy monotony of much Lenten preaching, I feel that St. Stephen's is richly blessed indeed. Where pleasure is conjoined with hearing the message ought to sink deep into the heart and bring forth abundant fruit in the life. In the character of the addresses, this seemed to me one of our best Lenten seasons. The attendance was, according to our records, as good as it used to be in the days before the Garrick theatre services were inaugurated.

The ushering was done with marked absence of any fussiness or bustling. There was about the whole service an atmosphere of quiet, decorum and devotion. So would we have it always. The spirit of the prophets should be subject to the prophets.

Many little additions that fail of acknowledgment are made to our equipment by kind friends; but the painting of the kitchen in the third story by Mrs. H. P. Taylor, and the new stove that was given us by Mr. Jos. B. VanDusen cannot be received without a word of thanks in spite of the modesty of the donors. These generous friends have often helped us before and in these their latest gifts they have made more attractive and useful a room that renders valuable services to many societies. I once heard a celebrated rector say that he would rather have an Altar to Baal in his church than a kitchen stove. He evidently forgot that Jesus fed the multitude through his disciples after teaching and overlooked the social nature of the Lord's Supper. To-day almost every church has a kitchen, and it would be well if it also had a gymnasium. We realize that a church is a social centre as well as an oratory and a hall for teaching.

The Wood Memorial will be unveiled with appropriate exercises on Wednesday, April 29th, at 8 P. M.. Addresses will be delivered by Dr. Frederick Wolle, the celebrated interpreter of Bach, who was a pupil of Dr. Wood's by Mr. Allen, the head of the Perkins Institute, Boston, who was associated with Dr. Wood in his work at the Institution for the Blind at Overbrook, by the Rev. Dr. McConnell, and the Rector. Mr. Thunder will be in charge of the music, and pupils of Dr. Wood will be at the organ. The choir will be enlarged for the occasion. Programs will be printed later and cards of special invitation will be issued to subscribers. The memorial will be unveiled by Elsie Wood.

On the Monday after Easter at 8 o'clock will be held the regular annual parish meeting. All members of the Church are invited to attend, and all societies are requested to assemble in their usual manner. Reports should avoid unnecessary details and give general results.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The stated meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held March 19th. There were thirty members present.

After the usual reports from the committees, Mrs. E. C. Grice gave a talk on the Daily Vacation Bible Schools of Philadelphia, and Miss Nodine told of the school which she directed in St. Stephen's Parish last summer.

Mrs. Grice says a large percentage of 230,000 school children are on the streets in summer and she feels that churches being untaxed property should open their doors, and our young college men and women who have vacations should be willing to give two hours a day for six weeks helping entertain and instruct these children.

There were sixty in St. Stephen's school last summer. They are told Bible stories and taught to make hammocks and baskets and the girls are taught sewing. The articles made are given to the hospitals. Miss Nodine needs only $175 to maintain her school in St. Stephen's. The Auxiliary voted her $25.

The next regular meeting will be held April 16th.

At the March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's the cause of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools was presented by one of the officers, Mrs. Grice, and also the teacher of our own branch, Miss Charlotte W. Nodine, These schools are conducted for six weeks during the summer and aim to keep the children off the streets, give them pleasant and profitable occupations, and to teach them Bible stories which in many instances the children hear for the first time.

Our branch costs one hundred and seventy-five dollars to run and of this amount forty-six dollars was raised by the Auxiliary. If any of the readers of the PARISH NEWS care to contribute to this cause they may send such to Miss Ella Headman, 118 N. 18th St., who will be glad to receive it and turn it over to Miss Nodine at the proper time.

The Sunday School.

On March 29th our Sunday School Clock registered an enrollment of 201 scholars, which is encouraging, as we are thus steadily climbing to our aim of 250 members at the close of this winter's session. We believe this can be accomplished if teachers, scholars and officers keep this vision before them and earnestly try to bring in new scholars.

Bishop Rhinelander's visit of Sunday, March 8th, to administer Confirmation, was new in respect to its being held at the morning service. It brought out most of the Sunday school and the teachers' hearts were cheered with the fruitage, as they saw their scholars among those to be confirmed. We would like to have seen more of the boys in the class.

The success of the recent "Older Boys' Congress" of Philadelphia was echoed in our school when our two delegates, Robert Brown and James Merchant, made their reports of its proceedings—Robert to the Main School the first Sunday in March, and James to the Primary School the following Sunday.

As a result of the earnest efforts of Miss Denny's Bible Class in their recent entertainment, we were enabled to pay twenty-five dollars which they kindly donated towards the payment of the new scenery bill of last December.

Bad weather interfered with our teachers' meeting in March, but we hope for a good attendance the first Friday in April to complete the plans for our Easter Carol Service, which is to be held as usual the first Sunday after Easter, April 19th, at 4 P. M., in the Church, together with the Burd School. We are hoping for good returns with our Lenten boxes and the offerings for Missions. We trust that every teacher and officer will be present at our preliminary meeting for prayer on the first Sunday in April at 9.30 A. M., in the lower room of the Sunday School Building.

Parish Visitor's Report.

With the approach of spring all nature seems glad, and we human beings rejoice as well, for everything will look brighter and happier, and even poverty and trouble are less hard to bear when it is near.

One of the many trials of life is loneliness. We find it everywhere, for most everyone is more or less so at times, but it is harder when coupled with poverty. Some of our people who are left destitute, have outlived every tie of relationship, and with deprivation and loneliness, it becomes a difficult task for us to encourage and soothe at times.

There is one case of particular interest, that of a woman, who at one time had all she needed and wanted, within reason. She traveled abroad, and as long as her mother lived she had every comfort, but at her mother's death the money left to her vanished, through mismanagement and trusting others to invest it for her. Not having had business experience she fell into the hands of some dishonorable people who left but enough interest out of her principal to pay a small board of twenty weeks out of the fifty-two a year. She is not fitted for any employment and her mental state is pitiable. We want to place her in a Home, but that means her name will have to be put at the end of a long waiting list, even though she passes the required examination. Through Dr. Grammer she is being looked after.

One dear old lady, over eighty years of age, living in a room over a machine shop with the noise of the different machines buzzing and thumping all day, is the dearest, loveliest old soul we know, smiling and happy, and just simply praying and trusting in God that He may take her home while she is able to remain in the room of which she is so fond. When we gave her the half ton of coal we wondered where she could put it, but on opening the various boxes, a shoe box and a barrel, etc., there was her coal neatly stowed away. The only time she can read her little book of versicles, which is one of her greatest pleasures, is while the sun is shining in her window, when she hastens to get her book, fearing to lose one glimmering ray. May her nightly prayers for release be answered soon.

Another case is a woman on her back with the rheumatism; the neighbors come in and wait upon her; the doctor is kind, and the druggist supplies her medicine free of charge, and with what assistance we can give, she manages to live. We could mention many others.

The past winter has seen a number of people out of work. Some of them have never known what it was to be unemployed before. Hardships and struggles have been long and severe, but we hope all will feel encouraged as the cold weather leaves us, and spring is with us again.

We are very thankful for all the help we have received, or shall receive, to relieve suffering and poverty around us.

H. K. Lewis.

Lowell's Admirable Reply.

When James Russell Lowell was our United States Minister to England, he was in attendance at a public meeting in London at which some of the speakers of the evening took occasion to sneer at religion, saying that they could get along without it, and deprecated its influence upon men. The following was the poet's splendid answer:

I do not think it safe. I am formulating no creed of my own; I have always been a liberal thinker, and have therefore allowed others, who differed from me, to think also as they liked; but at the same time I fear that when we indulge ourselves in the amusement of going without religion we are not, perhaps, aware how much we are sustained at present by an enormous mass all about us, of religious feeling and religious conviction; so that, whatever it may be safe for us to think,—for us who have had great advantages, and have been brought up in such a way that a certain moral direction has been given to our character—I do not know what would become of the less favored classes of mankind if they undertook to play the same game. Whatever defects and imperfections may attach to a few points of the doctrinal system of Calvin,—the bulk of which was simply what all Christians believe,—it will be found that Calvinism or any other ism which claims an open Bible and proclaims a crucified and risen Christ, is infinitely preferable to any other form of polite and polished skepticism, which gathers as its votaries the degenerate sons of heroic ancestors, who, having been trained in a society, and educated in schools, the foundations of which were laid by men of faith and piety, now turn and kick down the ladder by which they have climbed up, and persuade men to live without God, and leave them to die without hope.

The worst kind of religion is no religion at all; and these men, living in ease and luxury, indulging themselves in the amusement of going without religion, may be thankful that they live in lands where the gospel they neglect has tamed the beastliness and ferocity of the men, who, but for Christianity might long ago have eaten their carcasses like the South Sea Islanders, or cut off their head and tanned their hides like the monsters of the French Revolution.

When the microscopic search of skepticism which has hunted the heavens and sounded the seas to disprove the existence of a Creator, has turned its attention to human society, and has found on this planet a place ten miles square where a decent man can live in decency, comfort and security, supporting and educating his children unspoiled and unpolluted; a place where age is reverenced, infancy protected, manhood respected, womanhood honored, and human life held in due regard,—when skeptics can find such a place ten miles square on this globe, where the gospel of Christ has not gone and cleared the way, and laid the foundations, and made decency and security possible, it will then be in order for the skeptical literati to move thither an there ventilate their views. But so long as these very men are dependent upon the religion which they discard, for every privilege they enjoy, they may well hesitate a little before they seek to rob the Christian of his hope and humanity of its faith in that Saviour who alone has given to man that hope of eternal life which makes life tolerable and society possible; and robs death of its terrors and the grave of its gloom.

THE ANNUAL REPORTS OF
The Mothers' Meeting and the Benevolent Society of ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA

April 20th, 1914

These reports, which were read at the annual parochial meeting, April 20th, were by an unaccountable oversight omitted from the May PARISH NEWS, and are published in this form for the information of the congregation and the friends of these two societies.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

Mothers' Meeting.

The president of the Mothers' Meeting is happy to report a prosperous year. We have 143 members on our roll, with 137 in good and regular standing. During the good months of the season we had an average attendance of from 90 to 100; during the bad months of February and March our attendance averaged 70 to 75, which is good when it is remembered that our members come from all parts of the city and are mostly tired workers. There has been a most encouraging interest taken in the meetings; all joining heartily in the devotional period, and showing great pleasure in the entertainments provided by kind friends who sang, read, recited, and gave interesting talks or showed travel pictures.

Our Annual Sale, held on the first Thursday in December, netted us $146.25. The object of this sale was to provide more bathing and toilet facilities at St. Stephen's Farm.

Before the Farm was opened last year, the proceeds of the preceding sale were expended for porch and other chairs, lawn swing, hammock, lamps for parlor and dining room, necessary linen, dishes, silver, papering, and general replenishing and house repairs. Part of the balance left was used in painting the kitchen in the Parish House.

During the summer a number of the Mothers spent a happy holiday week at the Farm, and every Thursday a party of from 16 to 18 went up for the day. The Farm is very dear to the hearts of the Mothers, and it gives them great joy to return some of the benefits which they reap from it.

The different funds which are part of the work of the Mothers' Meeting, the Coal Savings Fund, the Beneficial Fund and the Savings Fund have been well kept up. We have lost one member by death.

The officers of the Meeting are satisfied that the work has the blessing of God, and that it adds to the well-being and pleasure of its members.

MRS. HENRY P. TAYLOR, President.
E. E. HOLMAN, Secretary.

Benevolent Society.

It is hard to believe that another winter is over and that our Society is closing for the summer. There have been sad and happy incidents connected with the season; a member who was dear to everyone in the Society was taken from us by death, but her influence will long continue with us, and we know it would have been her wish to be taken before her usefulness came to an end.

We opened November 5th, notifying the hospitals a short time before, and the Pennsylvania, Episcopal, Jefferson, Presbyterian, Hahnemann, Howard, St. Timothy's Woman's, Church Home, Angora, Presbyterian Orphanage, Home for Destitute Children, Lincoln Institute and St. Stephen's Farm responded. The last work was given out April 15th. There were twenty-four active members who attend to the work and twenty-seven who do the sewing. In a little over five months we have made 5,257 articles. We have always tried to get up to 4,000 before, but never able to accomplish it. This year we are 1,257 over what we thought we could do. There are two good reasons for this; we have learned that to be successful we must be systematic, and each one give the best that is in her. Then in the last few years we have seven new members (one has had to leave) the others are doing such good work that instead of only parceling and giving the work out, we are now willing to cut out the garments whenever the hospital wishes us to do so.

We are very grateful to the Hospitals. If we do a great deal for them, they do as much for us in supplying the material. They could not be more kind in their expressions of appreciation of the way it is done: "the sewing is beautiful"; "it would cost them a great deal to have it done; and ready made garments would not wear as well." One writes: "The Managers of the Hahnemann Hospital Association desire to extend to the ladies of St. Stephen's Guild their sincere and earnest thanks for all the garments made by you. If it were not for your kindness and that of our other friends, we would find it difficult to keep many of our charity patients properly clad."

God's blessing seems to be with us, there is the same loving spirit that is the marked characteristic of the Society each year: To help others, to do good and love each other; this is growing as well as the work, and we can continue to call ourselves The Benevolent Society.

It is not necessary that the Rector should make any comment upon the conditions revealed in these reports, as they tell their own tale with sufficient clearness. The Treasurer's report shows that we are ahead in our financing of the Church: our expenses were met by our income, and a balance is left on hand.

This condition is due partly to economies, partly to the income from the Endowment of $25,000 given in memory of Horace Magee, and chiefly to the Envelope System. An analysis of the contributions from the Envelopes reveals that only thirty per cent. of the offerings goes to parochial maintenance, while seventy per cent. is given to charities and missions within and without the Diocese. I wish that we could have contributed more largely to the Diocesan Apportionment for Missions and have come closer to the sum that the Diocese would like us to contribute. It is, however, impossible, and would be harmful, in my judgment, to check all voluntary gifts for special objects. Nearly every society in the Church reports increased work.

Our annual Parish Meeting, the second Monday after Easter, was fairly well attended, as annual meetings go, but not quite as largely as in past years. The threatening weather probably kept away many of "the Mothers." I wish that the pew-holders of the Church would come out in larger numbers to these meetings. In the country the Church is naturally a social centre and bond of fellowship. In the city it can only perform this function by creating a parochial consciousness through meetings of this kind.

The Vestry has been formally notified by Miss Harnish, the Superintendent of the Burd School, that she will resign her position on the first of September to pursue a course of special study in the University of Wisconsin. An appropriate minute will doubtless be adopted by the Vestry at its next meeting. As this is the last issue of the Parish News until the Fall, it is proper that it should contain some recognition of Miss Harnish's great ability, as an organizer and administrator. The changes in the school under her were of a radical character, so far as the instruction was concerned. The children were not secluded from life under instructors of their own but were introduced into life by sending them to the public school, and by dressing them like other children. In every way the effort was made to assimilate their lives to normal conditions. Reforms in government were inaugurated, and modern methods were brought into the institution. Great economies were introduced, and the school has been run without exceeding its income. Moreover, the affection of the girls has not been lost under the strain of readjustment, but has been won and kept, and the tone of the school has been improved. Miss Harnish's work has been sound as well as brilliant. She will leave behind her a splendid record, and will carry into her new field the promise of large achievement and the best wishes of all at "The Burd School," and of her friends in St. Stephen's Church.

On Wednesday, the 29th, the Portrait Tablet of David Duffle Wood, Doctor of Music, for forty-six years the organist and choirmaster of St. Stephen's Church, was unveiled with addresses by Dr. J. Frederick Wolle, of Bethlehem, Pa., by Mr. Andrews, Warden of the American Guild of Organists, by Mr. Edward E. Allen, the principal of Perkins Institute, Boston, by Dr. McConnell and Dr. Grammer. A prelude on the organ was played by Mr. Maxson.

Except Dr. Wood's favorite Hymn, "He leadeth me," which was sung at the beginning of the exercises, all the other music was Dr. Wood's own composition. The anthems were, In the Beginning, The Magnificat, "Behold I show you a mystery," "There shall be no night there," and "The Twilight Shadows Fall."

The music was in charge of Mr. Henry Gordon Thunder. The organists of the various numbers, all pupils of Dr. Wood, were:

Mr. Rollo F. Maitland.
Mr. Frederick Maxson.
Mr. Uselma Clarke Smith.
Mr. S. Tudor Strang.

The singers consisted of the Choir of St. Stephen's, supplemented by many other former pupils and singers under Dr. Wood.

The portrait bust is the work of Charles Grafly, of Philadelphia, and is a work of unusual charm, as well as a fine likeness of Dr. Wood. The Church was filled to its utmost capacity, and the music and addresses, which we have not time even to summarize if this monthly is to appear on time, made the occasion one long to be remembered, as a tribute to a great artist and a noble man. Great thanks are due to all who participated in the arrangements, especially to Mr. Colket, the Treasurer of the Committee, and to Miss Dale, the Secretary, whose zeal has been a source of inspiration to all who came near her.

The inscription on the tablet reads:

DAVID DUFFLE WOOD
Doctor of Music,
Organist and Choirmaster of this Church, March 28th, 1864—March 25th, 1910.
Musician. Composer. Hero.
Erected by friends and pupils.

The Envelopes Once More.

There are over 900 people who are attendants or communicants of St. Stephen's or members of some of its societies. About 600 of that number are regular worshipers at the Church. Surely, out of such a number we ought to have 300 people taking the envelopes and using them.

Beginning at the Vestry and going down to the members of the last Confirmation Class, every really faithful and earnest Church member ought to co-operate with the system. Some of the older members send a check in lieu of using the envelopes.

It is greatly to be desired that those who accepted the envelopes last year and only used them occasionally irregularly, will apply for a package again and co-operate with it with more assiduity and may I say fidelity.

It is gratifying to learn of the success of any of our band, and the congregation, which knows Miss Jane Harper as the sometime editor of the PARISH NEWS will be interested to learn that she has been promoted to the responsible post of acting secretary of the Public Education Society.

St. Stephen's Aid Society.

St. Stephen's Aid Society held its meetings as usual on Friday mornings during Lent. At the beginning the outlook was not encouraging as many of our former members were not able to help us this year. Timely assistance, however, from the members of the King's Daughters and the diligent co-operation of a little band of earnest workers succeeded in filling our closet with the usual number of baby garments. It is gratifying to report that 191 articles were made.

Report of the United Offering.

What is the United Offering? It is a Thank Offering, and it is placed on the Altar at the Triennial Service of Thanksgiving at the time when the Woman's Auxiliary has its Triennial Meeting, which is the time and place where the Church holds its General Convention.

Resolved, That the United Offering of 1916 be given to the Board of Missions to be devoted entirely to the training, testing and sending and support of women for mission work at home and abroad, and to the care of such who are sick and disabled.

Our last United Offering has just been made. It brought in over $300,000 for Woman's Work. Had every woman communicant given five cents a week during the three years, it might have been $3,000,000 or more. How great a result from such a small contribution.

The United Offering of Pennsylvania amounted to $38,705. This was the largest offering made by any one Diocese, and the largest one made by Pennsylvania. The whole amount offered from all the Dioceses and Missionary Districts was $300,000.

Mrs. Thomas considered the Presentation Service the most important factor of the United Offering. We cannot emphasize it too strongly, or make it too prominent a feature. Let us do our utmost to make this service worthy of this great Diocese.

The Presentation Service of The United Offering will be on Thursday, April 30th, at 10 A. M., at the Church of the Saviour, 38th street, above Chestnut street.

I have to report $200.00.

ANNA J. MAGEE.

Altar Society.

The Superintendent of the Altar Society submits the Thirtieth Annual Report as follows:

The members of the Chancel Committee, of which there are 17 members, have performed their regular duties throughout the year.

Four sets of book markers for the Bible and Altar Prayer Book were presented by Mrs. H. P. Taylor. During the year four small book markers were made for the Altar Prayer Book and four more Prayer Books to be used in the Chancel were purchased.

The Secretary reports 43 subscribers to the Memorial Flower Fund, there being now only three Sundays available for other applicants.

AGNES M. F. NOBLIT, Treasurer.

Yearly Report of the Parish Visitor.

During the past year the greater part of our work seems to have been especially prosperous. Each week brings its round of duties, visiting hospitals, the well and the sick at home, distributing clothing and other necessaries to those in need. Seventeen persons were admitted into different hospitals through some influential people, the Episcopal, Hahneman and Jefferson being especially kind. The latter hospital is now treating a homeless man in almost a princely manner for him, we think.

A man and woman we were compelled to place in the Norristown Hospital for the Insane and we regret to say that we are given no encouragement as to their ultimate recovery.

A family of nine we have been assisting for months. The mother was the only support, doing laundry work. When sickness and death entered this family Miss Frances Gebhart's and Mrs. John K. Walker's memorials helped greatly in taking care of them. Through Mr. Roland Morris, the husband has been admitted to the Home for Consumptives at Chestnut Hill.

Seven whole tons and sixteen half tons of coal were distributed during the year and these were given to us by Mr. William Hollar, Mrs. A. Hewson, Miss Lockhart and through the kindness of Miss Anna Daley.

Milk has been sent out daily to some of the sick. Prescriptions filled for some who were unable to pay. A wheeled chair and other necessaries were secured for a woman who has been paralyzed since the birth of her last child. She is only 32 years old and the mother of four other children. It is a hopeless case, as the physicians give her no encouragement.

Groceries were sent out on an average of two or three times a week and we were greatly helped in doing this by Mr. Samuel Moore; in fact, we could not have done so much without his assistance.

A debt of gratitude is due Mr. Edward G. McCollin, who is helping us in a law case involving tedious work and much of his valuable time.

At Thanksgiving, twelve families were remembered by some of the ladies of the congregation.

A number of persons who shared in the Christmas dinner-baskets this year was as large as ever. The Guild Room had the usual appearance of good cheer when all the baskets were displayed there. Some members of our congregation visited a few poor families as Santa Claus, much to the delight of the children, taking useful things to wear as well as toys and candies.

Miss Culbertson's Sunday School class gave the Parish Visitor a glad surprise when it acted as Santa Claus by donating five dollars for a suit of clothes for a little boy who attends our school.

We wish to thank the donors for the gifts of half-worn clothing sent us for our Garment Society. We think this Society does most excellent work. It is open every Tuesday morning during the winter from half past ten to twelve and a number of times during the winter on Thursday evenings from six to seven o'clock, which thus gives an opportunity to those who cannot come during the morning hours. Dr. Grammer gives to the President, Miss Lammot, a sum of money to be invested in garments for which heretofore the Society has charged a small amount to those who could afford to pay, but with the increased cost of living, many seem to be unable to do even this, and in consequence, the work is almost entirely charity. On behalf of its President I wish to make a plea in the interest of this work. If a small donation of $1.00 a year could be given by a number it would encourage the President and help her greatly.

Mrs. Richardson donated five new double blankets, which were distributed where greatly needed.

One very interesting feature of our winter's work was the dancing class, consisting of about fifty young girls and boys. The Parish Visitor had charge of these classes in order that no objectionable dances be allowed and that early hours be observed. We have been visited by different members of other churches who, upon leaving us, expressed great pleasure at our success in the direction of affording clean, healthy amusement for the young. Mrs. Dudley Lane has kindly taught the dances.

Two hundred and twenty-six dollars have been received for Specialized Charities.

As I look back over the year that has passed, I am very thankful to my Heavenly Father for the health and strength He has given me to do this work, and the great assistance from St. Stephen's congregation.

Respectfully submitted,
K. H. Lewis.

Report for the year from May, 1913, to April, 1914.

Received from good old Santa Claus two large boxes of shoes and one box of overshoes. The bright patent leather tips won the admiration of the children, and some would walk the length of the Guild Room, when trying them on, to see how they looked.

Have given out during the winter 125 pairs of shoes and 100 pairs of overshoes.

It has been a very happy and successful year. Many thanks to all who donated shoes.

Besides the donations already mentioned, we have made and given to the Mothers' Meeting a number of fancy articles for their fair.

We also helped the Aid Society with their Lenten sewing.

We have also finished, and expect to send in the near future, a number of bibs, aprons and postal albums to the Day Nursery and other homes or hosiptals.

The circle is particularly interested at present in a poor famly in Camden, whose name was given to us by Miss Lewis. We expect to send some clothing and groceries to this family in a few days.

Altogether, about 100 articles of clothing have been made, or given away by this circle.

Girls' Friendly Society.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society opened for the season on the first Monday in October. At this time Dr. Grammer gave an interesting account of his visit to the Indians in Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona.

Working Associates	8
Honorary Associates	24
Members	110
Probationers	20
Married Branch Helpers	38
Total Membership	200

According to our custom, Dr. Grammer, or Mr. Edwards, have conducted G. F. S. services in the church on the first Monday evening in the month.

A room has been furnished in the Cape May Holiday House in loving memory of Miss Maria T. Wilkins; and through the efforts of the members of the Branch an entertainment was given from which $72.75 was realized. This amount was sent to the Treasurer of the Farm to be used toward defraying the expenses of a new bath room.

At Christmas we again had the pleasure of entertaining the mothers of the members, and at this time the Elocution class gave an excellent entertainment.

Miss Laura Bell gave a talk on "The How and Why of Missions," and on April 6th our first vice-president, Miss Margaret C. Maule, visited our Branch and gave a short but very interesting talk on "Social Service in the G. F. S."

The Lenten sewing has been done as usual, and this year the garments will be sent to the Episcopal Hospital and the House of The Holy Child (colored work).

The Married Branch Helpers have met during Lent and made booklets and scrap books for the hospitals.

Classes have been held in Elocution and Millinery, the latter class being taught by one of our own members.

Reading, travel talks and embroidery have been carried on by the different bands.

The Literature class have read and studied "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Three faithful Seniors prepare supper on Monday evening and each week from twenty to thirty-five girls avail themselves of this always enjoyable meal.

The Treasurer reports:

Total receipts	$273 16
Expenditures to date	148 10
Balance on hand	$125 06

Of which—
$2 30 is in the Hospital Magazine Guild
$29 25 is in the Beneficial Fund.
$93 51 is in the General Fund.

There are now more than sixty Senior members in St. Stephen's Branch (a girl being admitted as a Senior after she has been a member in good standing for five years) and to their faithfulness and loyalty the Branch Secretary feels that the strength of the Branch is largely due.

ELLA HEADMAN, Treasurer.

Report of the Sunday School.

Our Annual Easter Carol Service on Sunday, April 19th, 1914, at 4 P. M., in the Church brought out the strength of the school in teachers and scholars, with but few missing. We gladly noted the presence of many former scholars. Friends, parents and members of the Church came out in goodly numbers.

We were indeed glad this year to have with us the Burd School, leading the procession and looking well and happy. As usual, they most heartily helped to sustain the Carols, to the satisfaction of our musical leader, Dr. Anthony, particularly in the higher notes of his two part composition.

Dr. Grammer most cheerily conducted the service and with apt words and quotations brought out many smiles as the offerings were duly reported by each class. To the pleasure of all, the Superintendent gave out the good news that our Lenten Offerings for Missions had surpassed last year, as per the Secretary's report which follows. This means keen interest and much self-denial on the part of scholars and teachers and the hearty response is most encouraging.

Our Secretary, Mr. Kirkpatrick, deserves much credit for successfully completing the arrangements, particularly the Cross and flowers and the new electrical display, "Alive for evermore," as suggested by the Rector. This was illumined just at the right moment by Mr. Carrigan, as The Roman Soldier hymn came to a close. The Primary Department, with Miss M. Corrigan, Miss Goss and Miss Traul in charge, added to their well sung part, a pretty effect in waving flowers.

We are pleased to report an enrollment of 203 scholars, which the new Sunday School Clock-of-Membership now registers, and we are aiming for many more before the summer sessions begin. Besides we have a list of twenty teachers and officers.

Looking back over the past year, we find much to encourage. Miss Williams and Miss Grammer have been added to our force of faithful teachers. Our studies in the Life of Christ have been most valuable. Every two months we have reviewed the lessons using lantern illustrations. The Christmas festival and play; the entertainment by Miss Denny's class; the Thursday night social evening under Miss Lewis; the kindly interest of Mr. Boyd and Mr. Edwards in the Boys' Meetings; the teachers' meetings for prayer, planning and discussion—all have helped much to keep us happily and loyally united.

Our school takes part in the Annual Sunday School Parade, the Musical Festival and the advance movements of the combined Philadelphia Sunday Schools. Never has our Diocesan Association of schools had a better Missionary Meeting than was held this winter at St. Stephen's. Our boys compete athletically with other schools. Our Junior Brotherhood boys were represented in the recent examination by the Local Assembly, and our two delegates to this winter's Congress of Philadelphia Older Boys, made good reports of its proceedings to the school.

The Annual Retreat of the teachers and the excursion were held at the Farm. The summer sessions of the school and its seashore outing were well attended.

The faithfulness of the teachers was rewarded by a goodly number of scholars in the recent Confirmation service.

We believe this number would be greatly increased if the lower rooms were occupied by additional adult Bible classes for men and women. With a keener interest and more of our adult members of the Church enrolled with the school as Bible students we believe the younger classes would thereby be very much stimulated.

There is room for growth far beyond the present capacity of our building. We will gladly welcome any newcomers desiring to assist in the development of our school and help to preserve the vigor of this part of St. Stephen's Parish, where we are endeavoring to advance through Bible study the Christian ideals, not only with our little ones and the junior groups but also with adult classes.

Respectfully submitted,

G. H. STREAKER,
Superintendent.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

At the seven meetings held by the Woman's Auxiliary during 1913-1914, a number of speakers have made addresses concerning various fields of missionary activity and the work of the Church in general, and the appointed delegates have brought monthly reports of the stated meetings held at the Church House.

In October, Rev. P. C. Daito, of Tokyo, told of his efforts in bringing light to one of the darkest spots, morally, in the Japanese capital, and of his wish to raise funds with which to build a larger church in the district of Asakusa.

Mrs. F. W. English spoke informally of the meetings of the General Convention, with special reference to the United Offering.

Deaconess Colesberry, of St. Martha's House, situated at Eighth street and Snyder avenue, described the life and conditions of this settlement, and a plan is already formulated to hold a Diocesan Fair for this work in December next at Horticultural Hall, when all parishes are to be represented, and a committee has been appointed in St. Stephen's Auxiliary to participate as requested. Mrs. Arthur Taylor, of Roanoke Rapids, North Carolina, gave a moving account of the desperate condition of the people she is struggling to uplift, and Miss Henrietta Gardiner spoke of St. Paul's Industrial School for Colored Boys and Girls at Lawrenceville, Virginia.

Rev. J. H. Kobyashi, of Tokyo, head-master of St. Margaret's School, made a short address on conditions in Japan during the past thirty years and gave details of this school for girls. At another meeting Mrs. B. S. Cooper gave an interesting talk on her work among the Arapaho Indians in Wyoming, and in March Mrs. E. C. Grice and Miss Charlotte Nodine spoke of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools in this city and of the one conducted at St. Stephen's, and expatiated on the good influence exerted by these schools, by keeping the children off the streets and instructing them in Bible stories and hammock making during the hot, idle summer days. Such philanthropic work forms the foundation for better character and helps to keep the children out of reformatories, or later on, the prison.

During the year, the number of members of the Auxiliary has been decreased by death, and a few new members have been made welcome. The attendance has been uniformly good, fifteen being the smallest and thirty-two the largest number present. Each committee has had a speaker to represent it and contributions have been made to as many of the appeals as possible. The Treasurer reports having disbursed $698.89 among the several committees, with a small balance on hand for contingent expenses.

As missions indicate spiritual wealth, so no member of the Church can afford to lightly thrust aside or disbelieve in such an investment, and the opportunity is offered to all the women worshipers in St. Stephen's Parish to ally themselves with the Woman's Auxiliary, and become co-workers with those who are doing what they can in the Master's service.

Little did we think, when the summer dispersed the congregation, that we should reassemble under such altered conditions, the whole Eastern hemisphere convulsed by the most stupendous war of the ages, and the commerce of the globe half-paralyzed by the shock of the embattled hosts.

We who can see so little into the future, must not expect to understand the ways of Providence in permitting such strife and desolation. We are compassed about with mysteries, but we must hold fast to the firm conviction that the Lord reigneth, that He maketh the wrath of man to work out His ultimate designs, and the remainder thereof he doth restrain. Dreadful as were the excesses of the French Revolution, they had both a retributive and a regenerative nature. In the ravages of the Napoleonic campaigns much feudalism perished. Let us hope that in a similar way God will through this war, bring about the destruction of militarism, and will teach nations the dangers inherent in ideals of dominion and supremacy and in the exploitation of other peoples.

Whatever we may think of the merits of the situation, the soldiers and sailors, the widows and the orphans, who are to suffer, were not individually responsible. They have been caught up and dashed down by vast forces outside of themselves. The people of England were not responsible for the Triple Entente, that would have drawn England into this war, irrespective of the neutrality of Belgium. The people of Austria were not consulted whether they would forego any designs upon the sovereignty of Servia, rather than enter upon a European conflict. The people of Russia were not asked whether they wanted this campaign. The German nation was not inquired of, before the neutrality of Belgium was violated, or Austria was given a free hand to deal with Servia as she pleased.

These alliances, and policies, are determined by cabinets and rulers. Indeed, it appears as if they are largely settled before parliaments or legislative assemblies are consulted. National pride is then aroused to stand by national leaders and the voices of moderation and conciliation can no longer be heard. All these humble and private folk are victims of the situation.

Let us be sorry for all of them. Let us keep our hearts open to the appeals from all sides for sympathy and prayer. May God in his power over the hearts of men, soften the pride of man, and bring these contentions to a speedy end.

In the meantime, let us do what we can to spread abroad peace and good will on these Western shores. Let us not believe all the sensational reports we read. The newspapers like Blanche Amory must have sensations. Truth is the daughter of Time. Let us hold our judgments in suspense, until all the evidence is in. Let us show our dislike of militarism not merely by declaiming against it; but by exalting the lowly and meek. Let us avoid bringing up the subject where it may create alienations, and especially, let us keep it out of the societies of the Church, which is meant to be a house of prayer and service for all peoples. Let us also be brave, under the financial difficulties of the situation, thanking God, that we are not sucked down into this fearful maelstrom of blood. Let us bear our burdens cheerfully, and try to help those in worse case and so follow Christ.

While I am writing these words a phone message comes to me that Mr. J. Albert Caldwell, our senior Vestryman in point of service died to-day, September 29th, at Bournemouth, England, just before embarking for home.

His son, Mr. Emmott Caldwell, has taken passage for England to join his mother. Mr. Caldwell's connection with St. Stephen's ran back to the days of Dr. Rudder and Dr. Ducachet. He was a member of our Music Committee of the Vestry, and was deeply interested in the preservation of St. Stephen's in its position as a downtown church, ministering in various ways to the needs of the city. Mr. Caldwell was also a vestryman of the American Church in Paris. He spent much of each year in that beautiful city. He will be mourned by many friends on both sides of the water, as an appreciative critic of art, an able business man, a kind friend, a loyal churchman. Our sympathy goes out to his family and to Mrs. Caldwell, to whom he always showed such lover-like devotion. May God support her heart in this great sorrow.

In August we lost our oldest member by the death of Mrs. C. M. Richardson at Atlantic City, where she was spending the summer. Though she had long been unable to attend Church she kept her pew to the last, and made her regular contributions to the Church.

Mr. Wm. H. Hansell of the Vestry is her grandson.

In September the long sickness of Mrs. W. Horace Hepburn came to an end. When I came to St. Stephen's she was the embodiment of vigor and life, abundant in labors in the Benevolent Society, of which she had been for years the Directress, and apparently destined for many serene years of faithful service. It has been sadly otherwise for this last year of suffering, and we can but rejoice that she has been delivered from her pain. A tribute from a dear friend is published in another place.

By resolution of the Vestry in June, a number of extensive repairs were made in our Church property according to plans submitted by Mr. Hollar, under whose efficient direction the work was done. The cushions were renovated in all the pews, new cement side-walks and paving were put down between the Church and the Sunday School, iron posts set up to protect the pavement, the bell towers cemented within and a new slag floor put under the bells, so that the shutters may be taken out of the windows without injury to the property. All these improvements will be paid for out of our current receipts.

As a special contribution Mrs. H. P. Taylor, who is so abundant in thoughtful gifts, has replaced the old wooden washstand in the vestry by a modern basin of the most approved pattern, providing, in addition, the most tasteful equipment, and crowning it all with a little medicine closet for special emergencies. I do not believe that the Church property has been in such good condition for many years.

The report of the Farm will particularly interest everyone. Miss Dale had a narrow escape from a fatal accident; but was able to continue the work after a rest of three weeks at Atlantic City. She showed remarkable recuperative power. We are profoundly grateful that the injuries were not of a permanent character. Our thanks are due to Miss Elizabeth Bockius, and to Mrs. Hillis, who helped us out.

The presence of the Burd School girls in the Church, and in the Sunday School is a real inspiration to those who preach and teach, and will undoubtedly add much to the service. We are glad to learn that they like the new departure. The new Supreintendent, Miss Leighton, has been received in a cordial and hearty way, that has been the best tribute to the depth and value of Miss Harnish's influence.

Miss Harnish herself has begun her studies at the University of Wisconsin.

Times of strain and stress are times of unusual spiritual blessing. When the earth shakes, then men seek foundations that cannot be moved. When the sky is dark, then the vast worlds of space, invisible by day, shine out in all their starry splendor. Let us utilize this season of trial by learning its lesson, and by establishing closer relations with God.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

Mrs. William Horace Hepburn.

Once again it becomes our sorrowful duty to record in these columns the "passing" of another of the leading and essentially useful members of our Parish-family.

For many years—in fact from early girlhood until her superb health began to fail, a few years ago—Mrs. Hepburn was actively engaged in the various organizations of St. Stephen's Church. She was one of the Board of Managers of the Infants' Home, her practical brain diverting, and her nimble fingers planning the comfortable little garments; the while her true artistic taste found bent in guiding the embroidery classes and stitching herself, some of the fine altar-cloths yet in use.

Born Elizabeth Barry Hayes, Mrs. Hepburn was the only child of Elizabeth Hickman and Barry Hayes, prominent in Washington official life during Franklin Peirce's administration, when he was the chief clerk of John W. Forney, then Speaker of the House of Representatives. Through her father she was a direct descendant of Commodore Barry—long-termed Father of the United States Navy.

As wife, mother, friend, our sister at rest, evidenced in her daily, hourly, life the beautiful Christian faith she early professed and steadfastly adhered to. Truly may those of us who mourn her sing with the poet:

"Thou art gone to the grave—but 'twere wrong to deplore thee
When God was thy ransom, thy guardian, thy guide;
He gave thee, and took thee, and soon will restore thee,
Where death hath no sting, since the Saviour hath died."

The Farm.

The Farm opened on June 15th, for the seventeenth season and we are glad to report a most successful summer; indeed the best for a number of years. For the first two weeks when mothers and their young children were with us, the house was not crowded, it never is at that time, but from July 4th until Labor Day almost every week we had an average of 31 to 37 guests. It no doubt will be interesting to know that of this number there were from 12 to 19 children each week, the remainder being the older girls, and elderly women. As the house comfortably accommodates only 31 we were at times very much crowded, but did not mind it in the least and all managed to have the usual good time. Of course the boys were with us as usual during the last two weeks in August.

While St. Stephen's Parish always has the preference, we are very glad to welcome outsiders, when there is room. This year there were fewer from outside and a large increase in the number from our own parish.

Altogether 96 members of the "Mothers' Meeting" came for a day's outing. Each Thursday was "Mothers' Day"—and there were also a number of our people who found what a delightful spot it was to spend Sunday—so every Thursday and Sunday the dining-room was filled to overflowing—from 53 to 60 visitors on these days.

Our people greatly appreciate the privilege of having this splendid summer home where there are so few restrictions and so many pleasures, and where they are just as one "big happy family" having a sense of ownership without the responsibility. Of course there are a few rules that all well regulated families must observe, regular hours for meals, rising and retiring.

Those who visited the "dear old Farm" as it is affectionately called, found many new things to surprise and delight them. The house, the barn and out-buildings so beautifully painted and then the fine new bathroom placed there largely through the efforts of our Mothers' Meeting and Girls' Friendly Society.

Mr. John Cadwalader visited the Farm on opening day and donated $50.00 to the work. This generous contribution was added to the fund for this new bath room.

Another bathroom has always been one of our greatest needs and the donors may well feel proud of this splendid addition to the equipment of the Farm. The house is now quite modern and unusually attractive.

We have had several visitors from other parishes, who had heard of our Farm and wanted to see just how it was conducted. All expressed themselves as delighted with the house and surroundings and were especially pleased because of the entire absence of anything institutional.

Through the generosity of our treasurer, Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, we have enjoyed many good things, chief among them being the automobile trips, which this year replaced the time honored straw-rides. A large automobile truck belonging to a neighboring farmer was engaged on different occasions. These trips proved so popular that we believe the straw-ride is now a thing of the past.

The house mother is especially grateful to the ladies of the Benevolent Society, who provided so generously for the linen closet. It was such a comfort to have linen enough and to spare, and no need to fear delay in delivery of the laundry.

The lovely fire screen and fire place fittings, a gift from Mrs. Henry P. Taylor's house party, was much enjoyed, particularly during the recent cold weather when a fire was a constant necessity. Mrs. Taylor also sent an oil heater to help keep us warm.

Through the kindness of Mr. Robert T. Boyd, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Ewing, Mrs. David D. Wood and several members of the G. F. S., we were able to pay for a splendid talking machine which Mr. Boyd secured for us at a very reasonable figure. Mr. Whilldin gave $10.00 for new records. With this money we secured the best records from the repertoires of such artists as Schumann-Heink, Louise Homer, Alma Gluck, Maud Powell and others. Strange as it may seem these were the favorite records, to almost the entire exclusion of rag-time. Of course the dance music was always in demand.

A Visit to the Farm.

He who repents of his sins of omission, is heartily sorry, and willing to do penance, deserves to be forgiven.

The Farm has been in the possession of St. Stephen's Church for seventeen years, and each year every member has received a most cordial invitation to go out and visit it. I never availed myself of the opportunity until this summer, because I had pictured in my mind a large, bleak, barren, rambling house, close to the public road where automobiles and farm wagons passed in steady procession, raising clouds of dust; one scrawny tree offering little or no shade; a sun-scorched lawn that was more forbidding than inviting, and the woods, with overgrown underbrush only reached after a long, hot, tiresome walk of some twenty minutes—such was my imagination of St. Stephen's Farm.

You who have been there and know better, can fancy my delightful surprise at the charming place I found it to be, when I made my first visit on the opening day in June.

A party of fifty or more left the Reading Terminal in a special car and upon reaching Johnsville, two large omnibuses conveyed us to the Farm.

I can only describe my sensations as a series of surprises. The first when these omnibuses turned out of the public road into a private driveway some 500 yards distant, where we drew up beside a most comfortable, inviting house, newly painted, nestling down under great stately trees whose magnificent branches spread over the roof, giving the most delightful protection from the heat of the sun; a splendid, roomy porch was filled with large, comfortable rocking chairs. Instead of a barren, rambling house, we found a superbly up-to-date mansion, with all modern improvements—many of which were due to the efforts of the Mothers, Girl's Friendly, and King's Daughters. The dormitories are a model of neatness and comfort. The dining-room, with a seating capacity of sixty, is ideal in its appointments. The splendid kitchen, is a model of cleanliness, and presided over by a typical Southerner who knew how to prepare good things, as I afterwards found out. The library is filled with most interesting books. The reception rooms are spacious, with linen-covered furniture that is most inviting. In fact, the entire house gave evidence of some master management that knew how to "keep house."

The next surprise was the lawn—instead of being "sun scorched," there was a perfect green carpet running far down towards the public road, filled with fruit and shade trees—under which were swings, hammocks, chairs and benches. Nothing could have been more inviting or restful, than a quiet day under the shade trees of this perfect lawn.

Then there were a number of outer buildings—the barn filled with hay and grain; the wagon house with no end of conveyances; a shed that seemingly had all the up-to-date farm machinery; the windmill and tank with a capacity of 5000 gallons; the spring house with a cold stream of water running through it for the milk pans; the ice house; corn crib; chickens, ducks and geese by the hundreds; a neat cottage for the farmer with great rose trees climbing to the second story.

The next surprise was the woods—how contrary to all I had fancied. Within two minutes' walk we stepped into a charming grove of stately trees, whose branches protected us from the rays of the sun; the cool, refreshing breeze bringing to us all the "woodsy" fragrance that is so delightfully refreshing. The soft, brown, rustling carpet of last year's leaves was most restful to our feet, and what a joy to scuff them up as we sauntered through this charming retreat. Right in the heart of this magnificent woods were seats erected, where Divine services are held Sunday afternoons. Nothing could be more impressive than to worship under Nature's gothic arches with the evidence of God's hand on all sides.

Here, too, we found a chattering, babbling brook that scolded us for not coming to visit the Farm long ago, and laughed at us for our remorse over the lost opportunities of many such delightful visits that we might have had—as this never-to-be-forgotten day in June. I told that babbling brook that it was a good-for-nothing lazy thing. Instead of chattering nonsense, it ought to be working for the Farm, by cutting the wood, pumping water, churning, running a dynamo, washing and thrashing, as there was a natural basin opposite the spring house where a dam could easily be constructed, and this vain busybody put to work for the benefit of the Farm. I thought I heard it murmur "Barkus is willin'."

We resolved then and there that instead of going to Maine for our vacation as planned, we would spend it here—at this most charming and attractive place. Since "men" are not domiciled at the Farm, we interviewed the farmer, Mr. Dager, and his gracious wife, who cheerfully consented to house us, while the hospitable table of the Farm bade us welcome. So early in August we betook ourselves, bag and baggage, to more thoroughly enjoy what we had just a taste of in June. Nothing could exceed the restful enjoyment of that perfect week. It gave us the opportunity to fully appreciate what the Farm meant and why such efforts had been made to keep it up.

Here we grasped the broad minded spirit of liberality that had prompted those who had contributed so generously to its maintenance. Here we comprehended why the Vestry and those in charge were so willing to devote their time and energy to further its success. Here we witnessesd the perfect, unalloyed happiness and understood how much benefit it was to those weary, hard-working mothers, whose daily toil offered so few pleasures in life. Here we heard what it meant to the little waifs in their exclamations of unbounded happiness, many of whom, had never seen the green fields, or knew how the vegetables grow. One little chap told such a pathetic story when he said: "Oh! how clean it is, I never had sheets on my bed in all my life." Here we realized the perfectly unique happiness of the girls, who in their exuberance of youth, abandon themselves to all the pleasures at their command, and be it said to their credit, there is not an instance on record where there has been the least cause for criticism or censure. Here we understood not alone the physical benefit to be derived by the girls at the Farm, but the healthy, moral uplifting atmosphere they enjoyed in their hourly contact with one whose dignity and refinement so eminently fit her for the office of house mother. The tact to control; the gift to entertain; the judgment to manage judiciously; is most pronounced in Miss Dale, and St. Stephen's is to be congratulated in having one who possesses the qualifications that have made the Farm an ideal home.

So my sins of omission are summed up in seventeen years of neglect of what I now realize is one of the greatest adjuncts to St. Stephen's Church. All honor to those who have been so untiring in their efforts to further its success, and all shame to those who have missed their opportunity as I have; but I mean to do penance, by helping to raise the means for some much needed additions to this splendid resort that has been of such incalculable benefit. I purpose giving an Old Folks' Concert some time during the winter, which I promise shall be a novel, quaint, as well as a most enjoyable entertainment, reviving the old time singing as well as costumes and manners of the day of our great-grandfathers. I shall expect every other like omissioner of St. Stephen's not only to join hands with me in doing penance for their shortcomings, but to make this entertainment a crowning success.

LOUIS H. HALL,

The Daily Vacation Bible School.

The Daily Vacation Bible School was held at St. Stephen's for six weeks during the summer, beginning with July 6th, and closing August 14th. This was the second year for a school of this kind at this church and it was a real success. The total enrollment and daily attendance more than doubled that of last year. Total enrollment, 121. Daily average attendance, 40. The nationalities represented in the school were: Americans, Irish, Hebrews, Russians, French, Italian, Polaks, Hungarians and Germans. The school was in charge of Charlotte W. Nodine, principal and two assistants.

There is no doubt that there are numbers of children living in this business district. The principal spent her afternoons searching for the children in these "highways and byways." In order to insure their safe passage across Market Street, a policeman was asked to take particular care of the children going to and from school. The school gained publicity by means of arrangements made with a moving picture theater, to have thrown upon the screen the announcement of the school. As all children patronize the "movies" this proved an excellent help to enroll new children.

The school was open from 9.30 to 11.30 A. M. Five days a week. Session opened with devotional exercises. Then came a two minute "habit talk," in which the children are told the necessity of having clean hands, clean mouths and clean hearts. The Bible period followed.

Emphasis was especially placed upon the Bible this year. More time was devoted to it. The children not only heard a new Bible story every day, but some child or children told the Bible story of the previous day. They were taught a number of verses and chapters of the Bible and on the last day of school were able to recite them all. Next on the program, was a half hour of music, in which the children were taught catchy songs and famous hymns. The remainder of the time was devoted to manual training. The girls had a sewing class this year, which was very popular. The boys made hammocks and articles out of reed and raffia. Before dispersing the children saluted the flag and sang "America." Just before the closing exercises, five minutes of the time were given to an educational record on the Victrola which was loaned by a friend.

Many of the children wanted the school session to be prolonged and begged on the last day to have such a school again at St. Stephen's next summer.

On the evening of August 12th, the children gave an exhibition. The Bible story "The Shepherd Boy—David" was given by Miss Nodine with the assistance of her pupils, who wore costumes in keeping with the characters they took. The story was ended, by the singing of the 23rd Psalm by six girls. The wand drill showed how gymnastic exercises can be combined with music. Other features of the program proved interesting.

The main objects of these Daily Vacation Bible Schools are: to keep the children off the streets for six weeks of the summer; to keep their hands busy, eliminate quarrels, and instill patriotism; to teach as many Bible stories in six weeks as a Sunday School could in seven months; to put the Church in happy relations with the foreign community.

The Sunday School.

The Annual Picnic of Saturday June 20th, held at the Farm, closed the winter season of the school. It was conceded the best we ever held. Two trolleys carried us to Hatboro.

Christ Home bus, with our own, was not sufficient to hold us all. Some had to walk. It was a clear beautiful day and every one was happy.

The summer sessions were held as one big class every Sunday, under the leadership of the Superintendent. We took the words and teachings of Christ as the series of lesson studies and for many Sundays illustrated with some beautiful slides we were fortunately able to secure. Our attendance averaged fifty scholars. One excursion to Wildwood had a number of older scholars present who had a delightful day by the sea.

The Farm in all its regenerated interests was very helpful to the school. The scholars coming and going to and from Warminster with happy, healthful experiences and words of praise for Miss Dale's kind hospitality. The writer as usual held services at the Farm each Sunday afternoon and during August in the Woodland. Thus allied, the summer Sunday School is indeed appreciative of the Farm.

The Daily Vacation Bible School, so ably conducted by our Miss Nodine, this year doubled in numbers and had a number of our scholars in attendance.

September has arrived very rapidly and on Sunday, September 20th, the regular winter sessions began again with unusually large attendance, though we missed some of our teachers. The regular Diocesan course of lesson study on "Church History" was taken up in regular class study.

Saturday, September 26th, was a Red-letter day in our school history. Owing to the keen interest in the Fifth Annual Parade of Philadelphia's combined Sunday Schools, 90 of our school took part. Rev. Mr. Edwards and Mr. Kirkpatrick leading, were joined by our Rector who happily and most inspiringly marched with the school, which he says was the best in line.

Over 100,000 men, women and children from Philadelphia Sunday Schools came out on the streets (almost equaling the great Annual Assemblies of Brooklyn), and made his not only a remarkable peace demonstration, but the greatest assembly of the united Sunday Schools Philadelphia has ever had. Your Superintendent, who had been chosen this year's leader of the affair, was cheered by the hearty response and fine showing of our own school, in the countermarch and review on Broad Street, in which 30,000 took part. The Burd School with loyal enthusiasm, including their new Superintendent, Miss Leighton, most willingly and graciously led St. Stephen's in the march. When our school returned by the kindness of Mrs. H. P. Taylor, ice cream and cake was served.

We are in every way trying to "Keep Step with God's Truth" and marching on for "The Prince of Peace." Sunday, September 27th, found the school in regular winter session, with the addition of all the members of the Burd School, who will now be in regular attendance. Dr. Grammer, with helpful and keen interest, adjusted the enlarged and the new classes so that the good prospect of a happy season is before us.

Rally Sunday will be held October fourth, when we hope every teacher and pupil will be in their classes, with many new ones present. Awards will be made as usual. The teacher's meeting will be held once a month. Rev. Mr. Edwards and Dr. Grammer have promised every assistance possible and the winter outlook is fine for a deeper study of God's Truth and the winning of many more souls to the cause of the Christ.

Members and attendants at our Church will be very welcome, not only into our classes, but to our force of teachers and workers.

G. H. STREAKER,
Superintendent.

King's Daughters.

The King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle will have their first meeting Wednesday, October 21st, in the Guild room at quarter of 8 o'clock. New members will be welcomed and after having such a long vacation it is hoped all will be ready for work, whatever our hands find to do.

At the closing in June all had a very social evening.

Shoe Fund.

If it meets with the Rector's approval, the Shoe Closet will open the first Tuesday in November.

Mrs. Vanderslice will be in the Guild room from 10 to 12 o'clock to give out shoes to the very needy.

Have given away since report, about six pairs of shoes.

The Church Work Fund.

The Rector appeals to the members and attendants of St. Stephen's for their annual contributions to the Church Work Fund. This is a fund which enables the Rector to help the various societies and administer the work of the Parish with freedom. In the years before he came to the Church, a fund of $1,600 was regarded as necessary, and annually contributed. By various measures, such as the insertion of advertisements in the Parish News, and the provision of flowers for the altar by subscription, the demands on this fund have been lessened and all that is asked for this year is $1,200. Inasmuch as many of our faithful contributors have passed away, it will be necessary that all who have hitherto given should continue their gifts. The Rector will be glad to welcome some new contributors to his official purse. The record of receipts and expendi-

The Sunday Afternoon Address.

Within the past few years a rapidly increasing body of thoughtful men and women, inside and outside the Church, have learned to appreciate and appropriate the results of a thorough, constructive application of modern historical and literary methods of study to the Old Testament. Time is demonstrating more and more clearly that these methods, instead of destroying are revealing anew the permanent significance of those ancient records. Such was the testimony of the class who studied last Lent some of the prophets under the guidance of the Rector.

What is true of the Old is destined to prove true of the New Testament. The gospels, like the historical books of the Old Testament, embody older oral and written sources, which reflect the earliest impression that Jesus's personality and words made on the minds of his followers. It is important to distinguish and separate these oldest records from the later variant accounts which blur or conceal the original portrait. The more vital the questions involved, the more important is it that the records be carefully studied and tested by the most thorough methods known to historical or literary research.

Last Sunday afternoon the Rector began such a course to run for several months. He has denominated his theme The Gospel behind the Gospels. In his first lecture he pointed out concisely the sources of our knowledge of Jesus outside of the Gospels, and dwelt more at length on the characteristics of the Four Gospels, and the written and oral sources that underly them. It is hoped that the course will meet a real need and will be well attended. The laity are entitled to know the methods and conclusions of our great Biblical scholars. The result will be a strengthening of faith in the fidelity of their teachers to the truth, and a conviction that the Church is qualified to teach, since she is continuing to learn.

The Envelope System.

One of the great advantages of this system is that it enables a man to know how much he gives. Many people really think the aggregate of their giving during the year is larger than it is. The demands come separately and are responded to separately, and memory thinks the total must be high. At a collection for charitable objects in Cleveland, a man who thought that he had been doing very well, investigated how much he had been giving to social objects and found that his total gifts to eight organizations only amounted to $75. "You don't say so," he exclaimed, "well, put me down for $500 right away."

Have you ever added up your contributions to the Church's various missions and charitable enterprises, and ascertained what proportion your gifts bear to your income? If you have never made up such an account, it is safe to say that you will be astonished. We are apt to magnify our contributions in the glass of memory.

A man who uses the envelope system regularly told me the other day that until he accepted a package of envelopes he did not realize how many Sundays could pass without any contribution from him, if he happened to be absent from the city. Nor did he give any particular thought to the object of the offertory. He simply gave as a piece of good form or Christian propriety. Now he takes an interest in doing his part and fulfilling his resolve to give not less than a certain definite sum every Sunday.

This is always the experience of the envelope-users. We hope that not a single member of the Church—from the Vestry down to the last communicant who has been placed on our list—will be without his package of envelopes, and that all will use them faithfully. Packages can be procured from the treasurer of the Envelope Funds, Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr., Stephen Girard Building, 12th St., or from the Verger. Not only will our contributions be greatly enlarged if this suggestion is generally followed, but there will be more regularity in attendance on the Church services, and greater earnestness in worship. Conscientiousness in giving will give reality and earnestness to the religious life, and manifest anew the truth of our Master's great utterance: It is more blessed to give than to receive.

The Diocesan Fair in behalf of St. Martha's House, Corner of Eighth and Snyder Sts,

This fair will be held at Horticultural Hall in the afternoons and evenings of Dec. 3, 4 and 5. All the churches of the Diocese are expected to take part, and booths have been assigned around to the various parishes. St. Stephen's has been asked to take the booth at which aprons and neck-wear will be sold. This means that the ladies of this congregation are requested to provide these articles and to deck and manage the booth. At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary in May, this commission was accepted, and the following committee was appointed: Mrs. Grammer, Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Miesse and Miss Paullin with authority to add others to their number. Everything must be in shape by the 20th of November, the costume of the aids must be agreed upon, and the badges and booth-decorations must be provided. Each Church has to furnish the necessary equipment of its booth and the articles to be sold. Mrs. Grammer has on hand $16 that have been contributed, and about a dozen articles. It is necessary that the ladies of the congregation should bestir themselves in this matter, if St. Stephen's is to fulfil its part in upholding this excellent Settlement House in behalf of which the whole Diocese is exerting itself. Articles should be sent to the Rectory, 1024 Spruce street, marked for the Diocesan Fair. Only one piece of neck-wear has thus far been contributed.

Those who have attended the meetings of the Woman's Auxiliary and heard the moving address of Deaconess Colesbury will recall that this Settlement house is doing a great work of social service in a splendid manner, and is deepening its influence by the religious spirit in which it is discharging the manifold social functions of such a house. Religion is presented in this Settlement House, not so much as the mother of arts and refinement as the basis of character and the spring of helpful service. It is one of the best institutions of the Diocese.

Minute Adopted by the Vestry in Memory of Mr. J. Albert Caldwell.

By the death of Mr. J. Albert Caldwell, St. Stephen's loses its senior vestryman in point of service. During the rectorship of Dr. Rutter, Mr. Caldwell joined St. Stephen's, about 40 years ago, and in 1884, over thirty years ago he was elected to the Vestry. As chairman of the Music Committee during Dr. Grammer's rectorship, he rendered the Church important service and was of great assistance to the Vestry. St. Stephens always had a warm place in his heart, and he ever evinced a lively interest in the maintenance of a well-equipped church down in the heart of the business section of a great city. The head of a great business which required a unique combination of financial and artistic gifts, a great connoisseur of art, a traveler intimately acquainted with Europe and especially with France he always preserved a remarkable freedom from any trace of ostentation or assumption. In his tongue was the law of kindness and in his manner simplicity and friendliness. A thoroughly loyal churchman, a lover of our Church's ways and courts, greatly will he be missed at St. Stephen's in the deliberations of the Vestry and at his favorite service, the early Communion on Sunday. To his family so suddenly and so heavily bereaved we extend our sincerest sympathy.

Mr. Selden Miller.

A tribute must be paid here to Mr. Selden Miller, who was for two years the organist at St. Stephen's. A favorite pupil of Dr. David Wood, to whom his manner was always most beautiful and his loyalty great, Mr. Miller was a true artist. He had unique skill in blending tones into a rich harmony and was a manifest master of his chosen instrument. If years and health had been his portion he would have made substantial contributions to our hymn-music. His music for "Come my soul, thou must be waking" is a masterpiece. Fortunately we have some copies at St. Stephen's. If it has not been published it should be brought out by some publisher. He also composed a thrilling and soaring tune for the evening hymn "Saviour, when night involves the skies." If there are among his manuscripts any other hymn tunes, they ought to be examined by some competent judge, for the world would be the poorer for the loss of compositions of such manifest genius. The music of these morning and evening hymns has remarkable elevation, charm, and originality. It is to be hoped the score of the evening hymn, which he once promised us, can be procured, that we may possess at St. Stephen's these mementos of this gifted, thorough and lamented musician.

Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The first meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was held on Tuesday, October 27th. There was a good attendance and a number of new members were introduced. The date of the annual banquet was set for the third Tuesday in November, the 17th, and the place agreed upon was Dooner's Hotel.

A committee was appointed to take charge of the banquet, with Mr. William H. Hansell, 110 Beacon Lane, Merion, Pa., as chairman. Subscriptions will be $1 a plate. All men attending St. Stephen's are cordially invited. The hour will be 7 o'clock. It is hoped that there will be the largest attendance on record in our Parish at such banquets. Strangers are invited to join this Brotherhood and thereby to enter into fellowship with the Church.

Christmas Gifts for the Bereaved Children of Europe.

Mrs. H. P. Taylor has been specially interested in the ship that is being laden with Christmas gifts for the children whose homes have been desolated by this European war. Aided by the members of her Home for Aged Couples and by the Girls' Friendly and King's Daughters of St. Stephen's she has collected over 380 useful garments of various kinds. There are no frills and furbelows—all is substantial, useful and comfort-giving; warm comforters, woolen helmets and all kinds of wear for little folks. The Sunday School took up a collection and sent ten dollars—a contribution that shows how readily children respond to a definite appeal. A label bore this inscription:

From Mrs. Henry P. Taylor,
648 N. 10th Street.

Through St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church,
10th Street above Chestnut Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

King's Daughters of Church, through Mrs. E. S. Vanderslice, contributed 35 garments.

Home for Aged Couples, 1723 Francis Street, Miss M. Shreve, Matron; Mrs. Bryant, Nurse, with help of the old ladies of Institution; made 200 garments.

Other garments made by some few members of the Church and friends. Total number of garments, 380.

$10.00 collected by Sunday School scholars of St. Stephen's P. E. Church.

Every article is marked and tagged with ages, etc. Mrs. Taylor expresses thanks to Mrs. Rose Gensheimer and Mrs. Mary Tompkins for cutting out some 250 garments, and to Mrs. E. S. Vanderslice, Mrs. M. Traul, Mrs. W. S. Campbell, Mrs. A. Fledra, Mrs. Neuschwander, Mrs. T. W. Hedley, Mrs. Mary T. Robison, Miss R. Lowenberg, and others for helping make garments.

To the Sunday School scholars for collecting $10.00.

Parish Visitor's Report.

The summer has passed, and now the real work of the Parish Visitor begins in earnest, for the days are shorter and the cool autumn weather which we have now, will soon settle into the cold winter days and colder winter nights when more help will be needed for the unemployed and unfortunate.

The past summer has not been quite so hard on them, for the hot sunshine was often tempered by the cool breezes that came from the river. Then there is the Farm to which we have sent a number of families and excursions down the river, which helped the little sick babies so much and their poor tired mothers.

This summer was not so hard on the poor, for most of their time was spent out of doors and fruit was plentiful and cheap as a rule. But when the wintry blasts come, and sickness knocks at the door and the family all huddle together in one or two ill-smelling, badly ventilated, poorly lighted little rooms, wanting coal, shoes, food and clothing, then their sufferings begin.

In making the daily visits to the homes of the poor, in nearly every household we find some member out of work or on short time, and in some cases having absolutely no support, the father having lost his employment on account of the times. But God's ways are not our ways and we can only hope and pray that He will show us a way to help lighten their burdens and bring a little cheer into their troubled hearts.

We would like to call attention to the Garment Society by telling the congregation that clothing of all kinds is very acceptable. Also old linen or old muslin is acceptable.

K. H. Lewis.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its first meeting of the season on Thursday, October 22d, with thirty-two members present.

There were reports given from several of the committees and plans for the Diocesan Fair in December were discussed at some length.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $49.35 and Miss Anna Magee has already collected $22.00 toward this year's United Offering.

Dr. Grammer read a paper which told of the work our Parish is doing and paid a high tribute to our Parish Visitor, Miss Lewis.

King's Daughters.

Money Received in October from Mrs. H. P. Taylor	$5 00
Cash Received	2 50
Total	$7 50

October 21st was the first meeting of the King's Daughters this season.

This was a busy evening, for they were going to sew for the Christmas Ship for the poor little orphans that have lost their fathers and brothers in this dreadful war. It took some hustling to get all the work finished that was planned.

Nineteen skirts were made for Mrs. Taylor.

The King's Daughters' donation was 13 skirts, stockings, 2 slumber robes, 4 little dresses, 1 large wrapper, knitted scarf and many other necessary things. But we must not forget the kind friends who helped us sew and donated material to help us to do more. Miss M. Schaeffer, Miss Elizabeth Jones, the Misses Deleys, Miss Florence Wilder, Mrs. Catherine Phillipps, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Bucarl, the two Mrs. Farradays, and one kind friend whose name is not known.

Thanks to all, for we know the kind thoughts that went into each garment given and made.

The next meetings will be November 4th and November 18th.

Shoe Fund.

November 3d, Mrs. Vanderslice will be in the Guild Room from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Sunday School Notes.

On "Rally Day," Sunday, October 11th, we had present 180 scholars and teachers. Our registry board showed an enrollment of 208 from last season. We are aiming to attain 300 this winter, which we will accomplish if everyone feels personally responsible for bringing at least one new scholar. Our teaching force has added to it Miss Bertha Walshe, Miss Dorothy Grammer and Miss Daly, as well as the assistance of some of the Burd School teachers and their older pupils.

The first meeting of the teachers was held October 9th at the Rectory, and gave an opportunity for all to discuss the plans for the winter. At a well attended meeting of teachers, on Sunday evening, October 25th, in the Guild Room, the lesson studies for the coming month were expounded by the Rector who gave much information out of his large knowledge of the "History of the Early Church."

Several of the teachers attended the Annual Teachers' Institute of our Diocese on Monday, October 19th, at Holy Apostles Church, gaining valuable information on the value of trained teachers, on music appropriate for Sunday Schools, and particularly attentive were they to Dr. Boynton's valuable address on the Psychology of Childhood, which he made so clear and attractive.

Our offerings of October 25th as wisely suggested by Dr. Grammer, go to the destitute little ones in warring Europe, by way of the "Christmas Ship." The hearty response to his appeal shows the sympathetic loyal hearts of our school. The contribution was $10.00.

With the Christmas tide approaching all are full of the possibility to make this the best season our school has ever had. We owe much of this renewed enthusiasm to the regular presence of the Burd School pupils and to their earnest, appreciative interest.

The weekly activities of "Our Boys" were inaugurated Friday evening, October 16th, with Mr. Edwards, Mr. Boyd and Mr. Streaker present. A good, strong letter was read from the Rector and Mr. Richard H. Wallace, Jr., of the University of Pennsylvania, took charge of their games and physical instruction. The younger boys meet on Wednesday evenings. The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew meets twice a month and is taking in a number the younger boys on probation. Their last meeting was October 25th at their Director's home, where they met representative boys from other chapters.

The Dancing Class which is held in the Sunday School Building on Thursday nights under the supervision of Miss Lewis, will begin on the first Thursday in November, at the usual hour, 8 P. M.

The Baird Memorial Window.

On Sunday, November 15th, the congregation saw for the first time the new window in the transept in memory of Mrs. Baird. There was no formal unveiling, but the Rector called attention to it at the time of giving out the notices in the following words:

In spite of the darkness of this rainy day, which obscures the brilliancy of its tones, the congregation has doubtless generally observed the new medallion rose window over the gallery in the transept. This beautiful memorial, the production of The Tiffany Studios, and consisting of Tiffany Favrile and jewel glass throughout, resembles in color the celebrated stained glass of the thirteenth century. The windows in the gallery will be covered for several Sundays in order that the delicacy of this window's color scheme may not be injured by contact with their cruder tones.

This exquisite memorial is given to St. Stephen's Church in memory of Marie Louise Baird by her mother, Mrs. C. Watson McKeehan, her sister, Mrs. Louis J. Magill, and her brother, Charles L. McKeehan. On a small window below the Rose Window—invisible, I regret to say, from the body of the church—is this inscription:

"To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Marie Louise Baird, 1871—1913."

It was Mrs. Baird's inborn love of the beautiful that led her family to a memorial of this nature instead of one that many would consider more useful. As all her friends will remember, she loved flowers and all beautiful things, thought them worth while for her own sake and liked Emerson's characteristic remark about flowers, that "they are always fit presents because they are a proud assertion that a ray of beauty outvalues all the utilities of the world." A faithful member of the Chancel Committee, who took great interest and pleasure in having it neatly and appropriately in order for the service, it is most fitting that the light from this window should fall full upon that chancel which she arranged so often for the early communion, at which she was confirmed, as I love to recall, during my rectorship, and where I read at her funeral the great words of unconquerable hope of our Burial Service. It is a beautiful memorial of a sensitive and exquisite spirit.

The Church Work Fund.

The Rector acknowledges the following contributions to the Church Work Fund. It will be recollected that he called attention to the fact that he has asked for $1,200, which is much less than was requested in former years. He has received just $700. He hopes that those who have hitherto contributed to this fund will send in their contributions, and that some new contributions will come in. This fund enables the minister of the church to act freely in many directions, and is of great service.

The Christmas Baskets.

According to our custom, baskets holding a Christmas dinner for ten persons will be distributed on the morning of the day before Christmas to the holders of cards. Envelopes for special offerings for this purpose will be distributed through the pews. Christmas is a time when happiness and good cheer should be diffused. Let us spread peace and good will among men, by relieving the pressure of poverty at this season. Let us see that the children of the poor enjoy a bountiful Christmas dinner.

The congregation will be interested to learn that Sunday morning, March 7th, has been appointed for Confirmation in St. Stephen's. The visitation will be by Bishop Garland. We are gratified that the Episcopal visit will not fall close upon the Christmas festivities, as was the case last year. There ought to be a good class this March. The Rector already has the names of some candidates, and will be glad to hear of others. The time for the meeting of the class will be announced later.

Student teams from the University are going to make addresses throughout the city during December in order to arouse interest among the young men in particular in the approaching campaign of the Rev. William A. Sunday. The Rector has invited a team to come to St. Stephen's on the evening of December 13th, at 8 P. M. Whether the meeting will be held in the Church or Parish House will be announced later. The day and hour, however, are definitely determined on. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance to hear these University men bear their testimony.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary met November 19th with twenty-four members present.

The treasurer reported a balance of $27.85, and Miss Magee has collected $34 towards the United Offering. The various committees reported the mission work done during the month.

Archbishop Booth was the speaker of the day. He is one of twenty-two workers under Bishop Funston in Idaho, and is here hoping to collect $10,000 to pay the debt on a hospital at Boise, which was opened originally for sick clergymen but which has developed into a large State institution. The sum of $30 was voted by the Auxiliary towards the fund.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR, Secretary.

James R. Magee.

The sympathy of the whole congregation goes out to Miss Fanny and Miss Anna Magee in the great bereavement that has come upon them in the loss of their only surviving brother, James R. Magee. Ever since the death of his brother Horace, Mr. James Magee's health had been very precarious. His affectionate nature received a shock in his brother's sudden death from which he never recovered. Close as is the tie between a married couple, there are some elements of even closer union in the case of unmarried brothers and sisters, who live all their days together under one roof. In their case all relations and connections are shared equally and all early associations are the same. A union that began in the cradle continues unbroken to the grave. The separation from his brother Horace, whom he greatly admired as well as tenderly loved, seemed to have sapped the very sources of Mr. James Magee's vitality. While he was always cheerful and made a good fight, he never recovered from the shock. After a service at the house at which Mr. Miller and I officiated he was buried by the side of his brother at West Laurel Hill, on November 6th.

Together with his brother and sisters he conferred many beautiful and valuable gifts upon St. Stephen's, and we have lost in him a benefactor who could be counted on in every emergency. The love and loyalty of this devoted family for St. Stephen's can never be forgotten by the people who worship within its walls. It is indeed impossible that it should pass out of mind; as long as that wonderful Venetian Mosaic of Halliday's gleams above our Altar as long as that great organ's thunder-music rolling shakes the figures blazoned on the panes; as long as the Vestry find their burdens lightened by the contributions of this family to the Endowment Fund.

It is fitting that we should recall at this time that Mr. James R. Magee bore his share in these splendid gifts though he always stood unobtrusively in the background. Whatever comfort may lie in the sympathy of our entire congregation belongs to his sisters. May God strengthen and console them with a hope full of immortality and an unfaltering faith, that love can never lose its own.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The removal of the Van Dusen family to West Philadelphia from Logan Square seemed nothing but a misfortune to the parish, since their new home is further from the Church. The greater distance, however, has not affected in any way the regularity of their attendance, and the change into a more modern house has brought benefits in the shape of presents of valuable pieces of furniture and equipment to the Burd School, the Rectory and the Church. The latest of these gifts is a splendid curtain for the stage in the Sunday School Room, which meets a long-felt want. If our people will move into modern houses into which they cannot carry all of their furniture, this example is to be commended to them.

The Burd School can hold a good deal of furniture. We have a house out at the farm, where carpets and chairs come in handy, and there are besides many poor people who would welcome articles for which the dealer would give hardly anything.

A man whose children go to our Sunday School was run over by an automobile last week—the wheel passing over his leg above the knee. Before he had regained his normal balance, while he was still in the excitement and anxiety of the accident, the agent of one of these accident insurance companies persuaded him to sign a release of all claims against the owner of the automobile for the paltry sum of $15. It is really an outrage that the laws should recognize any paper signed at such a time and under such circumstances. I have persuaded the man not to cash the check, and urged the repudiation of a contract secured by undue pressure and surprise. A lawyer of reputation has taken the case. Where there are no means, and no legal friends, I commend the poor to the Legal Aid Society—the Ludlow Building, 16th street between Market and Chestnut. As President of the Society I can vouch for its officials as trustworthy and efficient. Its activities are steadily increasing. In October of this year it had 376 cases. Of these:

Matrimonial and Domestic Difficulties were	61
General Advice	58
Wages	61
Collections	35
Landlord and Tenant	28
Neighborhood Quarrels	6
Negligence	12
Decedents' Estates	18
Real Estate	10
Recovery of Property	26
Custody of Children	8
Insurance and Beneficial Claims	10

$775 was recovered for clients.

An injury ought not to be treated as a means of extorting money from the rich. No man ought to be encouraged in extortionate, unjust or vindictive claims; but at the same time the necessities of the poor ought not to be traded upon. An inequitable settlement ought not to be wrung from their fear, and their extremity. Before signing a release, disinterested advice should be sought.

We hope that Santa Claus will not forget us this year, and that he will remember that both the women and little girls wear very WIDE SHOES.

King's Daughters' Whatsoever Circle.

Received through Mrs. Hunter Ewing, in October, Interest from Mr. Patton's Estate.	$50 28

The next meetings of this Circle will be December 2d and December 16th, in Guild Room of Parish House, 8 o'clock.

They are now making a few things for the Mothers' Fair and making Christmas boxes for the children. Come and help. All are welcome.

The Church Periodical Club of the Diocese of Pennsylvania will send early in December, through the united effort of its branches in the various churches of Philadelphia, a library of books to the Church of the Advent, Farmington, Minnesota.

Commentaries and dictionaries as well as books of lighter reading are most acceptable. Books of travel, standard fiction and children's books—any usable book, old or new, that the readers of the PARISH NEWS can spare. They may be sent to St. Stephen's Parish House and marked "For the Church Periodical Club." Please notify the librarian of St. Stephen's Branch of your contribution as it is desirable that each Branch should have a record of all the donors and their contributions.

The Club will send also a Christmas Box to the same destination. Any articles for this box may be sent to the Epiphany Chapel, 17th and Summer streets, Philadelphia.

ANNA FARRELL,
Librarian, St. Stephen's Church Periodical Club.

Sunday School Notes.

Our enrollment is steadily increasing. Four new scholars were added on the last Sunday in November and the hour hand of our membership clock is slowly climbing to the goal of 300.

At the Temperance Sunday session of early November, the Rev. Mr. Lee, a missionary to China, visited us and the same morning the Rev. J. D. Hall, of the Galilee Mission, gave us one of his enthusiastic talks. It was interesting to all to learn that both these clergymen had been pupils of our Rector at the theological seminary.

An improvement well worth noting is that so many more are present and in their classes when the opening hymn is sung. Another cheerful note is to record the hearty response that was made by the school to the appeal for the "Christmas Ship," when ten dollars were raised, and two Sundays later fifteen dollars was again raised to help fill the "Thelma"—the two mercy ships that went out from America full of substantial sympathy for the sufferers in the dreadful European war.

While it is pleasant to note the success of the boys in their basket ball games on Wednesday and Friday evenings, it is also cheering to say that several did not forget the corporate communion of early Sunday morning, November the 29th. And many of the Juniors on St. Andrew's Day went to the annual meeting of the Brotherhood at St. Mary's Church, West Philadelphia, heartily enjoying the meetings and the good supper that was served.

The spirit of the Christmas season is with us. Some thirty of the scholars and teachers are busy in rehearsal every Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, preparing a musical play, under the leadership of Miss Nodine, Mr. Moore and the Superintendent. The carol practice will begin December 6th, under Dr. Anthony. The committees have been appointed and the Festival will take place on Tuesday evening, December 29th, for the Primary Department and their mothers and friends, and for those of the Main School on Wednesday evening, December 30th. Two evenings have been arranged for so as to have room for all who may wish to come, and we look forward to a happy Christmas-tide.

The next teachers' meeting will occur on Saturday evening, Jan. 2, 1915. Let us begin the new year with every teacher present.

Not Quite Fair.

The official title of our Church was omitted on the signs of the Diocesan Fair for the benefit of St. Martha's Settlement House. For all the public could tell from the notice boards, the fair might have been a Roman Catholic or Moravian enterprise. These churches also have dioceses. It was decided in the General Convention that the name of our Church should not be changed. Why can not our people stand loyally by that decision? Even on the tickets of admission where there is abundance of printing, there was no room for the official title, or our popular designation. I know of no reason for objecting to our name, that is not either snobbish or sacerdotal. As I object to sacerdotalism and cannot bear snobbishness, anywhere, and especially abhor it in religion, the peculiar indefiniteness of these notices does not commend itself to me. In such joint enterprises, it is not fair to avoid our official name because of party preferences.

A woman whose husband addressed her simply as "You," complained bitterly that she had no name. I don't call you by your name, explained the husband, because I don't like it. But I dislike having no name, she replied. The dog has a name, the cat has a name, even the horse has a name; I alone am nameless, she wailed. But she was not alone—the Episcopal Church is also nameless in this fair for St. Martha's Settlement House.

The Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's Church will hold its annual sale of useful and fancy articles on Thursday, December 10th, from 3 to 10 P. M. in the Parish House. It is hoped that the ladies of the congregation will encourage the mothers by patronizing this sale. It would be a pity if our little boat should be swamped by the big steamer of the Diocesan Fair. Let us have a good turn out.

The Rector's Letter.

The Rector acknowledges the following additional contributions to the Church Work Fund. It will be recollected that he has only asked for $1,200, which is much less than was requested in former years. He hopes that those who contributed to this fund in former years will not fail him this season. New contributors are also solicited. This fund enables the Rector to act freely in many directions, often justifying him in stirring up committees to go ahead with the assurance that he will come to their aid, if they shall need his assistance. An account of the expenditures is published annually.

Ash Wednesday will come this winter on the 17th of February, and Confirmation will fall on March 7th, the Third Sunday in Lent, at the morning service. The Confirmation class will begin on Friday, January 22, at 8 o'clock in the Vestry. Some names have already been handed in, and I will be glad to hear either directly, or indirectly, of other candidates. It is a mistake to wait for a convulsive religious experience before taking such a step. The supreme requirement is a real desire to commit one's self to the service of God, the courage to pledge one's self publicly to His loyal obedience, and humility that seeks the aid of fellowship. The one essential is a dedication of self to following in the steps of Jesus of Nazareth, in faith and loyalty. All things else will be added.

The full report of the fund to provide Christmas dinners for the poor is rendered in the financial reports by Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr., with characteristic fullness and accuracy. The chief responsibility for the efficient discharge of this helpful task fell upon Mr. Van Dusen, Miss Lewis and our Verger. A number of helpers came to their assistance in filling the baskets on Wednesday night, but the main work devolved upon the three whom I have mentioned. The money of the congregation would have gone but a little way without their care in purchasing and distributing, and all their careful arrangements would have come to naught if the congregation had not come to their assistance with its usual generosity. It is good to see, on reading the acknowledgments, how numerous were the contributions. There are, of course, many contributors whose names are not given because their envelopes contained no indication of the giver. The acknowledgments are published in this way, simply as a means of publicly rendering account for money entrusted to us, and so keeping up an excellent custom. Each basket contained on an average dinners for ten persons, so that we can be said to have given out 1,360 dinners, which is doing pretty well for one church. Just think how many people were made happy on that day by the energy and liberality of St. Stephen's people. Surely such work is well worth while. The Church has her faults; she is not yet perfect; but surely the world would be harder and more cheerless without such ministrations.

It will be of interest to know that the average cost per basket was $2.40.

The revival services of the Reverend Mr. Sunday will affect different people differently. Let us remember that it takes a great many different kinds of people to make a world. That much of the seed will wither away after it is subjected to the heat of life's trials has been predicted. We need not be surprised if some tares of superstition and bigotry be sown along with the good seed. No one doubts to-day that the Great Awakening of the 18th Century under the Wesleys and Whitefield contained its full share of crudities and errors; nevertheless it was a manifest working of the Spirit of God, acting on imperfect men. Let us not fall into the sin of the Scribes and Pharisees of praising the prophets of a former day, and condemning the pioneers of God in our own time. We ought to be anxious to be able to approve of the work of this Evangelist. Surely we are not so good, that we need not seek for assistance from every quarter. I am much gratified that over $650 have been subscribed in St. Stephen's for the guaranty fund of this campaign. The students who reported on the influence of Mr. Sunday at the University of Pennsylvania at an informal service in St. Stephen's on December 13th, prepared us to expect great things.

A man who stirred up the undergraduates in a college so that they made morning prayers obligatory on every student twice a week, must be a man of extraordinary spiritual endowments. May God send him to Philadelphia in the fullness of the Spirit, endued with power from on high to make us walk worthy of the calling wherewith we are called, even to be the lights of the world, and the sons of God manifest upon earth.

Improvements continue to be made in the furnishings of the Church. What with our new cushions, new carpet in the pews, and new covers for the back of the pews, the color scheme of our ground floor is particularly harmonious and attractive. All through the main body of the Church book-racks have been placed in the pews, and 250 hymnals and prayer books have been provided. It is hoped that these last, which have been stamped with the name of the Church, will enable the visitors to join more generally in our worship. It will be appreciated if the books be placed in the racks at the end of the service.

Two great improvements remain yet to be made, and then, I think that we can say that our Church edifice will be in first class condition. We need a new roof, which should be of copper, that the Church with all its valuable memorials may be made as safe as possible against fire. The second improvement is not so important as this provision against fire; but it would be a wonderful improvement in the rendering of our services. I refer to the elevation of the whole Chancel about two feet. It is surprising to me that this alteration has never been seriously considered. The Chancel is much too low for an effective rendition of the service. During the reading of the psalter and at the opening address, when the congregation is standing, the head of the officiating minister at his post outside the Chancel rails, is only a few inches above the people. Back under the galleries they cannot see the face of the reader. The whole Chancel is so low that it is necessary to climb up into the pulpit to make the briefest address. Its dignity would be wonderfully enhanced by greater elevation. My idea would be to raise the whole chancel, altar, reredos, and all, two feet or twenty inches. The two additional steps could be placed at the head of the aisle, as was done in my old church in Norfolk, where they had exactly the same problem and met it very successfully,—or the first pews all around could be sacrificed, if the occupants would agree to move back a pew, and there might be a couple of steps running all around the Chancel, parallel to the rails and about a yard away from the present step. This would be the best solution. The increase in the impressiveness of our beautiful Chancel and in the effectiveness in the rendition of our service would be something wonderful. I wish that it could be seriously considered. Of course nothing could or would be done, without the approval of those whose memorials would be involved.

Above every other financial undertaking, however, the supreme task of the year in our Parish ought to be raising the apportionment. When we were asked to give $4,967.20, as our proportionate share of this diocese's contribution to the cause of missions, the amount was so far in excess of our powers that it was disheartening. Besides it did not seem just or reasonable that outsiders should tell the parish how much it was in a position to give and insist against our protest upon their estimate. Giving is, in the last analysis, a voluntary act, and the most urgent beggar will do well to remember that the most generous people resent dictation and extortion. All the defects of the apportionment system—and it has some serious drawbacks—were brought to the fore by the persistence of the diocese in making such an unreasonable request of St. Stephen's. The methods whereby the parishes who did not meet these demands were in a sense blacklisted, were not methods that win. They seemed to savor more of the Jewish than of the Christian dispensation.

The committe in charge of the matter has, however, had the great gift of learning from experience, and of keeping an open mind to criticisms and suggestions, that were not captious but based on reason and the nature of things. The new apportionment for St. Stephen's is $2,657.01, and I am exceedingly anxious that we should raise this sum even to the last cent—the rather amusing proof of the precision with which our financial strength is estimated. The basis of the new apportionment, I ought to explain, is our income from the congregation, without regard to the income from the endowment. It is true that the parish is not as wealthy as it once was, but then it is also true that the property was never in such fine condition, and that the endowment has increased nearly $50,000 in the last nine years. With the assistance of our endowment, we are in such good shape that we ought to do more for others.

Last year, from September 1, 1913, to September 1, 1914, we contributed from the Parish, $1,290.41; from the Sunday School, $181.-72 and from the Woman's Auxiliary, -383.30 —making in all $1,855.52. If the Sunday School would make an effort, it could easily give $250 ,and the Woman's Auxiliary and congregation could raise the remiander—$2,-407.01. All these figures are derived from the Treasurer of the Board of Missions in New York.

Out of this Apportionment Fund all the regular expenses of our Board of Missions are defrayed. It pays the salaries of our Missionary Bishops, and our other missionaries, and supports the regular work. Gifts for cpecial purposes, not included in the list of the Board's engagements do not count, of course, upon the apportionment. There ought to be some "specials" for we ought to give to the appeals that excite our interest and the heart should not be stifled; but the regular engagements of the Board must be met, and we are not doing our part, if we are not working zealously for that great end. After all, our religion does not mean much, unless we are trying to spread its message of faith and hope and love, and it will cease to mean what it may now mean if we cannot make some effort and sacrifice for it. Let us as a parish try to do our part. It would be a proud and happy experience for your Rector if at the end of the tenth year of his pastorate he could say, "And St. Stephen's, in addition to its large charitable and benevolent work of various kinds, has met its apportionment."

I wish every member of the Parish a Happy New Year. CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Diocesan Fair.

The fair planned by the Board of St. Martha's Settlement House in conjunction with about forty of the Episcopal churches in this Diocese came off early in December at Horticultural Hall and in spite of the quaking fears over new conditions and new interests evolved by the great European war proved a great success.

A committee from St. Stephen's was appointed by the President of our Auxiliary, Miss Laura Bell, consisting of Mrs. Grammer, chairman, and Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Miesse and Miss Paullin. Our Secretary, Mrs. Hollar, Jr., sent out notices of the Fair to every woman in the congregation asking for donations of aprons and neckwear, the useful and salable articles that the committee had chosen. The response was most generous and came from members of the Auxiliary, the Benevolent Society, the Sunday School, the Burd School, the Girls' Friendly, the Mothers' Meeting, the King's Daughters and also from those who are not affiliated with any societies.

Two very large donations, the first from the head of the Benevolent, and the second from the head of the Mothers' Meeting, put us on our feet, so to speak. Another large donation from two sisters who worked all summer, thinking we were to have a fancy table, was wonderful—so beautiful and varied and useful were the gifts. Many of these articles were sold privately, some of them never even reaching the Hall. All of them enriched the Fair and sold well.

Money, too, was given most generously and enabled us to buy a large supply of neckwear which we sold at a considerable profit, although in no case above the retail price at the stores. What was left over after expenses were deducted went to swell the receipts of our table.

The Chairman had no anxiety in regard to the tickets or the booth. Mrs. Meisse, ably seconded by the Verger, took charge of the tickets, and between them about sixty-five dollars' worth was sold. The entire responsibility for the booth was assumed by Mrs. Austin. It was so pretty and was so much praised that we were all intensely gratified. The table was converted into a pergola, covered on top and the sides with boughs of brightly-tinted apple blossoms of paper—a labor of love indeed, for the cutting of thousands of blossoms and putting them on boughs must have been a task of many weeks' duration. The electric lights put in by our Verger made the booth brilliant by bringing out the colors and assisted in the sales by displaying our wares to full advantage.

Another labor of love was the making of the caps and bunches of blossoms by our young people for the aides to wear as part of their uniform.

These pretty decorations worn with the white dresses gave brilliancy to our party and earned us many compliments.

St. Stephen's part in the Fair did not stop with our booth, for our Girls' Friendly contributed twelve helpers to the ice cream table.

As to our aides we feel that we cannot thank them enough, our young people whose vivacious interest and presence brightened us up. Our Treasurer, always on hand, clear-headed and firm; our workers who straightend up the booth, marked articles and sold and wrapped with undiminished enthusiasm for three days and evenings—all gave us courage and substantial help.

The accounts of the Fair as a whole are not yet settled, but it is understood that the amount raised is at least eight thousand dollars.

Our sales at the booth amounted to $331.71. A final check of $52.00, sent to Miss Stocker, General Chairman, brings our proceeds up to $383.71. With tickets sold in our congregation the whole amounts to $448.00. We are told that up to date ours is the banner church.

The Sunday School.

The important events of the Sunday School are first the changing of the system of lessons —by vote of the teachers we return to the Blakeslee plan—and then the Christmas festivals. Some thirty scholars and teachers have for six weeks been making these preparations and as this goes to press we can report the Primary Department's entertainment a good success in spite of bad weather and, of course, the Main School on Wednesday evening, December 30th, should prove the same. With appreciation for all those who have worked so hard on the decorations, the candies and the play, we give the programs of the two evenings as the best way to record them, the play being the same each night.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its December meeting on Thursday, the 17th, in the Parish House, twenty-three members being present.

Reports were given of meetings attended and work accomplished during the month.

Mrs. Grammer gave a detailed account of the Diocesan Fair, held on December 3, 4 and 5, for the benefit of St. Martha's House. Through the Fair, contributions and the sale of tickets St. Stephen's raised for this splendid object $445.00.

Rev. George P. Mayo, of the Blue Ridge Industrial School, Virginia, gave a graphic talk on the industrial work being done for the people of that district and of its wonderful influence for moral and spiritual uplift.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, January 21st, when the Rev. Charles L. Betticher, of Alaska, will be the speaker.

ALBERTA S. VAN DUSEN,
Sec. pro tem.

The Epiphany meeting of the Pennsylvania Woman's Auxiliary will be held in St. Stephen's Church on Monday, Januarv 11, 1915, at half after two o'clock. Bishop Lloyd and Archdeacon Mellon, of Mexico, will make addresses, and a large attendence is expected, as the announcement is made in all the parishes, and the delegates and all interested in missions are cordially invited to be present. Bishop Lloyd has personally visited manv of our mission stations all over the world.

King's Daughters' Whatsoever Circle.

Donations received:

From Mrs. E. W. Moore.....	$2 00
From Members of the Circle.....	3 00
Total	$5 00

At the last meeting of this Circle it was decided that we would help fill as many baskets as there was provision to fill.

$5.40 was expended and four of Miss Lewis's very poor families were treated to all kinds of good things, such as jellies, canned goods, sugar, celery, cakes, cornstarch and many other things too numerous to mention, with the hope that they would all have a Happy Christmas and enjoy their dinner.

Shoe Fund.

Money received in December for shoes, $1.45. Donation of three large boxes of shoes and overshoes from Santa Claus, who never forgets the children at Number 9 South Tenth Street. He comes a day or so before Christmas, but the Guild Room was so filled with turkeys and all sorts of good things for the Christmas baskets that it was impossible to open the boxes until after Christmas. But those children who needed shoes were supplied from the stock on hand, so all were made happy and wish to thank Santa Claus and wish him a very Happy New Year.

An Appeal from the Galilee Mission.

GALILEE MISSION, 823 VINE ST.
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7, 1914.

MY DEAR DR. GRAMMER:

We are to take possession of our new house for converts this week—located at 1016 Callowhill street, and you remember I spoke to you about the furnishings, etc. We are in great need of such things right now. A few churches have agreed to furnish a room and have the name of the church or individual placed on the door. The Board estimate that $50 will be sufficient for such room. Single beds are the only kind that can be used to any advantage. It might be that some one who is going to make a change in his housekeeping would be glad to furnish a room from what he has on hand. I think that could be arranged also. This is to be a home where young men can live at a small cost with all the quiet influence of the Church thrown around them—like a Brotherhood House. A word to some one in your parish or a note in your parish paper would be very much appreciated by the Mission and the Board of Directors.

Yours very sincerely,
J. J. D. HALL.

Parish Visitor's Report.

"The poor ye have always with you' 'is a truth that I realize more and more fully each day as my life is spent almost entirely among them, and when I see their struggles against the fearful odds of poverty, the numbness that sometimes seems to crush all spirit into a dumb patient endurance suddenly lifted by help, I am cheered almost as much as they.

The one hundred and thirty-six Christmas baskets we sent out lifted many more than one hundred and thirty-six such burdens and the Christmas cheer brought sunshine and hope once more into many hearts and homes. No doubt these people felt that the baskets were a forerunner of better times for them.

One case is especially appealing. A widow who has three sons is struggling with the help of the oldest boy to make a living. This son is a good boy and sends his mother during the winter half of his wages—$2.50 a omnth. He makes his living on a farm and earns in winter $5.00 a month. The summer time is better, for then he can send his mother $6.00 a month, being half of his wages. The next bov, sixteen years of age, is entirely blind, having lost his sight by being run over by an express wagon when he was very young. His head was injured, producing nervousness and paralysis as well as blindness, making him helpless in everv way towards making a living. The youngest boy attends the public school. This woman wants work by the day. She says she can do plain sewing. Her case is certainly a sad one. Is there anyone who can get her some work to do?

K. H. LEWIS.

10th & Chestnut Sts.,
Philadelphia.

Dear Friends:

The Child Federation desires to send its cordial acknowledgment of the large contribution sent through you to the Christmas Ship.

The response to the original appeal has been far beyond our expectations. The articles were all carefully chosen, and in most cases very appropriate.

We have received $6,140.41, and have forwarded 116,000 articles to the Ship Jason.

We may be sure that many unfortunates will be cheered not only by the physical comfort which comes to them, but also by the beautiful spirit of sympathy which prompted the sending of the gifts.

Yours truly,
MARION R. ROBINS,
Chairman, Women's Committee.

Members of the congregation desiring to subscribe to the Memorial Flower Fund for the following Saints' Days will kindly communicate with Mrs. W. B. Campbell, 1711 Pine street. Subscription is $1.50:

St. Stephen's Day. Circumcision, Epiphany, Conversion of St. Paul, Annunciation, Ascension Day, Transfiguration, St. Michael and All Angels, St. Andrew's Day and Saints' Days following the Greater Feasts of Christmas, Easter and Whit-sunday.

The Rector's Letter.

Confirmation will fall on March 7th, at 11 A. M. Bishop Garland will be our visitant. The class meets on Friday nights at 8 o'clock, in the Vestry. No one commits himself to a decision by attending its sessions. The Rector will be glad to make an arrangement for a private conference with any one whose engagements will not permit attendance upon the class.

On Sunday, February 14, the offering will be for Diocesan Missions. According to our parochial custom collectors will visit the communicants the week before the offering and ask contributions, which will be formally presented on Sunday. $750 are asked of St. Stephen's. As we have already contributed $37.76, we have $712.24 to raise. It is a goodly sum, but we can accomplish it if every one does his best. Out of this money are paid the salaries of our clergy who minister to congregations in the poorer sections of the city.

We have never failed to raise the amount required of us for Diocesan Missions, and must not fail this year. Don't ask yourself whether others are doing their part. Who can tell how much others ought to do? What right have we to decide for others or judge others. Let us see to it that we do our part. The deputies went to the Diocesan Convention and voted that the Diocese should increase its appropriations on account of the growth of the work, the high cost of living, and the poor salaries of the missionaries. Not a dissentient voice was heard. Now is the time to show our approval of these sentiments by contributing generously. Every communicant who can afford it, is expected to contribute $5. It is hoped that our wealthier members will help out with larger contributions. We have done so well in so many directions that I trust we shall not fail to raise this $750. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver."

OUR NOON DAY LENTEN SERVICES.

We have secured splendid speakers for this Lent at our Noonday Services. The six speakers who will bear the chief burden are: Bishop Williams of Michigan, Dr. Randolph H. McKim, Dr. G. A. Johnston Ross, Mr. Howard Melish, Dr. Tomkins and Bishop Capers.

Of these Bishop Williams, Mr. Melish, and Dr. Tomkins are old friends of our Lenten attendants. Bishop Capers is well known in Philadelphia as the rector of the Holy Apostles for over a year. I do not know that Dr. McKim has ever given a series of addresses in Philadelphia. As president of the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies for three General Conventions, and the leading Rector of Washington he is one of the most prominent and influential clergymen in our Church. It will be a great pleasure to have him in the pulpit of St. Stephen's.

Dr. Johnston Ross is well known in this community as a former minister of the Presbyterian Church at Bryn Mawr. From that important post he went to Canada, and he is at present one of the Faculty of Union Theological Seminary, New York, a seminary that for the learning and eloquence of its faculty ranks as one of the greatest theological schools in the world. This Presbyterian clergyman has been invited into our pulpit under the canons of our Church and with the approval of the Bishop of the Diocese, in the firm conviction that by the road of such courtesies the unity of the Christian world can be made manifest and increased. By his presence, as well as by his words Christian fellowship will be spread abroad.

With much regret I here announce that I will not be able to have a Bible class this Lent. A rector that receives so much assistance from his brethren among the clergy in the Noonday Lenten Addresses cannot refuse to help others in their Lenten services. I have felt compelled to accept a number of engagements and will be gone for a whole week in March after the Confirmation delivering a series of addresses in Detroit, Michigan. This long absence would seriously interfere with the class towards the end of Lent, and the duties incident to gathering together and instructing candidates for Confirmation would make it difficult to find time in the early weeks of Lent. With reluctance I have therefore deferred the class to the fall, about the first of November. Then there will be no Tabernacle services to attract the crowds, and no evangelistic enterprise to concentrate our enegies upon the fundamentals and first principles. The religious life that has been warmed and vitalized, will then be ready for more light and guidance. The results of the Higher Criticism can be communicated without producing controversy. Everything has its own season. A period when the whole force of the community is being thrown upon the work of rescue and revival, is not in its prevailing temper a time favorable to re-adjustments and re-statements. The course that I had projected on the Wisdom Literature of the Old Testament will be an admirable theme for next fall.

A mission study class will be conducted by Mrs. John Coates Browne. The text book will be, "The Social Aspect of Foreign Missions," by William H. Faunce, President of Brown University.

The meetings of the class will be held at such a time as the majority may decide upon. The opening session will be on Saturday at 11 o'clock. It is hoped that the attendance will be large. There is no better way of keeping Lent than joining such a class.

C. E. G.

Although the system of lighting is only tentative and the last touches have not yet been given, I receive to-day without any special service, in accordance with the wish of the donor, the memorial window presented to St. Stephen's in loving memory of the late William S. Price by his daughter, Mrs. Mortimer Brown.

It is the product of the Tiffany Studios which have supplied so many beautiful windows to our church, and embellishes greatly a wall that needed more beauty and color. The subject is Gamaliel the great lawyer, "had in reputation of all the people," as the inscription records—pleading before the Council against any persecution of the Church. The great jurist is portrayed at the climax of his address, when after a learned appeal to history to show that if this counsel or this work be of men it will come to naught, he warns the tribunal, that "if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it, lest haply ye be found to fight even against God." The subject is quite original, I believe, in church windows. The Church has rightly taken great care to distinguish herself from the Synagogue; but it would be a great mistake to overlook our indebtedness to the Law in preparing the way for the Gospel. The Russian Church places the patriarchs among its saints, and St. Isaac's is one of the most famous of the Russian churches. The way for the religion of grace and mercy was prepared by a religion of law and exact justice. This is one of the lessons enforced by this picture of a Jewish Council on the window of a Christian Church.

Another truth almost as important should be connected with Gamaliel. Although he is known in the Church chiefly through this incident, and as the teacher of Saul of Tarsus, Gamaliel is celebrated even to this day in the Synagogue, without any regard to these ecclesiastical incidents. A learned student of Greek literature, and a descendant and disciple of Hillel, the greatest of the Rabbis who endeavored shortly before the time of Christ to develop the ethical and universal elements of Judaism, Gamaliel is ranked by the Jews as the first of the seven Rabbans. This great teacher of St. Paul, the theologian of the Apostles, should constantly remind us, as we recall that he drew his wisdom from Greek culture, and the logic of the schools, as well as from the Old Testament, and a national Faith how numerous were the fountains that supplied the streams that watered the historical roots of our religion. Greece as well as Palestine, Reason as well as Tradition and Faith united to give us Christianity.

The chief lesson, however, of the incident is, of course, the noble teaching that the proper defence of the truth is her own weapons of reason, and that all religious persecutions, or contentious proceeding against heresy are mistakes. As St. Stephen's has always been famous for the freedom of its pulpit, we are especially pleased to have this scene emblazoned on one of our windows.

Singularly fitted as is the subject to suggest lines of thought in harmony with all that St. Stephen's stands for, it is also a memento uniquely appropriate to William S. Price. Of English ancestry, Mr. Price inherited by birth deep-seated affection to the Episcopal Church. This preference he confirmed and grounded on a dogmatic and historical basis by studies in history, liturgics and canon law. A lawyer by profession, in active practice for many years, and possessed with a passion for justice and for correct legal procedure as a shield wherewith to protect the innocent, rather than in its aspect as a sword to smite the guilty, he was naturally fitted by canonical learning and by temperament for the part which he bore in a number of important Ecclesiastical trials as chief counsel for the defense. Born in 1817, at the time of his death in the winter of 1912, he had reached the great age of 95, and had been for years the Nestor of Philadelphia's celebrated bar. A court scene, in which a great lawyer is speaking for the defence and appealing both to precedents and ultimate principles, for the protection of the Church is surely the most appropriate memento possible of such a lawyer and churchman.

Mr. Price's interest in the Church was not, however, restricted to her tribunals, archives, dogmas and claims. Early in life he was a member of Mr. Arthur G. Coffin's once famous Bible Class. Later on he became a Sunday School teacher himself. For half a century he was a Vestryman of Trinity, Southwark, and for most of that period represented that parish in the Diocesan Convention. For many years he held the responsible post of Chancellor of the Diocese.

In the days of his vigor he took an active part in civic and national affairs and to the end he retained his interest in public concerns, and the movements of the Church's life. Having conversed with people who knew Benjamin Franklin, having been confirmed by the patriotic White, the first Bishop of Pennsylvania, and having spent all his life in the heart of this great city, on or near Washington Square, he possessed unrivaled intimacy of knowledge respecting many incidents of our civic and ecclesiastical history. He bore the infirmities of age, which came upon him very late and very gradually, with the dignity that belongs to simplicity and an entire absence of pose, and without a word of repining. Generous to the poor and to his friends, helpful to those in trouble, reticent about his own trials and disappointments, utterly and entirely devoted to the welfare of his only daughter and sole surviving child, he bore the burden of his years with a fortitude and patience that were, it seemed to me, characteristic of the simpler and more stoical days in which he was born, when men were more patient than we are to-day, amid the perplexities and disappointments of life, because they realized more adequately than we in our sciolism the limitations of the finite mind of man.

This memorial is erected in the Church where her father worshiped for 34 years, by a daughter who evoked the tenderest love of a father's heart, and repaid it with an equal filial devotion.

A Marvelous Cure.

At a meeting recently held at Bishop Rhinelander's of those interested in the leper "Hospital of the Resurrection of Hope," at Kumamoto, South Japan, we were told of the complete cure of one of the patients, a young girl, whose little sister of seven years is now being treated in the Hospital for the same disease.

Many of these poor sufferers are no longer without hope and those with whom the disease is too far advanced for this, are cared for and looked after instead of being shunned and neglected according to the custom of their country heretofore.

Miss Ridell, who carries on this wonderful and unselfish work under the auspices of Anglican and American Bishops, has appealed most earnestly for funds to continue it.

It is proposed to collect from our parishioners $10.00 to provide food for one day for the hospital: the day chosen to be "St. Stephen's Day."

Two hundred dollars would make us perpetual members of the "Daily Bread League," and St. Stephen's Church would always be associated with this great work.

Several of the Philadelphia churches have followed this suggestion.

Contributions may be sent to Miss Elizabeth C. Washington, "The Lincoln," 1222 Locust street, Philadelphia.

An Appeal.

The Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church is one of the oldest in the Church, and one of the most successful until this year, when we are in need of money to get materials and pay our women, of whom we have over thirty on our list.

This year so many are sending large sums of money abroad and giving so generously, that we feel if they knew more about us they would be glad to help us.

The hospitals send us materials to cut out, or the garments ready to be made. We like to give each woman who sews for us one dollar's worth of work each week. We return the garments free of charge. It is a double charity. Last year we made over five thousand articles. This year, however, the hospitals have not money to send us enough work. What we would like to do would be to find out from each hospital what they need most, to get the material and have our ladies cut them out and so supply our women with the work they so much need. This procedure would also show the hospitals that we appreciate what they have done for us.

It is hard for us to understand with our many blessings what it means to be cold and hungry, and some of our women are often that though they are very brave and uncomplaining about it. This is women's work and we feel that the women of the Parish who are not in the Society should know about it. We would like them to come in any Wednesday between 10 and 12 o'clock and see us.

CORNELIA L. EWING.

This appeal will, I hope, meet with a generous response. Contributions may be placed in the offertory on Sundays, marked for the Benevolent, or may be sent to the Treasurer, Mrs. William H. H. Hansell, Merion, Pa.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

Twenty-seven members were present at the meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, held in the Parish House, January 21st.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $35.46, and Miss Anna Magee reported $51.00 collected for the United Offering during the last month, making a total of $122.00. The Missionary Box Committee reported two boxes of men's clothing having been sent during the past month through the kindness of Miss Magee.

On motion of Dr. Grammer, duly seconded and carried, the officers of the Auxiliary were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Rev. Charles E. Betticher, of Fairfax, Alaska, was the speaker of the day, and the sum of $25.00 was given by the Auxiliary for scholarships in this great mission field.

The next meeting will be held February 18th, and Bishop Tylor, of North Dakota, will be the speaker.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

King's Daughters' Whatsoever Circle.

The King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle received $5.00 in January from Mrs. Highmar to help with their work.

This Circle has been sewing on clothing for the last two meetings for the Children's Hospital when finished. They also gave a donation to the Queen of the Belgians Fund for milk for women and children.

Have also given out clothing to several families.

The next meetings will be February 3d and February 17th, in the Guild Room, Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock. It is expected that Miss Nina Rogers, County Treasurer, will spend one of these evenings with the Circle, and talk of the work done by others.

Shoe Fund.

Money Received for Shoes in January.....	$2 60
Expended for Shoes	1 18
Balance	$1 42

Gave out in January, 25 pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of overshoes.

Miss Townsend was very much interested in a poor family of six, who were without everything—food, clothing and shoes. Several kind friends gave them three pairs of shoes and three pairs were given from St. Stephen's Shoe Closet. The little boy had not been able to go to school and when he got the shoes he danced for joy.

The Sunday School.

We miss the presence of the pupils of the Burd School, and are pleased to learn that the ill ones are convalescing and that early February will find them all back in their classes.

While the boys come in smiling on Sundays full of the joys of their basket ball games on Wednesday and Friday evenings, yet we are pleased to report many have not forgotten the main purpose of the school, and five have already entered their names for the Rector's Confirmation Class. Of course we are happy to speak of even a larger number of the girls of our school who are to be confirmed this season.

On Thursday evening, February 11th, at 8 o'clock, in the Parish House, Miss Nodine is arranging for the meeting of the Junior and Primary Workers' Union of the Diocese of Pennsylvania. Dr. Grammer will preside. Bible stories will be illustrated. Mrs. Barber, Miss Adair, Mrs. Lohman and the Rev. Dr. Foley, of the Divinity School, will make addresses, and it is hoped that all of our teachers will try and be present.

The stormy night of January 31st prevented a large attendance at the monthly teachers' meeting, when the Rector repaid those who braved the storm by outlining and suggesting plans for the lesson studies of the coming month.

The Junior Brotherhood.

The boys of the Junior Brotherhood meet twice a month and send delegates to the Round Table Conference of this section of the Diocese and have made good reports to their Chapter. Three who have been on probation for several months will soon be formally admitted to the Brotherhood by the Rector.

Men for the Tabernacle Meetings.

On Sunday evening, February 14th, reservation will be made for men of the Seventh District, in which our Church is located, for seats at the Sunday Tabernacle. Any wishing tickets for these reservations should apply early to Mr. Carrigan.

Junior and Primary Workers' Union of the Diocese of Pennsylvania has a meeting at the Parish House, Thursday evening, February 11th. Subject for the evening: "Bible Story Telling." Presiding officer, Rev. Carl E. Grammer. Other speakers: Dr. Foley, of Philadelphia Divinity School; Miss Adair, Normal School; Mrs. Barber, Miss Nodine.

Hymn, "The Son of God, Christ Jesus."

(The words by BISHOP SPALDING)

The Son of God, Christ Jesus,
He is my Lord and King,
To Him my every talent
Most willingly I bring.
The life which most shall please Him
That life I long to live,
The strength I need to serve Him,
That strength He'll freely give.

The Son of God, Christ Jesus,
Was ever true and bold,
The body's every weakness
He constantly controlled.
And by His help unfailing,
In His most holy might,
Against my lower nature
Unceasingly I'll fight.

The Carpenter, Christ Jesus,
He earned His daily bread.
Of faithful earnest workers
He is the royal Head.
All sloth and lawless action
He'll help me to despise.
The gain of honest labor
Shall be my only prize.

Saviour of men, Christ Jesus,
Oh, Champion of the weak,
Put down the strong and mighty
And give earth to the meek.
Grant me Thy strength and courage
To speed the glad day when True love and perfect justice
Shall rule the lives of men. Amen.

Owing to a mistake the list for 1914 was published in the February PARISH NEWS.

A Financial Statement and Appeal.

The income for the expenses of St. Stephen's is derived from three sources: first, from the interest on our endowments; secondly, from the pew rents, and thirdly, from the envelopes. There is a mistaken and hurtful notion abroad that our endowments are sufficient to maintain the Church and that St. Stephen's is in no need of helpers. The interest on our endowments will not pay one third of our expenses this year. Those who are interested in St. Stephen's and in all that it stands for in the Episcopal Church and in this city are urged to take pews or sittings and so assist the Vestry in meeting their responsibilities. Every communicant or regular attendant should accept a package of envelopes. Those who can not afford the regular price of sittings are urged to speak to Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr., who will be glad to assign them seats with the understanding that they will do their part through the envelopes. A religion for which we make no sacrifice is a religion of little power to sustain or console. The following letter has been sent to everyone who is not on our lists, or is not using the system regularly. If you have not received it and do not use the system, please let the rector know:

MY DEAR PARISHIONER:

System is as necessary in the Church as in secular affairs. It forms good habits, and it also produces results of value. Even the most spontaneous acts, such as prayer, need to be cultivated and performed according to some rule. This principle holds good of our giving. Only by regularity can we gain the habit of worshiping the Lord with our substance, or give a worthy amount to the maintenance and extension of the Church. To attain these important ends we have the Duplex Envelopes at St. Stephen's.

The system has worked well; but we can do much better. There are many who have not accepted the boxes or make no use of them; others who have taken them use them only fitfully. Let us resolve this year that every envelope in our box shall carry an offering into the Church's treasury. Let us try to put something into each pocket every Sunday. Thirdly, Let us endeavor to get every one in the Church to accept a package of envelopes.

Let us give according to our abilities: the poorer members not discouraged by the necessary smallness of their gifts, and the richer not wearied by the number of the demands that come upon them from many quarters, but giving as God hath prospered them.

The money placed in the pocket marked simply "Missions" will go to the Apportionment. $2,657.01 are asked of St. Stephen's for this object, from Sunday School, Woman's Auxiliary and congregation. Let us do our best. The Board of Missions assumed definite obligations and looks to us to aid in their fulfilment. May God give us the spirit of liberality. Let us not economize in our charities; but let us sacrifice our pleasure and self-indulgences for the sake of the Kingdom of God.

If you are willing to co-operate won't you sign the enclosed card, and return it to me at your earliest convenience in the self-addressed envelope which you will find enclosed?

Your friend and rector,

CARL E. GRAMMER.

A Need at the Farm.

Now that the Vernal Equinox is approaching, and the sun is climbing higher in the skies, our thoughts turn to the Farm, and the needs of our establishment there. The new bath room was a great improvement last summer, and it would be splendid if we could continue the good work by putting in a new range. Fire and water are two great essentials of life. Our tanks and bath rooms are fine: but our old range is inadequate and a source of trouble. A fine double oven range can be purchased and put in for $110. Gifts for this object will be heartily welcome. Perhaps some warm hearted person may give us the whole sum. It is a benefaction that will reach many people.

On Quinquagesima Sunday, the Church was presented by Mrs. Henry P. Taylor with a new purple altar cloth, together with antipendia, stoles and book marks to match. All are beautiful and richly decorative. The Altar Cloth in particular is a fine and costly work of art. The thistles upon it are most exquisitely shaded and very artistically disposed. While the lily, the symbol of purity, has long been the favorite flower for altar decorations, there is much to be said for the thistle. Christianity came as a message to the lowly and no plant is more lowly than the humble thistle. What an admirable symbol it is of duty, so painful if half-heartedly assayed, but so prompt to reward courage. The emblem on our decorations should bring to mind Tennyson's lines in the ode to Wellington on the path of duty:

"He that walks it, only thirsting
For the right, and learns to deaden
Love of self, before his journey closes,
He shall find the stubborn thistle bursting
Into glossy purples, which outredden
All voluptuous garden roses.
He that ever following her commands
On with toil of heart and knees and hands
Thro' the long gorge to the far light has won,
His path upwards and prevailed,
Shall find the toppling crags of Duty scaled
Are close upon the shining table-lands
To which our God Himself is moon and sun."

I should like to connect those lines in your minds with the new hangings; but it may be that I shall not succeed in establishing that connection. Of this, however, I am more confident, and that is that wherever Mrs. Taylor is known people will think of her with respect softened by affection, and with an affection that is made uplifting by respect.

Malcolm M. Coppuck.

By the sudden death of Mr. Coppuck on the morning of February 26, St. Stephen's lost one of its most faithful attendants. About six years ago he came to our church, taking with great liberality a pew in the middle aisle, though there were only two in his household. If he was in town, and in reasonably good health he could be counted on to occupy that pew at both the Sunday services. In spite of his great age it took more than a rainstorm, or frozen pavements to keep him away. He loved the courts of the Lord's house. He was the oldest employé of the city at the time of his death, and had reached his 82d year, but there was always a certain buoyancy about him to the end. At heart he was an artist. He showed predominance of this bias in a certain detachment from the sordid side of existence, as well as in his devotion to the arts that embellish life. Though he was a painstaking official, a perfect mine of information about his bureau, his energy and interests could not be exhausted or bound down to his departmental tasks. In his earlier days he sang a fine bass, and belonged to an excellent choir. At one time he used to give public readings. His taste in art carried him beyond the sterile realm of criticism into the fruitful region of practise. His home was adorned by the tasteful productions of his brush and pencil. Of these accomplishments he made no display, for he was a man of great modesty, and also of a certain lightness of touch that made anything like pomposity or parade impossible. The sweetness of his nature was shown in his criticisms which always took the form of appreciations. His commendations were, however, full of discrimination and insight, as for example he never failed to emphasize in his analysis of any reading the supreme importance of correct emphasis. It is pleasant to recall that St. Stephen's with its fine choir, its exquisite memorials, and dignified service was a congenial home to him. His love for the Episcopal Church was strong and intelligent. Her ways were to him ways of pleasantness. He had no desire to see her conformed to an Italian pattern. Neither did he like the army of the Lord to move without any regular order. He wanted the Christian host to march along, keeping step, the band playing and the banners waving. He had the gift of making friends, and soon became a dear and valued friend of his rector. The reality and depth of his piety was shown in his fortitude in trial and in the consistency of his life. In the supreme crisis of our national existence, he came to the assistance of his country and fought to preserve the integrity of the Nation. True patriot, loyal church member, congenial and affectionate friend, greatly will he be missed.

It is an additional bereavement that his cousin, Miss Coppuck will return to Mount Holly, N. J., now that his home is broken up, and we shall lose from our midst one who had made for herself a place in the affection and activities of the congregation. May she often revisit us.

Sunday School Notes.

The visit of Mr. Tewfik Hararah, the Syrian refugee, to our school, with his interesting story of his country and the persecution of his people, and the address of Bishop Tyler, of North Dakota, to our scholars has filled us full of the missionary spirit, and we expect good results to be shown in offerings to be made in our Lenten Boxes. We hope to record at our Easter Carol service at least $250.

It is particularly cheering to visit the Rector's Confirmation Class and see so many of our older boys as well as an even greater number of the older girls of the school attentive to the instructions preparatory to their full admission to membership in the church. This fine fruitage of the year's work and study makes the clergy, the teachers and officers very happy.

The Junior Brotherhood.

At a recent Communion service of the Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew, held at St. Stephen's Church, at 8 A. M., some 80 older boys assembled with the Bishop. We were represented by two delegates.

On March 16th, in the Guild Room, there will be held a supper and meeting of all the directors and leaders of Junior Brotherhood work in this Diocese. Our Director, as President of the Junior Department, will preside. Mr. Edmund B. McCarthy, president of the Philadelphia Local Assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, will make an address with others of the Junior Committee.

Parish Visitor's Report.

The mild weather that has just passed has been a great boon to the poor for the reason that the coal baskets have been empty which could not be filled; and yet many a larder has been empty too.

There are so many of the unemployed that it is a wonder how their families can obtain sufficient to eat.

One little boy who was anxious to help his father, who was out of work, found a place where he could sell candy after school. It was in a moving picture show and he could make ten per cent. commission. The proprietor put a white jacket on him and filled his tray and the little boy went out with a heart full of happiness. The first day he made thirteen cents; another day eighteen cents, all of which he carried joyfully to his father. At last great luck came to him,—he actually made fifty cents, as two young men came to him for candy and gave him a half dollar to change. When he reported this fact to the proprietor he was informed that the coin was a counterfeit and he was told he must accept the counterfeit for his wages. The poor boy's heart was broken. Children's troubles are very real and the sorrow of that night so weighed on his little soul that it destroyed his faith in humanity. It was such a blow to him to think that he would have to face his parents and tell them of his bitter disappointment.

A waitress in one of the department stores earns $3.50 a week, plus the fees which she formerly was accustomed to receive, but now there is very little given in fees and fewer people are taking luncheons and she is now asked to take a day off now and then. She has two children to support and they could not come to Sunday School as they did not have suitable clothes, but we were fortunate in being able to get some for them from our Garment Society.

Another pitiful case is that of a man dying with tuberculosis. He has a wife and three young children. When able, he held a position in a printing office but had to give it up about Christmas time on account of his failing health. All this family has to depend upon is the $5.00 a week which one of his children is able to earn. They are getting behind in their rent too, I am sorry to say.

These are only a few of the many, many cases that need assistance, and we have very little money with which to help them.

K. H. Lewis.

The congregation's attention is called to the chief missionary magazine of the Church—The Spirit of Missions. The late Bishop Whitaker used to say, "People care so little about missions, because they know so little about them." The missionary magazine of the Church records the greatest enterprise in the world—the advance of Christ's Kingdom among nations. Every church family should subscribe for it. Published by the Board of Missions, 281 Fourth avenue, New York.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

The King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle have their next meeting March 17th, in the Guild Room of the Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock.

At one of the meetings it was voted to give Miss Townsend a small donation towards the digging of the well in North Dakota for St. Elizabeth's school, for all the water used for drinking and other purposes had to be carried four miles.

During the past month the King's Daughters have been busy making bibs and outing skirts for the Day Nursery and the hospitals. On February 3d they had the pleasure of having Miss Rogers, treasurer of the Philadelphia County Union of King's Daughters, visit the circle and give the members some idea of the many and varied ways in which other circles are working "In His Name." Before closing the meeting, tea and crackers were served, and all who were present felt repaid for coming out on such a stormy night.

During Lent the King's Daughters will sew on garments for the Aid Society, and will be very much pleased to welcome any who would care to help sew.

BERTHA TUDOR WALSHE,
Secretary.

Shoe Fund.

Donations received:

From Miss Laura Bell	$1 00
From Miss N. E. Schaeffer	1 50
From Mr. Wm. Hasenpat	5 00
Money from those receiving shoes	3 90
Total	$11 40
Expended in February and last of January	6 15
	$5 25

A large box of gentlemen's shoes have been received from the Misses Magee.

Have given out in February, 15 pairs of shoes and 8 pairs of overshoes.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There were thirty-seven members present at the February meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The committees all had full reports of work done and help given by St. Stephen's. The Treasurer reported a balance of $44.96, and Miss Anna Magee reported $18. collected towards the United Offering during the last month.

Miss Anna Magee offered a resolution of thanks to our dear Mrs. H. P. Taylor, for her generous gift of The Altar Cloth. It is a beautiful and an appropriate memorial for St. Stephen's Altar, where it will be used at the services during the Lenten season.

Bishop Tyler, of North Dakota, was our speaker. There are four Reservations in North Dakota representing a population of twelve thousand Indians. At Fort Berthold the Church Mission is only a mud hut, and Bishop Tyler hopes to raise $700 with which to put up a comfortable frame building. The Auxiliary voted him $25, and Dr. Grammer gave him $25.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish House March 18th, at eleven o'clock, when it is hoped to have Miss Sarah Conway make an address, telling of her work in Liberia.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR,
Secretary.

St. Martha's Fair.

St. Martha's Fair sends a notice thanking St. Stephen's for her part in the fair and informs us that after all expenses were met the proceeds were $8,600. Of this St. Stephen's share as reported is $447.51. Owing to some late payments several dollars were sent in at the last moment so our share was really $450. We hoped that we could raise nearly five hundred dollars and we feel that we have come near the high mark we set for ourselves, for which we are sincerely grateful to all our helpers.

M. W. P. GRAMMER.

The Church Periodical Club held an all-day conference at the Church House on Thursday, February 25, when sixty representatives of parish branches met for exchange of experience, encouragement and inspiration in their work, beginning at nine o'clock with the Holy Communion with the Bishop as celebrant. It was regretted that Miss Fisher, the Diocesan Librarian, could not be present on account of illness. Miss Thomas, Executive Secretary of the central office, attended all day, and was most helpful in her suggestions, answers to questions, and address describing the workings of the central office.

If all the parishioners of all the churches could have heard the words of appreciation of this work, coming from the recipients of the literature sent out, and from our bishops and clergymen who are co-operating, they would immediately be passing on their good magazines.

If you have any that you are willing to send regularly each month, or, next best, any "strays" (but not over three or four months old), books, music—church or secular—Victrola records that you have no room for, send a postal to the Librarian of St. Stephen's Branch, Miss E. H. Smith, 225 South 40th street(or telephone Preston 3109W) and she will tell you what to do with them.

There is a girls' school in South Dakota that would much like to receive The Designer regularly. A clergyman wants the Literary Digest, and one more Spirit of Missions could be used.

A Letter from Mrs. Ancell.

KULING, CHINA.

MY DEAR FRIENDS:

There are so many to whom I want to send greetings and a little report of our work in Yangchow that I am taking advantage of the vacation time to write you a joint letter, for the busy days of regular work in Yangchow leave scant time for writing.

Mr. Ancell and I have had a very enjoyable four weeks together in this lovely spot in the mountains; he left last Saturday, and I expect to follow next week.

Even here in this out of the way spot we are much excited about the war news, and get the daily telegrams reporting the progress of events. It is hard to realize in this peaceful spot that such things can be going on in the world. We await with interest the results in China itself as well as in Europe.

The past year has been a very busy one but with much to encourage in the work. The new chapel for the boys' school was completed in time to use when the term began in September, 1913, and has proved such a joy and blessing. The new dormitory for the boys' school was completed at Christmas time so that this past term we have had seventy-six boys. The boys' day school was full, too, with thirty-four boys, and in the girls' day school, also a new building, completed in time for the last term's use, we had twenty pupils. The new building for our girls' boarding school was just about completed when we left in July, and we are expecting to open this school September 9th. We will be able to accommodate about twenty-five girls but do not know yet how many will come to us at the start.

Last September we were made glad by the coming of two new ladies for our station. Mr. Sinclair returned from furlough with his bride, and Miss Althea Bremer—a graduate of the Woman's College of Baltimore—came to prepare for the girls' boarding school work. During this first year of her language study she has been such a help in the boys' school by teaching two English classes a day.

It has been encouraging to see many of the boys in the boarding and day schools come out on the side of Christianity. Several have been confirmed, and a number more baptized and there are many inquirers. Three little girls in the day school gave their names as inquirers in June—the first to come from the girls' school.

One of the pleasures in the year's work has been the forming of a boys' choir from among the Christian boys of the boarding school. They have done very well and it has added much to the dignity and helpfulness of our Sunday service to have this choir.

The little band of Christian women have been so faithful in coming to their weekly class for the study of character, and some of them are learning to read. Last February I had the joy of having a Bible-woman come to help me in the work; she was a Soochow woman so has had to learn a new dialect, but she has studied hard and is able to make herself understood quite easily now. She has been such a help already. The social work among the women, mostly from the families who have boys and girls in the schools, has taken two afternoons a week. On Tuesdays I am always

"at home" to the Chinese ladies after lunch, and have anywhere from five to forty callers—and once this spring I had seventy-five. The women seem to enjoy coming and often stay two or three hours.

After the usual tea and refreshments have been served and we have talked about the weather, local conditions in Yangchow, politics, schools, etc., they are delighted to look at pictures, especially some stereoscopic views of Palestine, listen to the piano, and look at its inside workings, and make a tour of the house, especially of the bedrooms where they are always interested in the foreign beds and the bath tubs and the mirrors! A Chinese woman rarely sees herself in a glass larger than a good sized hand glass—and when she has a chance to see herself in a full length mirror, the effect is often comical to watch! The frequency with which the foreigner uses the bath tub is always a matter of comment, and a daily bath —"even in winter"—is quite beyond their comprehension!

Often there is time and opportunity for some serious conversation, on these "at home" afternoons, but the real object of these occasions is to get on friendly terms with the ladies who come, that it may open the way to more important things later. The Christian women often come and help me with these social occasions, and now that I have a Bible-woman she always comes to help. During the winter I have entertained in this way over three hundred ladies and children, with their thirty-five servants.

On Wednesday afternoon I return as many of these visits as I can, though of course I cannot begin to return them all. One Wednesday a month, instead of going out to pay calls, I have an evangelistic meeting for women in the little chapel of our women's building, an old Chinese house adapted for the purpose. My Chinese teacher is busy for days before writing the personal invitations to this meeting of which we send out fifty or sixty to the friends made through this social work. The ladies are invited to come to the women's rooms at 2.30 to "drink tea" and afterwards attend a meeting; refreshments are served and a social hour spent most pleasantly. Then when all have arrived they are invited into the chapel and a simple Gospel service is held. The Christian women help in these meetings and the non-Christian women listen most attentively. We usually have an attendance of from forty-five to sixty.

How I wish I could take you into our Sunday schools, of which we have two. At 9.30 Sunday morning we have an orderly Sunday school made up of the pupils of our boys' and girls' day schools, with an enrollment of fifty-four, and in the afternoon a Sunday school for the little children who live all around us, mostly very poor children. Here we have from eighty to one hundred and twenty, such a restless, ragged, dirty-faced lot with sore eyes and heads, but oh! so bright and with such infinite possibilities for good! It would warm your hearts to hear and see the zeal with which they sing "Jesus loves me" and "Precious Jewels." The Christian boys from the schools and the Christian women help in teaching these children, and it is splendid training for them to have a share in this work.

Here in Kuling this summer we have had a most interesting and helpful convention, taking a week, on the subject of "Evangelism." Reports from all over China seem to indicate how ripe the time is for a large and widespread evangelistic movement. Splendid results were reported from the meetings held last fall for students in the government schools by Mr. Mott and Mr. Eddy, as a result of which some four thousand students have this past winter been gathered into classes for regular Bible study; and some thirteen hundred have connected themselves with the different churches. There are several large campaigns planned for this coming fall and winter for both men and women in government schools, especially in Fukien Province—where most careful and prayerful preparations are being made for conserving the results by preparing a large number of native Christians to take Bible classes, so that as many as possible of those who attend the meetings and manifest interest shall afterwards be gathered into classes for regular Bible study. Will you not follow this work with your prayers and pray for a rich ingathering during the coming months?

My love and greetings go to you all—I am only sorry that time and strength forbid my sending this message to each of you in a more personal form.

Very sincerely yours,

FRANCES P. ANCELL.

The Unitarians and Mr. Sunday.

The opposition of Mr. Sunday to the Unitarians is easy to understand for while his spirit is broad his theology is narrow and intolerant; but the campaign that the Unitarians are waging against him, and also against Orthodoxy, if I may use that term, is more extraordinary. To those who know Unitarianism only through Channing, and Martineau, it will be incomprehensible that a liberal theology should be advocated in such a narrow spirit. But there are in truth, or perhaps I should say there were, really two schools of Unitarianism, the one represented in America by Channing, and the other by Theodore Parker. The former school is more positive and constructive, the latter more negative and destructive. The former is sympathetic with the spirit of the churches, the latter is more closely allied to the Ethical Societies. The coryphaeus of the latter school, Theodore Parker, stood aloof in scornful and amazed disdain from the religious revival that swept over America in his day, a revival in which a liberal inside the Church like Henry Ward Beecher heartily joined. The spirit of the scornful Parker, rather than mild and healing temper of Martineau seems to possess the Unitarianism of Philadelphia at this time. How far they are out of touch with one of their own wisest and most saintly prophets can be seen in the following quotation from James Martineau's biography, pp. 218-222:

Many of us conceive that little practical importance is to be attached to the numerical distribution of the Godhead in the conceptions of men; and that while the moral and personal qualities which they venerate and trust and aspire to imitate, are truly august and divine, it is of small moment by what name or names they may be called. I cordially subscribe to a sentiment in a sermon preached before the Association on Wednesday, viz., that our Trinitarian brethren in their devotions, bow, like ourselves, before the mental image of an infinite perfection. If so, and if the real object of every man's worship be the conception of Deity in his own mind, then must two persons, standing before the same vision of perfection, both exercise the same devotion, both revere the Holy and Divine, whatever name they may pronounce, and whatever number they may annex. Admit the idea within to be the same, and the whole question becomes one of mere names. We, who have our descent from forefathers of Calvinistic belief—who pride ourselves on their heroism and their faith—who, confessing that they had not the nobility of rank, boast of their better nobility of conscience, should be the last to deny the tendency of the system from which we are now estranged, to produce great and most excellent minds. And to admit this is to damp all the fuel of sectarian zeal. . . . .

I confess that I cannot attribute our want of progress, as a sect, to defective ecclesiastical arrangements, so much as to the spirit of our religious system, and to the state of mind in which that system has it origin and support. The one great function of a religious body is, I apprehend, to generate faith—an absolute reliance that is upon internal convictions and truths of religion and morals, in opposition to external expediencies,—an undoubting self-abandonment, in action and affection, to some great idea worth living and dying for. Every sect has prospered, and deserved to prosper, in proportion as it has produced this disposition; it has failed and deserved to fail, in proportion as it has produced the opposite, and excited the critical, sceptical, disorganizing temper. Moral power appears to me to develop itself in the transition from unbelief to belief, and to disappear in the change from belief to unbelief; depending much less than we are apt to suppose on the absolute truth and logical consistency of the opinions embraced. To this fact, all the great moral revolutions in the history of civilization seem to bear witness. . . .

With these views of the true office of a body of religious reformers, I cannot but lament that Unitarianism has a sceptical origin: that it began with dissuasives from belief, removing successively objects of human veneration and reliance, and, on the whole, characterized in the eyes of others by its success in proving how few things need be regarded as wonderful and divine. To this spirit, impressed upon our system at first, we are indebted for such accessions of adherents as it receives. The doubters and unbelievers of other and less reasonable churches constitute the new forces of our own: we grow by men's lapses from their previous convictions; and thus a critical, cold, and untrusting temper becomes silently diffused, unfavourable to high enterprise and deep affections. Moreover, when at length this spirit vanishes, and the genuine sentiments of personal religion acquire power, their effect upon our consolidation, as a sect, is the very reverse of their action in orthodox churches. With those who esteem error to be no less fatal than sin, the growth of piety inflames sectarian zeal; with us, who attach no terrors to the involuntary mistakes of the sincere, it is otherwise: the pure perceptions and natural instincts of the pious heart detect and love the good and great in the spirit of other churches; becoming more devout in mind, we feel ourselves not more, but far less discriminated from the true Christian of every faith; and our sectarian zeal undergoes inevitable decline. And, thus as a mere theological denomination, we profit by the scepticism of other sects, and lose by the piety of our own. Conceiving, then, that the causes of our defective social influence lie thus deep, I have no sanguine expectations from any principle of sectarian union or schemes of mechanical organization. The proper use of organization, surely, is to direct into proper channels and reduce to a steady and calculable power, an exuberant energy and wild force already existing. But it can create nothing; the symmetrical aggregation of dead atoms can kindle no life; and the spontaneous vigour of our separate churches must, I apprehend, be much increased before they have a superfluity of power to shed upon the weak and the depressed. . . .

We should turn our attention, I respectfully suggest, not to orthodoxy, which has a faith and is satisfied with it, but to indifference, and unbelief and sin, which have it not and are satisfied without it. On these we should make aggression, in the power of our positive religion, bearing down upon them with the persuasion of the Divine Paternity, and Human Brotherhood, under the sense of the sanctity of duty and the grandeur of immortality. We should deal with them with singleness of aim, as if left alone with them in God's world to cure them,—as if unconscious of the presence of other sects. Permitting an activity thus to flow, not from our perception of the false, but from our persuasion of the true, our own spirit of disinterestedness would grow; we should acquire more noble faith ourselves, and thus win the only title God bestows to meddle with the faith of others. The sole case in which, I conceive the employment of proselytizing missionaries is desirable, is when the popular systems of Christianity have produced an uneasy, sceptical, and irreligious state of mind, and we can therefore go forth to construct, not to destroy, to reassure and not to unsettle, to replace the barrenness of doubt and aversion by the divine fertility of love and trust.

Dr. Martineau still further elaborates his position in a letter, pp. 224-226:

I by no means think all sorts of faith equally excellent, irrespective of their success in approximating to the truth. Nevertheless, I do think the distinction between faith and no-faith incomparably more important than that between one kind of faith and another; and in the gradation of excellence should arrange them thus—1st, true faith; 2nd, false faith; 3rd, no faith at all; regarding the second not so much in the light of a palliative evil, as in that of a limited good. In order to explain this, I would distinguish between physical or scientific truth, and religious or mysterious truth. The former of these being necessarily finite and calculable, is appreciable by human faculties, and the mind may have a precise representation within itself of the reality, and the conception of any scientific fact that is not true, is inevitably false, so that the understanding would be in a better state without such conception. But religious truth, having reference solely to things infinite, is surely inappreciable by our minds. It belongs to deeps beyond our experience. And neither nature nor revelation can enable us to think correctly of that which transcends the limits of the very souls they condescend to teach. Our truest faiths, then, are in—not the truth, but our most happy modes of representing the still absent truth to ourselves; modes either self-acquired, or imparted by revelation. All these modes are but symbols of the great reality; more or less noble, solemn, sublime; and in this respect only, more or less true. For all are but substitutes or approximations replacing in our finite minds the infinitude that cannot enter them. Hence it appears to me that neither absolute truth, nor absolute falsehood, but only comparative excellence, can be predicated of any form of religious belief prevalent among us; and while we all of us misconceive the reality, they only contradict it who have no faith. Others may form but poor and unworthy ideas of things infinite, but these alone say 'there is no infinite,'—a notion which, amid all the creeds which miss the truth, can alone be called the belief of a lie,—of the most gigantic of lies. The least approach or tendency to this condition of mind, the least check to the feelings of trust and worship, the lapse towards a state of negation in religion, I regard as a profounder error than can take place within the limits of any Christian form of faith. Hence my aversion to proselytising. It is impossible to carry on this work without disorganising a man's present faith; and it is so much more certain that you will produce disbelief of what he has venerated, than belief of anything more worthy of reverence, that if I saw his faith quietly sanctifying his heart and life, I would let it alone, though it differed from that I loved myself; not, you observe, because I think error will do as well as truth, but because I suspect that his present state of mind, with all its errors, may yet be truer than any which I can substitute by a process involving the perils of a disintegrated faith.

Experience, moreover, appears to me to teach that there is a relation which it is very dangerous to disturb, between the general condition of a man's mind and character, and the particular form of faith which he adopts; and that his belief spontaneously adjusts itself to his moral and spiritual wants. On religious subjects the vital truth or falsehood of a faith seems to me to depend upon this relation, rather than to be a thing extrinsic to it and absolute; so that if we could look at another's creed not with our eyes, but with his, we should see it true, not false. And conversely, if we were to turn out his creed, and put in our own instead,—not being able to give him our mental eye—the coloured glass of our thought and affection,—through which to view it, we might present him with that which, by the very attempt at transference, passed from truth into error. For myself, the more I study the beliefs of those from whom I differ, not in the spirit of controversy but of sympathy, the more I endeavour to seize the point of view and feeling of those who hold them, the more do I see of essential sanctifying heart-truth in them, though the form into which they are thrown is one to which neither my reason nor my interpretation of Scripture can yield assent. I rejoice with thanksgiving that they can do for others what they cannot do for me. With this conception, that all Christian faiths are but symbols of unapproachable realities, I do not expect that there will be any ultimate and universal agreement in one form of doctrine. There seem to me to be foundations in the very constitution of our minds for different modes of thinking on the same great subjects. For example, the doctrine of Free-will, and that of Necessity, are as old as human speculation, and have made no approach to any settlement. They represent, and surely will always maintain, two schools of religious sentiment, each fulfilling an important function, and finding congenial minds. Indeed, to every object of mystic contemplation there are an infinite number of sides, and it is much if our poor minds can even fix a full gaze on one. How, then, should there not be many views? God grant us all some true glimpse, to guide us through a world which else has little light!

With such a Unitarianism I feel a deep sympathy, nay further to its teachers I owe a debt of great respect and gratitude. But such Unitarianism would not advertise itself by printing attacks on the Virgin Birth, or by opening a temporary bureau in opposition to a religious campaign however much its leader might have attacked them elsewhere.

The ethics of business is that a salesman may praise his own goods, but must not defame the products of other firms. Hostile criticism of other religious teachers is both illiberal and unethical, however advanced in theology the critics may be and whether they be Unitarians or Episcopalians. People cannot be narrow and broad at the same time.

The Rector's Letter.

We have great reason to thank God for a fine Lent. In many ways it has been the best series of noon-day services that we have had in St. Stephen's during my rectorship. Indeed when we bear in mind that in former years these services were joint affairs, enlisting the co-operation of the Diocesan Committee of the Brotherhood, without any Garrick theatre services near by, while now they are entirely conducted by St. Stephen's Church, and have on all sides of them similar services conducted in church and theatre, by Lutherans and Presbyterians, as well as by Episcopalians, it is not too much to say that our splendid Lenten attendance was the most remarkable in the history of the Parish. Usually there is a sag in the middle of the season, and the attendance falls off; but this Lent the Church was filled through the entire period, and the daily attendance averaged about 700.

One cause of this success was undoubtedly the splendid list of speakers, men with a real message. The presence of Dr. G. A. Johnston-Ross was a great attraction, as well as a manifestation of brotherly feeling that was generally appreciated. Another cause was the great increase of religious interest spread abroad throughout the city by the "Sunday" services at the Tabernacle. A noon-day meeting of people interested in that campaign was held through most of Lent on Market street, a few doors east of 10th street, but such religious gatherings do not hurt the churches. The earnestness of feeling that they create, helps the cause. Our attendance grew till on Good Friday we had the people packed and banked in the galleries and aisles with an attendance of about 1,200.

Behind such a manifestation of interest there must be a reaching forth of many souls after God and Duty.

The attendance on Sundays has also shown signs of steady growth. If old members have been taken from us by death, new members have come to us by Confirmation and transfer. The Confirmation class was the largest for years, and there are still a half a dozen people awaiting Confirmation, having been prevented by various causes from being present on the day of the Episcopal visitation. If we have lost pew-holders we have also gained new ones. There is every reason to rejoice in the prospects of St. Stephen's.

This Sunday, April 11th, is the first Sunday with the new package of envelopes. There are many who use them very faithfully. But I wish that more could find it in their heart to co-operate with a system which has done so much for the Church. I take up my bound volume of the PARISH NEWS and turn to the record of offerings for March, 1907, before that system was inaugurated. March in that year included five Sundays, the last being Easter day, and the total of all the gifts was only $1,671.40, of which $724.20 was for the Farm, and $34.14 went to Parochial Maintenance. Compare this with Mr. Van Dusen's report for this past March.

Easter this year was a day when the streets were full of snow, yet our offering was $1,639, about equal to the Easter offering eight years ago, with the offerings of the four previous Sundays added to it and the Good Friday offering to boot. Truly that was an ebb tide and since that day the waters have been running in another direction.

I ought to explain (for there seems some misunderstanding on this point) that no pledge for any definite amount on each Sunday is exacted of those who accept the envelopes. All that is asked is a promise to use the envelopes faithfully.

In the very same number of the PARISH NEWS in which I find these data about the March offerings eight years ago, there is a note that Mr. James Carrigan has become our Verger. His ninth year began with us on the first of this April. Surely April played us no tricks eight years ago when it brought us James Carrigan.

Much of the money given to special appeals went directly to the Treasurer, Mr. Ewing, and did not pass through the hands of Mr. Van Dusen. The total amount given to two missionary bishops was over $500.

While I am grateful for the generous response to the moving appeals of Bishop Tyler and Bishop Capers, we must not forget that the Board of Missions has assumed definite obligations and is expecting us to help them out. $2,500—to speak in round numbers—is asked of St. Stephen's. I don't know anything that would gratify me more than raising this amount by September 1st, so that I could close the tenth year of my rectorship with the joyful and grateful consciousness that St. Stephen's had done her full share in maintaining the general missionary work of the Church. You have done magnificently in responding to special appeals and increasing your contributions to Diocesan Missions—it only remains for us to contribute more generously to the Board's general work.

During March I learnt, while on my visit to Detroit, that Miss Oldden, the secretary of our Mothers' Meeting, and one of our senior parishioners, had been taken from us by an unexpected collapse, just when she seemed to be recovering from an attack of illness. A serene and beautiful character, loving, self-controlled, wise, faithful, greatly will she be missed at the Mothers' Meeting. After her death her envelopes were sent in by her executor. She had filled them with thoughtful provision to the end. One envelope, marked "Savings for Easter," showed that she made a habit of laying aside little sums from time to time for her Easter offering. Moriens reminiscitur Argos.—Dying he remembered his native land, was said of a Greek hero. But Miss Oldden living bore in mind her Heavenly Citizenship, and was seeking to the end to hasten the coming of the Heavenly Kingdom. She belonged to that happy band so exquisitely described by Gray in the immortal Elegy:

Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife
Their sober wishes never learned to stray.
Along the cool sequestered vale of life.
They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.

Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.

I learn from unofficial sources that Miss Oldden bequeathed $200 to the Benevolent Society.

Before I close this letter I should like to say a word to the stranger within our gates. There are many people who attend St. Stephen's who never really enter into the fellowship of the Church. They may be studying at the Medical College and have neither time, nor money to spare, so they may not feel equal to joining any societies. Dependent as they are on parents, they may shrink from taking the envelopes. Well, if I had a son at college I should like him to connect himself with the Church where he worshiped. I am sure that we should be delighted to get into closer touch with these attendants. I shall not in such cases say a word about the envelopes. "We seek not yours; but you." You are not yet earners—all that we ask is that you let us know of your existence by coming in and becoming acquainted.

But there are other strangers in our gates, people living in boarding houses, who would be distinctly benefited if they would take the envelopes and assume some of the responsibilities of Christian people. One of the great evils of boarding is that boarders regard themselves as exempt from public duties. A boarder may live in Philadelphia for years, and never identify himself with the community remaining a stranger in its gates to the end. This is an injury to the city and an injury to the boarder. Life is impoverished by this failure to take root, and character is weakened by avoiding burdens. No finer service could be rendered to the community than anchoring people who are drifting along. The envelopes help to this end where they are taken.

For very good reasons the annual parochial meeting is deferred till the last Monday in April, the 26th instant, at 8 o'clock. The officers of the various societies are requested to prepare their reports for that meeting. It will be appreciated if these reports are put in suitable form for publication in the May issue of the PARISH NEWS. The whole congregation is earnestly invited to attend this annual gathering.

With Easter greetings to all.

Yours cordially,

CARL E. GRAMMER.

A comedy, entitled "The Prince of Liars," will be given by the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Stephen's Church, for the benefit of their Mission Fund, in the Sunday School Building, in the rear of the Church, on Monday evening, April 19th, 1915, at 8 o'clock. Admission, 25 cents. Tickets can be obtained from Mr. Carrigan.

The Church Periodical Club is grateful for the new contributors from St. Stephen's since the appeal in the last PARISH NEWS. But there are still opportunities for helping along. There are now special calls for the Literary Digest, Cosmopolitan and Punch.

Don't throw away your magazines when the family has read them; and don't give them to the Salvation Army, as they only sell them for waste paper. The Librarian, Miss E. H. Smith, 225 South 40th street, will suggest names of recipients.

The Sunday School.

After the joys of the Confirmation season, the school now looks happily forward to our Easter Carol Service on Sunday, the next after Easter, April 11th, at four P. M. The carols we are practicing each Sunday morning, under the leadership of Dr. Anthony, are certainly among the best the school has ever sung in the Church. We will be especially pleased if our many friends and all our church folk who are interested will honor us with their presence. We are also made happy in having this yearly event an occasion for the reunion of former scholars, teachers and others once interested who have moved to other parishes. We hope many will again with the same thought reunite with us at least for this afternoon.

On Tuesday evening in Holy Week, in order that our teachers and scholars might feel the importance of this sacred week, we had the Life of Christ reviewed by our Superintendent, and illustrated by over 100 beautiful lantern slides, many of which were especially painted for this occasion. Miss Nodine at the piano and Morris McCaughin with his violin made the musical part a success.

The Junior Brotherhood.

We have changed our meeting time to 9 A. M., the second and fourth Sunday of each month, with good results.

The Junior Directors of the Diocese had their Annual Dinner Meeting in our Guild Room on Tuesday, March 16th, at 6 P. M. Some forty sat down to the table, with representatives from twenty-five Junior Chapters. The speakers were Mr. McCarthy, of the Philadelphia Local Assembly; Mr. Zesinger, of Girard College; Mr. Hubbs, of St. Michael's; Mr. Brightly, of St. Simeon's, and Dr. Wilkinson, of St. Paul's Memorial, with our Junior Director presiding. Nearly every one took part in the conference which successfully followed. We are particularly grateful to the young women of the Sunday school who so graciously served the good things at the table, and to Mr. Clayton for the use of the decorative plants.

The Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's has lost a valued officer in the death of Miss Oldden. At the meeting of March 18th the following minute was passed:

"The members and officers of the Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's Church desire to express their great grief in the loss which they have sustained in the death of Miss Hettie Oldden, their treasurer and beloved friend, and their thanks to God for the privilege of having been associated with one whose lovely character and steadfast Christianity set us so noble an example.

"Her faithfulness to duty, her cheerful patience, her loving-kindness which was that which 'thinketh no evil' and 'hopeth all things'; her gentle spirit and her readiness to help in any way she could, endeared her to us all, and give us the assurance that she was and is one of those of whom our Saviour said: 'Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.'"

MRS. HENRY P. TAYLOR, Pres.
ELIZABETH E. HOLMAN.

March 18, 1915.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

Twenty-two members were present at the March meeting of the Auxiliary, held the 18th, in the Parish House.

We have not had much money this winter for missions, but our Committee on Colored Missions reported having sent $53 to St. Paul's School in Virginia, and Miss Townsend, of the Indian Hope Committee, has raised $20 towards the fund for the artesian well of St. Margaret's School in North Dakota.

Miss Conway, a Philadelphian, now a missionary to Liberia, was our speaker. One must indeed be divinely called when she goes to so lonely a field. Last summer Miss Conway was for six weeks the only white woman within forty miles of Roberstport. She is in St. John's School there, and in addition to her teaching the natives, she in one year treated 5,800 cases that were brought to her dispensary, and made 650 visits to the sick, often walking many miles to administer to such cases.

The women of St. Stephen's hope to send a box to Miss Conway in May. Contributions may be sent to the rectory. They want blue denim for suits for the boys and gingham for the girls and Christmas presents for them all. The Auxiliary voted $10 towards Miss Conway's work.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held April 15th, at 11 o'clock.

BEULAH EVANS HOLLAR, Secretary.

King's Daughters' Whatsoever Circle.

Received interest from Mr. Patton's Estate, $33.41, through Mr. Hunter Ewing.

The King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle have their next meeting April 21st. in the Guild Room of the Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock.

The Lenten sewing was not finished until April 7th, owing to some of the members being sick and some not able to come on account of having work to do in the evenings.

Shoe Fund.

Money Received from those Receiving Shoes in March	$3 10
Expended in March	1 15
Balance	$2 95

Have given out in March 25 pairs of shoes, and six pairs of overshoes.

A few second-hand women's shoes and children's would be very acceptable, as we are running short in sizes.

Rector's Letter.

The Parish Meeting on Monday, April 26th, was a great success. In spite of the threatening skies, and a little shower of rain just before the hour of meeting, the attendance was the largest that we have ever had. All the reports were most encouraging, and showed a steady growth in efficiency, in zeal, and in fraternal spirit. It was very pleasant to have some of our new members manifest a desire to participate in our Church's life, and attend this annual gathering. It was sad to miss some of the dear familiar faces of former annual meetings, Mr. Miller's absence was particularly felt; but the good news brought by Mr. Colket that he was improving brightened a meeting that might otherwise have been saddened by his absence and illness.

Besides the contributions recorded in their report, "the Mothers" have donated to the Farm a new range, costing $110. Mr. Boyd, for the Committee on the Farm, desires me to bring to the attention of the congregation the following needs, that perhaps some member of the congregation can supply out of their household goods. Many people pay storage on furniture for years when they might give it to some needy institution and so save themselves storage charges, and at the same time make the things of some real use. The special needs of the Farm are: furniture for the parlor, and carriage harness. The old harness will never be needed by your automobile. Why not send it to the Farm?

In acknowledging the munificent gift of an altar cloth from Mrs. H. P. Taylor, I omitted to mention the name of the accomplished embroiderer. Mrs. Taylor wishes the congregation to know that these hangings are the work of Miss Harriet Ogdon Morison, No. 330 S. 19th street, who is as anyone who sees the new altar cloth can see, a great proficient in Ecclesiastical embroidery.

For the sake of the members of the congregation who were absent from Church last Sunday, or were not present at the Parish meeting, a more explicit statement ought to be made about Mr. Miller's sickness. On Monday, April 20th, he went to a chiropodist for treatment of what he thought was only a slight trouble. The skilful chiropodist declined to treat the ailment and referred him to his physician. A small wound had refused to heal, and there was danger of mortification. A surgeon was called in, and Mr. Miller was at once put to bed and committed to the care of a trained nurse. At the time when this paper goes to press all the indications favor recovery.

This sickness has made all the people of St. Stephen's realize how much Mr. Miller has meant to the old Church, and I trust that it has also brought home to him how much the old Church cares for him. Long may he be preserved to a serene and benignant old age.

The Committee on the Farm are planning for an opening day on the first Saturday in June, the fifth proximo. Hitherto the opening has been so late that many of the farm's most generous benefactors have never been present on the opening day. We have therefore brought the date forward about two weeks. The opening for guests under the usual conditions will be held, however, at the same time as in former years. In the interval of two weeks the committee hope that enough boarders can be procured to meet the expenses of keeping the house open. During this period the board will meet the expenses of keeping the house open.

It is hoped that a party of ten at least can be secured. For terms, please address Miss Elizabeth Date, 1713 N. Park Ave., who will be in charge for the summer.

I cannot close this letter without an expression of gratitude to God for a year of great prosperity and steadily increasing harmony and deepening zeal. May God help us to sow seed that may bear an abundant harvest in time and in eternity.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

Report of St. Stephen's Benevolent Society.

The Benevolent Society opened November 19, 1914, with our usual number to cut out, parcel, give out the work, and do the sewing. Owing to the war, and so much money being sent to Europe, our funds ran very low, and for a short time we could only give out 50 cents' worth of work instead of $1.00 a week, so we put an appeal in the PARISH NEWS, and materials and cut-out garments came from every direction, but we do not think the women of the congregation, who do not take part in the work, quite realize our need of money. We pay the women for the sewing each week about $30, then it takes more money to buy material for the women who only sew well enough to make household articles. We are very grateful to everyone who had helped us, but as we are open five months it takes a good deal, but we feel it is well spent, as we have finished six thousand one hundred and sixty-five articles, and sewed for the Pennsylvania Hospital, the Episcopal, Jefferson, Presbyterian, Howard, Hahnemann, St. Timothy's, The Women's, The Chestnut Hill, The Women's Medical, The Church Home for Children, The Presbyterian Orphanage, The Diocesan Fair, St. Stephen's Farm, The Home for Aged Couples, The Philadelphia Home for Infants, the Children's Homœopathic, The Southern Home for Destitute Children, The West Philadelphia Hospital for Women, and through the Busy Bee Society The Children's Sea Shore Home, Atlantic City.

We wish to thank Mr. Boyd for a good order for aprons and caps, and Mr. Bilyeu for a large order for aprons for some of the Strawbridge & Clothier employes, and many ladies of the congregation for the private orders, and Mrs. Williams, who has managed this department so well that we are sorry to feel that she is returning to Baltimore and will not be with us next year. Miss Coppuck, since her cousin's death, has gone back to Mt. Holly. She was faithful and cheerful and we all miss her.

We have had the same happy, contented spirit in the Society that we have always had, everyone working for the good of the Society and to help each other, each one taking so much responsibility in her position that each one contributes to the success of the Society.

Respectfully submitted,

CORNELIA L. EWING.

Ella S. Hansell, Treasurer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary has held seven stated meetings since the last annual parochial meeting, beginning in October, 1914, when the Rector, Dr. Grammer, read a paper concerning the work of Miss Lewis, the Parish Visitor, and gave many interesting and pathetic details of some of the home surroundings of those visited. Plans were also discussed for the Diocesan Fair, which took place in December, and St. Stephen's booth realized a goodly sum for St. Martha's House.

Domestic Missions have occupied more attention than any other at the meetings this season, and Rev. Samuel B. Booth, working under Bishop Funston in Idaho, addressed the Auxiliary in November, making an earnest plea for a hospital. He was followed a month later by Rev. George P. Mayo, of the Blue Ridge Industrial School, Virginia, who dwelt on the excellent work done by the school in raising the spiritual and moral tone at the same time introducing practical industrial methods of employment among the mountain people.

Rev. Charles E. Betticher, of Fairbanks, Alaska, always comes like a fresh breeze to revive and inspire his hearers, who listened attentively to his account of the progress made in the work carried on in that far distant section of the country since his last visit here.

Bishop Tyler, of North Dakota, was the speaker at the February meeting, and, by his eloquent manner, aroused much interest and enthusiasm for his work among the Indians, and received substantial aid.

The only report from foreign lands was given in March by Miss Sarah E. Conway, who had returned from Liberia for a brief stay before again resuming her arduous duties in Africa. Her collection of the clothes, ornaments, etc., worn by the natives was very interesting, and it is hoped the women of the Auxiliary will respond to the request to send donations of denim, gingham, etc., to provide the boys and girls with more suitable articles of attire, as well as to give them games and toys for Christmas, all such articles to be sent to the rectory before May first.

The final meeting for the season was held on April 15th, when Miss Emily Bell gave an account of the history of the Bishop White Parish Library Association, and Miss Elizabeth Washington outlined the work of the Female Protestant Episcopal Prayer Book Society, thus familiarizing the members of the Auxiliary with the object of these two organizations, of which Miss Bell and Miss Washington are the representatives of St. Stephen's.

It is a pleasure to record that St. Stephen's was chosen as the Church in which the Epiphany meeting of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on January 11th, and the large attendance was both gratifying and encouraging; in addition to the clergy of St. Stephen's, Bishop Garland, Bishop Lloyd and Archdeacon Mellen were in the Chancel and made addresses, while several young women members, under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth P. Grammer, officiated as ushers and aids for the offertory.

St. Stephen's Auxiliary has a membership of 107. Two were lost by death, and one by removal, and ten new members were added during the year. The largest attendance was in February, when there were 37 present to hear Bishop Tyler; smallest attendance in March, when 22 were present, and the average attendance has been 27.

The Treasurer has disbursed $563.12, and reports a balance on hand.

The Mission Study Class, conducted by Mrs. John Coates Browne, held six meetings during Lent, the book studied being "The Social Aspects of Foreign Missions," by W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown University. Ten members were enrolled and the hours spent in studying and discussing this subject were full of interest and profit.

While endeavoring to faithfully perform their duty as delegates by attending the monthly meetings at the Church House and reporting them at the meetings of St. Stephen's Auxiliary, the delegates nevertheless sometimes feel overwhelmed by the numerous appeals made, to which they are unable to respond owing to lack of sufficient funds, but in every case they have tried to give a little to the most urgent needs and to fulfil the annual pledges made.

As the active work at meetings is discontinued for a few months, would it not be possible to stimulate the interest and employ some part of the summer vacation by each member trying to accumulate a small sum to produce at the first meeting in the autumn, as the result of her individual effort to fulfil these pledges? Whatever is worked for brings more happiness and better results than that which comes with comparative ease, for the reflex action of energy expended in the proper frame of mind, brings a spiritual uplift which more than compensates for any additional exertion. This would be a little labor of love to help in the great work assigned to all the followers of Christ, the work of extending His kingdom, for that is His command, and each one can do her share by knowing about missions and by supporting missions. With the hope that this suggestion may be well received and acted upon this report is respectfully submitted.

LAURA BELL,
President.

The United Offering.

The United Offering is a Thank Offering for every woman, whether she is an able worker, rich or poor, young or old. Every annual report of the Woman's Auxiliary has several pages devoted to the United Offering. The United Offering is a part, and a very important part, of the work of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions. One half of the twenty-two women workers in Alaska are supported by the United Offering. The total number of the women missionaries is 302. There are still 99 in the domestic field and 56 in the foreign field who are supported by the Board of Missions.

Last year the Lenten Offerings of our Sunday Schools amounted to more than $180,000. How does this six weeks' offering of the children of the church compare with the three years' offering of the women ($306,000)?

Recent information from the Recording Secretary at the Church Mission House is to the effect that our triennial offering would need to be $500,000 in order to pay the salaries of every woman worker in the domestic and foreign fields. Surely, even that amount would be a small Thank Offering from some 500,000 women communicants of the Church. An average of only one dollar for three years.

Report of St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society held its first meeting for the season of 1914-15 on Monday evening October 5th.

Dr. Grammer was present and made a short address of welcome to the members and associates.

On the first Monday in each month a religious service has been held in the church, conducted either by Dr. Grammer or Mr. Edwards.

At our Christmas entertainment we again had the pleasure of entertaining the mothers of our members, and, for the first time, some of the children of our Married Branch Helpers.

The Branch this year has tried to do more Social Service Work and, in addition to the regular Lenten sewing, which has been sent to the Church Home at Angora, the members at Christmas filled 30 large stockings, 15 for girls and 15 for boys; each stocking for girls contained a doll whose clothes were made with buttons and button-holes so that they could be dressed and undressed, a box of candy and a number of small toys; those for boys, one large toy, a box of candy and a number of small toys. The pleasure of preparing and filling these stockings will long be remembered. They were sent to the children in the Alms House, and a letter received from the Social Worker there told us that it was the "very nicest donation ever received since she had been in the hospital."

Fifteen dressed dolls and a large box of toys were also sent to the Protestant Episcopal City Mission.

The members of the Branch made and sent, through the Emergency Aid Committee, for the Red Cross work, 160 slings, 11 pairs of night-slippers, and 3 knitted scarfs.

In response to an appeal from our Diocesan President, $8.20 was also sent to the Red Cross Fund.

The Married Branch Helpers have made 383 booklets for the hospitals.

On Washington's Birthday, Miss Anne M. Earle entertained the members with an illustrated lecture on "Quaint Corners in France and Belgium."

Monday in Holy Week, Miss Earle again favored us with a lecture on the "Passion Play of Oberammergau," when the beautiful pictures and Miss Earle's impressive description of the play were greatly appreciated.

Two of our faithful Senior members prepare supper every Monday evening.

The Millinery Class, taught by one of our own Senior members, continues to be very popular.

The Saving Fund, in charge of Miss Wallace, has about 35 depositors with accounts ranging from a few cents to quite substantial sums.

The Literature Class has this year taken the Art Course, using Caffin's book, "How to Study Pictures."

St. Stephen's Branch now numbers—

124	Members
11	Probationers
38	Married Branch Helpers
7	Working Associates
19	Honorary Associates
199	Total Membership

Burd School.

The Burd School has at present fifty pupils —of these forty-six are resident, four non-resident, one being in training in St. Timothy's Hospital, one at Lebanon Valley College, one at Simmons College, Boston and one a governess in Chestnut Hill. No children have been admitted since August, 1914. Two girls will be graduated in June, one finishing a course at Miss Hart's school for training kindergarten teachers, and one taking up dressmaking. Of the remaining, eighteen girls are attending the High School, twenty-three in the Grammar School, and one in the School of Industrial Art.

Twenty-eight girls are receiving piano lessons, and all are receiving lessons in folk-dancing. In addition to these activities the girls share in the housework and those who are old enough do their own sewing.

The Student Government Club consists of twelve girls, and the Girls' Guild ten. The former body holds meetings every two weeks with the Superintendent to discuss school matters and current topics. The Guild holds meetings on Sunday evenings at which a member presides and gives a short talk.

Wednesday evening at 7.15 a service is held in the Chapel by Mr. Edwards. The girls attend Sunday School and morning service at St. Stephen's Church.

Respectfully submitted,
HELEN LEIGHTON, Principal.

Annual Report of the Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's Church, 1914-1915.

The Mothers' Meeting reports a prosperous season's work. We have 167 names on our roll, and of these 136 have been in good and regular attendance. We have found that the hard times this winter have lowered our average attendance since February, but as the loss has been principally among those who live at such a distance that two car-fares are necessary, we do not wonder at it.

We had our Annual Sale in December, netting from it the very good sum of $100.25. As this amount represents almost entirely efforts of our members and the patronage of their personal friends, we feel that it is very creditable.

During Lent, the Mite Collections taken up were dedicated to the work of Bishop Tyler in North Dakota, and the President was able, at the end of the season, to send him a cheque for $19.61 as the result. It is a great pleasure to the officers of this branch of the Church work to feel that our members are glad to give as well as to receive.

Ninety members of the Mother's Meeting were sent on one-day excursions to St. Stephen's Farm. These are great days for our Mothers, some of whom also had the pleasure of spending a week.

We have to thank the kind friends who came and entertained us at our meetings by recitations, singing, reading or giving us interesting talks. Some entertainment has been provided at each meeting.

The Meeting lost two members by death during the year: Mrs. S. M. Best and Mrs. Christina Eagan. It also had a great sorrow in the death of its beloved Treasurer of the Benevolent and Savings Funds, Miss H. Oldden, who was taken from us March 16th. This is a sorrow which will remain with us for long, for by her loveliness of character, kindness of heart, and sincere interest in everyone, she had endeared herself to all.

MRS. HENRY P. TAYLOR.

St. Stephen's Aid Society.

St. Stephen's Aid Society held its meetings on Friday mornings during Lent. Our appeal for more workers met with quick response this year and we were glad to welcome a number of new members. The meetings were well attended and a closet well stocked with baby garments was left for Miss Lewis to use in her work among the poor of the Parish. Thanks are due to Mrs. Atmore and Mrs. Austin for their generous donations.

The King's Daughters feel very much encouraged with the work they have been able to accomplish during the past winter, as their interests have been so varied.

In October we did our share towards filling the Christmas Ship for Europe, by making 32 flannel skirts, a few slumber robes, a knitted scarf, and other articles. We were very much indebted to several ladies, not members of our Circle, who helped us finish the work in time.

In November aprons and fancy articles were made for the Diocesan and Mothers' Meeting Fair. At Christmas we made a number of house-shaped boxes, and filled them with candy and nuts, and these were placed in the baskets of groceries and provisions which our members provided.

We have also made a number of bibs and skirts for the Children's Hospital and Day Nursery, and also helped with the sewing for the Aid Society.

We have given away several dresses, overcoats and other articles to the poor, and some socks and baby clothes to Miss Lewis for her work.

Two or three new members have joined us this year, and we have enjoyed having them with us, and also appreciate their assistance.

One evening we had the pleasure of having the Treasurer of the County Union of King's Daughters visit us, Miss Nina Rodgers, and she gave us a very interesting talk on the work of the society generally throughout the city.

Shoe Fund.

Report for the year 1915:

Money received through Dr. Grammer, from Church Fund	$25 00
Donations from Church Members	6 50
From those receiving Shoes	13 25
		$44 75
Expended for Shoes		42 80
Balance on Hand		$1 95

The members of the Church have been very kind and sent in many partly worn shoes, so, with the nice, large box of new shoes and a box of overshoes from Santa Claus, 175 pairs of shoes have been given out, and 80 pairs of overshoes during the past winter.

It has been a very hard winter among the poor, but a very happy one in the work, for all have been so grateful for the shoes, and many sad stories have been told about fathers and brothers being out of work. Every one that called received shoes of some kind to keep Jack Frost away.

The Sunday School for the Past Year.

In spite of April showers, our Easter Carol service in the Church on Sunday afternoon, April 11th, was successful and well attended. The scholars never sang better, the carols being especially well selected by our musical leader, Dr. Anthony. The Rector being particularly apt in his well chosen remarks as the offerings were made by the classes.

The past year has been quite fruitful as shown by the many from the school who were Confirmed on Sunday, March 7th, when Bishop Garland visited us. Our enrollment has been kept up to its usual standard by the addition of the members of the Burd School who began to attend our sessions last fall. Some new scholars have been secured and a number of the older boys and girls have moved away or been lost from the rolls by the usual yearly changes.

The Primary and Intermediate departments are well filled with happy groups of little folk, under the same leadership as last year, with the addition of two teachers from among the older Burd girls.

The School had its summer sessions well attended, besides its interest in the Daily Vacation Bible School under Miss Nodine's leadership. Its annual excursion went to the Farm as well as the vacation outings of many of the pupils. It joined in the great Sunday School Parade of last September—Dr. Grammer leading us in the Broad Street Procession, and nearly all the teachers, scholars and officers taking part. We were represented in the chorus of the May Musical Festival and in the Sunday revival which this winter stirred Philadelphia. Our delegates attended conventions and missionary meetings of our Diocesan and County Associations. Our lectures and social evenings during the weekdays were happy occasions and the Christmas festival probably the best yet.

Our missionary offerings, considering the troublesome times and compared with other down-town schools, are very creditable as you will see by our faithful Treasurer's report, herewith.

With the growing keener interest in things religious, we very much need our Sunday School rooms put in good repair, as well as the bracing of the outer wall. But more than this we need the addition of men and women to supplement our happy younger groups in the modern adult Bible classes. We have two, but we need more.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE H. STREAKER,
Superintendent.

The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The re-organized Chapter of Juniors is now made up of the younger boys of our Sunday School from twelve to fifteen years of age, under the same leadership as last year. Our meetings are held at nine A. M. on the second and fourth Sundays of each month before the Sunday School sessions. The boys are interested, are subscribers to the Brotherhood magazine, and two of them will take the examination at the Church House, May 8th, on the "History and Work of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew." Three who have been members on probation are soon to be admitted by the Rector into full membership.

The boys attend the general meetings of the Local Assembly of Philadelphia, as well as the Round Table Conferences at homes of members, and were particularly useful at the recent meeting of the directors of some twenty-five of the Chapters of our Diocese, which met in our St. Stephen's Guild Room, along with officers of the Executive Committee.

The Daily Vacation Bible School was held at St. Stephen's for six weeks during the summer of 1914. It began July 6th, and closed August 14th. This was the second year for a school of this kind at this church and it was a real success. The total enrollment and daily attendance more than doubled that of last year. Total enrollment, 121. Daily average attendance, 40. (The total enrollment for 1913 was 60, and daily average attendance 24.) The nationalities represented in the school were: Americans, Irish, Hebrews, Russians, French, Italian, Polaks, Hungarians and Germans. The school was in charge of a principal, manual training teacher and a kindergarten teacher.

There is no doubt that there are numbers of children living in this business district. The principal spent her afternoons searching for the children in these "highways and byways." In order to insure their safe passage across Market street, a policeman was asked to take particular care of the children going to and from school. The school gained publicity by means of arrangements made with a moving picture theatre to have thrown upon the screen the announcement of the school. As all children patronize the "movies" this proved an excellent help to enroll new children.

The school was open from 9.30 to 11.30 A. M., five days a week. Sessions opened with devotional exercises. Then came a two-minute "habit talk," in which the children are told the necessity of having clean hands, clean mouths and clean hearts. The Bible period followed. Emphasis was especially placed upon the Bible this year. More time was devoted to it. The children not only heard a new Bible story every day, but some child or children told the Bible story of the previous day. They were taught a number of verses and chapters of the Bible, and, on the last day of school, were able to recite them all. Next on the program was a half hour of music in which the children were taught catchy songs and famous hymns. The object, in this period, is not merely to secure correct singing, but to influence child nature through obedience to the laws of music and to implant in the child the love of good songs and good music. The remainder of the time was devoted to manual training. The girls had a sewing class this year, which was very popular. The boys made hammocks and articles out of reed and raffia. In the manual period the object was not only to make things but to build character. Slurring over mistakes is discouraged. The child is trained to respect material and property which does not belong to him. Unselfishness is developed in the child. Before dispersing the children saluted the flag and sang "America." Just before the closing exercises, five minutes were given to listen to an educational record on the Victrola which was loaned by a friend.

On the evening of August 12th, the children gave an exhibition. The Bible story, "The Shepherd Boy—David," was given by the principal with the assistance of her pupils, who wore costumes in keeping with the characters they took. The story was ended by the singing of the 23d Psalm. The wand drill showed how gymnastic exercises can be combined with music. Other features of the program proved interesting.

On the afternoon of August 14th this school participated in the eighth annual commencement of the Philadelphia Daily Vacation Bible Schools held at Bethany Presbyterian Church, 22d and Bainbridge streets.

The main objects of the Vacation Bible School are: (1) The children are kept off the streets for six weeks in the summer and as a result their lives are safer, their habits are better and their parents are free from anxiety; (2) the children's hands are kept busy, quarrels are eliminated in their games, patriotism is instilled and as a result their morals improve; (3) as many Bible lessons are taught in six weeks as a Sunday School could teach in seven months; (4) the church is put in happy relations with the foreign community.

The total cost of this school, including salaries and material, was $175, which was raised by voluntary contributions.

Collections this year amounted to $26.00 from St. Stephen's.

Parish Visitor's Report.

The year's work has drawn to a close and the results in bringing homes to the homeless, relief to the sick, work to the unemployed, consolation to the dissatisfied is happy work. It sounds like a fairy tale for the wand of sympathy that is wielded by St. Stephen's people is not unlike the wand of the fairies of old which brought all good things to worthy and needy people.

Mr. Edwards was the good fairy who saw that a home was opened to a young girl taken from degrading influences, from a mother unfit to rear a daughter, and he placed her in the family of the Rev. Mr. Van Meter in Torresdale, where she is happy, attending school and her reports rank among the first in good conduct and scholarship.

We have received generous aid for our sick from Mrs. A. Brunner, Mrs. A. D. A. and Mrs. Maxwell. They have helped to relieve much suffering for we have had seven tubercular and four paralytics that came under our care. We have eight women pensioners who are disabled, if they are able to get a little work we help them on. If they cannot get work or are unable to do it we must give more and to all of these we give money each month. One of our women, over 80 years of age, whose story is very pitiful, has been sent two to five dollars a month by two ladies unknown to us, and we think they must have heard of her from our PARISH NEWS.

A widow with five children and another one with two are being looked after, and we are doing what we can for them until they can receive help from the Mother's Pension Bureau, which we hope will be soon.

Two deserving women, suffering from varicose veins, after having public attention from the district physician for some time, needed special help so we sent a physician we knew in order that we could keep in closer touch with them and have them more under our care. One woman has entirely recovered, a rubber stocking having been bought for her; the other woman's condition was so very bad the doctor thought it doubtful about being able to save the leg, but we are happy to say it is much improved and we hope in time it will be entirely well. Mrs. A. Brunner came to our assistance with money in doing this work.

One of the young girls in our Sunday School was thrown down several years ago by a playmate, and her knee was hurt and the family being poor they treated the child by home remedies. Her knee grew better, but she was troubled with it from time to time. A few weeks ago, when walking, the leg flew out straight before her, and with difficulty her sister was able to get her home. The two girls were much distressed as they are the sole support of their mother. But Dr. Grammer laid the case before Dr. Hewson with the result that she has been placed in St. Timothy's Hospital under the doctor's care, while Dr. Grammer pays the mother the wages the young girl would earn if she were well.

I think the congregation will remember that about three years ago money was contributed to send a family of six to Scotland, to the wife's family who were well able to assist her. The man was drinking heavily, and we could do nothing with him; we had a very weighty burden in taking care of them. He writes us the following letter in his usual florid style: "Since my return to Scotland, nearly three years ago, I have pushed myself ahead and have nothing to regret for the change which was very timely in saving me from going under altogether. My silence may be taken as more appreciative of the helping hand given me by St. Stephen's congregation than a thousand letters. The present European crisis has led me to the Army Pay Corps, Hamilton, Scotland." He wished us to send him a baptismal certificate of one of the children.

Eight tons of coal were distributed and these were given us by Mr. Wm. Hollar, Miss Daly and Mrs. T., the latter on her wedding day sending a check for three tons of coal, this being a beautiful way in which to celebrate her happiness.

On Thanksgiving, six families were remembered by receiving groceries or some other necessities.

Milk is being sent out daily to sick people, groceries distributed from time to time and for many of these we still owe to our very generous friend, Mr. Samuel Moore.

Sixteen babies had their outfits made by St. Stephen's Aid Society during the Lenten Season.

Miss Gebhard's yearly memorial of twenty-five dollars we are glad to acknowledge—it being used to lift many a burden.

One hundred and thirty-five Christmas baskets were sent out and we have a balance of $60 for next Christmas.

This winter's dancing class formed for the older boys and girls of the Sunday School and for members of the Girls' Friendly has been a great success; we had a very good teacher in Mr. Techlenburg who taught good dancing and kept excellent order, the class had a very refining influence over the young people and was enjoyed by them very much. It meets every Thursday evening, during the season from eight o'clock to ten, and is supervised by the Parish Visitor.

Visiting the Sunday School scholars, the sick, the hospitals, the discouraged as well as the regular routine duties, has made up the year's work.

The Parish Visitor wishes to thank the donors for the gift of half-worn clothing, and for all the favors which have been received. It seems as if the year had been filled with words and deeds of kindness to her from the Rector, Vestrymen and all connected with St. Stephen's Church and this has helped her greatly in her work.

Respectfully submitted,

K. H. LEWIS.

Vacation Bible School.

Again the cause of the Daily Vacation Bible School is before us. After listening to Miss Nodine's able account of the work at the Parochial meeting I think we must all realize the good it does. But I think few people know that the school is supported entirely by voluntary contributions from the members of the Church, as the money cannot be taken from the "Church Work Fund."

If any readers of the PARISH NEWS care to contribute to this cause they may send same to Miss Ella Headman, 118 North 18th street, who will be glad to receive it.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH
10th St. above Chestnut.
Philadelphia.

November 1, 1915.

The Vestry appeals to the Congregation for special subscriptions to meet a deficit of $8,000. This debt is chiefly due to the expensive repairs of the last fifteen months. In this period the Church has been upholstered with new cushions and carpeting for the pews, costing $1,441.37, and a substantial roof of concrete and of asbestos tile with copper trim has been put on the entire Church and Parish House, at the cost of $5,542.46. Necessary repairs have also been made to the Sunday School Building.

Our annual income from all sources, including the envelope system, of course, will enable us to meet our regular annual expenses, according to the present outlook; but special exertion is required to meet these repair bills. We who have received a Church so rich in uplifting associations and exquisite memorials, owe it to the generations who shall come after us to keep the property in good condition, and to transmit it to them free from encumbrance.

With confidence that the Congregation will approve these expenditures, we ask them to subscribe an amount sufficient to pay off this debt. All contributions should be sent to Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, Accounting Warden, 505 Chestnut St.

Carl E. Grammer,
J. Hunter Ewing,
Wm. H. Hollar,
Committee.

For the further information of the Congregation, the following statement has been prepared at the request of the Vestry, by Mr. William H. Hollar, who is the Committee on Church Property:

During the summer of 1914, it was determined to renew the cushions on the main floor of the Church, at which time it was learned that the material which had been used in the old cushions as well as that used to cover the pews was no longer on sale, with the result that it was found necessary to have enough material made for the cushions as well as to cover the backs of the pews. The new cushions, with the brightening up of the pews generally, have unquestionably added materially to the cheerfulness of the Church.

In reference to the roof which has been placed on the building during the past summer, this very necessary repair should have been made fifteen years ago, as leaks were of frequent occurrence, resulting in constant expense for repairs. This will not seem strange when it is understood that the old roof was composed in part of canvas, wood shingles, tin, galvanized iron, copper and slate.

In pursuance of a resolution of the Vestry your committee made an exhaustive study of the best method of repairs, and as a result of his investigation, placed a new roof over the Church and Parish House, which will be for years thoroughly weatherproof, and is as nearly fireproof as possible. Upon heavy white oak sheathing two inches thick, is placed a covering of asbestos, which in turn is covered with concrete and asbestos tiling. A small, comparatively flat area is subjected to a different treatment. All flashings and gutterings are of copper. It was also found necessary to replace the roofs on the towers. The roof is of a most substantial and durable character and ought to last for years without any but minor repairs.

When the roof was removed from over the north transept, it was found that, owing to leakage, the main girder supporting the same had weakened. The girder was strengthened.

The west wall of the Sunday School Building was found to be 7½ inches out of plumb. As this was a dangerous situation, this wall was strengthened by truss rods of steel, and incidentally, it may be noted that the Sunday school room and entrance hall were repainted.

New sidewalks were placed at the rear of the Church as well as in front of the Sunday School Building. Several metal posts were also placed in order to prevent truckmen from driving heavy trucks on the walks.

Numerous other repairs had to be made, all of course costing money, with the result that we have an interest-bearing debt of $8,000.

Respectfully submitted,
Wm. H. Hollar,
Committee of Vestry on St. Stephen's Church Property.

The Church Work Fund.

The Rector of St. Stephen's has always had a fund placed at his disposal for financing the various societies of the Church and for general purposes. There are many calls upon him as the head of a great organization that this Official Purse enables him to meet. Out of it he finances the PARISH NEWS, and provides stationery, and the services of a secretary for the Church's official business. By various devices such as advertisements in the PARISH NEWS, which have reduced the net cost of our parochial monthly to about $150, the demands on his purse have been somewhat diminished. The old members give faithfully, and it is hoped that our new members will include this fund among the objects to which they contribute. By the Envelope System for specified objects and the Church Work Fund for small sundries, the worship of St. Stephen's is kept from fre-

Our Bereavements.

Since the last number of the PARISH NEWS was published St. Stephen's has lost a number of loved members who linked us with the past, and bound us closer to one another.

On May 8th Mr. Jos. L. Miller was taken from us after an illness of a little over a week. A slight injury to his foot resulted in blood poisoning. His condition rendered an operation impossible, and he gradually sank as the poison spread through his system. The funeral was at St. Stephen's Church, and was conducted in accordance with his express wish by the Rector of St. Stephen's. It was largely attended by the clergy of the diocese, among whom he was widely loved. The burial was in his family lot in Mount Airy.

Joseph Lyon Miller, born Oct. 18, 1845, was the son of Charles and Mary Miller of Germantown, where his ancestors were early residents. After graduating from the High School, and the Philadelphia Divinity School, he became Rector of a church in Woonsocket, Rhode Island. Under Dr. Rudder he accepted an assistantship in St. Stephen's Church. He greatly endeared himself to the congregation, and to the Rectors, with whom he was associated. While he was not without a shrewd insight into human nature and often revealed a canny knowledge of the secret springs of human conduct, there was also an ingenuous kindliness and fresh charm about him, that marked him in any company as one of those spirits whose childlike directness and friendliness age, custom and trial can neither wither nor stale. His faith was simple and strong. He had a strong confidence in the truth that lies behind all forms of Christian thought and was content to leave the ultimate problems of metaphysics to the wisdom of the Creator. Unenvious, natural, gracious, loyal, affectionate, long will he be remembered by those who knew him at St. Stephen's. Between the rectorship of Dr. Worcester and Dr. Grammer he accepted the full charge of the parish for a year. When he resigned his assistantship a loving cup was presented to him by the congregation. For a while he acted as one of the secretaries of the late Bishop Mackay Smith in the Diocesan House. But in the last years he returned to St. Stephen's as one of the staff, and was felt by both congregation and Rector to confer a benediction by his presence in the Chancel.

During his last illness his thoughts turned tenderly toward St. Stephen's, and he added to his will a codicil bequeathing the old Church $3,000. The bequest came too close to his death to be effective under the laws of the Commonwealth, and the residue of the estate, after certain bequests were paid, was left under such conditions that the family could not carry out his wishes.

It is pleasant to know that as the sun of his life was calmly setting and he lay quietly watching earth's lights fade and the stars of our immortal hopes rise to guide him on his way, his thoughts turned lovingly to the Church he had served so long and so loyally.

It was a shock to the whole congregation when Joseph Clayton was taken from us on Tuesday, Oct. 5th. All through August he had been ill, but the deadly nature of his malady was not generally realized. His own spirit was so buoyant and hopeful that up till the last week it was the prevailing view among his friends that he would once more resume his place among us.

Even now it seems impossible that he has been taken from us. Alert, vigorous, quick-moving, it seems impossible that we should never again see his swift and energetic movement, or behold him exercising his executive gift with characteristic vitality and celerity. He had, indeed, an élan rarely found in people of English stock. Of English descent he was on both sides, both his parents having been born in England. Born in Philadelphia on St. Andrew's Day, 1856, Joseph Clayton was from his infancy a member of the Episcopal Church.

His old Sunday School teacher, Mr. Henry D'Olier, who was one of his pall bearers, testifies that as a youth he was remarkable for his moral life and devotion to the Church. At an early age he became the Verger of St. Stephen's in 1866. The activity and outgoing energy of his helpful and loyal nature made him many friends in the congregation, and naturally led to his becoming a funeral director. In this business his personal tact, friendliness and sympathy made him many friends, while his executive gifts had a congenial field. By the year 1897 the demands of his business had so increased that he resigned the Vergership, shortly after the beginning of Dr. Grammer's rectorship. Highly laudatory resolutions were passed at the time by the Vestry and various societies of the church, and the congregation presented him as a token of their regard with a purse of $600.

To the Rectors he stood in very close relations, particularly to Dr. McConnell and Dr. Worcester, whose Verger he was for their entire rectorship here. Dr. McConnell did not receive notice of the funeral in time, or he would have come up from Easton, Md., to take part in it, and Dr. Worcester telegraphed that he had sustained a personal loss in his death.

Public-spirited as a citizen, tenderly attached to St. Stephen's, and a devoted father and husband, Mr. Clayton had made a place for himself in the community and in the Church. The sympathy of the congregation goes out to Mrs. Clayton and her daughter, Mrs. Bacon. May the God of all comfort, comfort them with an unfaltering trust in the blessed hopes of our most holy Faith.

Miss Josephine Lewis, the daughter of the late Chief Justice Ellis Lewis of the Supreme Court of this State, had been failing in health for several years and death came to her as a desired release on May the second. A woman of unusual independence of mind and force of character, she enjoyed the respect and affection of many friends and went down into the vale of infirmity with great dignity and Christian resignation. St. Stephen's Church was very dear to her, and owes to her benevolence the Lewis-Campbell fund in memory of her sister, Mrs. Campbell, and a bequest of $2,500 for the endowment of her pew, and of another $2,500 to the Endowment Fund.

In the days of her vigor she took great interest in public affairs and was a faithful member of the committee of our Auxiliary that reports on our Church's work among the Indians. It is good to think that she is free from weakness and infirmity and has entered into a higher and more blessed state of existence.

On Saturday morning, August 21st, Frederick H. Hart and Clarence W. Mearns were riding a motor-cycle swiftly along the Northeastern Boulevard. The two boys, or young men, were great friends and enjoyed one another's society thoroughly. Their homes were close together on Tenth street, they both belonged to St. Stephen's, and they had many friends in common. Fred was employed in his father's business in the well-known restaurant on Tenth street, near Sansom, and Clarence is learning the trade of a plumber. After the day's work they had taken supper together at Mr. Mearn's hospitable board and resolved to enjoy themselves with a spin on the wheel. The expedition that appeared so promising at its suggestion seemed, however, destined to be an almost complete failure. The inner tube of the motor-cycle was punctured three times, and at last was found, on examination, to be thoroughly worthless. Resolved not to lose all the highly anticipated pleasure the companions bought a new tube and as it had by that time reached the hour of eleven, set out to return the motor-cycle to its garage. Under the improved conditions the wheel went so delightfully that they changed their minds and decided to wipe out the unpleasant impression of failure by a successful little jaunt. At the corner of Broad and Girard, however, they had another misadventure and it became necessary to patch the new inner tube on account of a defect in its structure. This check to their pleasure only heightened their determination to get one good, successful spin, and as everything was now beyond all doubt in a good condition, they set out with a fixed determination to close with a splendid success an evening that thus far had seemed to be fated. In their delightful career the minutes flew by unnoted and as they were speeding homeward about one a. m. they crashed into an automobile. Each party was off side, and occupying the centre of the road. It may be that each had swung out to pass some car or cycle. It is uncertain whether Fred or Clarence was riding in front. The crash was so tremendous that both boys were thrown high into the air. Clarence fell on his head and was unconscious for quite a time; but strongly knit and robust, he was able after several weeks in the hospital to return home and is now back again at his trade, spared to his parents and friends we trust for some useful service. Fred, however, was of slighter physique and sustained internal injuries that resulted in his death in a few hours. He never recovered consciousness. A clean-minded, sober and amiable boy, he gave every indication of growing up to be a comfort to his parents a useful citizen and a Christian. The sympathy of this Church and of the whole community has gone out to his afflicted parents.

Something ought to be said in addition to the appeal that has been put out by the Vestry and the official statement of the Committee on Church Property, about the thoroughly workmanlike and durable new roof that has been placed over the entire building this past summer. It will give us a secure covering for a generation to come. Special thanks are due to Mr. Wm. H. Hollar for the careful investigation he made of plans, and the efficient supervision that he gave to the construction. No one knows better than Mr. Hollar what constitutes thoroughness in workmanship, and the Church is exceedingly fortunate in having an expert give it so freely and largely of his services.

Nor ought I to overlook the unstinted service of our Verger, who rose at 3 o'clock in the morning to protect our ceiling against damage from a rain that had come on during the night, when the old roof had been taken off and the new roof was not yet in place.

Their generous exertions for the Church will doubtless be matched by the generous gifts with which the congregation will respond to the Vestry's appeal. We have inherited much from the liberality of others; let us transmit our Church free from burdens to our successors.

On Sept. 15, the Rev. Mr. Edwards resigned his assistantship to accept a similar position in Calvary Church, Germantown. The especial attraction of the new field was a mission that has been started by that Church in Germantown, with the expectation that it will rapidly develop into an independent and self-sustaining Church. Here Mr. Edwards will preach on Sunday nights and will be able to exercise his ministry more largely. He was a most acceptable assistant, an excellent reader of the service, an earnest and helpful preacher and possesses a character that won the affection and respect of those who knew him. He carries with him into his new field our affectionate interest and our prayers for his success. May God enable him to make full proof of his ministry. Nothing but a belief that he was in the line of development and increased usefulness could reconcile us to losing him.

It was always a great satisfaction to the Rector of St. Stephen's, that there was connected with his Church a funeral director like Mr. Clayton, whose efficiency was recognized by the richer people, and who was at the service of the poorer members of the Church in the kindest and most considerate way. It is good to know that the business will continue in the hands of Mr. Clayton's heirs, and will be conducted by the same efficient staff.

The attention of the congregation is called to the hour of the Thanksgiving service. According to our custom it will be at 10.30 A. M.

On Thursday, Oct. 28, Miss Conway sailed from New York for our Mission in Liberia. A deaconess of our Church on the fever-haunted coast of West Africa, amid the descendants of the liberated slaves who went back to Africa before the Civil War, under the auspices of the Colonization Society which was fondly believed in those ante-bellum days to open a door for the true solution of the Negro question, Miss Conway has spent her vacation in telling the story of the work of our Church among that heathen-encircled population, which has such a peculiar claim upon our interest and aid. Our Auxiliary gave her a hearing at one of its monthly meetings and she has been enrolled, at her own request, among our communicants. Africa is her field, but St. Stephen's, Philadelphia, is her home church, her Antioch, to which she will return with the reports of her achievements and to which she will look for sympathy and helpful intercessions at the throne of grace. Our interest in her will not be lessened, but will rather be enhanced by the realization that we owe this new member largely to the close attachment that unites her to our Parish Visitor, Miss Lewis, who accompanied her to New York to bid her godspeed on her journey to Gibraltar, where she will take a southbound steamer for Liberia. Let us not forget Miss Conway in our prayers for the missionaries.

On Wednesday, Nov. 24th, at 8 P. M., the Bishop of the Diocese will administer the rite of Confirmation to a special class of adults, which is being prepared by the Rector. Unconfirmed adults are invited to attend the meetings of the class which will be held on Wednesday, 10th and 17th. Two meetings have already been held. It is hoped that people who have been hesitating about this step will embrace this opportunity.

By a resolution offered in the General Convention in New York it was agreed that a nation-wide preaching mission should be held before the next General Convention, and it has been decided by those in charge of the matter to conduct this mission in the two weeks beginning Monday, Nov. 29th. The mission will last one or two weeks, according to the wish of the parish.

St. Peter's, St. Stephen's, St. Andrew's, Old St. Paul's (the City Mission) and St. Luke's and the Epiphany have been placed in one district for the purpose of this mission. After a conference it has been decided that the following services will be held for one week: St. Stephen's, 12.30 Daily Noonday Services (except Saturday), preacher, the Rev. James E. Freeman, D.D.; St. Paul's, Daily Noonday Service (except Saturday), address by the Rectors in the district; St. Peter's, Daily Evening Prayer, 8. P. M., preacher, Bishop Rhinelander. Addresses with reference to the mission will be delivered at St. Luke's and the Epiphany the preceding Sunday, Nov. 28th, and a children's service will be held in the same church at 4 p. m., Saturday afternoon, Dec. 4th.

We are particularly fortunate in having secured as the speaker at St. Stephen's, the Rev. Dr. Freeman, the originator of the scheme. He will not come to us as a stranger. Some five or six years ago he delivered five Lenten Noonday Services for us. It will be pleasant to hear again his stirring message. The special aim of this mission is the evangelization of the churchless and the reclaiming of the wandering.

The Farm.

The Farm opened on Saturday, June 5th, with a large and enthusiastic gathering of members of our congregation and their friends to look over the place which had been put in readiness to receive the guests who were more than ready to come.

From year to year many improvements have been added: this year a new Spear range, a gift from our "Mothers' Meeting," and stationary tubs for the laundry from our "Girls' Friendly Society," so that we feel sure it would be hard to find a better equipped vacation house, and the generous supporters of this splendid work may feel justly proud of St. Stephen's Farm. One good friend remarked on opening day, that there really did not seem to be anything else needed. There are, however, a few things we should like to have—first, more porch room. The present porch is not large enough to accommodate all our guests and at times we have been very much crowded, but hope that next season we shall have abundant room, as the Rector and Committee have at present, plans under consideration for improvements in this direction. Next, a swimming pool. "Why can't we have a swimming pool?" is a frequent question, and how we long for it, especially on a hot day and Neshaminy Creek a mile and a half away. This is something that has long been urged and we believe the stream running through our land might be utilized. Then we hope that some time we shall have an automobile, but as the purpose of the report is to let you know about the work that has been done at the Farm this past summer, we shall pass over the needs at present and tell you what we have been doing, at least in part. Of course it would be impossible to estimate the amount of pleasure and happiness given to those who visited the Farm, the pleasant memories that will linger; as some of our small visitors have told us, "We think about it all the year and count the weeks and days until it is time to come again." To one dear old lady who enjoyed a vacation for the first time in twenty-five years, it was "heaven." One child of eleven was the happiest little girl you could imagine, because she didn't have to wash dishes for their large family for two whole weeks, and so we might go on and on, for everybody was happy and nobody wanted to go home, except one little girl who was homesick and did go home, but wanted to come back the very next day.

147 children were entertained for one week, and 249 adults.

Good friends have remembered the Farm liberally this season. For gifts which have added greatly to our comfort and pleasure, most grateful thanks are due Mr. Robert T. Boyd, Mr. John Cadwalader, Mr. E. E. Eakin, Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, Mrs. H. Spencer Lucas, Mrs. Henry P. Taylor, Mr. Joseph B. VanDusen, Jr., and the King's Daughters, through Mrs. Vanderslice. The generosity of one good friend made it possible for us to have a sandbox, which gave great pleasure to the little ones, and a see-saw, which was enjoyed by large and small.

The Farm has been of great helpfulness and comfort this past summer, and we believe much good has been accomplished.

E. D.

The Benevolent Society stands greatly in need of more closet space. It may be that some of our parishioners can supply us with some wardrobe or chest of drawers or some suitable piece of furniture that would enable the Society to stow its materials away in a commodious manner. Former householders who are stowing away their furniture might perhaps have just the thing we need. Such persons are requested to confer with Miss Ewing, the Directress of the Benevolent Society.

We are indebted to the Misses Magee for the overhauling and repairing of our organ in the late summer and early fall. Some of the leather work had rotted out or cracked and needed renewing. When the repairs shall be completed, at the cost of $300, the instrument will be in complete order. The generosity that gave this noble gift, far from being exhausted, continues to follow the benefaction. This splendid instrument is greatly admired and adds much to the charm and uplift of our services.

The Sunday School.

In consequence of the repairs being made to the Sunday School Building, the regular organization of the Sunday school under its teachers was delayed till the third Sunday in October. On that day the Rector, Mr. Streaker, Dr. Anthony and Mr. Kirkpatrick were all in their places and the classes were organized. A new teacher has been gained for the boys in Mr. Richard Grant, and a great loss has been sustained by the resignation of Miss Carrigan. A faithful teacher, a true pillar in our Sunday school edifice, greatly will she be missed. While we congratulate her on the enlarged responsibilities that have made necessary this relief from Sunday teaching, we shall miss greatly her presence and helpful example.

It is hoped that the "rally day," Nov. 7th, will be a great success.

The Sunday school, headed by a flag and by the Rector and Mr. Kirkpatrick and Mr. Carrigan, took its place in the great annual Sunday school parade, of which its Superintendent is the Grand Marshal.

The summer Sunday school was maintained all through the summer months, being taught by our faithful Superintendent from the desk. The Daily Vacation Bible School also had its regular summer session in the Sunday School Building under the magnetic leadership of Miss Nodine. Only the practical demands of the work ahead of us for the winter prevent us from enlarging on these useful departments of our Church's work.

On September 18th, twenty children from the lower part of the city were given a trip to the Zoological Gardens through the kindness of Mrs. Hollar. The children were under the guidance of Mrs. Vanderslice, who was assisted by several members of her circle of King's Daughters. After exhausting the wonders of the Zoo the children were regaled with ice cream and cake, and returned to their homes after a most enjoyable afternoon.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH
10th St. above Chestnut.
Philadelphia.

November 1, 1915.

The Vestry appeals to the Congregation for special subscriptions to meet a deficit of $8,000. This debt is chiefly due to the expensive repairs of the last fifteen months. In this period the Church has been upholstered with new cushions and carpeting for the pews, costing $1,441.37, and a substantial roof of concrete and of asbestos tile with copper trim has been put on the entire Church and Parish House, at the cost of $5,542.46. Necessary repairs have also been made to the Sunday School building.

Our annual income from all sources, including the envelope system, of course, will enable us to meet our regular annual expenses, according to the present outlook; but special exertion is required to meet these repair bills. We who have received a Church so rich in uplifting associations and exquisite memorials, owe it to the generations who shall come after us to keep the property in good condition, and to transmit it to them free from encumbrance.

With confidence that the congregation will approve these expenditures, we ask them to subscribe an amount sufficient to pay off this debt. All contributions should be sent to Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, Accounting Warden, 505 Chestnut street.

CARL E. GRAMMER,
J. HUNTER EWING,
WM. H. HOLLAR,
Committee.

For the further information of the Congregation, the following statement has been prepared at the request of the Vestry, by Mr. William H. Hollar, who is the Committee on Church Property:

During the summer of 1914, it was determined to renew the cushions on the main floor of the Church, at which time it was learned that the material which had been used in the old cushions as well as that used to cover the pews was no longer on sale, with the result that it was found necessary to have enough material made for the cushions as well as to cover the backs of the pews. The new cushions, with the brightening up of the pews generally, have unquestionably added materially to the cheerfulness of the Church.

In reference to the roof which has been placed on the building during the past summer, this very necessary repair should have been made fifteen years ago, as leaks were of frequent occurrence, resulting in constant expense for repairs. This will not seem strange when it is understood that the old roof was composed in part of canvas, wood shingles, tin, galvanized iron, copper and slate.

In pursuance of a resolution of the Vestry your committee made an exhaustive study of the best method of repairs, and as a result of his investigation, placed a new roof over the Church and Parish House, which will be for years thoroughly weather-proof, and is as nearly fireproof as possible. Upon heavy white oak sheathing two inches thick, is placed a covering of asbestos, which in turn is covered with concrete and asbestos tiling. A small, comparatively flat area is subjected to a different treatment. All flashings and gutterings are of copper. It was also found necessary to replace the roofs on the towers. The roof is of a most substantial and durable character and ought to last for years without any but minor repairs.

When the roof was removed from over the north transept, it was found that, owing to leakage, the main girder supporting the same had weakened. The girder was strengthened.

The west wall of the Sunday School building was found to be 7½ inches out of plumb. As this was a dangerous situation, this wall was strengthened by truss rods of steel, and incidentally, it may be noted that the Sunday-school room and entrance hall were repainted.

New sidewalks were placed at the rear of the Church as well as in front of the Sunday School building. Several metal posts were also placed in order to prevent truckmen from driving heavy trucks on the walks.

Numerous other repairs had to be made, all of course costing money, with the result that we have an interest-bearing debt of $8,000.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. H. HOLLAR,
Committee of Vestry on St. Stephen's Church Property.

The appeal for the Church repairs is republished in this number. The noble contribution of $2,000 from Miss Fanny and Miss Anna Magee left $6,000 for the rest of the congregation to raise. The Rector has hoped by dispensing with the assistance of a clergyman at the services for the last two months to save the Church enough to constitute a substantial contribution towards the deficit. Experience, however, has shown that this is too great a drain upon his vitality, and hereafter he will procure assistance at the Sunday services and for some of the weekday demands when they exceed his powers. He hopes that he will be able to procure a regular assistant soon.

As we go to press the Nation-wide Preaching Mission is in progress. While the congregations are not so large as at the Lenten Noonday Services (which is to be expected), nevertheless they have been encouraging. We are glad to have Dr. Freeman as a preacher. Hitherto much of Dr. Freeman's energy has gone to the building up of such institutional work as has made St. Bartholomew's and St. George's in New York so famous. The result of this experience has brought to Dr. Freeman the conviction that sufficient emphasis has not been laid upon the simple preaching of the Gospel, as the chief means for building the Kingdom of God. On St. Andrew's Day he gave a most moving testimony on this subject.

A Confirmation class of twelve was presented by the Rector on Wednesday evening, November 24th, consisting of eight men and four women. Bishop Rhinelander was very kind in giving us this additional Confirmation, for the illness of Bishop Garland has thrown much additional work upon him, and there are grave problems pressing upon his attention. The Parish are very grateful for his kindness, and also very grateful to God for the favor He has shown us in the past year, in bringing in so many new communicants.

The Christmas Baskets.

According to our custom, baskets will be distributed on the morning of the day before Christmas to the holders of cards. Envelopes for special offerings for this purpose will be distributed through the pews. Christmas is a time when happiness and good cheer should be diffused. Let us spread peace and good will among men, by relieving the pressure of poverty at this season. Last year about one hundred and forty baskets were distributed, each containing a dinner for from eight to ten people. The Committee on Christmas Baskets is Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr., Howard Reifsnyder, and James Carrigan.

The Church Work Fund.

The Rector of St. Stephen's has always had a fund placed at his disposal for financing the various societies of the Church and for general purposes. There are many calls upon him as the head of a great organization that this Official Purse enables him to meet. Out of it he finances the PARISH NEWS, and provides stationery, and the services of a secretary for the Church's official business. By various devices such as advertisements in the PARISH NEWS, which have reduced the net cost of our parochial monthly to about $150, the demands on his purse have been somewhat diminished, The old members give faithfully, and it is hoped that our new members will include this fund among the objects to which they contribute. By the Envelope System for specified objects and the Church Work Fund for small sundries, the worship of St. Stephen's is kept from frequent appeals for money, a feature of our service that tends greatly to enhance the dignity of our worship.

The regular demands on the purse call for a fund of $1,500.

A handsome addition to our endowment has been received in the gift of $10,000 from the estate of the late James R. Magee. The son of a former Vestryman, baptized at our font and bound to the Church by many ties, Mr. Magee was always ready during his lifetime to aid in adorning, and conserving the edifice which contained many of his family memorials, and had been the spiritual home of his kindred for many years. This noble gift is his loyal and generous provision for the old Church after his death. It is a family custom with the Magees to make provision in this way, that the Church of their affection and care should be adequately supported when they shall be gone. This generous gift is, of course, inalienable for any purpose. Only the annual income can be used. Helpful now, the time will come when such a provision will be indispensable. The day has passed when St. Stephen's was a neighborhood Church attended by people living close by, within the sound of its bells, and almost within sight of its battlemented towers. Every year makes it more and more a Church like St. Margaret's Westminster, to use an ambitious comparison, a church whose members come from all parts of the city, a metropolitan parish, a home of social and institutional activities of all kinds, and a central place for gatherings and for evangelistic appeals to busy people. A Church ministering to the shifting elements in our population, to students, to travelers, to temporary denizens of our apartment and boarding houses needs an endowment fund such as we are accumulating at St. Stephen's to enable it to discharge its various functions with dignity and efficiency. Through the noble gifts of Colonel and Mrs. Burd, a splendid beginning was made, and the family of the late James Magee has made the largest and most numerous additions to this original endowment. Their names are bound up indissolubly with the history of the Parish and their helpfulness is felt every time we see the exquisite reredos or hear the rolling thunder of the organ, or are looking for any assistance in caring for their loved church.

It would be a great misfortune if the inaccurate notion were to spread abroad that St. Stephen's is so richly endowed that it does not need the contributions of its members. Safe endowments bring in low rates of interest. Our income from endowments is very little larger than in former days, when the interest rate was higher. The interest on our funds and our pew-rents are not sufficient to meet our expenses and keep the property in good order. We need our envelope system. Moreover, we must provide for the day, which is inevitably approaching gradually, but steadily, when the price of the pew-rents must be considerably reduced. We must face bravely the problem of reconstructing our Sunday School building, which is entirely inadequate. There are many measures, some costly, that might be employed to make the message that goes forth from St. Stephen's more widely heard and more influential in our Church and in our civic life.

It is as a substantial help to this larger service that this addition to our endowment is received with special gratitude. It does not release the congregation from contributing according to their ability to the advancement of the Church, as the great instrument for extending the Kingdom of God on earth: it only opens to us wider horizons and more splendid possibilities.

The Richmond Trial and the Stone Men's Third Degree.

The congregation has doubtless been pained and shocked by the reports in the newspapers of the proceedings at the trial of the Rev. Geo. Chalmers Richmond. It may be helpful to make some statements and explanations. The Church is a great deal more than an Ethical Society; but the inculcation of ethical principles and the development of ethical character is one of its chief aims. A clergyman who falls below the ethical standards of ordinary life is certainly out of place at the altar, or in the pulpit of the Church. There is in the Episcopal Church a regular method of procedure to get rid of such persons. In the case of the charges against Mr. Richmond, for conduct unbecoming a clergyman, a certain number of presenters, clerical and lay—the Rector of St. Stephen's being one of the clerical presenters—laid specific charges before the Standing Committee, which acted as a kind of Grand Jury, and certified that the offences charged were of such a character that some discipline ought to be inflicted if they were proven. Thereupon a true bill having been found, the prosecution was taken entirely out of the hands of the presenters and turned over to the Church Advocate, who in this case was assisted by Walter C. Douglas, a member of St. Stephen's Church as it happened, (for we have a congregation whose members are in demand whenever anything is to be done) and a lawyer of large experience in prosecuting cases in the Federal Circuit Courts. A jury consisting of three clergymen known as triers, was impaneled and the trial began before the Chancellor of the Diocese, Mr. Henry Budd. This is not the place for any review of the evidence, or for any discussion of the merits of the case. The lawyers have made their pleas, the Chancellor has charged the triers, and the verdict has not yet been rendered.

There can be no possible doubt of the ultimate result. The Chancellor, a strict constructionist of the old school, made no allowance for the practical difficulties of a prosecution that could not compel the attendance of witnesses, and refused to facilitate procedure by permitting all the charges to be presented to the triers. The charges have been divided into sections, and only the first section was presented in the trial before this jury. If Mr. Richmond should be acquitted of these charges there will remain still more serious indictments to be tried.

Of course there are many people who condemn the whole procedure because of the accounts they have read in the newspapers. These reports, however, were very misleading. Mr. Richmond has so fully revealed himself by his various utterances that no one was interested in any evidence that injured his character, or showed the deviousness of his ways. The only part of the proceedings that was "news" was incidents or remarks that seemed to cast an unfavorable light on people regarded as estimable.

The Chancellor is a jurist of learning and a presiding officer of dignity and distinction, but his attitude was unmistakably the old attitude that the chief interest of the judge is not so much to secure substantial justice as to see that the game is played with absolute technical precision. Our personal conviction is that a case was madeout that would subject Mr. Richmond to censure and discipline if he were an officer in the Army or Navy, or a teacher in the Public Schools. We believe that the Triers will sentence him to ecclesiastical discipline of some kind on the present charge, and are certain that if the other charges come to a trial severe discipline will be decreed.

The reason for the difficulty in securing a verdict in the case of a clergyman, however, calls for some explanation. The examination is worth while, for it throws a light into some obscure corners. Roughly stated, the two great obstacles to the successful discipline of the clergy for moral offences are the caste spirit and the theory of the Divine Right of the Episcopate. The clergy feel themselves to be a special order, and are jealous of their prerogatives. Nothing has more intensified this sense of caste than the sacerdotal system and the theory that orders are indelible, once a priest always a priest, a theory held by the people who were deeply offended by the unfrocking of a prominent rector, who resigned a few years ago under heavy pressure. The other great obstacle is the theory held by many of our clergy and bishops that the bishop rules by divine right, and has only submitted to canonical regulations as a measure of administrative expediency, since he is conceived of as deriving his authority, not so much from the contemporaneous Church, as from the age of the Apostles, through a line of regularly consecrated bishops. The Parliament of England had much difficulty in restraining within the limits of the laws of the realm sovereigns like James I and Charles I, who believed that they reigned by divine right, and the Protestant Episcopal Church, organized in its present form on these shores by men like Bishop White, who shared the spirit of our revolutionary forefathers and of the framers of our National Constitution, profited by that experience and erected a number of safeguards against the abuses that would be likely to follow from the holding of such a theory by a bishop. All sorts of checks of all kind were devised. At one time the greater bulk of our canons was concerned with the procedure for the trial of a bishop. If the Right Reverend Father in God takes this affectionate and historic form of address as an exact expression of his relation to his clergy, and seeks to establish a rule of personal authority instead of a government of laws, the clergy naturally feel that the ministry of such a Church would be no place for an adult American, or for a Christian who believed that as the true seed of Abraham we should not be in bondage to any man. In this way the theories of Ministerial Caste and Divine Right of the Episcopacy which are attractive to many people who like a strong rule and well established authority, prove in practice injurious to a successful discipline. The claim that is made that our Bishop can use our Confirmation office without regard to our rubric or precedents, to confirm people who do not intend to become communicants of our Church, because he is something more than a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church by reason of the divine rights of a bishop in the Church of God, is based on the theory against whose workings the checks in our judicial system are intended to protect us.

As long as that theory is held by any considerable number of people in our fold, there will be great difficulty in maintaining a wholesome discipline. Encroachments will be feared from a bishop of such vast and undefined powers. The general spirit of our democratic land will be against a government of so feudal a character, and in sympathy with the defence. A church whose bishops claim powers outside the law, will not find the law an efficient ally in helping them get rid of clerical offenders. There is a close connection between the trial of Mr. Richmond and the decision the Bishop may make as to the honorary chaplaincy of the Stone Men.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

A meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's was held on October 21st, when Miss Charlotte Nodine told of the work of the Daily Vacation Bible School, held in the Sunday School Building during six weeks of the summer.

The second meeting of the Auxiliary was held on November 18th, when 28 members were present. The speaker was Archdeacon E. Thomas Demby, of Keeling, Tennessee, who has charge of the colored work of the Diocese of Tennessee.

A letter was read from Rev. G. H. Toop, of the Church of the Holy Apostles, asking for contributions toward the Memorial Fund to Mr. George C. Thomas. It is purposed to build a memorial church, and contributions may be sent to Miss Ella Headman, treasurer, 118 N. 18th street, who will take charge of the subscriptions sent by members of St. Stephen's Church.

The Parish Visitor's Report.

We have had such glorious weather this autumn that we have put apprehension of the coal question into the background. We have been enjoying the warm sunshine and the bright days, feeling with great pleasure the comfort such days must bring to those whose anxieties are real, when Jack Frost arrives with his train of ills, and there is no coal in the bin.

It is so hard to write of anything new when there is nothing new under the sun, as Solomon, the wisest of men, asserts.

Our Lord said, "The poor ye have always with you," and there is the same old story of poverty, sickness, deprivation, drudgery, toil and, coming this winter—Cold and Hunger.

The Parish Visitor has it all on her list, some always at the washtub, or ironing or scrubbing, even when the flesh is being eaten alive by abscess. The look of agony on the face of one such sufferer told its story. And yet if the demand for work, by ill luck or chance, should cease, despair would seize the worker.

Five persons on our list are sufferers from paralysis. My heart goes out to one old woman who is always at the tub washing, never idle in all the years that I have been visiting her, laboring at the hardest of work to support her family. Another case is of a poor man so paralyzed that he is not able to get out of bed, and his wife supports the family.

Now, for the pleasant news: we always have something for which to be thankful, and on Thanksgiving Day we could help quite a number of these sufferers. There were baskets filled with just what was needed, and which was most gratefully received; not always chicken, vegetables and tea, but just what was most acceptable to the recipient. Miss Alice Hutchings, Miss Laura Bell, Mrs. William Rice Taylor, Mrs. Atmore and Mrs. Wilson, all sent me money to cheer these, my people, on Thanksgiving Day

K. H. Lewis.

We are indebted to Mr. Alfred Miller for the portrait of his brother—the Rev. Joseph Miller—which now hangs upon the walls of the vestry. It will always be a cherished possession.

Miss Kate Lewis, Parish Visitor, Distributor.

Let us enter the New Year with courage and cheerfulness. We have a great Captain and a glorious cause, and are living as the hymn runs,

In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime.

Let us take counsel of our hopes and not of our fears. Evil is easily defeated if we resist its beginnings. Anyone can refuse the first glass of whiskey. A habit in the gristle, not yet hardened into bone, is easily overthrown.

Let it be our rule to take care of the little things of the present, knowing that the great things of the future will take care of themselves.

Like a sawyer's work is life.
'Tis the present makes the flaw.
And the only field for strife
Is the inch before the saw.

Let a man live trustfully, cheerfully, each day discharging with happy assiduity the day's task in Heaven's fructifying light, and the end of that man will be an enlarged manhood, and a fruitful life. We live in the midst of obscurities, mysteries, perplexities, tragedies, but to the eye of faith there is revealed behind the checkered scene a beneficent purpose slowly evolving and destined at the last to manifest itself in fullness and glory.

Sursum corda!

On Wednesday, January 19th, a subscription dinner will be given at Dooner's Hotel in honor of the Rev. Frederick B. Keable. The men of the congregation are invited to join and are requested to send their subscription of a dollar a plate to Mr. H. H. Barton, Jr., 109 S. 3d street. Promptness on their part will greatly facilitate the work of the committee in charge.

It is hoped that everyone will read carefully the report of the Committee on Christmas Dinners. Never have we sent out such baskets or so many of them. The value of the articles donated amounted to $128, and the total cost of the dinners was $519.64. One hundred and fifty-two baskets were given out, containing dinners enough for 1,824 persons. Surely this was a case of passing comfort and good cheer around. We came to the task of providing these dinners with a comfortable balance from last year. We are left with a balance of only half that amount for next year; but I expect that when all the envelopes come in we shall have the old balance on hand again.

A delightful feature in our giving this year was the exquisite and fragrant little bouquet that went out with every basket—providing refreshment for the mind, while the other contents of the hamper supplied the more elementary and bodily needs.

The Rev. Frederick John Brymer Keable, who became a minister of St. Stephen's Church on the first of January, is the son of George B. and Caroline Couchman Keable, of Wimbledon, Surrey, England. Born in the old country, he came to the United States in 1889. His theological course was taken at St. Andrew's Divinity School, Syracuse, N. Y., under the learned and eloquent Bishop Huntington. After charges in New York, the last of which was at Jordan, N. Y., where he was rector from 1900 to 1904, organizing a parish and building a church, he became the vicar of St. Timothy's, Eighth and Reed streets, Philadelphia. After this experience in institutional work in a down-town church, he became rector of St. Luke's, Bustleton, in 1909. His success in this last parish was quite unusual, his organizing gifts were signally manifested, and he showed great capacity for winning the friendship of the men of the community. In June, 1908, he married Miss R. Ethel Whidden, the only daughter of Maria S. and the late John Bender Whidden, of Philadelphia.

The Rector considers himself unusually fortunate in securing as an associate a man of Mr. Keable's ripe experience, and unusual pastoral gifts. He wishes him to be considered by the congregation something more than an assistant in the sense in which the excellent young men who came to us fresh from theological seminaries are considered assistants, and that the congregation should regard him in the true light of a minister associated with the Rector in his work, and entrusted with a large measure of responsibility in the administration of the various activities of the parish. It is a hope and belief that this new addition to our staff will be an element of great power in extending our work.

The wife of a minister is not part of the official staff, but she is, nevertheless, an important factor in his work, and Mrs. Keable has been such an invaluable assistant to her husband in St. Luke's, Bustleton, that we hope she will find a field for her activities in St. Stephen's, also. The congregation, we are sure, will give them both a most cordial welcome. Invitations will go out in the course of a week to a banquet to be given to Mr. Keable by the men of the congregation, on Wednesday, January 19th.

Christmas at St. Stephen's is always associated in my mind with Dr. and Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell. They always made a point of inviting the Rector's children to their Christmas tree. Just before his death Dr. Mitchell took a long walk with the Rector after the church service. As they strolled along the subject turned on the Doctor's own religious beliefs, which he said were definite and strong. At the same time he owned that religion was such a personal matter that the reasons which were convincing to one man might seem to have very little value to another.

Being asked whether Sir Charles Bell, the great surgeon and Christian, had any modern successors in his preëminence both in science and religion, Dr. Mitchell spoke of Sir James Paget, and recommended his biography as a work of great merit. Many other things were said which are not suitable for publication, but the whole conversation was full of suggestion and stimulus; so it can readily be seen that the return of this season necessarily brings back to mind the great place which Dr. and Mrs. Mitchell had in our regard.

Miss Frances Fisher, one of the members of the congregation, has compiled, at our request, some local references from Dr. Mitchell's novels. We think that the congregation will be interested in them.

On the North.—Race or Sassafras—called Race because of the races held there. Mulberry—later known as Arch, because of the arched bridge crossing it. High—now known as Market.

On the South.—Chestnut—in the early days known as Wynne street. Walnut street. Spruce street, Pine street, etc.

Beginning at the River.—Dock Creek—now Dock street, Front street and numbered streets running out to Broad street. From Broad street to the Schuylkill and from Callowhill to South street was the Governor's Woods.

Cliveden and Mount Airy, where one could see "the range of hills beyond the river, where lay Valley Forge and Whitemarsh." The little old house at Belmont "looking over the trees to the quiet Schuylkill." "Woodlands," near Lower Ferry, the country seat of James Hamilton; the yellow and white mansion standing on a hill above the river. To-day it is a cemetery. Bartram's Gardens: The beautiful home and grounds of the famous botanist, John Bartram, extending from the Schuylkill to the old Darby Road. The mansion and some of the rare plants and trees may still be seen to-day.

Blue Bell Inn.—A tavern on the old Darby Road. It was passed by Hugh Wynne when he journeyed that way to join his army.

The Indian Rights Association—The Armstrong Association—The Legal Aid Society.

Many members of the congregation doubtless often receive circulars and appeals from these three organizations and I wish to say a word in regard to my connection with them. Soon after I came to Philadelphia I was invited by my friend, Mr. Herbert Welsh, with whom I had become acquainted down in Virginia, to join the Executive Committee of the society of which he is the founder and chief spirit. Having been always interested in the protection and advancement of backward and dependent races I accepted the position and eventually became the president, with the Honorable Joseph Choate as honorary president. At one time the work of the Executive Committee took much time, but it is now on such a basis that this society does not need much attention from me. Having gone out to the Indian country two summers ago, I have gained sufficient insight into conditions to be able to keep up with affairs by reading our office reports and attending the monthly meetings of the Executive Committee. I may go out next summer to inspect another section of the Indian country. Problems created by the growth of a sense of racial solidarity in peoples and by racial antagonisms are some of the most serious of the problems before the Church and before the State. My association with this philanthropic society has taught me much. Such a voluntary and independent society is absolutely necessary if the Christian conscience of our Nation is to make itself felt in the administration of Indian affairs. The Indian Rights Association is a National organization.

My second important extra-parochial organization, the Armstrong Association, is entirely local in its nature, but the problem that it seeks to help to solve is perhaps our most serious national problem. Named after General Armstrong, the founder of Hampton School, this Philadelphia organization endeavors to help the Philadelphia negroes to establish themselves on a sound economic and industrial footing. My interest in the amiable and backward colored people has been lifelong. A son of the Border States, I have known from childhood something of their feelings, and their difficulties. At the instance of Dr. Frizzell, I became the president of this association in my third year in this city. I know no society that does a larger work in proportion to the capital and labor expended. The chief burden of responsibility is borne in this organization by Mr. John Thompson Emlen.

The Legal Aid Society is an organiation to give free legal advice to the poor. We require, it is true, a small fee of 25 cents from each applicant for counsel, but we do not think that such a small pledge of good faith deprives us of the right to call ourselves a society giving free legal assistance to the poor. The office is 34 S. 16th street. There the Society's salaried attorney gives legal advice freely to needy, perplexed people involved in legal difficulties, in the same way that a medical doctor gives advice to the sick at a dispensary.

At the annual meeting we have been thanked by an employer for our just handling of claims for damages, and as the appended report shows we render aid to cases sent from many societies.

These three societies represent my chief activities outside of the parish. I am examining chaplain on the first 300 years of Church History, but otherwise I hold no diocesan office of any significance. I have never put my church lists at the disposal of these societies, holding those lists as sacred trusts to be used only for the Church's work. I hope, however, if any appeals from these societies come to any members of the congregation that they will be carefully read. I publish herewith a brief statement of the purposes of the Indian Rights and Armstrong associations, and the November office report of the Legal Aid Society.

The Indian Rights Association was organized in Philadelphia, December 15, 1882, as a result of a visit of Messrs. Henry S. Pancoast and Herbert Welsh to the Sioux Indians, by about thirty gentlemen, who met in response to an invitation from the late Hon. John Welsh—

"To take into consideration the best method of producing such public feeling and Congressional action as shall secure to our Indian population civil rights and general education, ... and in time bring about the complete civilization of the Indians and their admission to citizenship."

The object of the Association, as defined by its constitution, is "to secure to the Indians of the United States the political and civil rights already guaranteed to them by treaty and statutes of the United States, and such as their civilization and circumstances may justify."

The Association has over one thousand members and contributors, and expends annually about $9,500. The strength of its work has been the direct study of facts, gained by sending representatives to the Indian reservations for that purpose.

Its formation was really the outgrowth of the invitation of Bishop Hare to Messrs. Pancoast and Welsh to visit the Sioux Indians and learn of the conditions under which the Red Men were living. Speaking of its work, Bishop Hare said:

"The Indian Rights Association as a free and independent society has given to the cause of Indian rights disinterested ability of a high order. It has brought to light hidden things of darkness. It has made officials feel that they were under the public eye. It has made ears attentive to cries for help which otherwise had been deaf, and it has given faithful officials the reward and help of knowing that they would have in all their right measures strong public backing. Without it the friends of the Indian would feel that by definite, earnest effort they could accomplish but little and were beating the air."

Another distinguished observer, Hon. Joseph H. Choate, in referring to "its very excellent work," states:

"Everybody knows how badly the Indians have been treated for generations, and certainly this unhappy remnant is entitled to be looked after and defended, as no other organization that I know of can do so well as the Indian Rights Association.

The influence of the Association has steadily developed from the beginning, and its accurate and extensive knowledge of Indian affairs is generally recognized by officials of the Government, and others. Within two weeks after his inauguration, President Wilson gave a hearing to a delegation from the Association regarding the appointment of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

The Association has the unique record among philanthropic organizations, of never having been in debt during its existence.

The Armstrong Association of Philadelphia is working in a practical way for the 100,000 colored people in and about the city.

There are three kinds of social work—ameliorative, preventive and constructive. The giving of alms is ameliorative. The care of defective and dependents, etc., is an example of the preventive. The development of economic opportunities and of education are examples of the constructive. It is the aim of the Armstrong Association in its work with the colored people, on account of the great and pressing needs of the race to deal as much as possible with the constructive.

Public meetings are held among both colored and white people to educate them in the needs of the colored race and the importance of this kind of work among them.

During the fiscal year of 1914-15, the Armstrong Association helped 583 persons to secure jobs, or placements, amounting to $63,253, an increase over 1913-14, from 455 in number and $39,920 in amount. During the past two months, October and November, the number was 288, as compared with 115 in 1914, and the amount $9,429, as compared with $7,890 of 1914. These figures show a very healthy increase. The industrial secretary is constantly seeking new opportunities for skilled workers, and the $63,253 worth of jobs were for 25 different kinds of work, and though the larger number is unskilled, a very large amount—$51,653—was for contracts. The following young colored men are now working as apprentices: 4 carpenters, 2 plumbers, 2 electricians and 2 painters and paper hangers. The figures show large increase but do not at all indicate the full amount of work secured by colored mechanics through the Association this year, because when a man has once secured a customer through us, he goes to him direct.

Education used in the broader sense is so vital that the Association has employed a Home and School Visitor to give her assistance in making the largest school attended by the colored children in Philadelphia at 16th and Lombard streets, an experiment station and a model of what may be accomplished. She made about 1,000 visits last year, and has established a Working Women's Club which meets regularly, and which held its annual meeting in the spring in Witherspoon Hall. She held an educational demonstration attended by 3,000 persons, at which the Baby Saving Show was exhibited, and also arranged for Thanksgiving and Christmas festivities and managed the Clean-up Week Campaign, helped with the Fresh Air Class, and is now engaged in endeavoring to raise $6,000 for a Model Housekeeping Center. The spirit underlying all these activities is to make the school as much of a community center as possible for the parents and to interest them in the school and give them faith in it.

The Association had charge of the Model Fourth of July celebration held at the school last summer, at which about 2,800 men, women and children were present.

A club of colored girls attending the High School has been formed by our Employment Secretary. They meet regularly twice a month, on Saturday afternoons. Those who wish it are coached in any subject in which they are deficient in the school curriculum. Through our office some have been able to secure work during the summer vacation, or at part time, while they are at school.

Investigations into existing conditions, for their practical improvement, are held each year by the Association. Last year one of our workers visited 41 towns in the suburbs of Philadelphia, studying conditions of living among the colored people. The inquiry was into the housing conditions, opportunities for work, education, churches, time and distance from Philadelphia, etc. All this should be of great practical value to colored people wanting to know where they can best settle.

The Association is about to start another investigation into the number of different kinds of business conducted by negroes in Philadelphia.

The Association has been instrumental, with a number of other agencies, in conducting a Round Table Conference for Work among Colored People in Philadelphia. Over 25 organizations working for colored people are members of this Conference.

Among those on the Board of Management of the Association are: Dr. Carl E. Grammer, president; John T. Emlen, secretary and treasurer; W. W. Frazier, Bishop Levi J. Coppin, Chas. H. Brooks, Dr. Roswell C. McCrea, Dean of the Wharton School of Finance; Roy Smith Wallace, and J. Henry Scattergood.

Harrie B. Price, Treasurer.

The United Offering appeals to you for help in the last year of the triennium.

In the last two years $425 was contributed, and the Board of Missions hope the contributions will be very much larger than ever before. I would like to hand in $500. This amount could be easily reached if every contributor would make the effort on this twenty-fifth anniversary to double her gift, as it must be laid on the altar on the day appointed by the General Convention for that purpose.

Sincerely yours,

ANNA J. MAGEE.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The third meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Dec. 16th, when twenty-six members were present.

Mrs. Ralph H. North, Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering, was the speaker and made an earnest appeal for more women to join in making this offering, which may be one expression of our thankfulness.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, Jan. 20th, at 11 o'clock.

We have also received from good old Santa Claus, his usual gift of shoes and overshoes for the poor children. Now is the time they need the overshoes. Many that came for shoes last week were almost without a sole. It is impossible to imagine the condition of many of the children's shoes. Thanks, dear old Santa Claus. What would we do without you? May you have a very Happy New Year is the wish of all St. Stephen's poor little children.

Given out in December, 22 pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of overshoes.

Rector's Letter.

MY DEAR PARISHIONERS:

The month of January, in which the seasons were so curiously mixed, was full of pleasant occurrences. On the feast of the Epiphany, Mr. Keable officiated and preached for the first time in St. Stephen's as the Associate of the Rector. On Saturday, the 15th, a tea was given at the rectory by Mrs. Grammer in honor of Mrs. Keable, and the eight young ladies studying at the Church Training and Deaconess' House, who attend St. Stephen's. Invitations were sent to all the ladies of the congregation who belong to any of the societies which are made up exclusively of St. Stephen's people, and to the officers in the more general organizations. The gathering was large, but it is feared that through carelessness of the mails, or through inadvertence some invitations may have failed to reach the proper persons. The invitations were intended to be general.

On Wednesday, January 19th, at 6.45, the Men's Banquet in honor of Mr. Keable was held at Dooner's Hotel. The Rector acted as toastmaster, with Mr. Keable as the guest of honor at his right, and Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, the Accounting Warden, at his left.

Grace was said by the Rev. Charles E. Milnor, one of the clergymen who has done us the honor to select St. Stephen's as his Church home.

Mr. Milnor is the grandson of one of the most eminent rectors and leaders that the Protestant Episcopal Church ever possessed, the Rev. Dr. Milnor, for many years the rector of St. George's Church, New York. As I sat near Mr. Milnor at the banquet I could but recall that my grandfather, William Sparrow, as an undergraduate in Columbia College, New York, attended Dr. Milnor's Church, and learned under that great Christian lessons of the spiritual life that as Professor of Systematic Divinity and Dean of the Theological Seminary of Virginia he handed on to such men as Phillips Brooks, of Massachusetts, and Alfred Magill Randolph, of Virginia. Strange indeed and far-reaching are the ties that bind us together in one great web, or perhaps I should more Christianly call it one great brotherhood or household. It means much to me personally that I, Dr. Sparrow's grandson, should have the grandson of Dr. Milnor in my congregation. Some time I shall take pleasure in telling the story of Dr. Milnor's remarkable conversion. He was a member of Congress from New York when the light from on high shined upon him, as he meditated on the great themes of man's destiny in the comparative quiet of his rooms in a hotel. It would be interesting to know how many men have turned from the National Legislature to the pulpit as a more efficacious instrument for founding the Kingdom of God upon earth.

The banquet registered our high-water mark in attendance. Eighty-four of us sat down to a dinner that was a revelation of the Messrs. Dooner's kind feeling towards St. Stephen's as well as of their well-known culinary art. Between the courses songs were sung by Dr. Anthony and Mr. Manypenny, accompanied by Mr. Thunder. After a few words of greeting the Rector introduced Mr. Keable as our new Associate and a brother whose praise was throughout the diocese.. Much moved by the friendly welcome of the men who rose in his honor, Mr. Keable made an address that drew the whole company to him by its simplicity, directness and earnestness. His especial appeal was for more workers among the men, and there were clear tokens before the evening closed that his words had not fallen on unheeding ears.

After Mr. Keable, the Accounting Warden, Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, was called on for some remarks. Mr. Ewing is a Vestryman and Warden of large experience and his commendations of the spirit of St. Stephen's have special weight and authority. He brought us the agreeable news that the amount contributed to the deficit had now reached $5,250, and that the number of the contributors was eighty-one. This wide distribution of interest and generosity is particularly gratifying.

The Rector's Warden, Mr. Roland S. Morris, was introduced as the sole surviving member of the committee that had extended the call to the present Rector. After some pleasant reminiscences of his trip to Norfolk and his personal ties with the Church, Mr. Morris paid an eloquent tribute to the former rectors of St. Stephen's, who, each in his day and according to the needs of his generation, had lifted up the standard of righteousness and borne onward the banners of truth.

That a new voice might be heard, the Rector then called on Mr. Randolph Sailer. A Princeton graduate and a lawyer, the sudden call did not find Mr. Sailer unprepared. It was inspiring to hear him speak of the pleasure that he had in the new association with the old Church and of his desire to coöperate in our activities, whose number and variety had greatly impressed him.

Mr. Craig Atmore then spoke of his relations to St. Stephen's, and pointed out that this banquet, in addition to its social features, served the purpose of stimulating the loyalty of all the attendants and arousing them to more zeal and fidelity. He also reminded us that while the Church has its problems, business men also have their problems. At this time these latter problems are particularly heavy, and never was the Church more called on to minister to the spirits of men than in these trying days. The last speaker was Mr. Walter C. Douglas, whose participation in the prosecution of a certain cleric living in the Northern Liberties, who has taken so very much liberty, was referred to by the toastmaster. Mr. Douglas made a very witty speech that excited a great deal of merriment by its admirable parrying and effective, yet kindly, thrusts. A very happy evening closed at a wholesome hour. Everyone agreed that the occasion had been an auspicious inauguration of the activities of 1916 and of Mr. Keable's associateship. Mr. H. H. Barton, Jr., who first brought Mr. Keable and myself together, acted as the treasurer of the committee in charge of the banquet, and, aided by Mr. Carrigan, made all the arrangements.

On Thursday, January 27th, the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at St. Stephen's. The gathering was large, and, as an experiment, the attendants were allowed to get their lunch at some restaurant near by. This arrangement permitted variety in the lunches and saved a great deal of trouble. It ought to be explained that the plan was the choice of the Diocesan officers of the Auxiliary, and was not the suggestion of the Auxiliary of St. Stephen's. The organ was played at all the services by Mrs. Keable. Her excellent playing was much appreciated, as well as the service of the faithful choir.

So much by way of record of our parish life.

Let us now turn to the tasks and interests of February. The astrologers would say that a month which began with the four glorious planets of Jupiter, Venus, Saturn and Mercury as evening stars auspicated many good things for those lighted by such resplendent luminaries. Whether it be the influence of those great planets or not, all our skies are just now bright and the rainbow of hope is seen without any background of cloud or rain. One little cloud in our sky has been the indisposition of Miss Lewis; but she took a week's vacation at the solicitation of friends in January, and I have required her to take another week of rest, beginning with Monday, the 7th, in February. Our faithful parish visitor who lives for others must not be allowed to neglect her own health.

Such of her work as can be given to visitors for a month or so, will be entrusted to Miss Margaret Fuller, who has come to us to render some social service under the guidance of the Church, while her parents make their annual winter trip to Florida. Miss Fuller has done much social work under extra-ecclesiastical societies, and now wishes to add to her experience a knowledge of our Church's methods. My friend of college days, Bishop Israel, of Erie, has commended her most warmly to me. It is very generous in Miss Fuller to present her services to our Church, and I hope that we can give her opportunities of rendering help to others and gaining profitable experience for herself.

A special appeal is here made for additional aid in the Benevolent Society. Workers who can cut out garments are greatly needed. Owing to the illness of a number of its members the Society was somewhat handicapped in January. This efficient organization sent out during the past year over 6,000 garments to 17 hospitals and homes. A society that diffuses abroad so much blessing is one of the glories of St. Stephen's and must not be permitted to languish in any department. Instinct with energy, animated with a spirit of concord and wisely guided, it is a society for which to be grateful. It offers a most attractive field of work.

Last November Miss Helen Leighton offered her resignation of the superintendency of the Burd School. The burden of this great responsibility she wished to lay down in order to take up some work whose administrative problems were not so onerous. The task of inspiring the young with ideals has always been particularly attractive to her. While she administered the finances of the Burd School with ability, she nevertheless desired a somewhat different work. After due deliberation the Rector and Vestry accepted Miss Leighton's resignation. The responsibility of selecting her successor has been distributed. The Board of Lady Visitors was asked to suggest a name to the Vestry, which if approved, it would nominate to the Rector for his appointment. The will of Mrs. Burd explicitly states that the superintendent is to be appointed by the Rector on the nomination of the Vestry, and we were scrupulous to carry out the directions of our founder. The Board of Lady Visitors, after careful consideration, presented to the Vestry the name of Miss A. V. Morgan, of Phoenixville, Pa. Her credentials satisfied the Vestry, who nominated her to the Rector at a called meeting . I at once informed Miss Morgan of her appointment and am much gratified that she will take charge not later than February 9th. A member of the Episcopal Church, an administrator of large experience and approved ability, Miss Morgan comes to us with high testimonials as possessing a rare combination of gentleness and force. We believe that she will be a mother to these girls and a systematic administrator of this great trust.

For the first time in all my ministry I am going to take a midwinter holiday. On February the 14th, Mrs. Grammer and I will set out for Florida to spend a clergyman's week of twelve days at Ormond on the west coast as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Moore. Two years ago we were invited by these kind friends and parishioners to take this trip at this season, but at that time the Confirmation visitation of the Bishop fell early in Lent, and it was impossible to leave. This year, however, everything is propitious. The spring Confirmation will come after Easter, which will be as late as April 23d, so that this absence will not interfere with the gathering together or instruction of a Confirmation class. I have in our associate, Mr. Keable, a clergyman of experience to take my place. The three and a half months during which I conducted the parish without an assistant have proven a heavy drain on my vitality, and some change and rest is judicious. This delightful outing with congenial friends in scenes of great beauty ought to be a splendid preparation for Lent and should give me new energy for my tasks. I am anticipating the greatest refreshment and joy in it, and trust that I may bring something of exhilaration and cheer back with me.

In December the Vestry decided to have some of my Sunday morning sermons stenographically reported that I might publish those sermons whose message seemed of general value. The first of these sermons, "Ill Chosen Guides to a Mistaken Goal," has been distributed in our pews, and mailed to the clergy of the diocese, and to our theological seminaries. The sermon entitled "Ministers, not Priests," will be published shortly. The sermon on the true nature of our Confirmation office will also be printed and distributed. Others will follow, and it is hoped that in this way the message may be spread abroad. One of the great causes of unbelief, not the greatest, for the chief spring of doubt is selfishness and sin; but one of the greatest of the contributing causes is the identification of Christianity with the thought-forms that were created by its union with Greek and Latin civilization, with mediæval feudalism and with the prevailing ideas of the 16th and 17th centuries in the North of Europe. Christianity is something deeper and more vital than any one form can express. To identify it with the Catholic Theology, or the mediæval teachings of Aquinas, or the Thirty-nine Articles is a mistake.

> New occasions teach new duties
> Time makes ancient good uncouth.
> They must upward still and onward
> Who would keep abreast of Truth.

As the sun must loosen the soil from the iron fetters of frost before spring verdure can glorify the fields, so the bonds of dogmatic finality must be burst before the energy of the Spirit of Light and Love can produce its proper developments in the Christian Church. May St. Stephen's help to bring in this more genial and fruitful era by liberating us from bondage and making plain the new insight into the old Gospel.

Before I close I ought to say that the Sunday school, the work among boys and young men, the chaplaincy of the Burd School, and so to speak the chaplaincy of the Mothers' Meeting, and Girls' Friendly, and the editorship of the PARISH NEWS have all been turned over to the competent hands of Mr. Keable. He is studying conditions and will doubtless have some plans ready for promulgation in our next issue.

This letter is already too long, or I should send some special message to the Shut-in members of my flock. They may be "shut in," but they are not shut out. They are in the mind of God. It may be that death itself can alone break their chrysalis state and set them free, to wander through God's great universe—but they are not shut out of the Master's service. They also serve who only stand and wait. Many a wanderer has been brought home by the knowledge that some patient "shut in" was pining for his return. More things are wrought by simply letting one's light shine, by bearing one's burden, than the restless busybodies of life can ever realize. A little child often leads the aged, and many a patient, aged hand, feeble and trembling, has saved a little child. Youth has its promise and age has its testimony. Let us be patient and trust that God doeth all things well and maketh all things work together for good to the loving and the trusting.

Your friend and rector,
CARL E. GRAMMER.

DEAR DR. GRAMMER:

Enclosed please find check for twenty-five dollars, from members of St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society for the deficit fund for repairs to the church roof. The girls wish to do what they can to help in the work of the parish, and it gives them much pleasure to send this contribution.

Very sincerely,
GRACE V. S. LUCAS,
Branch Secretary.

January 3, 1916.

Acknowledging a Box.

To-day I have your letter and box containing articles named and they are so pleasing, I do thank you and your Society so much for the nice way that you have helped us out. I would much rather have you select my whole wardrobe at all times were it possible. You have been so kind in trying to please us that I feel that we have known each other long ago. I must say Philadelphia is well termed "The City of Brotherly Love."

While in school a Miss ———, of Philadelphia, paid my tuition and board a whole term. I lost trace of her but am ever grateful to her, and often wish she could know it, but there's no way I suppose other than to help save some others.

I helped three of my own family in school since then and a sister is taking sole care of my baby sister ever since mother's death five years now, which she probably could not have done had I not sacrificed for her.

Now I have five boys and one girl to live for; beside the burden of my husband's work is on me heavily as I learn the pitiable condition they are in.

These people are extremely poor, being in this cotton section and for two years have had the saddest of times for food and other necessities of life. Instead of being able to pay my husband the promised dues they often get him to loan or give to them. This he could not refuse to do where suffering was in sight.

This same crisis has caused my husband to almost lose his farm which is now under a heavy mortgage of $1,400. We prize the little farm because it would be just the thing for the boys to develop later in life.

Please pardon me for turning inside out to you, and thank the ladies of your Society for all the good done us in our time of need. Hoping that God may ever give to you that you may be ever richer for the giving and able to help the needy always, and again thanking you for kindness only God can repay, I am,

Gratefully yours.

Church Periodical Club.

A clergyman in Alaska has written: "The worst thing about living and working out here is the being out of touch with the great world, outside, its work and thought, sociological, political and religious. And this narrowness affects the whole point of view of people here. It is the magazines and other periodicals, with their articles, pictures and advertisements, which to some extent put us in touch with the outside world, remind us that we are not the only spot on the face of the earth, and direct our thoughts into other channels. Very likely a magazine that is sent to Nome ultimately finds its way all over the Seward peninsula, traveling from road house to road house, where travelers are often marooned by blizzards for days, and from cabin to cabin, giving pleasure, information, and, perhaps, inspiration to many persons, sometimes being literally read to pieces."

The Church Periodical Club is a society organized to provide reading matter for those who are unable to obtain it otherwise. The Librarian for St. Stephen's will tell you what to do with your magazines after you have read them.

Annual Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The annual all-day missionary meeting of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held in St. Stephen's, Thursday, January 27th.

Holy Communion was celebrated at 10.30, and a sermon was preached by Rev. Harrison B. Wright, of St. Asaph's, Bala. The day was then given to five thrilling addresses by men who represent very different fields of mission work. Rt. Rev. Paul Jones, Bishop of Utah, spoke of the work among the Indians. Dr. R. B. Tensler, of St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo, Japan, made a wonderful address which could not fail to convert those who are indifferent to Foreign Missions. Rev. Robert W. Patton, of the American Church Institute of Negroes, told of the eight different institutions which this organization supports to educate the negro. Rev. John M. Chattin, of Quakertown, Pa., spoke on rural mission work. He ministers to fifty communicants, only a few of whom speak English, in a district the size of the Diocese of Rhode Island. The Rt. Rev. Nathaniel S. Thomas, D.D., Bishop of Wyoming, told of the problems and progress of his work among the Indians and the whites of the isolated mining towns.

The usual offertory at these annual meetings is about $200. This year a sum of $778.09 was collected. This fund will be devoted entirely to missions.

Our new associate's wife, Mrs. Keable, played the organ and organized and directed a choir for the day of members from the various churches in the diocese.

It was a most inspiring and gratifying day. The church was well filled all day and we feel sure if more women of our own congregation had been present, St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary might be increased in membership.

The King's Daughters have sent a donation of $2.00 to Miss Ella Lucas, of Eheart, Virginia, towards building an Industrial School for Crippled Children. They are now busy sewing and knitting garments to be sent to hospitals and day nurseries during the Lenten season. They will have their next meetings February 2 and February 16, in the Guild Room of the Parish House, 8 o'clock. Visitors and helpers gladly welcome.

Shoe Fund.

Donations received from—

Miss M. E. Schaeffer	$1 50
From those receiving shoes	3 85
Total	$5 35
Expended for shoes	1 25
Balance	$4 10

Have given out in January 12 pairs of shoes and 11 pairs of overshoes. Perhaps some of the congregation may have some wide partly worn shoes. Many of the women would be so glad to get them on account of their softness. They rest their poor, tired feet. Any sent to the Parish House marked for Shoe Fund would be very acceptable.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

There were thirty members present at the January meeting when Rev. S. Harrington Littell, of Hankow, China, made an address. The next regular meeting will be held in the Parish House, Thursday, February 17th, at 11 o'clock.

Found.

A Friendship bracelet was found in the church recently. Owner can secure the same by applying to the Verger.

Life's School.

Lord, let me make this rule,
To think of life as school,
To try my best
To stand each test,
And do my work,
And nothing shirk.

If, weary with my book,
I gaze with wistful look
Where posies grow,
O let me know
That flowers within
Are best to win.

Those lessons thou dost give
To teach me how to live,
To do, to bear,
To get and share,
To work and play,
And trust alway.

Some day the bell will sound,
Some day my heart will bound,
As with a shout
That school is out,
And lessons done,
I homeward run.

Rector's Letter.

MY DEAR PARISHIONERS:

The record of February includes no special services or celebrations. The late Lent gave us a lengthy Epiphany season, and the societies of the Church have taken advantage of the prolongation of this period between the joyous celebration of Christmas and the numerous services of Lent to settle down to steady work. The Benevolent Society has been taxed to its utmost capacity to meet the calls from the hospitals. The Mothers' Meeting has rejoiced in the interest of the Associate and in the continued strength and efficiency of dear Mrs. Taylor. The Girls' Friendly is adjusting itself to its various problems, and continuing its good work. Among the boys, Mr. Keable is planning and feeling his way towards the best lines of work. In the Sunday school his presence and experience are also being felt for good. With Dr. Anthony's cordial approval, the music of the Sunday school will henceforth be under Mr. Keable's entire charge. So much for administration and Church work.

Some of our friends have felt that St. Stephen's has not advertised its services sufficiently, nor used printers' ink liberally enough in various ways. Through their liberality Mr. Keable is enabled to get out a Sunday leaflet for distribution in the pews. Its pages contain the words of the offertory anthems, and various announcements, as to weekly services and meetings. It is difficult to take in correctly the various details of such announcements, when they are made orally from the Chancel. The memoranda can now be taken home and kept for reference. The devotional tone of the service is more readily preserved by reducing the announcements to a minimum. The subjects of the Morning and Evening Sermons are also published in the Saturday papers with noticeably good results. Better even than these methods of the office is the personal work that some of our members have been doing to bring people to our Church. Happy is the Church where the people have a mind to work. An eager heart can always find its way to the desired goal. The service of love does not exhaust, but cheers and refreshes and therefore can be counted on to last longer than service of any other kind. Let it be reinforced by a sense of loyalty and strong faith in the cause, and a threefold cord of the strongest character will be plaited.

With Lent the Ladies' Aid Society will begin its sessions on Fridays to sew for the poor. Miss Lewis relies on this society to help her out in providing young mothers with layettes. The Mission Study class will also meet—the time to be determined later—with Mrs. Addinell Hewson as the teacher. Mrs. Hewson has attended one of the normal courses and it is with much pleasure that we turn this class over to her for instruction. I hope that it will be large and faithful.

In another place the noonday Lenten services and preachers are given in full detail. We are fortunate indeed in securing again old friends, whose messages have proven so helpful in former years. Bishop Williams of Michigan, Mr. Melish of Brooklyn, and Dr. McComb, now a Canon of the Cathedral in Baltimore, but associated in our minds with Dr. Worcester and the Emmanuel Movement, which, by the way, he is now extending to Baltimore, are all speakers who have secured their own audience in Philadelphia and will be certain of large congregations. The other two speakers are Dr. Bowie and Dr. Calkins. The Rev. Dr. W. Russell Bowie of Richmond, is the rector of the chief church, in many respects, of Virginia's historic capital. A speaker of unusual grace and facility, he has preached before Yale University, and at the annual Conference of the Associated Charities of the United States. He recently declined a call to one of the largest churches in Baltimore. Dr. Raymond Calkins, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, is a Congregationalist minister whose message has reached many hearts. He has been praised highly by Bishop Rhinelander who knew him during his own connection with the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge and has given his canonical consent to Dr. Calkins' preaching in our pulpit.

These services are intended for all men, urbi et orbi, so far as we can take hold of this whirling orb, but they are also parish services. Their popularity with the congregation has made any other Lenten services impossible in St. Stephen's. We hope that the congregation will help to spread abroad in them an atmosphere of worship and religious earnestness. They are not meant as religious diversions, but as tonics and strengtheners of the spirit of self-dedication to God's will and service.

The trip to Florida was full of refreshment and instruction for Mrs. Grammer and myself, and the reception that the congregation gave us on our return in the large attendance on a snowy Sunday, and the cordial greetings afterward was heart-warming, and spirit-quickening. It was good to stand again in our quaint old pulpit with the people to the north and the south and the west, and talk about the things that are true, and character forming, the truths that give life meaning and are the deepest source of our belief in immortality. I am glad that I am privileged to serve in a church that was built for the preaching and the hearing of the Word, and not chiefly for architectural effects, for the creation of vistas, and exquisite cross sections, and above all for stately ceremonial functions. Let our church be filled with a listening congregation and I envy not the minister of the most historic fane on earth where Echo, like a pagan deity, wars against the gospel of peace and love, and pillar after pillar, like irremovable pre-conceptions, prevents a clear view of the gospel-messenger. It was good to visit the land of the citron and the vine, where the flowers ever blossom and the beams ever shine. But it was also good to return to the land of the chestnut and oak, where bracing winds invigorate the body and worthy tasks and high enterprises call us from self-indulgence and sloth to do battle for the King of kings.

Speaking of battle and high enterprises naturally turns my thoughts to the problems of our beloved Church. It would argue either blindness or indifference if we did not realize that those who love the Protestant Episcopal Church must bestir themselves if she is not to lose her Protestant character. A determined effort is making to alter the tone and emphasis in her service ,and to re-cast our Protestant organization into a medieval mould. The Sacramentarian view on almost every subject except the Infallibility of the Pope, is essentially Roman Catholic. Our Catechism says the Sacraments are two, the Sacramentarians adopt the Roman Catholic definition of a sacrament and increase their number. It makes no real difference whether the theory be Transubstantiation, Consubstantiation, impanation, or the presence of Christ's body be defined as "hyperphysical, super-local and ineffable," all these theories making Christ's abode not the human heart through the spirit of truth, but in some mysterious way attaching Him to the elements, are all, so far as any practical difference goes, one and the same theory. They all function in the same way. Their difference is as insignificant as the difference would be between those who held that the agent was a Brownie and those who favored a Fairy as the explanation of the rising of yeast in the days when such phenomena were ascribed to supernatural agencies. All these theories make the participation of Christ physical and not spiritual. Fasting reception is emphasized and the benefit being conceived of as conferred magically, religion is subtly divorced from morality. Witness the saying of the great modernist Tyrrell, that "a life of very average morality, with frequent sacraments, is more pleasing to God than a life of heroic morality without the sacraments." Witness too Italy and Spain, with their reverence for the sacraments and their low moral tone. I might go on and point out doctrine after doctrine, now being taught in our Church that so far as its practical effect is concerned, functions exactly like the Roman Catholic doctrines. But space forbids.

These sacramentarians have been wisely tolerated by our laws; but they have been mistakenly and slothfully allowed to remain unanswered in our teaching without having the true nature of their system disclosed and the irreconcilability of their dogmas with the Fatherhood and Love of God duly pointed out. The result of this intellectual unpreparedness and mistaken pacificism in teaching has been the growth of this school among our clergy, though, thank God, there is still only a small minority of the laity who really adopt their fundamental principles. To the clergy, however, this system offers many great bribes of power and authority and for their feet it sets many strong and dangerous traps. Many, alas, unwarned have been captured. The siren voice is ever sounding forth from the Living Church and many have listened to the seductive strains, that we occupy the only middle way of safety —alone possess the truth of the gospel in an organization that can bestow sacramental grace, and belong to the only Church that without claiming Infallibility has never erred.

Organized as they are in Catholic Clubs these Sacramentarians have elected many bishops of their own school, and are now endeavoring to alter the Constitution of the Board of Missions as a rebuke to that body for its most limited and conservative participation in the Panama Conference. Unless the Protestant element can organize and see that men of Protestant convictions are elected to our next General Convention, we may expect that the movement defeated by a narrow margin in Cincinnati will be resumed and crowned with complete victory. Our flag of Protestantism will be hauled down. The Church will lose its Protestant title, our governing boards will be filled with Anglo-Catholics and the process of recasting our formularies into a more Catholic pattern will begin. At the end of this road lies ruin. Alarmists are naturally looked on as bores by lazy and short-sighted people. But there is abundant teaching in Scripture that it is the duty of the watchman to warn the city. The end of the prophets who prophesy, Peace, peace, when there is no peace shall be confusion and shame. Alarmists are not out of place, if the danger is real, and attack is imminent. The action of three Provincial Synods in thrusting from the Board of Missions three prominent members who voted in favor of sending delegates to the Panama Conference shows that the fight is on. It is time that the Protestant element awake to the reality of the situation. We need anticipate no disaster if we arouse ourselves fully and at once. Aesthetic considerations, love of novelties, desire for excitement, have led many people to try these new ways and teachings, but at heart they are Protestants and when the true nature of this Sacramentarian teaching shall be made plain they will rise up and save the Church, and we shall be disclosed to the world in our true character as a Church holding fast by the essentials of the gospel and delivered by the Protestant Reformation from the accretions and perversions of the Legalistic and semi-Pagan Middle Ages—not unchurching others who do not adopt our rites and ceremonies, but content to claim simply that we enjoy as well as others the fullness of our Father's love and care. The contest is a duty; and rightly waged it should be a means of grace. There is no need of personalities or personal animosities. The people who differ from us are honest and consistent and are seeking to advance what they regard as the truth. Let us, too, be honest and consistent and valiant for the truth. God has set us in the lists to fight out this issue and may he give the victory to the larger truth and the most faithful interpretation of the mind that was in Christ Jesus.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Shoe Fund.

Cash received from those receiving shoes	$3 50
Expended for shoes	2 75
Balance	75

Many thanks to the kind friends for their partly worn shoes, Mrs. H. I. G. Mink, Miss Bertha Walshe, and a very nice box with no name on, thanks to all. Given out in February, 16 pairs of shoes and 12 pairs of overshoes.

There has been a great demand for overshoes this year and I am sure Santa Claus would be very hapy if he could see the admiration some of the children bestow on them, it is quite funny, almost every one has had a pair and some of them two pair, for it is remarkable how quickly they wear out.

King's Daughters.

Donation received to help with their work $5.00 from Mrs. Ross Miller, who is now living in Brooklyn, but wishes to help in the work of the Circle of which she is a member. The next meetings of this Circle will be March 1st and March 15th, in the Guild Room of the Parish House, 8 o'clock.

The Woman's Auxiliary

The February meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was given to reports and letters and election of officers for the ensuing year. The incumbent officers were re-elected with the addition of Mrs. Keable as delegate to the Diocesan Committee. The next meeting will be held March 16th in the Parish House at eleven o'clock. The speaker will be Rev. C. F. Reifsnyder, president of St. Paul's College, Tokyo.

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

I can hardly realize that the third Sunday in Lent has passed. Easter, and the Confirmation Visitation of the Bishop, which will come this year on the Sunday after Easter will soon be upon us. The first meeting of the Confirmation Class was held at 8 o'clock on Friday, March 24, and the class will meet on the successive Fridays hereafter till the Confirmation, with the exception of Good Friday. We began with five, and I shall be disappointed if we do not reach 20, at least, in spite of the fact that we had a Confirmation in the fall. It is a sign of humility and not of self-sufficiency to be confirmed. The self-sufficient do not realize their need of Christian fellowship, and of a public avowal of allegiance to Jesus Christ. It is the lowly in heart, the humble, the meek-spirited and yet aspiring, that turn to Jesus as a Captain, and seek to be enrolled in the sacramental host of his followers. Confirmation comes every year as a great recruiting season, and the call it sends forth is, Who is on the Lord's side? May many answer that summons to a decision.

Our envelopes run from Easter to Easter, and the committee in charge will soon be sending out the new cartons. We ought to have at least 300 faithful users of this system. I should like everyone connected with the Church to coöperate with this plan that enables us to put some conscience and system into our giving. Those who have returned their envelopes faithfully will receive a package without any inquiry. Those who have only used the envelopes occasionally will be asked, by a circular letter, whether they will not endeavor to be more constant in their use. Envelope-users who have changed their residence are requested to inform me or Mr. Keable, or Mr. Van Dusen of their new address. Some faithful givers accustomed to this system send a lump sum to cover the Sundays that they are behind. It would be a great saving of trouble in such cases if the money were distributed by the giver in the various pockets. Suppose a man has been absent five Sundays and sends $5.00 with the last envelope, or with all five envelopes. Does he wish that money distributed into all the ten pockets, 50 cents on each side, or does he wish it to go for the offering announced on the day he puts the bill in the plate, with his envelopes? The treasurer of this fund, with his co-worker spends hours keeping the records of these envelopes and dividing up our gifts according to the various objects to which they are contributed. Everything possible should be done to lighten their tasks. Let each one distribute his gifts into the various pockets. I hope that we shall have many new names on our lists, and that more of our members will agree to contribute in this systematic way. To be an envelope-user is a title of honor, and a sign of real cooperation and fellowship in service.

Lent has brought us many helpful lessons; the noon-day services have been well attended, the preachers have delivered messages of beauty and power. Let us endeavor to live up to the high level of these great appeals. To whom much is given, of him shall much be required. For two weeks I have been obliged to be absent most of the week-days delivering Lenten addresses in other cities, but I look forward to being in St. Stephen's from this time on without interruption, to attending the noon-day services and to preaching myself during Holy Week.

On my journey to Charleston I had a most interesting experience. When I went into the dining car, the head waiter placed me at one of the small tables, where I was joined, when I had nearly finished my dinner, by a stranger, with whom I soon entered into conversation. He was a business man on his way to Florida for a much needed rest. Not more than five weeks back he had lost his mother and sister. Though he was seeking a change of thought and scene, he evidently found it a relief to unbosom himself freely to a perfect stranger. His mother, about whom the talk began, seemed to me such a remarkable woman, that I asked him to join me in the observation car, and tell me more about her after dinner. To this he agreed, and we sat together till 10 o'clock while his heart unburdened itself to me. Each of us sat wrapped in a thick veil of anonymity, in a kind of confessional box. Never shall we see or hear one another again, our paths are wide apart, our spheres of activity very different, our respective names unknown. I trust that he derived some comfort from my profound interest in him and that some of my counsels or words of sympathy and fellowship may prove helpful to him. I for my part can never forget his earnest face, and the powerful and troubled nature that was revealed to me as the train tore its way through the darkness of the night.

Most of all shall I remember his mother. Truly the world knows nothing of some of its noblest spirits. Her husband was the captain of a merchant ship, a Scotchman by birth, and a man of thorough efficiency and high character. His square-rigged ship made voyages from America to Calcutta and various East Indian ports. At one time it visited Archangel in Russia. The wife accompanied the husband on these voyages, and had her children with her, till the son who told me the story reached the age of thirteen. On board ship she kept the children about her, that they might not talk too freely with the sailors, directed their studies and shared their various interests. A profoundly religious woman, she had family prayers. On Sundays she conducted a religious service. In fact, she undertook the general pastoral care of the crew, nursing the men who fell sick and had to endure her husband's crude therapeutics, and making for them presents for distribution at Christmas. On one voyage she converted by her example and teaching an unusually rough crew of 14 and brought them into a new life. Her husband was a man of high probity and sterling sense, but he was not a member of any church till late in life. He recognized his wife's superior religious endowments and supported her in all her ministrations. It was plain, as her son talked of her, that she had been an incarnate conscience and a revelation in the flesh of the Divine compassion and tenderness to her family and the ship's crew. Later on the captain gave up the ship and entered into business with his accumulated capital. In this new kind of navigation, where he had no Mercator's projection on which to chart his course, and his ability to calculate the latitude and longitude was of no avail, his enterprise came to shipwreck. Undaunted by disaster he tried selling an encyclopedia, as a book agent; but as he confessed to his son, he seemed to have no gift for commerce, since he only sold one copy, namely, the one he bought himself, so he betook himself to the management of men in a ship-building firm. Here his gifts of command had a suitable field. He rapidly rose to the top and obtained a splendid salary. He had died some years before leaving his wife and daughter a comfortable competence. The wife continued on shore the loving ministrations that she had rendered others on shipboard. The inmates of a hospital near her home became her special charge, and she used to work all year to present each of the 140 occupants of the beds with a present on Christmas day. She always had a special tenderness for the poor street-walkers, whose painted faces only excited her tender longing to help them. "God is sorry for them," she used to say, and she would ask them to take a cup of tea, and would talk kindly to them. She was of New England stock, and belonged to the Congregational Church. After her death, her son found in her desk the diary that she kept when a girl. Profoundly was he stirred as he read how she recognized that she was not beautiful; indeed, she counted herself homely, and in entry after entry noted that she must not allow herself to imagine that the attentions of this young sailor meant anything serious. So she kept guard over her heart, and sought, loving and tender-hearted though she was, to exhibit that reason and self-control that should mark the children of the Ruler of the Universe.

Wonderful and sacred did this gracious woman stand before my imagination as her son talked of her. Poor son! He had married in a moment of impulse a woman of quite a different character—a wife who wanted to drown his soul in hogsheads of strong drink, and preferred to the celestial harmonies of a religious home the clatter and revelry of roysterers. Happiness had been impossible for him with such an enemy of all his ideals, and mocker of all his holy aspirations. At last he had torn himself away, and besought the law to grant them a separation from a union into which he now believed that not God but the devil had yoked them. Pending litigation he was fleeing southward for rest, for change, for peace. But the image of his mother went with him. To her his speech returned again and again. I joined with him in her praise. Truly she was one of God's saints. Think of her journeying round the world with her husband and children, taking all these chances of disaster and disease. The latter was no slight peril. On one occasion smallpox broke out on board and half the crew died. The only physician was the captain aided by some medical book compiled for such rough practice. There was she by his side nursing, praying, consoling and cheering. Think of her shut up with her little ones in the narrow ship with those rough men, hearing their loud voices as they came aboard after their sprees on shore, daring their scorn and ribaldry as she revealed her inmost soul in tender appeals to their higher nature, sharing with them, in all the perils of the storm, of the rocky headland, of the treacherous bars of the dangerous flotsam on ocean's shoreless streams. With no spiritual guide but her Bible, and the Spirit of God, with no Sunday services in a hallowed church, no sacramental rites, she managed by diligence in private prayer, and by Bible-reading and Christian service to keep her lamp trimmed and burning, and was able to make a merchant-ship a traveling house of worship and sacred shrine of devotion.

I judged from what her son said that her managing husband, even when they came ashore still ran the housekeeping largely. Her influence was clearly not derived from unusual efficiency as an administrator, nor did I hear anything that indicated that she was intellectual or witty. She was simply a deep-hearted spiritually minded, loving woman in whom the Spirit of God dwelt richly. The whole creation groaneth and travaileth together until now, writes St. Paul, waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God. This heroic and loving woman was surely such a manifestation in her day and generation.

Her influence is still the prevailing force in the life of her son. Scarred though he is by a fiery trial like a fruit tree that the lightning has struck and deprived of some of its branches, her son is still a noble and helpful man, and will, I doubt not, in his career be a source of blessing to others.

He has a lofty sense of truth and honor. His business standards are high. In this department of life he has made a success and established himself on the solid basis of unswerving rectitude. His mistake in the case of one woman has not driven him like many weak men, to the desperate conclusion that all women are false and faithless.

His mother's son has inherited ideals and beliefs that will enable him once again to take hold of life, to take root downward and bear fruit upward. May many sons in my Church look back upon mothers of a like faith and devotion.

Yours cordially

Carl E Grammer

From May 15th to June 10th, the "Philadelphia To-day and To-morrow Civic Exposition will be held in the Commercial Museum Building, West Philadelphia. This Exposition will be a collection of exhibits by many diversified agencies engaged in work for the betterment of the city. Application has already been made for space for an exhibit from St. Stephen's, and we hope to visualize some of our work. This is not for the purpose of "boasting ourselves," but for the interest and instruction of the people in general. They need to be shown that a church like ours, that is in the very heart of the business section of the city can be, and is, both inspirational and institutional; not only alive to the deep things of the spirit, but alive also to the everyday needs of man. And so we shall plan to show some of our Religious, Educational, Benevolent, and Social activities.

The Associate will gladly furnish information to anyone about our plans, and will be pleased to receive contributions towards defraying the cost of booth, transportation of exhibit and photographs, etc.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There were twenty-five members present at the March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Rev. C. F. Reifsnyder, president of St. John's College, Tokyo, Japan, made an address. St. John's was opened four years ago.

It now has 807 students, sixty per cent. of whom are Christians. There is a campaign going on to raise $20,000 in Philadelphia for new buildings.

The Auxiliary voted $25 and a special gift of $25 was given by a member to the fund.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, April 20th, at 11 o'clock.

Kiushiu, S. Japan,
21st June, 1915.

My dear Miss Washington:

Thank you very much for your kind letter, and for Postal Order which subsequently arrived, to provide the food in the Leper Hospital of the Resurrection of Hope on St. Stephen's Day, for St. Stephen's Church in Philadelphia.

I am glad to be able to tell you that the 26th December had not been previously appropriated. You mention in your letter that one lady had suggested 15th April as an alternative, and perhaps it may interest you to know that the lady who has until this year provided the food on 15th April writes that she is no longer able to do so. Hence that date also is now open for the first time if anybody wishes to appropriate it. I know only too well how great the demands are on all sides, and our resources are suffering very much indeed from this terrible war.

Everything is going on very well at the Hospital. I think it may be of interest to those who contributed the ten dollars for St. Stephen's Day to know that a fine, handsome, young man called at the Hospital recently. No one recognized him. He had been a former patient, and was sent out cured seven years ago. He is still quite well, and is acting as an official on the railway. This is one of the cases where the patient came in time, and had youth on his side. It is most cheering for us, and a great encouragement to go on trying to overcome this most subtle and degrading disease.

We are now in the midst of the rainy season, when things are very damp and warm.

With renewed thanks, believe me,
Ever sincerely yours,
H. Riddell.

Note.

Miss Washington has five dollars toward the ten necessary for St. Stephen's Bread Day, 1916, and as soon as the fund is complete will forward it. F. B. K.

The Christian Year.

With Advent we the year begin,
Prepare the way for Christ the King.
Christmas sees in manger laid,
Jesus in swaddling clothes arrayed.
Twelve days more the Epiphany star
Leads us like wise men from afar.
Ash Wednesday's fast begins our Lent,
Forty days in prayer are spent,
Good Friday sees Christ crucified,
For one and all the Saviour died.
Easter! the Lord is risen to-day,
From the grave the stone is rolled away.
Ascension Day, the Ascended Lord
Is to his home in heaven restored.
The Holy Ghost on Whitsunday
Came down from heaven on earth to stay.
On Trinity the heavenly host
Praise Father, Son and Holy Ghost.
Twenty-five Sundays yet remain
Till Advent comes around again.
In these we're taught that we must do
The truths of God, as well as know.

CHRISTIAN BURIAL.

"Ah, no! The universe is not a dream;
This life is not a fragment cast aside;
Each is a part of the eternal scheme,
By which a better life to this is tied.
Departed spirits do but soar above;
The lost on earth, the dear ones whom we love,
Wait till we stand, uprisen, by their side.

"O blessed promise, which the Saviour gave,
Thou fillest us with rapture, ever growing;
Thou shinest over every loved one's grave
On which our sorrowing tears are sadly flowing.
Thou guid'st our weary souls along the road
That leads us heavenward, through faith, to God,
And to a union which no end is knowing."

Rector's Letter.

The Parish Meeting was held on the first Wednesday in May, and the reports are published in this issue. It is hoped that they will be generally read, for they are full of encouragement. We have had a good year together. A number of new and energetic members have joined us, and there are many signs that the Church is addressing itself to its task with renewed energy. Mr. Keable has brought to us an administrative energy that is bound to tell. The exhibit that he designed and placed in the Exposition of Philadelphia To-Day and To-Morrow is an indication of his resourcefulness and energy. No one should fail to look it up when he visits the Exposition. Our booth is very near the little Chapel. The Lenten services were not quite so well attended as usual, probably in consequence of the number of new churches in our vicinity that have taken up the custom of Lenten services at noon. The addresses were, however, of an unusually high order.

As I look back on the Lenten addresses of the first years it seems to me that there has been a distinct advance in quality.

I plan to be in residence during July, when Mr. Keable will take his well earned holiday. In June, Mr. Keable and I will divide the duty. I have promised to deliver some addresses at a kind of Summer Theological School in Virginia in that month.

Now that the Garrick theatre services have closed on Sunday night, there ought to be room for a night service at St. Stephen's. I am going to attempt it this year. The afternoon service will not be abandoned, unless it becomes evident from the diminution in the attendance that it is not needed. We shall simply add a night service of an informal character, beginning at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Keable will help us out at the organ, and volunteer singers are solicited. There will be one lesson, some prayers, many hymns and a sermon of a practical or hortatory nature. Constant experimentation is the condition of progress. Such a service ought to gather in people from the downtown hotels and boarding houses if well advertised. From Broad street to the Delaware, there are in this central section of the city only a few churches open on Sunday night. In the large space between St. Jude's and the Nativity at 11th and Mt. Vernon, and St. Peter's on Pine street, St. Stephen's and St. Andrew's are the only Episcopal churches.

The Farm will open as usual in the middle of June—on the 17th, to be exact—with Miss Dale in charge. The formal opening has been discontinued for this season. The people who attend this opening are now fairly well acquainted with the Farm and it seemed more judicious to omit an entertainment that required Miss Dale to begin her residence earlier than was necessary. It may be that a party of the contributors may be gathered together to visit the Farm near the first of July and see the Farm in operation, and not merely in a state of preparation. The day of the Sunday school picnic would be an excellent time.

On March 1st a number of clergy of our Church, from various dioceses, met in the Parish House of Holy Trinity and organized "The Church League" of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. Randolph Harrison McKim, D.D., LL.D., was elected president and Dr. Floyd Tomkins and Dr. Herbert Shipman were elected vice-presidents. An Executive Committee was also chosen, and I was elected chairman of the Publication Committee. In another place in this issue I print the Declaration of the League. Anyone can join by sending his name to the Rev. Chas. W. Shreiner, 4708 Kingsessing avenue, Philadelphia. A contribution of a dollar at least would be acceptable.

The need for an organization to maintain the Protestant character of our Church will be seen from the existence in our churches of such extreme Romish usages and teachings as are revealed in The Chronicle of All Saints', Dorchester, Boston, Mass.

"At the close of the Eucharist there followed a Solemn Procession of the Blessed Sacrament from the High Altar to the Altar of Repose in the Lady Chapel. The procession was made up as follows: Cross, torches, banner, choir, cross, lights, banner, forty girls in white dresses and veils carrying flowers, crucifix, lights, acolytes, thurifer and boat bearer, the Celebrant in cope carrying the Blessed Sacrament, attended by the Deacon and Subdeacon vested in dalmatic and tunicle. The choir and the girls completely filled the Lady Chapel and the adjacent aisle with a kneeling host in white, through the midst of which passed Our Lord in His Sacramental Presence—all the while the choir and congregation singing the pathetic and soul-inspiring strain of the ancient and ever-glorious 'Pange Lingua.' The Sacred Host enthroned, the girls approached two and two and placed their flowers in a large vase upon the Sanctuary step, leaving them there, a beautiful floral offering to their Lord in the Sacrament of His love. The Altar of Repose was more than had been anticipated in its really regal splendor. Mr. Crump and Mr. Nichols, of Shreve, Crump, Low & Co., had sent as an Easter offering to All Saints the loan of a thousand dollars' worth of wonderful fabrics, candlesticks, and a unique and costly repository. Palms, rose trees and roses and carnations in great profusion added their charm and beauty. The writer has seen wonderful sights in churches in all parts of the world, but he has never seen anything more beautiful than the sight in our Lady Chapel as the Sacred Host passed to the Altar throne waiting for its reception. The devotion of the people was intense; several were moved to tears; all were thrilled by the reality of the Sacred Presence. The splendor of the scene was but the outward expression of the deepest devotion of heart and soul of the entire congregation. All day burned the fifty lights—all day burned the hearts of the devoted souls as they maintained the watch with their dear Lord. Large numbers spent some time there—priests, acolytes, faithful women, devout men, dear children—and some, the whole time. At the close of the day the Vespers of the Blessed Sacrament was sung. The general consensus of opinion expressed has been that nothing has ever done more to deepen the spiritual and devotional life of the people of All Saints than this Maundy Thursday with its unusual and very great spiritual privileges."

The worst feature about the ritualists who introduce such services into our Church is their strenuous determination to alter our formularies, and mould our rites and devotions according to this pattern. I should not care much for these extravagances of Latin theology and devotion, though I think them out of place in a Church that definitely rejected them. The great trouble is that this school does not understand toleration and is steadily working to foist its eccentricities on the whole Church. With great difficulty does the Communion office keep the service of mass out of the private chapels of some of our sisterhoods. We shall witness an assault upon the Communion office at the next General Convention. Sacerdotalism is not content to rest itself upon texts and ancient usages and upon such a logical and rounded system as it can fashion; it longs for Church authority and definite dogmatic instruction set forth in emphatic official utterance. It is this inner spirit and temper of the sacerdotal school, as well as their flagrant partiality for medieval usages, that has necessitated the formation of the Church League. It must be brought home to people that our Church cannot grow, if she allies herself with the obscurantists, the medievalists and the believers in the divine right theory in government, either of Church or of State. God has called us unto liberty, and it is only in an environment of liberty that truth can manifest itself and character develop.

It is hoped that those of our number who travel westward this summer will not fail to inform themselves of the conditions of the Indians. The chat of the travelers in the railroad car and of the people who are trying to exploit the Indian must not be taken as the whole truth. He who carries out with him no general principles on which to string his facts, can never learn wisdom by merely moving about and picking up current reports.

I ought to add that the Church will not be closed on any Sunday this summer, that the Sunday school will continue its sessions and that the Daily Vacation Bible School will be held this year, if the requisite money can be secured. The amount needed is $175. For several summers almost the whole sum has been contributed by one person. It is hoped that many contributions may be secured before the first of June.

"And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified."

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Report of St. Stephen's Benevolent Society.

The Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church had their first meeting at the Parish House, October 28, 1915, and opened the session for cutting and giving out work Wednesday, November 3d, with a good attendance.

The Society has done work for the Pennsylvania Hospital, the Episcopal, Jefferson, Presbyterian, Howard, Hahnemann, Church Home for Children, St. Timothy's, Woman's, Chestnut Hill, Presbyterian Orphanage, West Philadelphia Hospital for Women, Home for Infants, Children's Homœopathic, Southern Home for Destitute Children, Woman's Medical College Hospital, and Germantown. We also did a little sewing for St. Stephen's Farm, making in all seventeen. They all acknowledge the receipt of the garments when they are returned, and the superintendent of the Presbyterian Hospital wrote: "We enjoy dressing our infants in the pretty slips so beautifully made." The superintendent of the Home for Infants wrote: "It is a pleasure to know my babies are so well cared for." When we think of the comfort that is given in the hospitals by these well made clothes, not only to the children, but the grown up men and women patients, we feel it is worth while to spend one morning a week in the Parish House.

Our number of articles is much smaller this year, only 4,781; but this does not mean that the Society is not so prosperous, but there has been a great deal of illness, making us often six or eight short, and Mrs. Atmore, one of our most faithful attendants, has been at Atlantic City all winter with a member of the family who was not well. Three of our women sew so much better that instead of giving them sixteen towels or dusters to hem we give them three nice garments. We do not regret losing in our count when this is the cause.

There is one thing I should like to mention before closing. It is rather unusual for about fifty women to spend a morning together every week for nearly six months and for me to be able to say in all the years I have been in the Society I have never heard any gossip. We work so hard that we have only time to say good things about each other, and when we look back and remember that we have had such women as dear Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Cleemann in our Society our standards should be high.

Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary has held the usual seven meetings of the season, with an average attendance of 25 members out of 122 enrolled; 11 new members joined the Auxiliary during the year, and it was constantly hoped that all the women of the Parish would show an interest in the work of extending missions by coming to these meetings and actively aiding in the support of the workers at home and abroad. They would thus have learned at the October meeting of the good influence exerted by the Daily Vacation Bible School held in the Sunday School building and taught by Miss Charlotte Nodine during six weeks of the past summer, and would feel that St. Stephen's was doing practical service in sheltering children from the hot and dusty streets and teaching them truths from the Bible and elements of citizenship while also instructing them in useful manual labor. This work will continue during the coming summer, and Miss Ella Headman, treasurer, is ready to receive contributions for it at any time.

In November, Archdeacon E. Thomas Demby, of Keeling, Tennessee, spoke of the work among the colored people in Tennessee, and was given $25 for Hoffmann St. Mary's Industrial Institute, of which he is superintendent.

At the December meeting Mrs. Ralph H. North, diocesan treasurer of the United Offering, made an earnest appeal for this thankoffering from women, as the Triennial Presentation would be made in 1916. The full statistics given showed an annual increase, and when the time arrives for the convention the amount will probably be still more augmented. Only ten dollars were given out of the treasury of the Auxiliary, as so many members contribute individually through the treasurer of the Parish.

On January 30, Rev. S. Harrington Littell, of Hankow, made a stirring address on the subject of the crisis in China and related many incidents of work among the Chinese in the missionary districts, all bearing on the opportunity now open, and the wonderful strides made by the Chinese toward self-support and self-government, Mr. Littell himself now being an assistant to a Chinese priest, the two having exchanged places since the formation of the Chinese church.

A week later, on January 27, the annual all-day missionary meeting of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at St. Stephen's, and a large attendance was present at both morning and afternoon sessions. After the celebration of the Holy Communion, the Bishops of Wyoming and Utah, Dr. Teusler, of St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo, Rev. Mr. Patten, of the Church Institute for Negroes, Rev. Mr. Chattin, of Quakertown, Pa., and Rev. Harrison B. Wright, of Bala, all made addresses. The choir was organized by Mrs. D. D. Wood and Rev. Mr. Keable and the organ played by Mrs. Keable. The service was inspiring and profitable to all, and the substantial sum of seven hundred and seventy-eight dollars was added to the cause of missions.

The election of officers, reports of committees and letters read, filled the hour of the February meeting, and in March, Rev. C. F. Reifsnyder, president of St. Paul's College, Tokyo, spoke eloquently and affectionately of the Japanese and of the educational and Christian work carried on in the midst of Buddhism and Shintoism, there being 807 students in the college, of whom sixty per cent. are Christians.

The final meeting was held on April 28, when a long letter was read from an Indian reservation and reports were heard, and, among them, it is a pleasure to record that of the Mission Study Class made by Miss Frances McCollin. A deepening of the spiritual faith is an inevitable result of the study of missions, and the Mission Study Class is one of the greatest factors in enlarging the horizon of thought, faith, love and prayer among those who have been privileged to attend a class regularly and under a competent leader, and St. Stephen's is fortunate indeed in having Mrs. Addinell Hewson to lead the class this year.

The delegates to the Pennsylvania Branch of the Auxiliary have been faithful in attending the monthly meetings at the Church House and bringing back accounts of extended work and many, many appeals. Would that all could be answered, but the treasurer prudently keeps a small balance on hand and reports having expended $693.50, divided among the different committees and in payment of necessary expenses. The Missionary Box Committee, United Offering and Church Periodical Society also report at the monthly meetings of St. Stephen's Auxiliary. Coincident with their effort to contribute to the various pledges, first toward those which count on the apportionment and then for further extension, to specials, all these women who work also pray, and prayer brings forth more love, more service, more gifts, and all are offered in His service and in His name.

Respectfully submitted,

LAURA BELL.

Report of the United Offering.

It has been written that the year 1916 will be a wonderful year in the history of the world. Why not make it a wonderful year in the history of our United Offering? The Emergency Fund has been completed; other receipts have been increased, and 425 more parishes than last year have met their apportionments. The women of the church can easily crown it all with a very large increase in their triennial offering. Why not? It is our only fund raised by women for women. It is a fund highly valued by the Board of Missions, and the only one in hand before it is spent, and yet after a life of more than twenty-five years, the United Offering is sufficient for the support of only 180 of the 300 women workers, and every year the Board is obliged to appropriate at least $50,000 from the general fund for this purpose. Truly this ought not to be. The last year of every triennial of the United Offering takes on the nature of a "Special." If every woman will give a special thought, a special prayer and a special gift, we shall come wonderfully near the fulfilment of the ideal, and the aim of our Thank Offering.

Annual Report of the Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's Church—1915-1916.

The Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's Church opened its meetings on Thursday, November 4th, with 145 members on its roll. Of these we have lost five by death, and seven by removal or similar causes, while we have had an increase of fifteen permanent new members.

We regret to say that our meetings have not been so well attended as they have in some previous years, our average being only from 68 to 70 members. But when we consider the great amount of illness which there has been everywhere this winter,—all attendances at all society meetings being smaller than usual, we feel that we only share in the common lot, and that we should feel thankful that our meetings have been so interesting as to bring out so many tired women each evening as they have. Our members have been interested and, we believe, happy in the meetings, both in the devotional and entertainment periods. We have had very good entertainments this winter; kind friends have come and helped us at almost every meeting. We have had singing, recitations, readings, lantern pictures with talks, Victrola concerts and chalk artists. Our gratitude is due and is given to those who have given us of their time and talent.

On the 2d of December we had our annual sale, from which we realized, together with the collection which Dr. Grammer had taken for it, about $150.

We record with grief the death of Mrs. Louisa Leutschg, Mrs. Magdalena Krimmel, Mrs. Josephine Wagner, Miss Bella Bucknor and Mrs. Mary Ahtes, all faithful members, some of them for many years.

The Mothers found their usual summer happiness in St. Stephen's Farm, which is to them not only a joy but a living interest, as they are always working for it; the object of their sale this winter was to raise money to assist in improving the Farm. Several members of the Mothers' Meeting spent a week or more at the Farm this summer, and 110 spent a happy day there; Thursdays being "Mothers' Day" at the Farm every week during the summer; from 15 to 18 going up for a jolly outing which no one wishes to miss.

On account of illness, Miss Adelaide Wallace, the treasurer of the Beneficial and Savings Funds, and our accompanist, was unable to be with us for several months, and Mrs. F. B. Keable very kindly acted as her substitute, to the complete satisfaction of everyone.

The members to the number of 22 used the Coal Savings Fund.

We feel that God has blessed our work this year as in the past, and pray that He may continue to do so.

Girls' Friendly Society.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society held the first meeting for the season, 1915-1916, on Monday evening, October 4th. At that time Dr. Grammer spoke to the members on the subject of "Cultivating Good Judgment."

In November we celebrated with both pride and pleasure the coming of age in the Branch of our faithful and very helpful assistant treasurer.

At Christmas we again entertained the mothers of the members, and for our Christmas work we prepared and sent forty-four large and well filled stockings to the children of the Philadelphia Hospital; twenty-two dressed dolls and toys to St. Martha's House; a number of postal albums, strings of postcards, scrap books and envelopes of paper dolls to Bishop Theodore Payne Thurston, of Oklahoma, and scrap books to the Municipal and Children's Hospitals. A particularly gratifying letter of appreciation was received from Bishop Thurston, telling of the great pleasure the bright pictures had given the Indians, most of whom cannot read.

On January 24th, the Branch celebrated "G. F. S. Week," carrying out a delightful program which our own literature associate had assisted in preparing and which was used by branches in all parts of this country. We hope to make this observance of "G. F. S. Week" an annual occurrence, as it is designed to further the extension work of the Society and to establish branches in parts of the United States where the need for this work is urgently felt. The weekly suppers continue to be one of the most enjoyable features of our Branch life and hearty thanks are due to the girls who so cheerfully give their services in preparing and serving them.

Successful classes in millinery and elocution have been held each week from November to May.

The Married Branch Helpers met weekly during Lent and continued their work for the Hospital Magazine Guild.

On January 31st, Mrs. Anna B. Scott, cooking expert and food economist, gave a most interesting and helpful talk and by a practical demonstration illustrated how cheaply, but healthfully, the noonday lunch for wage earners could be prepared.

On April 17th, Dr. Edward C. Kirk, dean of the School of Dentistry, University of Pennsylvania, gave an illustrated lecture on "The Teeth and the Care of Them."

The Branch now has a membership as follows:

Members	120
Honorary members	22
Married Branch Helpers	44
Working Associates	6
Total membership	192

Of this number 73 are Senior members and 22 Married Senior members.

To be admitted to a Senior membership a girl must have been first a probationer and then a member in good standing for five years from the time of her admission as a regular member.

The Chancel Committee consists of nineteen members who have conscientiously performed their duties. During the months of July, August and September a few members of the Girls' Friendly Society took charge of the services on Sundays. The articles made in the past year for St. Stephen's Church were two Credence Cloths.

The secretary of the Chancel Committee reports for the Memorial Flower Fund that all the Sundays in the year and many of the Saints' days have been subscribed for. Members of the Girls' Friendly Society placed flowers in the Wilkins memorial window at Easter, a loving tribute to the memory of Miss Maria Wilkins, who for many years was secretary of this Society.

ANNA E. EISENBREY.

Report of the Burd School Women Visitors.

The Burd School is visited and inspected at least once a week by the Women Visitors, who take this duty in turn and usually go two together.

Our object is to help the superintendent, Miss Morgan, with sympathetic interest, and to encourage the children to cultivate habits of neatness and order which, if acquired in youth, become a second nature, and in womanhood add greatly to acceptability and usefulness.

Our inspection is general, but we have divided ourselves into groups with particular interests. One has its attention directed toward the sanitation of the place and the health of the children. This group is particularly interested in the food supply, the kitchen, dining rooms, bath rooms, dormitories, and the abatement of the fly and mosquito nuisance.

The educational group is particularly interested in the children's school records, the girls' vocational training, and in the sewing room, the library and the study room.

The recreation group hopes to find the means to furnish the little girls' play room prettily and suitably and to brighten and wisely direct the children's recreation hours.

We are pleased with the marked improvement already manifested in the condition of the interior of the buildings, and have prayerful hopes that the title of Burd School Graduate shall mean a woman prepared and trained to enter and take her part creditably in the world's work and interests.

Respectfully submitted,
E. A. BROWNE,
Chairman, Committee of Burd School Women Visitors.

St. Stephen's Aid Society.

St. Stephen's Aid Society, a Lenten organization, held its meetings as usual on Friday mornings during Lent in the Parish House. The object of this Society is to provide baby garments to be distributed by Miss Lewis in her work among the poor of the Parish. Although an earnest appeal was made for new members it met with little response and we began the season somewhat handicapped in this respect. The few members, however, made a strenuous effort and the result is a closet as well filled as in other years. We wish to acknowledge the coöperation of the King's Daughters and to thank Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Atmore and Mrs. Mink for their generous contributions. Thanks are due as well to Mrs. Holman, who procured the loan of an excellent machine which greatly facilitated the work. Two hundred thirty-five articles were made.

During Lent the Circle has been sewing for the Aid Society. About 75 garments have been made and given away during the winter months; and the president feels that—considering the few members we have—we have done very well.

Santa Claus gave his usual contribution of two large boxes of shoes and one large box of overshoes. Many partly worn shoes were sent in by members of the congregation, so that we were able to provide shoes for all who applied. About 225 pairs of shoes and 100 pairs of overshoes have been given out. It seems strange, but the children appeared to be particularly pleased with the overshoes this year, and would carry them home, for fear of wearing the shine off. One little girl asked if she and her brother could come next year.

Church Periodical Club.

There are three functions of the Church Periodical Club:

(1) The sending out methodically of the magazines we have read and are willing to pass on to missionaries, teachers and shut-ins. This is done by the regular members of St. Stephen's Branch, this year numbering 28, who have loyally mailed 1,264 magazines to 57 recipients, in regular order.

(2) The gathering and distributing of magazines of all sorts, not complete years, going to hospitals, libraries and reading rooms of mission stations. About the same number have contributed to this work, which is financed by our associate members and special contributions. One thousand one hundred and fourteen have gone out by mail or local express, to 23 reading rooms or social workers who distribute.

(3) Collecting books for clergymen in the mission field, Sunday schools, etc., either sent to them individually or in the United Effort Libraries, which go from the Diocese in boxes of 500 each. This work has not grown as the other two branches have, as we have sent but 76 volumes.

The magazines have been mailed or otherwise delivered to receiving points ranging from the Galilee Mission, our neighbor four squares away at Ninth and Vine streets, to St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo; and between these we have intimately reached friends in Georgia, Hawaii, Honolulu, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, Montana, Tennessee, Texas, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

Our financial receipts from all sources were $22.14, with expenditures in cash of $21.89. The intangible receipts are the new friends we have made and the inspiration received from their letters, which more than balance the credit side with the daily thought and time expended.

ELIZABETH H. SMITH,
Librarian for St. Stephen's.

Parish Visitor's Report.

Another year has passed so quickly that it is hard to realize that it is really gone. It has been so rich in good deeds and generous giving by St. Stephen's people, whose work for God goes on year by year, continually and indefatigably.

"Comparisons are odious," the old saying declares, yet I cannot forbear thinking—(although I may not say it) that there is no Parish in Philadelphia that helps the poor more or responds more spontaneously to the necessities of others than does St. Stephen's. Love of God and the Brotherhood of man seem to be the key-note of action.

Several years ago we had three dear little girls, in whom we were very much interested, and we were forced to place them in the hands of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, as the mother's failings were of such a character she could not be trusted with them. Good homes were given them in the country, with people whom we knew, and they have responded so nicely to the care and attention given them, that they are a great credit to the ones who had them in charge. Their mother would like to have them back with her now, but according to last reports she had not improved and was not capable of having them with her. The Parish Visitor keeps in touch with them.

We had four tubercular cases this year and four paralytics to whom we have ministered. We have eight women to whom we give a certain sum each month if they are too ill to work or are unable to secure work.

A widow with six children and two other widows with two children each are being looked after. We were hoping they would receive help from the Mothers' Pension Bureau, but that is impossible just now.

We distributed 22 tons of coal which were given to us by Mr. Wm. Hollar, Mrs. A. Hewson, Mrs. A. S. Tourison and Mrs. Walter Douglass.

Milk is being sent out daily to sick people, and groceries have been distributed: for these we are indebted to our very good and generous friend, Mr. Samuel Moore.

Layettes for twenty-five poor little babies were made by St. Stephen's Aid Society during the Lenten season.

Miss Gebhard's yearly memorial of twenty-five dollars helped us in many ways. One very important and good act was done with it, by buying a brace for a poor woman who had broken hers and could not afford to buy another.

Fifteen lovely new double blankets were given to us by Mr. Howard Reifsnyder and were distributed to those who were most in need of them. All who received them had been obliged in very cold weather to use children's and men's coats, or anything they could find for additional covering to help keep them warm, so they were very grateful for their wonderful gift, and they all join in sending their warmest thanks and appreciation to the donor.

One dozen new grey sweaters were received, the gift of Mr. Elwood C. Gowdy, an unknown friend. We send him many thanks for his generous gift.

S. Dannenbaum's Sons and Company, having moved their place of business to Nos. 930 and 932 Market street, the rear of which is very close to the rear of St. Stephen's Church, wrote to us, saying they had a lot of kindling wood, which they would gladly send to any of our poor we named, living within ten squares of their place of business. We were very grateful for this offer, as well as the recipients.

On Thanksgiving Day eighteen families were remembered by receiving groceries or some other necessity. One woman wrote as follows: "I now have two sick children with bronchial coughs, and one of my children's eyes got so bad I had to get glasses for him, which cost me $4.70, and their medicine was extra. I could not get my own prescription filled, so I made flaxseed and lemon for my cold but it seems no better. I saved two of the lemons and said, 'If I had enough sugar I would make a lemon pie.' I used the sugar that you sent in the basket and we had our pie. If I only did not need so much medicine and eggs, it would not be so hard for me. Please accept my best thanks. This is the first time I have ever received any help and I trust after this winter is over all will be well."

Within four months we have buried four friends, whom we have been caring for. One was a man who had been ill for fifteen years and confined to his bed for five. Another case was a blind woman to whom Mrs. Weir Mitchell was extremely kind for a long time, and since Mrs. Mitchell's death, Dr. Grammer has been quite willing that we should carry on her good work as far as we possibly could.

The last one was an old woman, eighty-three years of age, who lived alone in a dark, miserable room for nineteen years, but seemed perfectly happy and thankful for her many blessings "in her declining years," she used to say. Mrs. A. Brunner's gift of money helped us greatly in making those people comfortable, and we were able to do much for them that we could not have done without her help.

One hundred and forty-five Christmas baskets were sent out and a very beautiful thought of Mr. Howard Reifsnyder's was carried out by placing a bunch of flowers on each basket. They were thoroughly appreciated by all who received them. One woman, who was very fond of flowers, told us she had loved and nursed them so fondly, that a few of the sprays lasted three weeks.

Mrs. Austin's donation of Christmas toys furnished presents for all the Infant class and the little children were made very happy. As we had sufficient without using Mrs. Colket's gift of $5.00, it was saved for a special picnic in the summer.

We owe Mrs. Fell a debt of gratitude for timely influence in getting dear Miss Burley placed in the Home for Incurables as a boarder, at a moderate price. Miss Burley has been one of our charges for years, being an invalid, without relatives and a fixed home. Let us all hope that she will find happiness there.

The Dancing Class, formed for the older boys and girls of the Sunday school, and for members of the Girls' Friendly, was much enjoyed by the young people. We had a very good teacher in Mr. Techlenberg, and it was supervised by the Parish Visitor. The class was self-supporting, as all who attended were very willing to pay fifteen cents each to defray the expenses of teacher and pianist.

Visiting the Sunday school scholars, the sick, the hospitals, the discouraged, as well as the regular routine duties, have made up the year's work.

The Parish Visitor wishes to thank the donors for the gift of half-worn clothing, and for all the favors which have been received.

It is beyond her power to express her appreciation for the kindness and sympathetic help she herself received from her many friends in the congregation when she was ill.

Respectfully submitted,

K. H. Lewis.

The Past Year in the Sunday School.

Having been present at St. Stephen's Easter Carol Services for the past thirty years, it seems that they grow "sweeter as the years roll by." Never have the carols been more joyously sung, than on last Sunday afternoon, April 30th, in the church, the Primary department quite excelling all previous efforts. Though we sadly noted the absence of a number of once familiar faces, yet we were cheered by the return of many former members of the school, the presence of a number of our friends and the faithfulness of teachers and scholars in attending this joyous Easter re-union, which so happily shows the strength of our school. The Associate Rector's address, the marshalship of Mr. Kirkpatrick, the presence of Dr. Anthony, the smiles of Dr. Grammer, the happy faces of parents and friends, all added to the success of the occasion and prove that we are yet very much alive.

Our school never closes, summer nor winter. Last summer's sessions, well attended, were held each Sunday in the Guild room, beginning there after the annual excursion to the farm on June 19, 1915. In fact, in summer we have two sessions, one in the morning of each Sunday in the Guild room and one in the afternoon at the Farm—the same lesson being used by the superintendent at both meetings. The many rainy Sundays of last summer prevented the use of the woodland and kept us to the Farm House. Attendance at either the city or the Farm session counted for the scholars in the awarding of the prize badges of honor.

The regular winter school, with the teachers, was resumed on September 19, 1915, just previous to the Annual Review of all Philadelphia Sunday schools, in which in spite of threatening weather we took part. It was October 24th before we got again into our repainted Sunday school rooms.

We were represented at the annual Diocesan Teachers' Institute, and at the Philadelphia County Association's Convention and Pageant of the Sunday schools, held at Convention Hall last fall.

Our lessons have been on The Patriarchs, Prophets and Kings of the Old Testament, with a review at the end of each quarter, illustrated by beautiful stereopticon slides. On "Bible Sunday" we were fortunate in securing a series of lantern slides that well pictured, "How We Got Our Bible." Teachers' meetings and a teachers' supper, when we heartily welcomed the Rev. Mr. Keable, together with athletics, dramatics and the social activities of the week-day evenings, keep all interests keenly awake and full. Our Christmas play, "A Christmas Dream," was one of the best of the past ten years, bringing out old and new talent in expressing the ideals of the giving season.

Our missionary activities have resulted in liberal offerings, showing much self-denial, as per the secretary's report herewith, and quite equaling our former gifts. The Christmas Ship, later called the Mission Boat, under Mr. Kirkpatrick's guidance, together with the financial results of a party given by Miss Daley's class, has raised a special mission fund for Miss Conway in Africa.

Death has visited us and carried away several to God's eternity. Births have added to our Cradle Roll. Cupid has been present and stolen a teacher and several scholars. Baptism has begun the consecrated life for a number, and the Confirmation classes of November and April have had the hearts of teachers, officers and clergy cheered by the reconsecration of many scholars.

The Primary Department, under the leadership of Miss Minnie Corrigan, is full of young life and doing excellent work under the assistance of Miss Lewis, Miss Goss and Miss Pletsch. Our need is for a few more teachers in the Main school. We are planning for a Normal or Teacher Training Class among our developing young people and for a Home Department, so that we can have the hearty coöperation of parents.

We have much to be thankful for and are grateful for the many kindnesses of our friends in the church. Particularly do we appreciate the loyalty of the teachers and their consequent fruitfulness, in the number of their scholars dedicating their lives hopefully and willingly to the cause of our Master, The Christ. Faithfully submitted,

George H. Streaker,
May 3, 1916. Superintendent.

The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

Some dozen boys of the Sunday school make up this Chapter, which meets in the Sunday school room at 9 A. M., the second and fourth Sundays of each month. They assist in the work of the school. They take part in the meetings of the Local Assembly. They greatly assisted in making a success of the annual supper meeting to the Directors of Junior Chapters throughout the Diocese, when Franklin Spencer Edmonds as well as the National president and other officers were present.

Four of them are studying to take the examination on Saturday evening, May 6th, at the Church House on the History and Work of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The award for the successful paper is a trip to the next convention at Cleveland, Ohio, early next October. Let us hope that one of our boys may be able to go. We can count at least 15 boys of the Junior Brotherhood of Philadelphia who are either at divinity schools or are preparing for the ministry, having received their inspiration largely at these annual gatherings of the Brotherhood men and boys from all parts of the country.

The Farm.

The Farm will open for the season on Saturday afternoon, June 17th. It is hoped that those who so generously support the project, will come out some time during the summer to see the house and the work under full swing.

What has been done at the Farm is familiar to most of you, and need not be dwelt upon. In past years the results have been most gratifying, and we are entering upon our nineteenth season, with renewed hope that it may be a means of greater good than ever before.

Each season a number of repairs are found to be necessary, in order that the house may be kept in good condition. Owing to the increased cost of labor and materials, this year the committee has been obliged to give up plans for some contemplated improvements, so that only a few minor repairs will be made at present.

As things wear out and need replenishing, we have made a list of our absolute needs for this season:

One dozen blankets (single bed size).
Six porch chairs.
Feather pillows.
Two hammocks.
Tennis net and racquets.
Indoor games for rainy days.
Small table for library.

We hope this appeal will meet with a ready response, from the many good friends of the Farm. E. D.

During the summer of 1915 there were 84 Daily Vacation Bible Schools conducted throughout the city by the Philadelphia Daily Vacation Bible School Association, of which Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins is president, and John S. Wurts, Esq., the general director.

School No. 22 was held at St. Stephen's Church. The school was in session six weeks, opening July 6th and closing August 13th. This was the third year for the school in our church, and it might also be said it was the banner year for the school. Total enrollment, 130; daily average attendance, 55. Church connection of children enrolled, Protestant, 40; Jewish, 45; Roman Catholic, 40.

The children were between two and fourteen years of age. The nationalities represented in the school were: American, Irish, Jewish, Italian, Armenian, Hungarian, Lithuanian, Ruthenian, Polish, English and German. The principal in charge of the school was Miss Charlotte W. Nodine, assisted by a manual training teacher and a kindergarten teacher.

The children of all nations were so fond of the school that they not only wanted to "stay until dark," but they asked, "Can't we come on Saturdays, too?" or, "Can't we come back in the afternoons?" The principal spent her afternoons making tours of the congested neighborhoods to gather the children, into courts and alleys; into houses where a whole family and more lived in one room, where the babies were lying on the floor, with flies all about their faces.

These strange and needy children soon learned that it was better in school, even in summer, than in the hot and dangerous streets. The parents were assured that the police would help the tots across the streets. The babies were also brought to the school, in order that the older ones might attend. As a result, we often had three or four babies crying at once in different keys. The parents, as a rule, were very glad to let their children attend the Vacation Bible School and were grateful for the interest shown in their children.

An example may be given to show how the children loved the school. On one of the torrid August days a child came late to school, wearing a winter dress. When asked why she was late, she declared her only light dress was dirty and she had no other to wear except a winter one, which she had to look for. She exclaimed, "I think it is better to wear a winter dress than to stay at home."

The school was open from 9.30 to 11.30 A. M., five days each week. The session was opened with devotional exercises. The two minute "habit talk" followed. The children were taught the necessity of having clean hands, clean mouths and clean hearts. These talks were of untold value and made a profound impression upon the children. One day, two little girls had an argument at the close of the session. One became angry and left her companion abruptly, whereupon the latter appealed to the teacher and said, "Ruth is disobeying the lesson you taught about forgiveness. She said she would never speak to me again."

Another illustration of the value of the "habit talk" occurred a few days later. One of the girls who lives in dire poverty in the neighborhood of Eighth and Race streets, was overheard to say that she wished she had a new pair of shoes. Upon hearing her "wish" several other girls took the teacher into their confidence, saying, "You told us in the story that we ought to help others, so we are going to save our pennies and buy Sarah a pair of shoes." This is Christian work of the highest order.

The Bible period followed the "habit talk." Never before had the children shown such deep interest in the Bible. They seemed to be hungry for it. They were not satisfied with one Bible story in the morning, but begged for two stories and often said their manual work could wait. The children were so interested that several asked permission to take a Bible home over night in order that they might read other stories and to memorize more verses. Owing to their eagerness I was astonished to discover that there were a number of American families that did not have a Bible in their homes. Might I say here, that since then, a member of the congregation has given these children Bibles.

The children not only heard a new Bible story every day, but some child told the Bible story of the previous day. Another feature of the Bible work was the recitation of Bible verses and chapters. On the last day of school they could recite them all. It is wonderful what can be done with children from the streets. A great opportunity is given to influence and mold the lives of the little ones. It was taking little sunbeams and dusting them off, so to speak.

Next on the program was a half hour of music, in which the children were taught catchy songs and famous hymns. The main object in this period is not merely to secure correct singing, but to influence the child nature through obedience to the laws of music and to implant in the child the love of good songs and good music.

The remainder of the time was devoted to manual training. The majority of the girls in the sewing class made dresses, while others made aprons either for themselves or mothers. Boys and girls made hammocks and useful and practical articles of raffia and wood. The object was not only to "make things," but to build character. Slurring over mistakes was discouraged. The child was trained to respect material and property which did not belong to him. Unselfishness was developed in the child.

Just before the closing exercises, five minutes were spent in listening to an educational record on the Victrola, which had been lent by a friend. Before dispersing the children saluted the flag and sang "America." The flag salute made the children feel that they are all American citizens, even though they were not all of American descent. Once when gathering the children from the streets, some said, "Oh, you only want Americans. We're Armenians." The response was, "That's just why we want you; we are going to teach you how to be Americans."

The total cost of the school, including salaries and materials, was $175, which was raised by voluntary contributions.

The chief advantages of the Vacation Bible Schools are: (1) The children are kept off the streets for six weeks in the summer, and as a result, their lives are safer, their habits are better and their parents are free from anxiety; (2) the children's hands are kept busy, quarrels are eliminated in their games, patriotism is instilled, and as a result their morals improve; (3) as many Bible lessons are taught in six weeks as a Sunday school could teach in seven months; (4) the Church is put in happy relations with the foreign community.

CHARLOTTE W. NODINE.

St. Stephen's Dramatic Club.

St. Stephen's Dramatic Club was organized on January 17, 1916, for the purpose of promoting more friendly relations between the young people of the Church and Sunday school; also to give entertainments for charitable purposes, and to entertain the members of the Parish.

The first of the entertainments was held on March 1, 1916, in the form of a minstrel show, which was a great success, both from a spectator's point of view and the Club's.

The total expenses to date are $36.52, $5.00 of which was donated toward the Lenten Offering of the Sunday school.

We now have in the treasury $28.82, with which to carry on our future work.

At the present time the Club is working on a sketch to be given for the benefit of St. Stephen's Athletic Association.

I may also say that the church-going members have used their influence in bringing the non-church-going members into the Church.

T. J. BELL, President.

Athletic Association.

The Baseball Team, arrayed in new suits, appeared on the diamond on Saturday last, and won their second game. At the end of the ninth inning the score was a tie—10-10. Although we were getting hungry another inning had to be played. New energy and snap seemed to possess our boys and they soon added four runs to their score. Their opponents tried hard to bring men home, but were shut out, being unable to score even a single run, in the final inning. This was the first time I had ever seen a game of baseball from beginning to end. And, needless to say, I enjoyed it and was proud of our boys. Proud not merely because they won the game, but because they "played" the game as "young men" should play. Bruised shins and terrific "slides," aching limbs and tired bodies are considered parts of the game. But the self control which each of our players had of himself was a joy to behold. Each player deserves credit, and I would like to mention them all by name. But space forbids. Every fellow played well, and Reed—little, quiet, smiling Reed—won the admiration of us all by his splendid manner as pitcher throughout the entire game. The boys would be very glad of a field to which they might go for their games. Perhaps some member of the congregation has a vacant lot upon which they would permit us to play. If so, we would be pleased if you will notify Mr. Keable.

Notes.

In a few weeks the Daily Vacation Bible School should be opened in our Parish, and for an account of its work in the past year you are referred to the report in this number. This is to suggest that we shall be glad to receive contributions as soon as possible, in order that we may know just what funds we have available for this good cause. Contributions may be sent to Miss Ella Headman, treasurer, 118 North 18th street, or to the Rector and the Associate.

The "Mothers" and the Dancing Class have greatly enjoyed the Victrola which Miss Shannon recently gave to the Parish House.

The new stereopticon given through the generosity of two of our friends is a very useful addition to our equipment. It has already been used, twice in giving illustrated travel talks to the Mothers, and to illustrate the lecture to the G. F. S. by Dean Kirk, of the School of Dentistry of the University of Pennsylvania. This lantern is for Parish purposes and we hope it will be constantly used. It is very economical and of simple operation. Designed especially for use in large parlors, it can be attached to an ordinary incandescent lamp socket, and thus consumes a minimum of electricity.

Church Pension Fund.

This fund is being collected by the united energies of our Church for the care of the disabled and infirm clergy and for the widows and orphans of the clergy. Five millions are to be secured before the system is put in operation. Of this amount the Diocese of Pennsylvania is seeking to raise one million. Six hundred thousand has already been subscribed. Two of the Vestrymen of St. Stephen's, Mr. Chas. L. McKeehan and Mr. Roland S. Morris, are on the committee. The cause was presented in St. Stephen's on May 21 by Mr. McKeehan. The Diocese will look to St. Stephen's to do its part. It would be well if the contributions to the Church Pension Fund were sent through Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, 505 Chestnut street.

The Church League of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED AT A LARGE CONFERENCE HELD IN HOLY TRINITY PARISH HOUSE, PHILADELPHIA, ON MARCH 1, 1916.

A DECLARATION AND TESTIMONY.

"Issuing from the Reformation without the loss of her ancient heritage, and baptized afresh in the spirit of the New Testament, the character of our Church became what is now revealed in her name—the Protestant Episcopal Church.

"Confident in her possession of the historic creeds and maintaining her ancient ministry, comprehensiveness became her great characteristic.

'So much that is alien to her history and spirit is now being set forth in her name that loyalty demands of her sons a clear declaration of their allegiance.

"First.—We assert, therefore our allegiance to the following principles:

"1. The sufficiency of the one sacrifice of Christ, and his sole mediatorship with God.

"2. The sacred right of the individual soul to an immediate approach to God in Christ.

"3. The supremacy of the enlightened conscience in the individual life as the final court of appeal.

"4. The supremacy of Holy Scripture as the test and warrant of Christian doctrine.

"Secondly.—We affirm our loyalty to the following truths, which are clearly indicated in the formularies of the church:

"1. The sacraments as the two alone ordained by Christ himself.

"2. The presence of Christ in the life of humanity, realized in experience and most tenderly realized, by faith, in the feast of His own appointment.

"3. The continuity of the ministry by an historic method as a fact of signal value and authority, and independent of any theories that may be imposed upon it.

"Thirdly.—In the face of the present demand, openly expressed by bishops and others, that our Church declare herself that there may be no mistake in her position, we affirm:

"1. This Church has declared herself on these points, historically, specifically and unequivocally.

"2. This Church's unique conception of comprehensiveness cannot be nullified by the effort to include what she has definitely excluded.

"3. This Church has made confident declaration of her position as a result of her belief in the guidance of the Holy Spirit and as a consequence of the characteristic use of sound learning.

"In no spirit of partisanship, but in simple loyalty to the church of which we are members, we invite all persons who, like ourselves, would preserve inviolate the heritage of Catholic and Protestant truth which is embodied in the standards of our Church, to associate themselves with us in membership in the Church League of the Protestant Episcopal Church for the purpose of upholding and defending that sacred inheritance."

The following resolution was also unanimously adopted:

"We, the members of the Church League of the Protestant Episcopal Church, believing in the fundamental principles of New Testament Christianity as expressed in the Creeds and in the Prayer Book and as re-affirmed and vindicated by the English Reformation, invite all churchmen to join with us in an educational campaign for the maintenance of these principles and in opposition to certain medieval and Romanizing tendencies within our Church which have been distinctively repudiated by this Church."

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

It is pleasant once more to address the congregation through the columns of the Parish News. This monthly leaflet is a valuable means of spreading information about the Parish, of recording incidents in the history of our church, and of binding our scattered congregation closer together. We shall be glad to introduce this year a column of personal mention in which items about our members that may be of general interest may be made known to the whole congregation. For example, it is pleasant to remember that one of our Vestrymen, Roland S. Morris, Esq., is one of the deputies to the General Convention. In 1910, St. Stephen's had two vestrymen, and the rector representing the diocese in the General Convention. It must be admitted that this was a larger proportion than could reasonably be expected to be selected from one parish. It is good to have the succession of a deputy from St. Stephen's still continued.

The two special summer activities, the Daily Vacation Bible School and the Farm were both successfully conducted. At the Farm the boys and young men were received for two weeks. Under the efficient leadership of Mr. Keable, and with the coöperation of the boys the two weeks passed without any misadventure. It is a great addition to the usefulness of the Farm that it should give an outing to the class whose physical energies make them feel most painfully the cramping limitations of narrow houses and crowded streets.

There are several tasks that call just now for especial exertion. First of all, there is the envelope system. The number of those using the envelopes has not increased as it should have done. Every communicant should do something to support the Church that ministers to him in spiritual things. It is not obligatory that one should take a pew or a sitting. We are glad to welcome every one to our worship. A cordial reception is extended to all visitors. But everyone should endeavor to assist to the extent of his ability. It is, moreover, helpful to make the contributions regularly according to a system—not waiting for emotional impulses; but guided by conscience and good judgment. The envelope is a helpful system in its reaction upon the giver. It is also helpful to the Church. It gives us a list of active coöperating communicants, to whom all appeals, circulars and copies of the Parish News are sent. It supplies a real working force. Moreover, it has wonderfully increased the offerings of St. Stephen's for all causes. This fall we are going to make an effort to enlarge our list of envelope users. Let this letter be the opening appeal. We shall be grateful, if names of persons who will accept the envelopes be sent to either of the ministers or to Mr. Jos. B. VanDusen, Jr., Stephen Girard Building, 12th street.

A church ought to be a field for work, as well as a place of prayer. We have a number of openings for those who are willing to enter. The way to usefulness in a church is to serve faithfully in the lowest room, till demonstrated efficiency elicits the invitation, "Come up higher."

In November we shall begin a third Sunday service at 8 o'clock. With popular music and evangelistic addresses and sermons upon the great fundamentals of repentance and faith, it is hoped that these services will meet a real need and call forth a goodly attendance. The four o'clock service will be continued with the usual musical features, somewhat enlarged, and a regular course of Bible lectures will be then given, beginning in November.

There are already three candidates for Confirmation and it is not expedient that they should be kept waiting till the spring. In Advent a Confirmation class will be begun, and the ministers will be glad to receive names.

All of us are deeply concerned in the deliberations of the General Convention now in session at St. Louis. We ought to pray fervently that God would give it the spirit of counsel and a right judgment.

The Church is the agency that makes known the good news of God's love. It is the society of His children who are endeavoring to be conformed to the character of the Righteous Being, of whose nature they partake. It is the lighthouse that warns off the rocks of sin, and indicates the channel into the secure harbor. Naught that impairs its usefulness can be indifferent to us. Everything that adapts it to its high and sacred office must call for our enthusiastic support. The Church of our fathers showed improvements over the Church of our forefathers, and it would be stupid, indeed, to hold that there can be no further amendments or improvements. Not every change is to be opposed. But changes that are due to reaction, to fear, to the idealization of a half-recorded and half-understood past are to be deprecated. This is an age of democracy, of freedom, of reliance upon the nature of man as a child of God, to respond to the message and leadings of his Father. All changes in the direction of flexibility of liberty and democracy are to be received, like strangers who have been introduced by our close personal friends, whereas changes recommended by sacerdotalism and sacramentarianism are to be carefully scrutinized as one would examine an investment recommended by a banking house whose counsels held in former years cost heavy losses. It is safe, it seems to me, to omit the word "obey" in the marriage service, and put the two marital partners on an absolute level. The spirit of Christianity has elevated woman and secured for her larger training, and equipped her to be more of a comrade and associate for man, and less of a toy and dependent. The change is in the line of the exaltation of women, and the humanizing, so to speak, of the bond. It is entitled to respectful consideration, with an inclination to grant it unless strong reason to the contrary can be shown.

Every change, however, in the direction of the Roman Church is to be distrusted. That church has never cleansed itself of the medieval accretions. It has been tried and found wanting.

A Latin country like France that has shown up so splendidly in this great European war, has only attained her national unity and spirit by drawing her schools and institutions more and more out of the hands of that church, and conforming ever increasingly to our American model. Everything Romish, every movement that would break down the helpful separation between Church and State, every effort to foist upon our church practices, usages and teachings of less enlightened days is to be distrusted and examined with a strong prepossession against it.

Take prayers for the dead. Personally, I do not object to them. Indeed, I use them, not because they are medieval or ancient or primitive; but because they are reasonable.

Wherever the spirits of the departed may be, they are in God's care, and He can not be offended if we speak to Him about them. On the other hand, the New Testament is strangely silent about them. People who want to keep the religion of Jesus close to the tone of its Divine Founder, shrink from accretions. Especially do they object to making them obligatory, either on the officiating clergyman or on the congregation. It is a movement away from liberty to make such supplications obligatory in the Communion service; but it is a step towards liberty to permit the use of such collects.

Under a separate heading I shall speak of the bereavements which the Parish has sustained since the last issue of the PARISH NEWS, but I cannot omit here some mention of the loss that the Church suffered in the death of the Rt. Rev. George W. Peterkin, Bishop of West Virginia. He was a true chief pastor of his clergy and people. Aliorum memor, immemor sui, as the fine Latin line runs. Ever thoughtful of others, he was thoughtless of self. When he divided the work with his coadjutor, he resigned the Episcopal care of the fine city parishes and took the rough country work for himself. He had always longed, he said, to be free that he might look up the wanderers. He kept a list of all communicants in places where there was no Episcopal Church and sent them his Diocesan paper, received their "envelopes," and arranged his itinerary so as to visit them on his rounds. One summer when I was at the Monroe Red Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, Bishop Peterkin visited the Springs and conducted a special service. He had discovered that these summer resorts lacked ministerial care and preaching, and was touring the mountains to supply the need. Strict with himself, he was tolerant and indulgent in his judgment of others. A soldier in the Southern Army, he exemplified the simplicity of manner that had marked such great captains as Lee and Grant; but he used to remind us that we must not misjudge men of a more decorated and ornamental type of manners, or set them down as necessarily poseurs or fops, since the world had many types. There was always something of the soldier about him, frank, direct, simple.

As a trustee of the Virginia Seminary he came to the institution once and delivered a strong address to the students, full of common sense, simply explaining that he had asked for this opportunity because he had in mind some things that in his judgment needed to be said. He never spoke for display, but only took the floor to deliver a message.

In opposition to the omission of the designation, "Protestant" from our name, no one was more influential than Bishop Peterkin. He knew the conditions in his State and the hopelessness of his task of upbuilding our Church, if this name were to be dropped. He had his whole diocese behind him and he spoke with the weight of a Bishop who expressed the mind of his people. The son of one of our Church's saints, the Rev. Dr. Joshua Peterkin, trained in our Church from infancy, himself a splendid example of the thoroughly real and sane piety created by our Church's teaching, and a convinced and stalwart Protestant, with no hankering after a meretricious over-adornment, he spoke out of the fullness of his knowledge, and with a weight of authority that commanded the attention of the whole Church.

Space would fail me, if I undertook to recount his good work, the hospital that he founded, the Church boarding house for boys at the University of West Virginia, of the consecrated builders of churches that he secured, of his Year Book and valuable pastorals, of his relation to the Missions in Brazil, which he visited and took care of in the incipient stage. When he realized that he could no longer discharge the duties of his office, he insisted on resigning the honor. Nothing but the strenuous opposition of his diocese, over which he had presided since its organization, prevented him from carrying out his wish.

All must feel that it was well that he died the Bishop of West Virginia—where he labored so painstakingly and lovingly for so many years. No prelate, but a true New Testament and Protestant bishop, simple in manner, diligent in business, fervent in spirit, ever serving the Lord. In his loving solicitude for those under his care, he reminded one of Goldsmith's description of the village pastor:

> And as a bird, each fond endearment tries
> To tempt its new-fledg'd offspring to the skies,
> He tried each art, reproved each dull delay
> Allur'd to brighter worlds and led the way.

The example of such a man is a blessing to the whole Church. It is good to know that his successor is a man of his own spirit and that the work of Bishop Peterkin will be preserved and extended and not torn down and destroyed.

I should like to tell of various instructive experiences of the summer. One of the most illuminating occurred on a railroad journey. I was traveling with Dr. Caley to deliver a course of lectures on Church History in Bedford, Virginia; when a lady with a foreign accent in the seat ahead of us asked us to tell her the name of the great river that we were crossing. This led to a conversation. She was an Italian who had been brought to this country by her father when she was about fifteen years old and had married in her seventeenth year, an American lawyer, whose death some months ago had left her a widow with one son. On asking her about her Church relations I learned that she had for years been churchless. She explained that when they lived in Naples her father had never cared to bring his children much under the influence of the priests. She had, however, been prepared for Confirmation and gone to confession and to the Communion once. When, however, she received the wafer and it came over her that according to the teaching of her Church, she was swallowing the body and blood of the Son of God, she said that gorge rose up against such a conception and her whole mind revolted at the teaching as incredible and discreditable. She could not accept it or approve it and she never went to Communion again. Such teaching repelled and shocked her. Finding that she was in search of a Church, and that there was no Episcopal Church where she lived, I advised her to join the Presbyterian Church to which her husband had belonged, and to train her son in the teachings of a Church that closely united morality and religion.

After the summer holiday Mrs. Grammer and I enjoyed a delightful tour of twelve days in New England, in the White Mountains and Berkshire, Massachusetts, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Moore. I trust that the benefit of the summer's rest and this pleasant outing may be manifest in a year of increased efficiency.

We have much to encourage us in Old St. Stephen's. New and zealous members have been added to our numbers, an associate of energy and experience has come upon our staff, and there are many signs of increased vitality. May God give us the spirit of concord, wisdom and zeal and make us a congregation of workers in His Vineyard.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Our Bereavements.

During the summer we lost, as may be seen in the notice of funerals a number of our people. Some like Mrs. Katherine B. Jones were only known to a few of us comparatively, since she never was able to work in any of the societies. As her rector I first learned through the envelope system to appreciate her singular fidelity and later on discovered that she was one of those bright and loving spirits who see good in all, not because of blind optimism but largely because they elicit good in all by their own geniality and loving-kindness. The members of longest standing who were taken from us were Mr. L. H. Hall, Dr. Edward R. Fell, and Miss Fannie J. Magee.

Mr. Hall was a man of unusual histrionic gifts, and powers of mimicry. No one more delighted the Mothers' Meeting. Greatly will he be missed at its gatherings. His death was very sudden. Great is the sympathy for Mrs. Hall, a much loved associate in the G. F. S., in her bereavement. Long will Mr. Hall be remembered for his varied gifts.

Dr. Edward R. Fell had long been failing, when he died on September 16th. There was a toughness, a staunchness and steadfastness in his character that seemed to be shared by his body and made it difficult for age or disease to uproot and overthrow his oak-like nature. During the war he served his country as a physician and surgeon in the hospitals. Later on he entered into business. When I became acquainted with him he had largely retired from business and he was to a considerable extent isolated by his deafness, so that he could not mingle freely in general society. For this reason he never came to the annual men's banquet in St. Stephen's, though he always sent his subscription. He never lost his interest in people or great causes. Long after he had ceased to hear the preacher or the reader of the service he continued his Church attendance faithfully. Deep and sincere was his affection for our Church and he always responded readily to its appeals. Of the chivalry exhibited in his beautiful married life, of the purity of his character, I cannot speak with freedom. He and Mrs. Fell gave us a beautiful example of a serene and happy married life. Around her in her bereavement have gathered many women whom she taught in her Sunday school, to sustain her by their loving sympathy.

In the death of Miss Fannie S. Magee, St. Stephen's lost one of its chief benefactors, and one of the oldest and most devoted of its members. The daughter of a former Vestryman, Mr. James R. Magee, baptized in St. Stephen's font, all her life an attendant on its services, confirmed at its chancel rails, a regular communicant at its altar, at one time a teacher in the Sunday school, the first President of the Woman's Auxiliary, an office that she held till the condition of her health compelled her to resign, Miss Fannie Magee held a unique position in our congregation. All of us knew that St. Stephen's was a part of her deepest life-interests and one of the chief objects of her solicitude, love and pride. The eldest of her father's children she was always recognized as peculiarly attached to the Church that held so many of the family memorials.

Next to the family of Col. and Mrs. Edwin Shippen Burd, the greatest benefactors of St. Stephen's have been the Magee family. To it we owe the rich mosaic over the Communion Table, the great double window in the transept, the Eliza J. Magee organ, and the addition of $35,000 to our endowment. In all these gifts Miss Fannie had a part, and in most of them she was the spokesman for the family.

Never can her love and zeal for our Church be forgotten by those who knew her. She was a woman of enduring loyalties, of strong convictions and fervent devotion to her church. Though she had to bear many bereavements and was a person of deep and strong family affection, she retained to the last her peculiar spiciness of wit, her gift of repartee, her ability to sound her own distinctive note. She comes before me as I write, as she sat in her accustomed seat at the annual congregational meeting, interested in all the reports, proud to know that the old Church was holding its own, bearing her weight of years with her own distinctive sprightliness, and (I am thankful to recall) recognized by us all as the most prominent representative of the traditions of the Parish and one of our chief benefactors.

To her youngest sister, Miss Anna J. Magee, the sole survivor of her father's large family, the whole congregation of St. Stephen's extends its sympathy. May God guide, comfort and sustain her.

The Farm.

To give a detailed account of the many incidents at the Farm this past summer would lead to entirely too long an article, so in a brief summary we shall try to tell you just what we have been doing.

To begin at the beginning, the opening on June 17th was entirely different from any we have ever had, and we are prepared to say the most enjoyable. It was the Sunday school picnic of 157 persons that opened the season of 1916. The day was perfect and our only regret was that those whose generosity make the project possible were not with us to see what a good time we had. The good times which began with the Sunday school picnic did not end until the last merry party left on September 18th. We feel that we have had a most successful summer, with an average of 34 guests each week, a total of 442 persons for one week. 474 extra meals were served to day visitors (this includes 82 members of our "Mothers' Meeting" who came out on Thursday during July and the first two weeks in August). Ninety-two persons were entertained for three days, including the Girls' Friendly Society who came as usual for the Fourth of July and the Labor Day holidays. Although the majority of our guests were children, we are thankful to say that we had no sickness. The Farm has been of inestimable value to all who have enjoyed its privileges. A prominent member of a neighboring parish recently wrote that "of all the vacation houses, St. Stephen's has the best reputation." This is very gratifying coming from one who is interested in vacation houses, and who knows.

The religious life was not lost sight of. Besides family worship at the close of each day, we had a service on the lawn with an address every Sunday afternoon. About ten years ago Mr. Streaker inaugurated these meetings and has continued them each year.

Every year the members of our "Mothers' Meeting" and "Girls' Friendly Society" contribute generously toward the comforts of the Farm. This summer the Mothers presented a splendid refrigerator as their gift, and the Girls' Friendly Society three single beds for the dormitory, besides a sum of money to buy records for the Victrola. The boys also did their share toward making the place attractive by clearing the old orchard, and with the fine new swings which came to us through Mr. Keable's efforts, what was once a neglected orchard is now a very attractive playground.

Everybody was glad that the boys were again able to share the pleasures of the Farm. Those who took part in the work have nothing but praise for the way in which they conducted themselves, and while they came to enjoy, and did enjoy everything to the utmost, the time was also profitably spent under Mr. Keable's constant care.

We are grateful to good friends who have remembered us most generously; to Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr., for 20 pounds of chocolates, a fine table for the library, chairs and a rug. Mrs. H. Spencer Lucas, prizes for the Girls' Friendly Society. Mr. Eakens $10, which was expended for Victrola records and extras. Mr. Robert T. Boyd, a set of quoits and six porch rockers. Friends of Mrs. H. P. Taylor, flower vases. Mr. McCaughan, plants, and through Mr. Keable, a number of indoor games.

The Sunday School.

The annual Sunday school picnic to the Farm on Saturday, June 17th, was a delightful treat, by the kindness of our good friends of the Church, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all, particularly the luncheon which Mr. Keable so wisely had the teachers happily prepare the night before. Immediately after starting the stormy weather disappeared and 150 were made most grateful for our outing, thanks to the good leadership of our Associate Rector.

The next day the summer sessions of the school began with a good attendance of 100 full of pleasant memories of the picnic. This number diminished as the vacation season advanced, until poliomyeletis caused the Board of Health to stop the attendance of little folk under sixteen, for fear of spreading the contagious infantile paralysis, and our numbers were very much depleted. But many of the older scholars came each Sunday morning in the Guild Room and we studied "The Deeds of Jesus." A session was also held each Sunday afternoon on the Farm. With Mr. Keable in charge, the boys were delighted with their two weeks at Warminster and have been in good attendance at school.

Our first corporate communion of the communicant scholars, by Mr. Keable's good suggestion, was held September 17th, in the church. It was impressive, helpful and well attended.

We now look forward hopefully to our regular winter sessions, which began October 1st, with an attendance of over 100, some forty of the Primary Department being back in their places. The third Sunday in October, the 15th, will be the regularly appointed day for intercessory prayers for Sunday schools in all Episcopal schools. We expect a large attendance. Will the teachers kindly keep in mind Monday, October 16th, when the annual Institute of the Diocesan Sunday School Association will be held at Holy Apostles' Church. There will be an afternoon and evening session with supper, when several hundred teachers and officers of the Association will sit down together.

We are entitled to ten delegates to the County Convention of Sunday schools on October 19th and 20th, and we trust to be well represented, particularly at Convention Hall on the second evening, when the successful pageant of last year will be repeated. This, in Pageant form, will show the progress of Religious Education from the times of the old Hebrew Patriarchs up to the beginning of the Modern Sunday Schools, and from the crude school of Robert Raikes in England, to the latest graded systems in America. Some thirty schools will be in many episodes. The Hall holds 15,000, but even so, those wishing to be present had better let us know early in order to be admitted.

GEORGE H. STREAKER,
Superintendent.

King's Daughters, Whatsoever Circle.

The King's Daughters' Whatsoever Circle will have their first meeting October 18th, in the Guild Room of the Parish House, at a quarter of eight o'clock.

We will be glad to have anyone join in our work this winter.

The sewing basket was put away, all work finished and sent to different homes and hospitals the latter part of June. Then for the closing evening we were to be the guests of our secretary, Miss Bertha Walshe. She had invited all the members of the Circle to spend a social evening at her home.

We had some delightful music on the phonograph and spent a very enjoyable evening.

After such a long vacation we hope all will be ready on the 18th for the winter's work.

The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

These meetings of the Juniors have been held all summer. Henry Ahtes and the Director represented our boys at the supper conference at the church house in September. We hope to have all at the conference at St. Andrew's, 8th and Spruce, on the evening of October 26th. We will also be represented at the National Convention of the Brotherhood at Cleveland, Ohio, October 4th to 8th, by Mr. Streaker. We will gladly welcome boys, between 12 and 18 years of age, at our Chapter meetings at 9 A. M., before Sunday school, the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

Shoe Fund.

The Shoe Fund will open the first Tuesday in November.

The children of the Burd school have all had a pleasant summer and have been in good health; and they have escaped the epidemic. The quarantine was very little discomfort, as they had the beautiful grounds for play. Six of the girls spent two weeks at the Farm, and enjoyed their vacation and very much appreciated Miss Dale's kindness. Screening the building has been very much appreciated by the members of the Burd School family, and has done much toward keeping the children in a healthy condition.

God So Loved the World.

BY GRACE E. UHLER.

For God so loved the world, not just a few,
The wise and great, the noble and the true,
Or those of favoured class or race or hue.
God loved the world. Do you?

God loved the sinful world, not just the good.
Ah, none were good till they had understood
His love for them, and felt the power that could Make all of life anew.

God loved the world. He saw that we might be Made like Himself. He stooped to set us free
And did not spare the cost of Calvary.
God loved man so. Do we?

O God of love! Sweep over every soul.
Cast out our pride and envy, take control
Of every passion, lead us to the goal,
Where we shall love like Thee.

From the Woman's Missionary Friend.

The Church Work Fund.

MY DEAR PARISHIONER:

I append a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Church Work Fund. With this purse the Rector conducts his office, publishes the PARISH NEWS, and contributes to various societies in the Church, and moves with freedom. Our old members give faithfully to this fund, and it is hoped that our new members will also contribute to it.

By the envelope system for specified objects, and the Church Work Fund for small and sundry purposes, the worship of St. Stephen's is kept free from frequent appeals for money, a feature of our service that tends greatly to enhance the dignity of our worship.

The regular demands on this purse call for a fund of $1,500.

Yours sincerely,

CARL E. GRAMMER.

Rector's Letter.

MY DEAR PARISHIONERS:

In this letter I shall first speak of parish concerns and later on of public matters.

Commencing with Sunday, November 5th, there will be a popular service of song and preaching at St. Stephen's, beginning at 8 o'clock. Distinguished preachers from out of town will preach and celebrated musical artists will enhance the attractiveness of the service. There are no great popular night services in any of our Episcopal churches east of Broad street in this portion of the city. Yet the Garrick theatre is crowded to the ceiling Sunday night after Sunday night during the fall and winter. We believe that just as there is room for both St. Stephen's and the Garrick in the Lenten Noonday services, so there is room for St. Stephen's beside the Garrick in these Sunday night services. A special committee consisting of Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, Mr. H. H. Barton, Jr., and Mr. W. H. Hollar, has raised a purse sufficient to conduct these services on a high plane for a number of months. Mr. Keable is joined in this enterprise with them, and with another committee of men, who have undertaken to make the services widely known, and to bring in the people Dr. Karl Reiland, of St. George's, will preach on the opening night. Among the speakers who have been asked to follow are Dr. Samuel McComb, Dr. Worcester's associate for so many years in Boston, who has been requested to fill the pulpit on the second Sunday in November, Students' Sunday, and Dr. Hogue, of Baltimore, who has established a people's service in the heart of Baltimore in one of the theatres and reached in a wonderful manner the churchless people. No movement of equal vitality and promise has been inaugurated in the parish, in my judgment, since it was first founded. If the services prove a success the usefulness of the parish will be certainly increased fifty per cent.

The afternoon service will be continued at 4 o'clock. The amount of the devotional service will be diminished and the time given for instruction increased. A regular course of lectures will be given by the Rector on the Bible, seeking to show what the modern view of the Bible is, the reason for it, and the lessons that are to be derived from Holy Scripture, by the aid of enlightened methods. He will aim to make it a real Bible class, elevated and helped spiritually by the noble rendition of a high class of devotional music. On the first Sunday in the month, after the Communion, the experiment will be made of giving the choir more time for the rendition of some notable work of musical and devotional genius, and the address will be short. It is believed that our churches ought to be more frequently used and that by due diligence three congregations of different tastes, engagements and needs can be gathered together in a church situated like ours and adequately manned and equipped.

This number of our monthly will appear close upon the election. May God guide the hearts of men to a right decision of the great issues involved, and incline the wills of His people to hear and obey the promptings of His spirit. Nothing finer could be said than this extract from the Pastoral Letter of the House of Bishops, which I quote from a Sunday morning paper, believing that most of my congregation, like myself, do not often see the Sunday papers:

America is involved in world-wide confusion which finds its most acute expression in the battlefields of Europe. No self-isolation on our part is possible. The fortunes of the nations are interwoven as the threads of a tapestry.

Interest can never again be sectional. The world is henceforth one, for the time being in a disturbed and suffering unity, in days to come in a unity where order and health will reign. Political expediency may in war time require neutrality of the State, but it cannot hold in leash the sympathies of the individual citizen. A man cannot be passionless and retain his manhood.

"NO GROUNDS FOR SMUGNESS."

The fact that our nation is not at war affords no grounds for smugness. It throws upon us the searching responsibility of exalting the true ideals of peace and incorporating them in our national life. Nationalism too often assumes the ugly role of group selfishness or false patriotism. Local conditions determine what form this disease will take. Yonder it breaks forth in the scarlet rash of war; here in unconsecrated prosperity which is bound to cause manhood to decay.

The nation that in some quarters, for the sake of gain still chains to the wheels of industry the bodies and souls of her little children, that allows human life to be sacrificed to the inventions of speed and production from lack of costly safeguards, that heeds but listlessly the cry of the poor and oppressed, is not at peace, even though she be not at war. If presently we aspire to act as peacemaker in behalf of the warring nations, let our aspirations be tempered by the reflection that we are tainted with the common disease of which the eruption of war is a symptom.

"God Hates a Godless and Empty Peace."

God hates a godless and empty peace as much as he hates an unrighteous war.

Let it be said that in proportion to her swollen wealth America's contribution to the innocent sufferers in Europe is the merest pittance.

If America comes out of the world disorder richer in purse and poorer in manhood she will bring upon herself the penalty of a debased life, or even of losing her very soul.

No nation, least of all so vast and diversified a one as ours, is justified in trusting to chance for the creation of her national character. She must expect of every one of her citizens some true form of national service, rendered according to the capacity of each. National preparedness is a clear duty. If this service assumes the form of military defense, such can easily become a menace and will surely fall short of pacific effect unless all the productive forces of manhood are at the same moment shaped into social order. The only thorough preparedness is that exemplified by Christ, the preparedness of character based upon life with God.

The nations now at war have as much to teach us as we have to teach them. They rebuke our worship of comfort and money by the daily offering, upon a reeking altar, of life and treasure; they declare to us that intoxicating liquor which is so freely and carelessly drunk in our land, is a national menace to be dispensed with at the cost of lowered revenue, but with the gain of heightened virility; they teach us that food is the staff of physical life, not an invitation to daintiness and gluttony; they rebuke our spiritual poverty by the splendor of their spiritual eagerness which. out of their tragedy, brings new visions from God and breeds new virtues in men; they shame our self-indulgence by a degree of self-sacrifice that is royal.

Greed of possessions, of honor, of pleasure, have literally dethroned God from His supreme place among men. The sole cure is to exalt God.

Thus far the Church has been only strong enough to see and covet, not strong to consummate her ideal. Her own disunion dims her hopes and hinders her progress. A divided Church is powerless to create an undivided world.

We close our words of counsel and exhortation with our faces set toward the dawn. History makes plain to us that man's extremity is God's opportunity. Beneath every pall of tragedy lies hidden the glory of God—new visions of faith, new counsels of virtue—to be revealed to and discovered by those who look not at the things which are seen, but at things which are not seen, and who wrestle with God for a blessing.

A man who fails to vote at a national election because of supineness and indifference ought to lose his right to vote in all local and state matters for a year, and ought to have his taxes increased in some way, as a man who refuses to bear his full share of the burdens of citizenship. There should be some penalty.

It is a pity that the General Convention was not able to accomplish more in certain directions. Its failure to give the colored people of the South the missionary organization which they desire makes one despair of the Episcopal Church as a means of uplifting the Negro. We treat these people, not as a national responsibility but as a purely Southern question. Instead of putting them into missionary districts to be responsible to the whole Church, stimulated, helped and watched by the whole Church, they are placed under a diocesan officer, a suffragan, and are kept under diocesan oversight. We might as well put Hayti in the diocese of Florida and leave its problems to Florida. The colored people who belong to our Church in the South are either old family servants or workers for white people like fashionable barbers, or they are the poorest colored people, to whom our benevolences are an attraction. The bone and sinew, the blood and nerve-power of the race is found in the Methodist and Baptist Churches, where they build their own houses of worship, support their own ministers, and, as the business men of Norfolk told me, have as congregations an excellent reputation for meeting their corporate obligations. We have some eighty negro clergymen, and the self-supporting colored congregations could be counted on one hand, some eight years ago, when I investigated their status with care, and there has been no noticeable improvement.

Some of the changes suggested in the Prayer Book would have been great improvements, but all those of a sacerdotal character were to be deprecated. I need not say that on the whole I am satisfied with the result. A smaller hymnal with the notes will be a great blessing if it is cheap enough for general distribution. It will be the greatest possible aid to congregational singing if the tunes are sufficiently popular and melodious.

I am delighted that no change was made in the Canon on Marriage and Divorce. I believe that marriage is an ethical and spiritual union that can be destroyed by sin, as well as by physical death. The state which determines the law of property also has authority under the guidance of experience and conscience to lay down the law for the protection of the family. The true remedy for the evils of divorce is a national law for marriage and divorce, and a change in our courts whereby the interest of the state will be protected in every divorce suit by the appearance of counsel in the interest of the state. We have no right to wash our hands of the innocent party or to fling aspersions upon injured and upright people by the invidious phrase, "the so-called innocent party." The study of the divorces given in one year in Norfolk convinced me that there were many innocent and wronged people in that seaport town who needed to be given their liberty and saved from the perils of their position.

A stringent law, made in the selfish interest of protecting the Church's skirts, will not carry with it the consciences of people. It will not assist toward that higher ideal of the true, spiritual and ethical nature of marriage to which in the midst of self-will, blindness and self-indulgence, we are nevertheless working our way. Many divorces simply mean that women will no longer consent to be dual wives and to undergo the death in life which once used to be endured by the wives of lecherous and unfaithful men. "Yes," it is said, "let them separate; but let them not remarry." But if they separate they break the letter of the marriage vow in the strict interpretation, just as truly as if they remarried. If the vow is to be taken literally they must not separate. If it is to be taken as mutual, each based upon the other, and upon reason, then it should be treated in a reasonable way.

The innate unreasonableness of sacramentarianism in its attitude toward marriage was manifested, when it could have its way, and refused to allow people who were godparents of the same children, to be joined together in matrimony. I feel convinced that the true defence of marriage lies along other lines and will be discovered in elevating our conception of the State rather than in increasing the disciplinary power of the Church.

The greatest feature of the General Convention was the report of Bishop Lawrence on the Church Pension Fund. Two thirds of the $5,000,000 to be raised before the system could go into effect has been secured, and in the next five months the Church will give itself to the task of raising the balance. I have resolved to accept the counsel of the committee and throw aside all thought of self in the matter. If I alone were concerned, I would not say a word. But this is a large question. Other Churches are following our lead. More and more are great enterprises like railroads, public schools, Carnegie Foundations providing for the old age of salaried employees. We are within sight of a system that will so lift the burden of care from the shoulders of our ministers, that they will certainly be more effective and more hopeful, better able to guide and cheer their people.

St. Stephen's has done something, but I hope that it will do its best for this cause. We ought to have a parish committee and the whole parish ought to be given an opportunity to help. Certainly the calls are many; but then it is these great tasks and enterprises that make life rich and worth living. They are the promised land that invites us to come in and possess it if we are armed with faith and courage in the guiding Deity.

Yours cordially

Carl E Grammer

An Acknowledgment

Some time in the early summer I was asked to send my measurements for a new cassock to a clerical tailor, as the ladies of the congregation, under the leadership of the Altar Society, had contributed a purse to provide the rector with new vestments of silk. Some time was taken in procuring the cassock, and although the Altar Society has been thanked in a letter to its secretary, it does not appear that the part of the other ladies in the congregation has been suitably acknowledged. I therefore take this opportunity to express my hearty appreciation of this thoughtful gift. The old cassock was growing dingy and frayed and this new, fresh, resplendent garment will make me more presentable for ministering in our beautiful chancel. It is a great comfort. It is pleasant to learn that the ladies took a general interest in this furnishing, so to speak, and have subscribed a fund that will also provide me with a new dictionary and the latest edition of Bartlett's Familiar Quotations. My own copy is very old and very tattered. Barrie says that he is not satisfied, if he is thinking of using a quotation, unless he first investigates Bartlett. If it is included in that handbook he discards it. Barrie may perhaps be able to show such detachment from the received literary tradition. For my part I want Bartlett and Palgrave at my elbow whenever I have to write. A scribe instructed unto the kingdom should bring out of his treasury things old as well as new. After all, Bacon is a greater name in literature than Barrie, and his praise of old books can be extended to old quotations, provided they "come pat in."

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Armstrong Association, of which the Rector of St. Stephen's is president, is steadily enlarging its field of activity. The report for July, August and September, 1916, shows 402 positions filled by colored people, with a wage list of $44,137, an increase of over $33,000 over the corresponding period of 1915. The State Bureau of Employment has signified its willingness to coöperate with the Armstrong Association, helping its applicants to find work in mills and factories.

With the endorsement of the Armstrong Association, fifty negro business men have succeeded in inducing the Board of Education to open a course of business training at the night session of the Durham Public School. A number of pupils have registered for this course.

The Home and School Visitor is doing missionary work in Woodstown, Salem, Swedesboro, Marshalton, Morton, and Moorestown, where meetings have been held in the hope of inducing the citizens to start community centers. Interest has been manifested, particularly in Morton and Moorestown. The colored farmers near Woodstown contributed $100 toward the salary of a social worker, and pledged an additional $100.

The Industrial Secretary reports interviews with firms employing a large force of workers. The Grafanola Company has promised to employ colored agents on salary and commission, and another firm has given its colored employees higher wages and better working hours. Statistics are being gathered and a program arranged for the winter months.

The secretary has held a conference with a number of teachers from the Washington public schools to discuss the subject of vocational training in our public schools. He has also assisted in organizing the Inter-High School Association, with a membership of fifty colored students, and has offered prizes for scholarship and improvement. The Progressive High School Girls' Club has already started its fall work, with a membership of 70. Some of these girls have planned to do volunteer social work in the city hospitals during their spare time. Others are to be taught to earn a little money in their leisure hours. Many of the girls are in need of individual instruction in their school work, particularly in geometry, and volunteer helpers will be gladly welcomed.

In a modest way the Armstrong Association is seeking to meet a few of the phases of the race question, which is one of the most serious problems our country has to solve.

If after kirk you bide a wee
There's some would like to speak to ye.
If after kirk you rise and flee,
We'll all seem cold and stiff to ye.

That one that's in the seat wi' ye
Is stranger here than you, maybe;
All here hae got their fears and cares;
Add ye your soul unto our prayers;
Be ye our angel unawares.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The first meeting of the season of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on October 19th, at 11 o'clock, in the Parish House, 14 members being present.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mr. Keable, followed by words of welcome and encouragement for the winter's work by Miss Bell.

The Secretary's report was read and accepted.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $88.39.

It was moved and carried that $10.00 be given each committee.

Mrs. Colket spoke of an interesting meeting of the Domestic Committee and of the new officers being elected.

Mrs. Hewson read an earnest appeal for the support of the Educational Work of the Diocese. Five dollars was then contributed to this work.

Miss Smith, of the Church Periodical Club, read very interesting and grateful letters from recipients of magazines and books, showing their appreciation and the need for this literature. One thousand two hundred and eighty-two magazines have been sent since the last report.

It was resolved that the following "Appreciation" be spread upon the minutes and a copy be sent to Miss Anna Magee, the sister of the late Miss Fannie Magee:

APPRECIATION.

When the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's was organized by the Rector, Rev. Carl E. Grammer, it was most fitting that Miss Fannie S. Magee should fill the position of president, a new and untried honor, which she accepted with modest hesitation, but, under her management, with the guidance and advice of Dr. Grammer, the Auxiliary grew and prospered, and to-day the members put on record their appreciation of the life-long devotion of Miss Magee to the best interests of St. Stephen's Parish with its many activities, in which she had taken an important part.

As delegate to the Domestic Committee of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, as president of the Missionary Box Committee, and as president of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's, her thoughts and time were largely given to this kind of church work, and it is therefore with sorrow that the Auxiliary mourns her loss, and she will be greatly missed at the annual meeting of the Parish, where it was her unfailing custom to say a word of commendation and approval to her successor in office.

The members of the Auxiliary send their most sincere sympathy to Miss Anna J. Magee, with the hope that she may be comforted in her grief, and that strength may be given her to carry on the good works which make the name of the Magee family an honored one in the annals of St. Stephen's parish.

LAURA BELL,

President of Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's.

October 19, 1916.

Miss Bell then read a letter from Mrs. Markoe, president of the Diocese, telling of the year's work and asking for coöperation and earnest endeavor among the workers during the coming year, always being guided by the spirit of prayer.

Mrs. Anderson was the speaker of the morning, and in her interesting, human and intelligent way gave a most pathetic account of her work among the lepers of India. Forty years ago this work was started by an Irish Presbyterian and to-day it is world-wide, includes all denominations and is carried on in India, Persia, Africa, the Philippines and other countries. Truly the leper needs the human touch and care of every Christian, as he is the most deplorable creature on the face of God's earth.

After the address the meeting adjourned.

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

The great event of November was the inauguration of the service of music and preaching. Much thought had been expended in arranging these services and in selecting and securing the preachers and musicians. The Committee on the finances was assisted by an excellent Committee on attendance and publicity. Attention was given to details and a large vision lay back of the whole experiment. Still everyone was surprised when a congregation of about 800 filled the Church on the opening Sunday, to be passed by 900 on the second Sunday, and by over 1,000 on the third Sunday. The average was about 850 a night. The music was soothing, solemnizing, uplifting. Mrs. Heaton's clear soprano had a thrilling brilliance, as it rang out, its notes intertwined and interlinked with the wistful longings of the violin, and the angelic purity of the harp's clear tones. Mr. Henri Scott, on the second night, sang with the fervor of a prophet, rolling forth the message from on high. Mr. Douty's tenor was exceedingly satisfying and soothing. Mrs. Mulford is a contralto whose moving, liquid and resonant voice refreshed everyone. The violinists and the harpist gave great satisfaction, and Mr. Thunder's fine qualities as an organist were splendidly manifest. Best of all was the strong devotional spirit of the great congregations, and the heart-stirring messages of our visiting preachers. Dr. Reiland inaugurated the course with a splendid call to a life of vigorous service, enjoining us not to cast the responsibility for our sins on the Devil, but to realize that our destiny and character are in our own hands. We are glad to announce that Dr. Reiland has agreed to preach for us on the first Sunday night in January. I had hoped that Mr. Melish would preach for us on the second Sunday, but could not secure this exceedingly helpful preacher, and was obliged to take his place myself. The third Sunday we had a tender and appealing sermon from Dr. Lyman P. Powell, President of Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., and on the last Sunday the Rev. R. W. Hogue, of Baltimore, gave us a sermon, whose passionate earnestness reminded me of the sermon in that saddest of all English poems, Thomson's "City of Dreadful Night." Mr. Hogue recently resigned the rectorship of Ascension Church, Baltimore, that he might give himself more fully than that rectorship permitted to the service of those disadvantaged, defeated or oppressed in the struggle for subsistence. It appears that he is having some difficulty in securing a seat in the convention of the diocese of Maryland. As usual the forces of conservatism and privilege are frowning on the passionate reformer. The dominant elements in our Church, instead of rejoicing in the fervor of spirit, the love of man, the consuming compassion of such a minister of the Word, are troubled by his inconvenient zeal, and are chilling the atmosphere about him. Technicalities, criticism, aloofness, fear are all making thorny hedges across the way he must take. The Church of Rome with wise statesmanship would make such a man the founder of a preaching order; but the Protestant Episcopal Church deprives him of his seat in its diocesan convention, and the Diocesan Missionary Society passes by on the other side of the way.

People may stare as he cries out that he is more concerned over the crucifixion of the children of God that is now going on in the world, than he is interested in the details of the Crucifixion that occurred on a hill shaped like a skull 1900 years ago. But Mr. Hogue is a man with a message. He is not an antiquarian seeking to pass himself off as a thinker or a legalist endeavoring to proclaim the law of liberty in the language of rubrics, canons and ecclesiastical decisions. He is John the Baptist calling us to repentance for the sins and evils of our industrial system.

I intend to preach at these night services as often as my strength will permit. In December I shall preach on the first and last Sunday nights. On Christmas Eve, Mr. Keable will preach and Christmas carols will be sung. This night service seems to meet a great need. We believe that it can be successfully maintained and made a permanent feature in our activities.

The attendance on the Sunday afternoon services has not been diminished in the slightest degree by the third service. On the contrary, the numbers have nearly doubled. The course on "The Modern View of the Bible" is the attraction. Religion must not be bound either to the letter of a Sacred Book, or to the canons of a sacred organization. The Word of God, which is surely another name for the Truth of God, must be allowed to have free course, that His name may be glorified, whether that word breaks forth to us out of ancient manuscripts or from the still more ancient records of the rocks, or from the latest lessons of human experience. The Bible needs to be delivered from the grave clothes in which the literalists have bound it, that the true life in its marvelous literature may be revealed.

The lectures in November were in the nature of an introduction. In December I shall illustrate the nature of the new Biblical learning by examining in the light of its historical and critical principles some of the easier books in the Old Testament, as a preface to our discussion of the Pentateuch.

The Church League continues its activities. Its last meeting was in St. Stephen's on Monday, November 20th, at 10 A. M. The next meeting will be at the Holy Apostles, on Monday, December 3d, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Roland S. Morris and I are on the list of speakers. This League is not animated by any spirit of disloyalty. It is so devoted to the Episcopal Church that it is willing to give energy and time toward preserving its Protestant character and toward moulding it into a pattern that will qualify it for large usefulness in an age of democracy and social readjustment.

Our Church is making a supreme effort to establish a pension system for the aged clergy and for the widows and orphans of the clergy. Before the sound and businesslike system of insurance which has been devised can be put in operation five million dollars have to be raised. Of this amount Pennsylvania undertook to provide $1,000,000. $700,000 have already been subscribed, and in the next three months we are going to endeavor to raise $300,000. Yearly subscriptions for five years will be received. St. James, Philadelphia, through its rector, undertakes to raise $40,000 over and above what its members have already subscribed. St. Paul's, Chestnut Hill, promises $25,000. St. Mark's promises an additional $15,000. Many of its members have already subscribed largely. I ventured to state at a banquet, as your rector, that I believed that St. Stephen's could contribute $10,000—that is, that we could give $2,000 a year for five years. Last year we had a repair bill of $6,000, and we paid it off in a year and a half. The property is in good condition. We are a united people. With system and general coöperation, the money can easily be raised. I have appointed as the special committee for the purpose Mr. Chas. L. McKeehan and Mr. Roland S. Morris, who are on the Diocesan Committee, and Mr. Craig Atmore, Mr. C. Howard Colket, Mr. H. H. Barton, Jr., and Mr. Howard Reifsnyder. The salaries of the clergy are practically stationary and have been at this same figure for a generation. Their average salary is about $700, far lower than the salaries of engineers and conductors. The demands upon them are innumerable and out of all proportion to their financial ability. This pension system will relieve their burden of anxiety and ought to increase their efficiency. It will also remove a reproach from the Church and enable it to do its duty to those who have given their life to its service. I hope that the appeals and personal solicitations of the committee will meet a general and hearty response. I do not believe that $2,000 a year is beyond our ability; all that is asked is that everyone should do his best.

Much of Mr. Keable's time has been occupied with the arrangements for these third Sunday services; but he will soon devote his energy to bringing our lists and card-catalogues to date. Everyone who has removed to a new address is requested to send in his name. The two great working lists of the Church are the list of pew-holders and envelope-takers. Communicants who do not feel enough interest in the Church either to take seats or to take envelopes must not be hurt if they are not considered part of the Church's sources of power. We are glad to minister to them and help them; but it is clear that they cannot be relied on to help the Church much. This certainly is the rule. So these two lists really represent the working force of the Church. I wish that everyone who really cares for the Church would coöperate with the Envelope System. Anyone sending his or her name to Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr., Stephen Girard Building, 12th street, will receive a package containing envelopes beginning with the Sunday after the receipt of the request. If the joy of systematic giving were realized there would not be a worshiper who did not take the envelopes and use them faithfully.

In the second week in January we ought to have the annual banquet of the congregation. The matter has been placed in the hands of Mr. H. H. Barton, Mr. E. W. Moore and Mr. Clemens.

The Christmas baskets will be distributed on the Saturday before Christmas. Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Mr. Howard Reifsnyder and Mr. James Carrigan are appointed a Committee on Christmas Baskets. No one was ever injured by being made happy at Christmas. We must collect a larger amount than heretofore if we are to send out the usual number of well filled baskets. High prices are very hard on the poor at this time. Miss Lewis takes great pains to make our list of recipients of baskets such a list as ought to appeal to a charity that is enlightened as well as liberal and diffusive.

Amid these exhortations I must not omit to point out the duty of shopping early, that we may lighten the burden of the clerks about Christmas time. It is sad to think that the season of joy and fraternal affection should be a time of excessive toil, or nervous exhaustion by reason of the dilatoriness of many shoppers, who wait till the last week or days to purchase their presents. He who buys early gets the best goods, the best service and renders a real kindness to others.

Let me close with a word of personal appeal.

A great opportunity lays on us a great responsibility. These splendid Sunday night congregations are showing their influence in the strangers that appear in our morning congregations. These people are not merely listening to the words of the preacher. They are also testing the spiritual tone of the congregation. It may be they are lonely, let us show ourselves hospitable and friendly. They may be depressed, let our dominant note be a joyous courage. It may be they are compassed with doubts, let us not deepen their unbelief by a hard dogmatism, but let us seek to win them by our sympathy, our reverent attitude before the mysteries of life and death, by our stout-hearted resolve to accept the light, from whatever quarter it may break, and however faint may be its rays. In this matter we have no demonstration. We are making a great experiment and we are walking by faith. The Christian life is an adventure, a heroic enterprise, a knight-errantry. It does not consist in playing safe; but in subordinating self to great ends, even to the bringing in of the Kingdom of God, by living a life of love, faith and service. This is the call that comes up to us from these great congregations that have poured into our doors: "Show us the Divine life in your life. Let us hear the Divine Love and righteousness speaking in you and through you." It is a call. It is also a vision. Let us not be disobedient to this heavenly vision.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

To Our Visitors.

Let me address a word to those who may come for the first time to any of our services. St. Stephen's is anxious to serve the community in a large and generous way. Situated in the heart of a great city, it opens its doors freely to all. While it has a system of rented pews, these seats are only reserved at the morning service, and at that service only till after the opening prayer. There are seats for everyone at every service. No one should remain away for fear lest there will be no place or welcome for him. We rejoice at their presence and are helped by their fellowship. This hospitality extends to the Lord's Table, and the sacrament of Christian fellowship. Confirmation is required of those who wish to unite themselves in the recognized and regular manner with the Episcopal Church; but all Christians are invited to come as guests to the Supper of the Lord. All that is required is, that they should "truly and earnestly repent them of their sins past, and be in love and charity with their neighbors and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God and walking from henceforth in his holy ways." When we invite all such to draw near with faith, and take this holy sacrament to their comfort, we mean it. Roman Catholics, Lutherans, Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, Quakers—are all alike welcome.

The night services are intended for everyone; and it is hoped that some of those who attend no church may pass from these popular musical services to the morning worship and adopt St. Stephen's as their place of regular Church home. They will find a hearty welcome if they will make themselves known to the clergy or to any of the staff of the Church or to the ushers. We invite you to worship with us, to Christian fellowship, to the worship of God and the service of men, to the quest of truth and the religion of love.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Christmas Baskets.

Following our custom of several years, baskets containing Christmas dinners will be distributed on Saturday, December 23d. Envelopes for special offerings will be distributed through the pews. In December, 1915, we had a balance of $66.39. This year we start with a balance of $33.26, and as everyone knows, the cost of almost every article that goes into the baskets is higher than ever. An increase in the contributions as well as in the number of contributors is greatly to be desired. Men may be getting higher wages, but most of our baskets go into homes where there is no man to bring home a "pay envelope." The widows and orphans, the sick and the aged are severely affected by the high cost of provisions.

The old song says, "Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes it brings good cheer." Let us diffuse the good cheer and happiness by relieving the needs of our less fortunate brethren.

The Scripture saith: "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and look, what he layeth out, it shall be paid him again."

Even the most timid and skeptical investor cannot question the soundness of this security.

The Committee on Baskets is Messrs. Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr., Howard Reifsnyder and James Carrigan.

Sunday School.

On December 24th the Associate will give an illustrated talk on "The Nativity of Jesus," and the Sunday school will sing the old familiar hymns and carols.

On Wednesday, the 27th, Mr. Streaker and a number of children will present "Christmas in the West."

On the 28th, Thursday, the Mothers' Christmas Party will take place and on Friday, the 29th, the G. F. S.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The November meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held in the Parish House, the 16th, with thirty-one members present.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $47.88 and a fund of $16.00 which she had received for Mrs. Anderson, the speaker at the October meeting, who works among the lepers of India.

Miss Magee has received $43.00 during the last month for the United Offering.

After the usual reports from our delegates, Rev. C. E. Snavely, of Cuba, was introduced and gave an interesting address.

His territory covers an area as long as from Philadelphia to Hartford, Conn., and a hundred miles in width. He covers this field once a month, holding services, looking after Church property and all legal business and planning new work. He is trying to raise $1,500 with which to buy property in Neuvitas, a town which is making a phenomenal growth on account of new roads having recently been opened which connect it with the interior.

The people are making rapid development in education and the Confirmation classes are so large as to make the demand for Church equipment very great. Twelve per cent. of the people could read ten years ago; to-day forty per cent. of them can read.

A fund of $25.00 was voted to Mr. Snavely's work.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR,
Secretary.

The next meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held on Thursday afternoon, December 28th, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Markoe, the new President of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, will be present and speak on "The Indians." Tea will be served after the business meeting.

The Altar Society.

On Thursday, December 7th, at 10.30 A. M., there will be a special celebration of the Holy Communion, with a brief address to the Society by the Associate.

Wanted.

A woman wants employment. Formerly a nurse. Good needlewoman; could take entire care of lady's or gentleman's wordrobe, cleaning and pressing. Will furnish references. Moderate wages. Address, Mrs. Sarah Hedrick, care St. Stephen's Parish House.

The sermon on November 26th against the saloon brought to my mind some rhymes—I do not venture to call them verses—that I made several years ago, at the boarding house where I was spending the summer in Virginia. I noticed that on the outside of a window, behind which glowed a lamp on the table, every night a spider spun its web across the pane and caught quite a number of moths. The insect confined its operations entirely to the night time. I composed these lines for my Sunday school children. They may not "adorn a tale," but I think they point a moral. Those who heard the Bishop of Harrisburg speak recall his vivid picture of the lures spread for young men and boys in mining regions by the brightly lighted saloons, and we can see all around us proofs of the devastating power of this institution that Pennsylvania has so carefully removed from the control of the voter.

C. E. G.

The Spider by the Pane.

Across the pane he spins his web,
  Behind it shines the light.
He shuns the rays of wholesome sun,
  And seeks his prey by night.

All day he nestles in his web,
  In corner hid away.
Too wise to try to catch the fly
  That flits around by day.

At times he mends his glitt'ring snare,
  Polygonal in shape,
Concentric lines from radial spines,
  More accurate than tape.

When darkness falls from sunless skies,
  And evening's lamp is lit,
And 'round the pane, the foolish moth,
  And millers wildly flit,

The spider at his central post,
  Then shakes his sticky snare,
And waits in glee to catch the free
  Winged children of the air.

Soon come that way, the insects gay
  And fill the spider's maw,
A deadly light has the pane at night,
  Near web and spider's claw.

L'Envoi.

No law of insect life alone,
  It holds too of mankind.
Not moth or miller only fall
  In snare with light behind.

The warm light streams through window red,
  Within the liquor flows;
Like moths go fluttering through the doors
  The boys and youths and beaux.

The saloon web more victims takes
  Than spiders in the night;
Its snare is harder far to break,
  More poisonous the bite.

For boy and man, too, is the law,
  "To be with safety gay,
To home and slumber give the night
  And have your fun by day."

Downhearted!

Downhearted, Pshaw! there's seldom seen
  A lane without a turning!
Each desert has a spot of green
  In spite of bright Sol's burning.
Your friends have failed you? Well, what then?
  Remember changing Peter;
Sorrow has tried the best of men;
  And life is all the sweeter.

What adds a zest to a summer's joy?
  Is it not a winter weary?
Peace would be tame without alloy,
  Past griefs make solace cheery.
All cannot win, though all must run
  When once life's race is started;
Yet all may hear the words, "Well done."
  So do not be downhearted.

Rector's Letter.

MY DEAR PARISHIONERS:

I wish all of you A Happy New Year. The old year went out to the music of last Sunday's church bells, and this New Year, I trust, brought to each one of us some new resolutions; a tighter girding up of the loins and a more fervent laying hold upon the hope that is set before us. There is much to make us thank God and take courage. The Sunday night musical services continue to manifest their attractiveness by drawing large congregations, and continue to prove their value by the increase in the number of strangers, particularly men, in the morning services. The afternoon lectures on the "Modern View of the Bible" have been somewhat broken in upon by the exigencies of the season, but in the course of the month three lectures were delivered. The first showed the tendency of literary productions in the days before printing, to grow in the hands of copyists and editors; the second discussed the meaning of the prophet in the famous prediction in Isaiah VII that a maid shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel; and the third indicated the line of proof for the late authorship of Deuteronomy, that is derived from the usage as to building altars, in the historical books. The course will be continued in January and February except on the first Sunday in the month, when the choir will render with the assistance of members of the Choral Society, some devotional classic of musical genius. On the first Sunday in January the selections will be from Haendel's Messiah.

On January 10th, at 7 o'clock in the new Club House of the City Club, the men of St. Stephen's will have their annual dinner. The committee in charge is Mr. H. H. Barton, Jr., Mr. E. W. Moore, and Mr. T. B. Clemens. Subscriptions are $1.00 per plate. Names and subscriptions can be sent to any of the committee, or to Mr. Keable, or to the Verger. Promptness will be much appreciated. Let us have a good attendance.

The following preachers have been secured for the Sunday night services in January: For the 7th, Dr. Karl Reiland, of St. George's Church, New York, who began the course so auspiciously on the first Sunday in November; for the 14th, Dr. Samuel McComb, now a canon of our Cathedral in Baltimore, one of the authors associated with Dr. Worcester in Religion and Medicine, and a joint inaugurator with Dr. Worcester of the Emmanuel Movement; on January 21st Dr. William Norman Guthrie, Rector of St. Mark's in the Bowerie, New York, and sometime professional lecturer in General Literature in the University of Chicago; author, editor and preacher.

The special task of January and February in the line of Christian benevolence will be securing pledges and contributions to the Pension Fund. The plan is to inaugurate the new system on March 1st. Before it can be put in operation, however, the balance of the five million fund necessary in funds or binding pledges must be secured. Of this balance, Pennsylvania has undertaken to raise $300,000, and it is hoped that St. Stephen's can pledge $10,000. A committee has been appointed to take the matter in hand, consisting of Mr. C. Howard Colket, Mr. Chas. L. McKeehan, Mr. Roland S. Morris, Mr. H. H. Barton, Jr., and Mr. Craig Atmore. Mr. Colket has kindly consented to act as the chairman of the committee. His report of the amount already pledged or contributed is very encouraging. It should be particularly noted that the contributions may be made in the form of pledges, extending over five years. Let us all bear a hand in this great work.

In the early days of this country every man with energy and reasonable health could make enough to provide for emergencies and for old age. But our civilization has grown more complex. In many occupations men are disqualified for activity long before the close of their life, and the remunerations allow of no savings. The social conscience has taken cognizance of these altered conditions, and the pension system, beginning in the Army and Navy, has made its way into the public schools, the colleges and the great corporations. The tendency is more and more to take some of the heavy burden off the back of the individual and cast it upon society as a whole. Business has to insure its operatives against accidents, and railroads make provisions for honorable retirement of its faithful officials. Those of us who have been brought up under conditions where individual responsibility was stressed more heavily might prefer that the remedy had taken another direction and higher salaries should be proposed all along the line; higher salaries for teachers, for employees, for ministers. Much might be said in favor of that method; but the discussion would be doctrinaire and unreal. No one is advocating (excepting certain favored railroad employees) a general raise of salaries. If our ministers are to be more adequately supported, and no one conversant with the facts can think that a man who has spent years in academies, colleges and seminaries, is sustained in a manner commensurate either with his special training or with the dignity of his function in society, by the average salary paid in our Church, then the improvement in his condition must be achieved by coöperating with this Pension Fund. A general pension system will free parishes from the services of ministers who are too old or infirm to be efficient any longer; it will relieve weary and broken men from burdens too great for their failing strength; it will lighten the load of anxiety that depresses the vitality of many a minister as he looks around upon his young family and his self-sacrificing wife and realizes that he is utterly unable to make any provision for their future. Such a Fund will exhibit the Church as a House of Justice and Mercy, and will increase the power of the ministry to cheer, console and lead their flocks. Let us coöperate with it according to our abilities.

It would be pleasant to dwell upon the festivities of the Christmas season, but it will be more to the point if I call your attention to the need of the Benevolent Society for more workers. Under the inspiring and loving leadership of Miss Ewing this Society has steadily grown. Work is given to some forty sewers, and over 6,000 garments and articles of various kinds were made for the hospitals. The standard of work is high, the output large and the benefit far-reaching. Cannot more women of the congregation dedicate two hours every Wednesday morning from 10 to 12 M. to this work of real benevolence?

Special attention is called to the report of the Committee on the Christmas Baskets. Never has the response of the congregation been so generous during my rectorship. The increased price of provisions was exceeded by the increase in your generosity.

I wish to commend particularly to the attention of the congregation the work of the Visiting Nurse Society. A statement of its work is published elsewhere in this number. For two years St. Stephen's coöperated with the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, and the Visiting Nurse Society in conducting clinics and treating cases. We found the nurse supplied by the Society a mainstay of the enterprise and a wonderful worker. Many times Miss Lewis avails herself of the aid of this Society's nurses in caring for our poor. In such cases it is my custom to make a contribution to the Society out of the Communion Alms. I intend to continue the practice. It deserves a large support from churches and from individuals. It is cruel to move some patients to a hospital. One case comes particularly to my mind. The poor old woman was at one time quite prosperous, but through the extravagance of relatives and her own kindness she had been reduced to penury. Friends secured admission to the Leamy Home for her. But all such institutions have to be governed by rules—sometimes entirely too parental and meticulous—but in her case any rules would probably have been regarded as tyrannical. She had at one time been a woman of considerable executive ability and initiative, and the position of dependence, and, as she thought, of subservience, proved intolerable to her independent and wild spirit. She flung herself out of the unbearable relation, and was enduring, when I met her, the severest poverty, in the harshest conditions, with the most unshaken fortitude. In her last illness her supreme desire was to be allowed to die on her own bed, in her own room, surrounded by her faded memorials. Through the kind coöperation of the Visiting Nurse Society we were able to grant her this wish, and and also alleviate somewhat the hardness of her lot, and give her some proofs that she was not totally forgotten or uncared for. Miss Lewis could mention case after case in which these nurses have shown themselves true ministering angels, asking no questions about creed, race, or previous condition, but content to help, to guide and to bless. It is undoubtedly one of the best charities in the city, far-reaching in its amelioration of suffering and in its educational influence.

Yours cordially

Carl E Grammer

William H. Hollar.

The Church has lost one of its most active and energetic vestrymen in the death of Mr. Hollar. The many offices that Mr. Ludovic C. Cleemann occupied were divided around on his death among the Vestry, and Mr. Hollar fell heir to the care of the Church property. By this was meant particularly the Church edifice and Sunday School buildings; but toward the end he was induced to extend his care to the rectory. Accustomed to the large undertakings of great banks, Mr. Hollar had a high standard of efficiency and greatly improved the condition of our property. His first task was to rewire the whole plant. The wiring, which was one of the earliest in any church in Philadelphia, had been considered safe on account of the low voltage without any insulation. This method was condemned by the improved regulations. Mr. Hollar changed the system entirely and ran the new wires through insulating pipes. He was particularly concerned about the perils of fire and was greatly interested in the erection of the fire escape for the Sunday School building. Under his care our sidewalks were repaired, the pews re-lined and re-cushioned, and, most substantial of all our repairs, a new and strong roof placed upon the Church and Parish House. To these improvements he gave his personal attention, and for their efficient supervision he often curtailed his holidays. Those who worked with him will never forget his warm interest in all that concerned the Church. Our Verger, who shared with him the care of the property, remembers with gratitude Mr. Hollar's friendly solicitude to lighten his tasks. Particular mention ought to be made of his great exertions when the buildings close by the Church were burned, to prevent any avoidable damage to our property from falling walls. He saw to it that all the fire insurance money due the Church was expended in such a way that the Church was not a particle the worse for the scorching that it had received.

By the death of his father he had been thrown upon his own exertions early in life. His widowed mother with her children found in this elder son a heroic helper, dauntless, energetic, resourceful. In his own line of business, as a builder of bank vaults and safes he achieved an acknowledged preëminence, and built up a great business, which it is good to learn will descend to his only son, who bears his name. His interest in civic affairs was manifested in substantial ways and he served on a number of important boards. At one time he was the President of the Ohio Society in Philadelphia.

The spirit of his life was manifest in an incident that occurred years ago, when he lived in York, on the banks of the Susquehanna. The river had risen in one of its spring floods and flowing over all its banks had surrounded entirely a house in which dwelt a helpless household of women and children. Cut off from all intercourse for days the dwellers were suffering from hunger. Mr. Hollar offered a reward of $500 to the riverman who would swim out to the house with a rope. The flood was, however, running so strong and was rendered so dangerous by driftwood that to his surprise no one was willing to accept his offer. Whereupon he called out in his impetuous way, "I will do it myself!" and tying a light rope to his own waist, plunged into the raging river and swam across to the house. The act was typical of the man. Such was the strong and active spirit that has been taken from us. Into a more widely separating stream he took his plunge this past month, but we doubt not that on the other shore there were friends waiting him and high tasks. He who fashioneth in the furnace of life these instruments of proof, surely has in mind purposes that reach beyond this transitory experience on earth.

The whole congregation realize the gratitude that we owe to him for his labors of love, and unite with me in sympathy with his sorrowing family. CARL E. GRAMMER.

Resolution of the Vestry on the Death of Mr. William H. Hollar.

Resolved, That by the death of Mr. William H. Hollar the Vestry of St. Stephen's has lost one of its most efficient members. Liberal in his gifts of money, Mr. Hollar was still more generous with his time, energy and ability. Under his careful planning and active supervision the Church buildings were brought to their present improved condition, and to his administrative judgment and skill many large interests of the corporation were entrusted. Prompt, decisive, helpful, deeply interested in the common weal and in our Church, a thorough sympathizer in all the ideals for which St. Stephen's stands, greatly will he be missed by his coworkers in the Vestry and congregation who sympathize with his sorrowing wife and children, as participators with them in this bereavement.

The Church's Purpose.

I have been astonished at the number of people who have expressed surprise and pleasure over the invitation to visitors in our last issue of the PARISH NEWS. Such an invitation was only a statement of the fundamental purpose of a Church. The first object of a Church is not to raise money. That is a mere means to an end. A hospital is not run for money, or a college, or an art school, neither is a Church. The great aim of a Church is to awaken men to the living of the higher life. As a means to that end it contributes to the necessities of the poor. The needs of the body must be satisfied if the soul is to expand. All of man's nature must be helped if he is to be raised so St. Stephen's sends out Christmas baskets, provides shoes for poor children, and secondhand garments for the ill-clad, and aids the hospitals and the sewing women through its Benevolent Society.

But man does not live by bread alone. People become depressed and melancholy, or soured, embittered and warped unless their souls are cheered by friendship. Those in prisons of loneliness or despondency must be visited as well as the prisoners behind iron bars. The Church, therefore, invites men to fellowship and says: "Here's my hand my trusty frere. Let us walk together toward the Heavenly Zion, singing part-songs as we tread our pilgrim-way. Let us have sweet fellowship together. Our hopes, our fears, our aims, are one, our comforts and our cares." Above all let us worship together. Does your soul, like mine, yearn for communion with God, as the hart panteth for the water-brooks. Let us not be ashamed to own to one another that we feel ourselves weak and are anxious for help from on high.

Let us together draw nigh to God, and unite the flickering flames of our feeble devotions till they rise into a great bonfire of ardent aspiration, a beacon fire, that will light the distant scene and guide the feet of wanderers in darkness and loneliness. It may be they will come in out of the darkness and join us in the warmth and light and friendship of those who stand close to the fire. This is what the Church bells ring out. Come in out of darkness to light—out of loneliness to fellowship—out of the prison of self into the freedom of communion with God.

This is the Church's purpose and end.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary had an interesting meeting Dec. 28th. Contrary to the usual custom, the meeting was held in the afternoon and Miss Bell, the president, was our hostess to afternoon tea.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $77.63 and a special fund of $15 for the Rev. C. E. Snavely, of Cuba, who was our speaker at the November meeting. The committees reported on their various activities during the month, and Miss Magee reported a total of $82 for the United Offering.

Mrs. Markoe, President of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, and President of the Indian's Hope of the Diocese of Philadelphia, gave a thrilling and appealing address on the Indians. She has given many years to this work and feels that of the three great problems of America—"the Indian whom we found here, the Negro whom we brought here and the Immigrant whom we invited here"—the one in which we have most completely failed is our duty to the Indian.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, January 18th, at 11 o'clock.

The Sunday School.

Christmas in the Sunday School was a happy time. The Sunday before we had the old, old story illustrated by Mr. Keable with the use of the lantern. All departments of the school enjoyed the beautiful pictures and heartily sang the carols, as they did again on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27th, when we held the Annual Christmas Festival. The feature of this occasion for many years past has been the Christmas play. This year our scene was laid at Rollins, Wyoming: "Christmas in the Far West" was the title, and our young folk, full of dramatic and musical talent, made this, as our critics say, "the best yet." The Rector, with his big knowledge of Indian life, was most kindly appreciative of the efforts of our scholars to tell and sing the Christmas story, as Indians, cowboys, ranchers and nursery-rhyme-people. After six weeks of faithful and careful rehearsal it proved a good success. We are indebted to the constancy and earnestness of all who took part, and particularly to our musical leader, Miss Charlotte Nodine.

We are all very grateful to our good friends of the Church who made possible by their generous contributions our festival, not forgetting the delicious box of candies to each scholar. By a good suggestion of our Associate Rector we also demonstrated the value of giving. Contributions from the classes made possible the purchase in the name of the school of a goodly supply of provisions for needy families.

The first Sunday in the new year, a New Year Lesson will be given by Mr. Keable, and on the 14th, the second Sunday, the last quarter's lessons will be reviewed and illustrated with the lantern by Mr. Streaker.

We are getting new friends, new teachers, new scholars and new inspirations, and not forgetting our old ones, for we wish to all a most Happy and Prosperous New Year.

G. H. Streaker,
Superintendent.

The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

There will be a meeting not only of the Junior members but we desire all boys over twelve to be with us in the Sunday School room at nine o'clock Sunday morning, January 14th. The Chapter is growing. The boys take part in its exercises and work and are planning big things for their part in the coming Convention of the National Brotherhood in our city.

It is a pleasure to note the presence of so many, not only of our older girls of the Sunday School but the older boys and young men, at the Church services.

On December 23d, Santa Claus made his usual gift of one bundle and two large boxes of shoes and overshoes—nice wide ones. I am sure he must be very tired after all his hard work this year. It seems as if kindness and goodness have been all over the city and the children of St. Stephen's thank both Santa Claus and all the good people and hope they may have a very Happy New Year.

Gave out in December about 14 pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of overshoes.

Donations of secondhand shoes from Mrs. A. Mink and others. Thanks to all.

Mothers' Meetings.

On Thursday afternoon and evening, Dec. 7th, the Mothers held their annual sale. It was well attended by the Mothers and their friends. The articles for sale were furnished by them. The members of the Church do not patronize it. The money realized for years has been used to add additional comforts to St. Stephen's Farm, of which the Mothers are always proud. About $100 was realized this year. They have not yet decided what to do with it.

Thursday evening, Dec. 28th, was the Christmas entertainment for the Mothers. Seventy-eight were able to be there. Professor Thunder was kind enough to have some members of his choir sing Christmas Carols, for which the Mothers were very grateful. Dr. Grammer spent part of the evening with them, and, as usual, gave much pleasure to all. Later one of the Mothers played the accompaniments to several Christmas hymns, which were heartily sung. Mr. Carrigan had decorated the room and placed the Christmas tree, which with electric lights and many decorations, added to the beauty of the room. The usual boxes of Christmas candy were given to each member, and all went home highly pleased with their Christmas evening.

The Church Periodical Club.

The Secretary of the Church Periodical Club would be grateful to any kindly disposed member of St. Stephen's who would occasionally transport a package of magazines from the Church to Blockley, or some other nearby institution. Odd magazines to the number of a hundred or more are frequently given to the Secretary for distribution, and when she cannot afford postage to send them to distant points she bestows them on the inmates of various city institutions. A timely lift in this direction would enable her to conserve her funds for postage. She has a large number of periodicals now waiting for distribution.

The Rector acknowledges additional subscriptions to the Church Work Fund, as follows:

Chas. P. Lineaweaver	10 00

Girls' Friendly Society.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society, for their Christmas work this season, took great pleasure in dressing dolls and filling fifty large stockings for the children in the Philadelphia General Hospital, and also in sending dolls, toys and games to St. Martha's House, at Eighth and Snyder avenue.

The following extract from a letter received from the Children's Agent of the Social Service Department will give some idea of the joy carried to the Hospital by this Christmas work of the Girls' Friendly Society: "We feel that we cannot adequately express our gratitude to your Branch for the thoughtful care that has been expended on these beautiful stockings. Everyone who has seen them expresses the greatest admiration for them, and everyone connected with this institution joins me in this expression of gratitude.

"We went to the receiving ward for a stretcher on which we packed the stockings, in order that they might be carried safely to the chief nurse's office. It was delightful to witness the joy of these stretcher-men when they beheld the beautiful stockings and realized that they were for the children of this hospital."

Grace V. D. Lucas,
Branch Secretary.

The Visiting Nurse Society.

To give skilled nursing care to the sick in their homes and to relieve those suffering from physical injury or chronic disability, this is the first and immediate object of The Visiting Nurse Society of Philadelphia. After this, but very closely allied, is the ultimate object: through instruction and example, that is, by "showing them how," to better conditions which, because of neglect, indifference or ignorance, are much worse than need be, even among the very poor; in this way working toward the prevention of disease and the larger improvement of economic conditions generally.

The Society has three very definite aims: (1) To take care of the sick at home; (2) to teach the simple laws of health and hygiene; (3) to observe social conditions and to better them.

It has been estimated that not more than ten out of every one hundred sick persons are cared for in hospitals. Of the remaining ninety only a very small proportion can afford the continuous services of a trained nurse. Yet those who can least afford this are often those who most urgently need expert care, and this is what the visiting nurse carries to them. In the case of sick children it has been proved that nursing care in the home, "be it ever so humble," is far better than the effect of the strange surroundings of the hospital ward; while for patients of mature years, especially women, it is often impossible to leave home, the home itself being actually imperiled by their absence and themselves suffering greatly through anxiety and worry. Then there are the many cases of chronic illness or disability, which for obvious reasons imperatively demand home care.

But there is a vast difference between the work of a nurse in a hospital, with everything necessary at hand, with conditions sanitary, and a doctor to call upon at a moment's notice, and the visiting nurse's work in the homes of the city's poor. And when besides the inability of poverty she has to meet the ignorance of an alien nationality, with its own peculiar traditions and customs, her position requires many qualities other than a knowledge of nursing. Thus, in addition to being a hospital trained nurse of high standing, she must qualify as a teacher and a social worker.

The Visiting Nurse Society of Philadelphia, one of the country's pioneers in this field, opened its doors in 1886 with one nurse, one room and one hundred dollars. To-day the Society has a staff of fifty-two nurses, whose working districts are bounded only by the city limits; a central office at 1340 Lombard street, and five branch offices, in Germantown, Kensington, Manayunk, North Philadelphia, and West Philadelphia. The work of the branches is carried on under the supervision and direction of the central office. Thus the Society as a whole is like a "visiting hospital," carrying its expert care, its sanitary equipment and its instruction throughout the city to the sick and suffering who cannot come to it. During the year 1915 this moving hospital made 99,413 visits to 14,366 patients; and in 1916, during the four months of June, July, August and September, 41,383 visits were made to 4,795 patients, this latter being an increase of more than 8,000 visits and nearly 600 patients over the record of 1915. The average number of visits for each month this past year has been 10,550 to 2,190 patients; of these patients, 320, approximately, are chronics, 500 are cases of acute illness, 675 are maternity cases, and 881 are children (inclusive of new-born babies).

With such an increase and growth in the work the Society feels the absolute necessity of expansion in its staff, and to meet this demand has added within the last six months ten new nurses to its working force. These ten nurses, however, have been absorbed so rapidly that there is most urgent need at present for ten more, if the Society is to do nothing more than meet the daily demands upon its service. This requirement is not looking toward possible future development, but is solely for present needs, since the Society recently has been compelled to face the question whether it should turn away cases that appeal for its aid or force its nurses to lower their standard of excellence by taking far more work than they can do. The answer is apparent. So also is the need. But with the need for nurses comes that for money to pay their salaries. A glance at a very few figures of this year's budget should be sufficiently convincing. The sum of $60,000 comprises this budget, in which a margin of less than $3,000 is allowed. $48,000 is paid in nurses' salaries, leaving a little over $9,000 for actual running expenses, out of which not less than $4,000 must be paid for the nurses' carfare alone. In these days of increased and increasing prices this is clearly a very moderate sum for office and house expenses.

For the thirty years of its existence The Visiting Nurse Society has been supported by the generosity of its friends, since the fees paid by the patients are often merely nominal, being never more than fifty cents and generally from ten cents up, while many are not able to pay anything. Thus the Society's main support is derived from voluntary contributions, and for these it must continue to look to the people of Philadelphia who are able and willing to make possible a work so obviously and deeply needed.

The committee feels disappointed that there has not been a more general response to the appeal for this object—the greatest ever undertaken for the benefit of the Church. There seems to be an impression among some people that it is better not to subscribe at all than to send a small amount. Nothing can be more fallacious. Over 200 persons in our Parish have not been heard from. If each one would sign a pledge for $10 payable in five yearly instalments the whole amount of $10,000 promised by St. Stephen's would be raised. A little over half a cent a day will accomplish this result. Only four weeks remain to raise our quota. Checks drawn to order Church Pension Fund, Inc.,, and pledges should be sent to C. Howard Colket, 2008 DeLancey street.

Rector's Letter.

MY DEAR PARISHIONERS:

We have entered upon a month that calls for unusual generosity. In the first place there is the Pension Fund. Before the pledges to the Five Million Dollar Fund become obligatory, the five million must be pledged. The date set as the time limit is March 1st. The diocese of Pennsylvania is attempting to raise one million, and $300,000 were yet to be raised when a meeting was held in December. I said that in my judgment St. Stephen's could raise $10,000. It was understood that the pledges could be made in annual payments for five years. In all my career in the ministry I have done very little personal solicitation. I have been unwilling to make the pastoral tie a source of revenue. Sometimes I realize that I have carried this much too far, and shirked my duty of presenting worthy objects to people who should regard themselves as stewards entrusted with great estates for some higher purpose than their own pleasure. Yet, on the whole, I believe that I have been in the right. The task of raising the money ought not to be placed in the hands of the minister—I mean the personal solicitation. Yet if there ever was a case where all timidities ought to be cast aside, this Pension Fund seems to be such a case. All these pledges have been conditioned on the raising of the five million. This is the greatest financial effort ever made by our Church. In all departments, in banks and in stores, business people are endeavoring to help the salaried people in these days of high prices. Our clergy are as a class recipients of low aries, and subjected to many demands social, charitable and ecclesiastical. The Nation pensions its officers, should not the Church do the same for its officials? Such a provision will enable congregations to retire without cruelty their aged ministers, who are unequal to their work. It ought to make ministers better able to discharge their tasks, since the burden of anxiety will be lightened by this provision for their widows and minor children. Let us all do our best and see if we cannot raise $10,000. At any rate, let us do our best.

It is unfortunate that in this month comes our offering for Diocesan Missions. We are asked to raise $930.86, of which $30 have been received. Hitherto this money has largely been raised by collectors. This year we shall endeavor to raise it by the mail, and the collectors will only be sent to the homes from which no reply of any kind is received. The offering will be taken up on February 11th, the second Sunday in the month, according to our long standing custom. Every communicant who is able is requested to give five dollars. It is hoped that our wealthier members will give more. Let every man give as God hath prospered him, and as he is disposed in his own heart; the Lord loveth a cheerful and liberal giver.

Among the papers of Miss Fanny S. Magee was found a memorandum that she would like to endow pew No. 77 in which her father sat for many years. By the generosity of Miss Anna J. Magee this wish has been carried out, and pew 77 has been endowed for all time in memory of James Magee.

On the morning of March 4th, Bishop Garland will visit St. Stephen's and administer the rite of Confirmation. Confirmation classes will be held on Friday evenings, beginning Friday, February 9th. There will be four meetings—February 9th, 16th, 23d and March 2d. As a rule fourteen years is the minimum age for this public dedication of self to God.

The Sunday Evening Musical Services continue to be a great success. We have long been convinced that the night service ought to allow people to remain seated more than our Evening Prayer permits, and should differ widely from the regular liturgical service. The success of the musical service has thus far justified these theories. Other churches are emulating our example. Such attendance shows that music has far more power of attraction than fine architecture. The Churches must not turn our music over to the Sunday afternoon concert in the theatres where there is not a word of preaching; but ought to utilize the music as a means of bringing people under the power of the preached word. If the attendants at our Sunday night services would contribute with a juster appreciation of the musical treat which has been given them, the burden of the committee would be lightened and the permanence of these night services through the winter would be assured.

The list of the Lenten speakers is published in this number and will be read with general interest. Our own Bishop Garland, according to the custom of years, will make the noonday address on Ash Wednesday, and the eloquent and widely loved Bishop of Bethlehem will speak on Thursday. Bishop Williams, of Michigan has for years come to us for the week after the first Sunday in Lent, and it is a great source of regret that we cannot hear his eloquent message this year. He is undoubtedly one of the greatest prophets in our Church, a man whose message meets the needs of the age, and is made effective by the zeal and love which wing it on its way. He felt obliged to go elsewhere this Lent. May he be prospered in all his doings and may his feet turn in our direction in 1918. We cannot spare him for more than one season. His place will be taken by Bishop Theodore Payne Thurston, of Eastern Oklahoma, one of the most eloquent and attractive of our younger Bishops. My visit to Oklahoma some years ago gave me a high opinion of his work. He is much sought after as a special preacher, and we are fortunate in securing him.

With the official permission of Bishop Rhinelander I asked the widely-known author, preacher and lecturer, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn, to deliver five noonday addresses, and we are exceedingly fortunate in being able to bring to Philadelphia such an influential leader among the Congregationalists and a man of so much spiritual power. Dr. Powell, of Hobart College, New York, and Dr. Karl Reiland, of St. George's, New York, are well known to the congregation, since they have spoken for us on Sunday night.

The Rev. John M. McGann, of Springfield, Mass., is the successor of Dr. Slattery in one of the chief parishes of Massachusetts. In some way New England lives a life of its own. New York is so powerful and attractive that people do not seem to be able to pass beyond it. So it comes to pass that we do not hear as often as we should the message of our New England brethren.

Through the kindness of our clerical brethren in the city the Saturdays are supplied, and I myself hope to make all the addresses in Holy Week.

I hope that this Lent may be a season of spiritual growth, and that we may have a good Confirmation class. The secret of success is coöperation.

> The strength of mutual purpose pleads
> More earnestly our common needs.

Never can I forget the heartening words spoken to me by one of the young men of my congregation in Norfolk. I had come very near breaking down in a quotation before an immense congregation on Sunday morning. After referring to those "well-known lines" of Tennyson, I had begun—

> "Sunset and evening star and one clear call for me," and suddenly lost the sequence and could not recollect the next line. These "well-known lines" were apparently not known well by me. I paused, the congregation grew very quiet, and then I began slowly again. Suddenly at the end of the first line the verses came back to me and I completed the two stanzas. The pause had been quite long, however, and painful to my friends. To cover over his annoyance at the break, one of them was asserting that I had come out all right at the end. "Yes," said the other, and his remark has often heartened me—"we were all pulling for him." They were anxious to help me out and were wishing they could add their strength to mine. Such listeners will pull a speaker out of very deep ruts and holes. That is what the message needs: people in the pews who are pulling for it, seeking to give it efficacy by their lives, and secretly sending up their hearts to God, that he will strengthen the weak, cheer the disheartened and bring the prodigals back out of the far country. Let us listen to sermons in this spirit.

Yours cordially

Carl E Grammer

Come now and let us reason together. We have had in religion an excess of reverence for external authority and an excessive yearning for emotional excitement; but we have never had a sufficient appreciation of the part of reason in the spiritual life. Yet after all, reason underlies the whole religious life. If a man is totally without reason, we do not attempt to teach religion to him; we simply confine and restrain him. We despair of controlling him from within, and trust entirely to authority. If a man is intelligent enough to understand the teachings of Christianity, he must apply them in a reasonable way, or he is as dangerous as a madman with a rifle in his hands.

It is reason that must pass on the claims of Bible and Church, and of systems of truth. It is reason that must reduce principles to practice. Christianity is not afraid of reason; indeed, it addresses itself to it, lays before it its claims and asks it to apply to life's problems the fundamental principles of religion. Every now and then some specialist, like Professor Leuba, comes forward and tells us patronizingly that such and such intelligent people no longer believe in a personal God and implies that Reason is the foe of Faith. But no one needs to be seriously disturbed by these pompous experts. A theory that commanded the assent of Copernicus, Kepler, Sir Isaac Newton, Leibnitz, Faraday, Clerk Maxwell, and Lord Kelvin cannot be unreasonable. For my own part I am weary of the preposterous claims of the physiologists and psychologists. How manifestly absurd it would be for an anatomist of the brain to set up as an authority on mathematics, because he had carefully examined the brain. No one will ever gain any light on the value of Calculus by examining the brain with the most powerful of microscopes, or analyzing its substance with the subtlest chemical processes. These physiologists and psychologists are no more competent to pass on the reasonableness of our belief in God—because they are specialists in physiology and psychology,—than an anatomist as an anatomist is qualified to pass on Quaternions. Don't allow yourself, my young friend, to be frightened by psychologists.

Let us listen to Lord Bacon—

"I had rather believe all the fables in the Legend, and Talmud, and the Alcoran, than that this universal frame is without a mind; and, therefore, God never wrought miracles to convince atheism, because his ordinary works convince it. It is true that a little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth man's mind about to religion."

* * * * * * *

"They that deny a God destroy a man's nobility, for certainly man is of kin to the beasts by his body; and if he be not of kin to God by his spirit, he is a base and ignoble creature. It destroys likewise magnanimity and the raising human nature; for take an example of a dog, and mark what generosity and courage he will put on when he finds himself maintained by a man, who to him is instead of a god—which courage is manifestly such as that creature without that confidence of a better nature than his own could not obtain: therefore as atheism is in all respects hateful, so in this, that it depriveth human nature of the means to exalt itself above human frailty."—*Bacon's Essays. Governor Stokes on Lincoln.

On Wednesday, February 14, at 8.15 P. M., ex-Governor Stokes of New Jersey, will deliver his celebrated lecture on Lincoln in St. Stephen's. The Rector and Vestry have lent the Church for the occasion to a committee, which has been endeavoring to bring new people to the Church and the Church's message to more people. All are invited to this famous lecture.

The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

At a special service on Wednesday evening, January 31st, the following boys were admitted into the membership of the Brotherhood:

Frank Weinrich.
John Clark.
Lorenz Reidel.
Leroy Hartranft.

The Sunday School.

The Sunday School entered actively into the New Year. Florence Coll, Florence Elsner and Henry Ahtes, with the Superintendent, represented it at the Older Boys' and Girls' Conference, when 900 delegated older boys and girls from the Sunday Schools of Philadelphia, on January 26th and 27th, sat down at supper together and the next day held an all-day conference to get information and training for leadership in the best methods of Sunday School work. We were pleased with the good reports which they brought back and gave to the school the last Sunday in January. Mr. Keable is planning to have some of our scholars take part in the Junior Pageant on February 16th at the Metropolitan Opera House. He has also secured the books for the new series of lessons on "The Life of Christ," upon which study we have just heartily entered. Our next important work is Confirmation, and the teachers are hopefully expecting to present a goodly number from the school during the coming Lenten season.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary held its January meeting on the 18th in the Parish House.

The usual business meeting was followed by an address by Rev. A. Rufus Morgan, of the Appalachian Industrial School at Penland, N. C.

Mr. Morgan was himself a Highlander of North Carolina, and after educating himself has returned to his people to spend his life teaching them and promoting the work of the Church in the country surrounding Penland. He and his wife went there two and a half years ago. A farm with an old house and barn were all they had with which to begin. Mr. Morgan has raised all the money they have had for improvements. They now have a comfortable bungalow and a school building partly built. Enough is finished to house the teachers and pupils comfortably now, though they need five hundred dollars to finish the cellar and to complete the interior.

Pathetic stories were told of these mountain people and their hunger for education after so many years of suppression owing to geographical conditions. Whole families present themselves at the school, the parents offering to help with the work on the farm and in the school in return for education for themselves and their children. Mr. Morgan holds services in five places, separated many miles, and one of his pleas is for fifty dollars to buy a cart and harness. His horse cannot carry him in bad weather on these mountain roads and he walks many weary hours during the week. A fund of twenty-five dollars was voted him by the Auxiliary.

Have We Seen You?

If not, a hearty welcome awaits you at the annual sale of the Benevolent Society now being held on Wednesdays from 10 to 12 o'clock in the Parish House. Do come and be prepared to purchase some article, or, preferably, articles that are absolutely necessary in a well regulated household. Our Russian crash towels at 16 cents are well adapted for drying purposes; also a variety of red and blue plaid towels at 10 cents, harmonizing with the garment Milady desires to don. What can be accomplished in the home without gingham aprons? Your choice at 25 cents. Among many other articles, too numerous to mention, will be found —think of it?—cheesecloth dusters at six cents. Every member of the congregation, those affiliated with any of the numerous societies thereof or in any way connected with the Parish, together with their relatives, friends and acquaintances are earnestly and cordially requested to avail themselves of these sales and thus promote industry and thrift, and at the same time alleviate the wants of those less fortunate than themselves. Committee.

Four Million Raised for Clergy Pensions.

BISHOP LAWRENCE OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCES THAT FOUR FIFTHS OF THE FUND HAS BEEN SECURED AND ASKS FOR LAST MILLION BY MARCH IST.

It is with deep gratification that I am able to announce that $4,000,000 of the necessary $5,000,000 has now been pledged to the Church Pension Fund.

This is a great sum of money—the greatest the Church has ever raised for a particular purpose in so short a time. But far more important than the size of the fund is the spirit which has universally accompanied the gifts. Men and women from coast to coast have risen with enthusiasm to the bigness of the conception involved in this thorough, just and permanent system to provide for the clergy of our Church.

We need another million.

We have undertaken to raise it by March first of this year. If we do not we are not entitled to keep the four million now pledged.

Will this million be pledged within the next nine weeks?

Only one answer to this question is conceivable, and it rests with the Church people of America, men, women and children, to give the answer in terms which leave no doubt of their determination to meet this great problem of social justice in a twentieth century way.

One word more. We who are giving our full time and strength to this task are confident of success. But we base that confidence not upon vague hopes, but upon the belief that the hard, consistent work which has brought us four fifths of the way toward our goal will be continued. We rely on the earnest committeemen in every diocese and parish of the country to reach the people who can give most largely and to give them a personal opportunity to take a substantial part in this epoch-making result.

Our campaign, from the start, has been a personal one. It must continue along those lines. We want gifts from all. We want small gifts as well as large. But more than all we want to achieve success in this undertaking, and we cannot succeed in raising $5,000,000 unless we continue to bring our appeal so closely to the hearts of the large givers as to bring forth substantial gifts. This is the one thought to bear in mind from now until March first—gifts, large and small, but without large gifts no hope of success.

We, here in New York, stand ready to help with literature, letters, advice. The actual money—the final $1,000,000—must be collected by the whole Church from the whole Church. And it must be done NOW.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE.

Memorial Flower Fund.

The Treasurer of the Memorial Flower Fund has sent the following note to all subscribers:

"As the increase in the cost of living affects every source of supply, our florist has intimated he is unable to furnish the adequate amount of flowers for Memorial Sundays at $1.50, we have therefore increased the subscriptions to $2.00 and hope you will be willing to continue to subscribe at this advanced rate. Will you kindly let me know at your earliest convenience? Sincerely yours,

"EMILY K. CAMPBELL."

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

It is a source of great thankfulness that the congregation has contributed so generally to the Church Pension Fund. Widely separated as are the homes of our people, it is manifest that we are a united congregation. The contributions have come from many sources, and mean far more than the same amount from a small number of wealthy contributors. It is also a subject of thanksgiving that the contributions to Diocesan Missions have been larger than usual. It is true that we have not yet reached the amount asked of the Parish, but I am convinced that when all the contributions come in, we shall be able to contribute the amount that the Diocese expects of us. We have already exceeded the sum contributed in former years; but our assessment has been raised.

The attendance on the noonday Lenten services is encouraging. The location of our Church makes it impossible to add to its noonday services any other special Lenten devotions. People who can attend an additional service find their needs met by this great popular service, and will not come to an afternoon service. Some years ago I announced that if a dozen people asked for Evening Prayer on Wednesday or Friday afternoons in Lent it would be provided. No requests came in, and the service was dropped. The attendance had been miserable, although I had made extraordinary exertions, at one time giving a course on the message of the English poets, Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth, Browning and Tennyson. Of course that meant a considerable re-reading of old authors, and special study on my part. The congregation numbered from thirty to thirty-five, and I did not feel that I was sowing the seed in a specially fruitful field. I believed I could make better use of my time. After the service was discontinued, a lady was complaining to Mrs. Weir Mitchell of its cessation. "Did you tell the Rector that you would like the service continued?" said Mrs. Mitchell, going to the heart of the matter in her usual frank and cheery way. "No," said the lady; "I never said anything." "Well," said Mrs. Mitchell, "I think then you ought to continue to say nothing, for the Rector invited suggestions, and if you did not make any suggestions, you have no right now to bewail the discontinuance of the service."

The Confirmation class this year is not so large as it was last year, when we had two Confirmations in one season. The value of personal work is always seen at Confirmation time. People are usually brought in by some one who speaks to them on the subject, asks them why they are hesitating, and helps them to a decision. It is much more important that the class be made up of members who intend to continue than that it should be large. Some clergyman was criticising the converts at our Mission on Vine street, and running down the converts of Mr. Sunday, asking where they were to be found in a few months. The critic was asked whether he had ever asked the same question about the Confirmation class a few months after Confirmation. It is one of the scandals of our Church that so many people are confirmed and then disappear. Jesus always guarded the people who attached themselves to him against undue precipitancy, and warned them, "No man, having put his hand to the plow and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." He even discouraged some of them and made them come in over obstacles. The power of the Christian Church does not lie in numbers, but in the quality of its membership.

Inasmuch as we are not able to have many special congregational services during the week, I suggest to the congregation that it would be a good plan to observe Lent by attending two services on Sunday. This is more feasible now that we have the second service at eight o'clock. While it is the intention of the Rector to do most of the preaching at this second service, he had arranged for some outside preachers some time ago, and he is very glad to announce that Rev. Howard Melish, of Brooklyn, will preach on the night of Sunday, March 4th, and Rev. C. G. Twombly, of Lancaster, will be the preacher on March 18th. The evening service will be enriched by some additional musical instruments, the violoncello, the harp or the violin.

I hope that all the congregation who can do so will avail themselves of the privilege of hearing the men of light and leading who have been secured for our noonday services. We are very much to be congratulated on having such speakers. Mr. Spurgeon used to say in his homely way that anybody could make the gutters run soapsuds all day long, but that it took the resources of a prince to make them run with wine for five minutes. It is a great gift to be able to communicate a message of power in a short time.

In a little over a month the new cartons of envelopes will be ready for distribution to the congregation. There are many signs of growth in St. Stephen's. Some new members have been coming to us, larger numbers attend our services, and the generosity of the congregation seems to be developing; but the lists of those who take the envelopes and use them faithfully is not increasing as it should. Yet nothing has done more towards solving our problems and solidifying a widely sundered flock into one organization than this envelope system. I hate to dwell on the financial side of the Church. I never can forget an incident I witnessed while attending one of my own noonday services on Wednesday, and sitting in the middle aisle. Two shabbily dressed men came into the pew beside me, and joined in the singing of the hymn; but when they found the plate was going to be handed round, they touched one another, and before it traveled far down the aisle got up and left. It was manifest that they could not endure the mortification to which it would have subjected them. We do not want to drive the poor away from the Church of Jesus—from the Church of Him who pointed to the preaching of the Gospel to the poor as one of the signs of His kingdom. Yet I realize that with most people religion will not prove of much value in the time of temptation or trouble unless they have deepened their grasp upon it, or its hold upon them, by making some sacrifice for the sake of the cause. I notice that when we wish to develop ourselves in anything, we invest in it, and in that way pledge ourselves to get something out of it. Half of the benefit of lessons under a master consists in this, that having pledged ourselves to make these payments we inwardly resolve that we will get the worth of our money. A religion that makes no demands is not a religion that can be taken very seriously. I wish every regular attendant on the Church would take the envelopes. We send them as a matter of course to those who use them faithfully, and ask from them no special assurance; their conduct in the past is a sufficient indication of their loyalty. But those who have only used them fitfully or irregularly are formally asked if they are willing to accept them for the new year, with the hope that their request for the envelopes will pledge them to more constancy in their use. The Church is under a great indebtedness to Mr. Joseph B. Van Dusen and to Mr. Chas. Van Dusen, who take care of the envelopes and check them up with great accuracy and painstaking fidelity. I do not know what we would do without such help. Their sacrifice of time ought to be acknowledged by a similar loyalty on the part of the congregation.

On looking over the well-kept records the other day it occurred to me, that some of those who accepted the envelopes did not understand the system. They seemed to think that it was sufficient to place an envelope in the plate if they happened to be in Church, and disregarded entirely the envelopes for the Sundays when they were absent. Now this procedure defeats one of the main purposes of the system, which is to secure the contribution of every Sunday, whether the envelope-taker is present or absent. Others take the envelopes, use them for a few Sundays and then forget all about them. The proportion of faithful users has increased; but it is not as large as it should be. We have lost in the course of the year five envelope users by death, Miss Fannie Magee, Mrs. Katharine B. Jones, Dr. Fell, Mr. Wm. H. Hollar, and Mrs. Thomas Armstrong. Three of these cartons are being used to the end. Miss Williamson is keeping up Mrs. Armstrong's envelopes, Miss Anna J. Magee, her sister Miss Fanny Magee's envelopes, and Mrs. Wm. H. Hollar, her husband's. What a beautiful tribute of affection is this continuance of the gifts of the dead.

In some churches a follow-up committee notifies the envelope-takers and I think it will be a good plan to inform of their record those who have sent back less than 70 per cent. of the envelopes. He who takes the package pledges himself to use the system faithfully. But a pledge that is not fulfilled is not a gracious act; it becomes a sin of omission and breaks down character. It is a half-way measure, and we all know that it is the slackness of half-way measures that disintegrates individual and corporate life.

On Wednesday, March 14th, the Hon. E. C. Stokes, a former Governor of New Jersey, has kindly consented to deliver his celebrated lecture on Abraham Lincoln, and the Vestry have lent the church edifice for the occasion to a committee. The platform that has been used at the parish meetings will be placed at the head of the aisle. We confidently hope for a large attendance. The fame of this address is so great in New Jersey that if the people of Camden get wind of this promised lecture, they will come over in great multitudes and take all the best seats; so I advise the members of the congregation to come early. Great characters like Washington and Lincoln are Divine gifts to the people. No one can tell how much a national hero like the Duke of Wellington did for England in his day, or how far-reaching in France was the influence of a man like Pasteur, as an ideal man of science. Lincoln's life is not merely part of our national annals; it is also a mighty power working in our midst.

I have decided to postpone the post-Easter Parish Meeting until the first Wednesday in May, in order that we may round out our year. This was the date chosen last year, and I wish it to be the regular date of our annual meeting. All the heads of the various societies are requested to prepare their reports for that meeting. It is not wise to give too many details. We only want the main outlines and a general indication of the condition of the work.

The attendance at the night service last Sunday night was very encouraging. The musical service began at 7.45 with a prelude on the harp and organ; and the processional hymn opened the shortened form of Evening Prayer at 8.00 P. M. The service closed promptly at 9.25. The attendance was about 600. It is earnestly hoped this attendance can be kept up till Easter.

The parish is greatly indebted to the generous members who have raised a purse to provide additional musical attractions for these services, which have acted on the Church like a strong tonic. May God grant that the benefit may be permanent. It is better never to begin than to weaken one's whole nature by half-hearted, half-way measures,—by doing enough to quiet conscience for a season, and yet never continuing long enough to form a habit or establish a character. I should like the key-word of all our Lenten endeavors to be "permanent." Our great purpose ought to be to secure some permanent gain in the power of self-control and self-direction, in courage and cheerfulness, in patience and submission, in whatever grace we are specially seeking. It is only the things that cannot be shaken and remain that will count at the end, or at the transition, when we pass on to other scenes. Why should we waste our time on beginnings that lead to no completions?

With best wishes of the season,

Sincerely yours

Carl E. Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary meeting was held on February 15th. Many interesting and helpful reports were given by our delegates.

Miss Magee reports $147 collected for the United Offering.

Miss Mildred H. Lane gave an enlightening address on Alaska. She thinks the mission work among the whites there will soon be self-supporting. High wages are paid for all labor and if we can send strong-bodied and strong-minded men whom the husky miners and prospectors can respect, they will give generously to the work.

The Indian problem is very different and very difficult. She made a strong plea for industrial training for them and said two things must be eradicated—disease and tribal life. Hardly a family has not one or more cases of tuberculosis. Their food is miserable and there are only canned milk and powdered eggs in Alaska, so that treating the disease is greatly handicapped. Living together as they do,—a great number huddled in one room—it is hard to teach them anything about food or sanitation.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held Thursday, March 15th.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR, Secretary.

The Mission Study Class.

The Mission Study Class met on Saturday, February 24th, at 10.30, but it was thought advisable to change the time of the meeting to Friday afternoons at 3 o'clock. A cordial and urgent invitation is given to all the women of the parish to attend the class. The session lasts one hour and a half. Mrs. Addinell Hewson is the leader.

Abraham Lincoln.

The Hon. E. C. Stokes, formerly Governor of New Jersey, will deliver his celebrated address on Abraham Lincoln in the Church on Wednesday evening, March 14th, at 8.15.

Our Store Cupboard.

The supply of groceries given at Christmas time by the Sunday School is exhausted. But before this issue of THE NEWS reaches you the cupboard will be partially replenished, through alms placed in the boxes at the entrance to the Church, and by a special contribution.

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

Following the precedent of last year, the Parish Meeting will be deferred till the Wednesday after the first Sunday in May, that is, till May 9. This will be the regular time for the annual meeting. There are a number of advantages in substituting this date for the Wednesday after Easter. By deferring the reports we prolong the work of the societies, and by making the period covered by the reports of uniform length, and avoiding the variations of Easter, the comparisons with former years will be more instructive. Please reserve that date, May 9th, for this annual meeting.

This is an age of democracy, and one of the great needs of our Church is more of the democratic spirit in its life and management. Let us see whether we cannot exemplify the democratic life of Christianity in St. Stephen's. According to our present usage, the Vestry practically elects itself from year to year. According to our Charter the Vestry ought to be elected by those who rent pews or sittings. As the first step toward developing the consciousness that the Church belongs to all its members, it would be wise on Easter Monday to postpone the election till the Parish Meeting on May 9th. Such a postponement is entirely legal and canonical. Then, on that date, the renters of pews and sittings can be invited to elect the Vestry. There is not a scintilla of doubt that they will elect the nominees of the present Vestry, that is to say the present Vestrymen and such new members as the Vestry may suggest to the voters to fill its vacancies. In the course of the year I hope that we can have our Charter changed so that all communicants of the Church who contribute not less than five dollars a year may share with the renters in the privilege of electing a Vestry. As I said in the pulpit several Sundays ago, I am personally an advocate of rotation in the Vestry, believing that it is helpful to pass through the Vestry all the men of the congregation of adequate business experience and standing, and suitable character and zeal. I found such a system in vogue in a parish of which I was the rector for a short time in Cincinnati, where it worked splendidly. I introduced the custom into a conservative and well-established parish in Norfolk, and it proved a great source of strength. I am persuaded that it will greatly enlarge the circle of interested workers if we introduce it into St. Stephen's. We shall elect at least three new members this year on account of the vacancies. If the congregation should adopt it as the rule of elections, that two of the old members would be dropped every year and remain ineligible for office for a year or two, we would gradually pass through the Vestry and acquaint with the administration of the Church all the men in the parish of suitable attainments and character. Moreover, the men who are bearing very heavy loads would be heartened in their labors by the knowledge that a Sabatical year of rest lay ahead of them. I have long had it in my mind to propose this development of the Parish Meeting, and this method of choosing Vestrymen. I hope that it will commend itself to the Vestry and to the congregation. It is not necessary, I trust, to show at any length that this suggestion implies no criticism of the present Vestry. Our deliberations are fraternal, there is no friction and no dissension. The relations are thoroughly pleasant. The one purpose is to make the congregation realize more fully that a Church is a society in whose administration every member has a rightful voice, and to enlist in the activities of the organization as many people as possible. We know that through the generosity of the loyal Magee family, the Church will receive considerable additions to our endowments in the years to come. The public prints have spread abroad that knowledge. We must not allow it to lessen our exertions. On the contrary, we ought to resolve that we shall so organize, develop and enlarge our Church's activities that we shall have a congregation able to make the most of the increased income that these endowments will eventually confer upon us.

One of the obstacles to this development is our inadequate equipment. Our Sunday School Building is entirely unworthy of the Church. Our great Benevolent Society that aids so many hospitals and provides work for so many sewers, is painfully cramped for space. We have not sufficient quarters for our Girls' Friendly. The boys have no suitable place for their games. Eventually we ought to tear down our Sunday School Building and erect on its site a four or five-story building with an athletic cage on the roof, with quarters for our Verger and Parish Visitor, with suitable working rooms for our societies and a good hall for lectures, Sunday School and so forth. We do not want St. Stephen's to be a chapel of ease, where cultured people use the income of endowments to provide themselves with splendid music and a modern theology at a minimum of cost to themselves. Our aim ought to be so to organize this Church and administer this trust that it may render the largest possible service to the community. As a means to that great end we must have good music, and above all we must have a modern theology. St. Stephen's position in Philadelphia is theological rather than geographical. It stands for the expression of the Everlasting Gospel of God's love to men in the thought forms of the present. "New thoughts of God, new hopes of Heaven" are being given to the Church by the Spirit of God, and we must not close our ears to the new message.

This newness is not confined to theological statements; it is also manifest in methods of instruction. Much of the teaching of the future will be imparted through the camera and the moving picture. Mr. Reifsnyder believes that the possibilities of this new method of instruction have only begun to disclose themselves and has placed in the gallery of the Sunday School Building a magnificent high-power moving picture machine. All the necessary precautions against fire and accident have been taken, and the installation has been approved by the underwriters of our fire insurance. This splendid instrument is under the special care of Mr. Keable, who is an expert in its management. It is a great and most generous addition to our equipment. Mr. Keable plans to make educational and devotional use of it.

On Monday, April 2d, in the Sunday School Building, a reading of John Masefield's poem, "Good Friday," will be given by several members of The New Century Club, under the direction of Miss Laura Bell.

Sunday, April 1st, marks the completion of ten years by James Carrigan, as the Verger of this Church. Miss Dutilh likes to recall that she first commended him to the rector, and I am glad to remember that I nominated him to the Vestry for this important post. The Early Church understood some things better than the Reformation Era. I have always been in sympathy with the early usage of ranking the keepers of the Church's gates, the Ostiarii, among the minor orders of the ministry. The Verger is an Ostiarius, or Doorkeeper raised to the third power, since he takes care not only of our portals but also of the property in all its three dimensions. In the case of James Carrigan he helps to care for the flock as well as looks after the structure of the sheepfold. May he be the Verger of this Church as long as he lives. May he be as helpful through the years to come as he has been the past ten years. There is no better Verger.

Speaking of anniversaries brings to mind that we have a teacher in our Sunday school who completes this year thirty-one years of continuous teaching. Mrs. Vanderslice has given the Church long and faithful service, not only in the Sunday school but also in the Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters, of which she is president, and on the Shoe Committee. Long may she continue to help in every good work.

Before I changed the second service on Sunday from the afternoon to 8 o'clock, I consulted almost all the St. Stephen's people who were regular attendants at the afternoon services. Almost without an exception they agreed that the change was a desirable experiment. I regret to find that I overlooked some of the regular attendants. It was unintentional and the number so overlooked was not sufficient to diminish appreciably the weight of the verdict for a change. There are several people, however, since that time who have told me that they miss the quiet devotional Sunday afternoon service. I want to increase the activities of the Church in every possible direction and would like to multiply the services. I believe that a quiet and helpful service could easily be provided on Sunday afternoons in addition to the great night service. It would be a simple rendition of Evening Prayer with a few singers and the organ and a brief address. If I receive as many as twenty-five requests for such a service I will take measures to provide it, beginning April 22d, and trying it out for a month, or I will make my plans for the conduct of such a service in the fall. It is my duty and also my greatest pleasure to provide services for as many people as possible, at as many different times as possible—all under the rule that the greatest good to the greatest number must be the supreme law.

I shall not at this time endeavor to gather up the lessons of this Lenten season, or attempt to express our gratitude to our Lenten speakers. It has been a successful season and the level of the addresses has been uniformly high. Next Lent I intend to have a regular Wednesday service at 7.45 P. M., with a sermon. Greater provision ought to be made for those who work during the day, and are not situated so that they can avail themselves of the noonday services.

Our country is now in a state of war. Our merchant ships are turned into ships of war. Our Government has resolved to protect the lives of its citizens on the high seas and to join with other nations in establishing by force the ordinances of international law. The colleges are calling on their students and Alumni to place themselves at the disposal of the Government. The Church ought to place its clergy at the disposal of the nations and say: "You will need chaplains to minister to your men in the camp and in the hospital. We offer you the services of those you may desire. The ripeness of experience as well as the fresh buoyancy of youth are both at your command." Why shouldn't St. Stephen's offer the services of its rector to the cause for four or five months? He would be glad to render his country this help, and would return to the congregation greatly increased in efficiency by service in hospital or camp. Hospitals, colleges, business enterprises are acting in this way. Should not the Church and the clergy show the same patriotic spirit?

I need not discuss the question whether such plans are consistent with the spirit of Holy Week. Jesus Christ was not only the sympathizing friend of sinners; he was also the undaunted foe of all oppression and injustice. We are walking in his steps when we seek to protect and help others and endeavor to establish on earth a kingdom of law and righteousness. May His Spirit guide our Church and our Nation in this crisis in our history.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Missionary Items

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There was no address given at the March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary. An informal conference and the usual reports of our delegates to the different missionary committees occupied our time. Two new members were enrolled. The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, April 19th, at 11 o'clock. B. E. H.

The United Offering Service.

The Annual Presentation Service of the United Offering will take place in St. Matthew's Church, 18th and Girard avenue, on Thursday, April 26th, at 10.30 A. M. Members of this congregation are invited to attend. The Parish Treasurer, Miss A. Magee, will be pleased to receive contributions toward this Fund.

I learn that the contributions to the United Offering have fallen off. Perhaps the gifts could be increased if the plan adopted by one of the young women in the congregation could be followed by others. Every time she is treated to a lunch or entertainment she puts a small contribution away for the United Offering. It has now amounted to quite a tidy sum. If many followed this example our treasury would overflow.

What Is the United Offering?

1. A Thank Offering for the blessings and privileges of our Christian womanhood.

2. An Over-flow Gift, never interfering with other offerings.

3. A Gift of Substitution. The gift of the woman who cannot go, to help send the woman who can go.

4. The only Offering we have "by women for women."

5. An Offering which unites us as none other does or can, for every Churchwoman everywhere may share in it, whether she be young or old, rich or poor, active worker or shut-in. That is the Ideal for our United Offering. There are about 35,000 women communicants in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, and it is safe to say that not more than 6,000 have a share in this offering. Will you tell someone about it?

6. A Fund highly valued by the Board of Missions. Mr. Wood, the secretary of the Board, says: "Its value as a financial resource is immense." Dr. Burleson wrote in 1915: "When the Board begins its fiscal year, facing responsibilities which reach the sum of $1,500,000, pledged to the missionary bishops in the name of the Church, it has in hand only one asset of which it is absolutely certain—the annual portion of the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary." (Now that he—Bishop Burleson—is a misionary bishop, surely our United Offering will mean even more to him!)

HOUSE OF BETHANY,
CAPE MOUNT, LIBERIA, WEST AFRICA.

DEAR MR. KIRKPATRICK:

The draft for £10. 6. 2 just received and I cannot tell you how much I appreciate the work of St. Stephen's Sunday school—it is perfectly splendid of them—and also thank you for the most kind letter, card, paper, etc. It makes one feel much better in this far-off land to know she is being remembered by those at home. The check came just at the right time as I am in Monrovia to attend the Convocation which opens next Wednesday. I am waiting for the business agent to take me to bank, he being up the river for a few days. I left Cape Mount early Thursday morning. It was so bright and clear, but oh! when we reached the bar it was hard work getting through. The sea was fearfully heavy; the launch broke her rudder and funnel, and the engineer had to put his fire out several miles from Monrovia which was, it seems, putting us in rather a dangerous position. However, we are all alive to tell the tale, for which we are thankful enough. There is much to tell, but I cannot write more now, as the steamer is expected at any moment to take the mail, so shall say an African good-bye, "Jam ahway," until next week. From the piazza where I am waiting, can look over a few hundred yards into the President's "Man Tion." Many, many thanks to all my dear friends for the so-much-needed money. With kindest regards, I am, Sincerely,

SARAH ELIZABETH CONWAY.

The Benevolent Society.

The workers of the Benevolent Society are anxious that the number of garments made should equal the total of previous years. They have given two extra days of their time to cut out work in order that there might be extra work for all sewers. Will the ladies of the Church cooperate with us, and kindly buy the useful and necessary articles in our closets? We are well-stocked with the following articles: Towels, maids' gingham and garden aprons, canton flannel house cloths, and so forth.

Our Girls' Friendly Doings.

On Monday, April 2d, at 8 P. M., in the Sunday School Building, a reading of John Masefield's dramatic poem, "Good Friday," will be given by several members of The New Century Club, under the direction of Miss Laura Bell. The G. F. S. feel very fortunate in securing the services of these accomplished women for this reading, and cordially invite the members of the Parish to be present.

The girls are busy with sewing for St. Michael and All Angels' Home for Colored Crippled Children. If I am not mistaken, this is the only Home in Pennsylvania, if not in the country, for Colored Crippled Children.

On April 16th, the Annual Entertainment in aid of the Girls' Friendly work outside the parish will be given in the Sunday School Building.

On April 23d, Mrs. Anna B. Scott, the North American Cooking Expert and Food Economist, will give a talk on eight hot breads and a dessert.

From the Burd School.

The congregation are cordially invited to attend the Elocution Recital and Glee Club Concert, to be held at The Burd School, on April 13th, at 8.15 P. M.

King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle.

Interest received from Estate of Mr. Patton (through Mr. Hunter Ewing) $34 28

This Circle will have their next meetings April 4th and 18th, in the Guild Room of the Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock. Owing to stormy weather and some of the members being away, we still have quite a little sewing to finish before Lent is over.

The Sunday School.

Our Cross and Crown system of awarding badges for regularity of attendance is taking on a new lease of life since the recent awards by Mr. Keable. James Merchant heads the winners by getting fifth honors; that is, he wears the gold badge with an encircling wreath and a pendant for each of his succeeding years of faithfulness.

Our plan of lesson-study has led us through the Old Testament to the Life of Christ, on which we are now busy. In about four Sundays more we will be ready to review the first quarter of the new series, with beautiful lantern slide illustrations.

Since the Older Boys' and Girls' Conference of last January, at which we had four delegates, two of our classes, Miss Nodine's girls, and Mr. Marvin's boys, have joined the State Association of Organized Teen-age Classes. That is, each class is officered, with plans and duties for each member, under the leadership of the teacher. Florence Elsner and James Merchant, of these classes, have been appointed on the Inter-Sunday School Council of Older Boys and Girls. In this and in many other ways is our school alive to its progressive possibilities.

Among the many things for which we are grateful of late, is the kindness of the Church in giving us the new flooring in our main room.

We trust that our many good and helpful friends will not forget the date of Sunday afternoon, April 15th, at four o'clock, when we have our Annual Easter Carol Service in the Church. Rev. Mr. Keable is now busy with us each Sunday, leading with precision and earnestness in our carol practice. We will particularly be pleased to have present at this service not only our relatives and the Church folk, but also those who may in former years have been interested, as scholars, teachers and officers. One of the happy sides of this bright occasion is the annual reunion of former members of our school that then occurs. Our Lenten boxes are being filled for the presentation of our Easter Offering to Missions, to be made on this Sunday afternoon, April 15th. We cordially invite everyone to come and realize the buoyant religious spirit of our school, and particularly to see and hear the little ones of our Primary Department.

G. H. STREAKER, Supt.

The Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The Annual Supper Meeting to Junior Directors of the Diocese, given in our Guild Room, Tuesday evening, March 13th, had present some sixty representatives of the Chapters of this city. Mr. Keable extended the word of welcome to our visitors. It was conceded the best meeting of its kind we have yet had. The Director and the boys of our Junior Chapter, who were, of course, present, desire to express their appreciation to Miss Lewis and our good friends, not forgetting the teachers of the Sunday school, who so kindly assisted us in its success.

There are ten things for which no one has ever yet been sorry. These are:

For doing good to all.
For being patient toward everyone.
For hearing before judging.
For thinking before speaking.
For holding an angry tongue.
For being kind to the distressed.
For asking pardon for all wrongs.
For speaking evil of none.
For stopping the ears to a tale-bearer.
For disbelieving most of the ill reports.

The Power of Intercession.

"Before they call, I will answer: and while they are yet speaking, I will hear."—Isa. 65: 24.

The weary ones had rest, the sick had joy that day
And wondered how.
The ploughman, singing at his work, had prayed,
"God help them now."
Alone in foreign lands they wondered how
Their feeble word had power.
At home the Christians, two or three, had met
To pray an hour.
So we are always wondering, wondering long,
Because we do not see
Some one, unknown perhaps, and far away,
On bended knee.

And when thy going out is done.
And when thy coming in is o'er.
When in death's darkness all alone
Thy feet can come and go no more.
The Lord preserve thy going out,
From this dark world of grief and sin,
While angels standing round about
Sing "God preserve thy coming in."

Rector's Letter.

MY DEAR PARISHIONERS:

The Parish Meeting on May 9th was a great success. It is true that the Girls' Friendly and the Mothers' Meeting did not come in a body, as at our former Parish Meetings. Their absence, however, betokened no lack of loyalty on the part of their members. We had witnessed, on former occasions, the splendid membership of those valuable guilds and had made it clear that the Parish Meeting this year was to be limited to those who were technically the members of the Parish. It was decided to have the session in the second story of the Parish House, in order that the reports might be more readily heard, and the parish business more readily transacted. For this meeting was not to be merely a time for the hearing of news, the congregation was also assembled to exercise its corporate functions and elect the Vestry. The election had been duly postponed to this time, and after a brief opening service by the Rector, the Accounting Warden, Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, took the chair as the judge of the election. Mr. Joseph B. Van Dusen nominated a number of persons, upon whom a nominating conference of the old Vestry had previously agreed. Mr. Boyd and Mr. Hansell acted as tellers and fellow-judges of election with Mr. Ewing.

The provisions of the charter in regard to the election of the Vestry were duly explained by the chairman, who also made it perfectly clear that any other nominations might be made and any other names of qualified persons placed on the tickets. After all the renters of pews or sittings, who alone possess the franchise, had voted, the polls were kept open for one hour. During the period of waiting reports of the Societies, which are published in this issue, were read. At the close of the poll, the votes were counted and the result announced. All the old Vestrymen, who would allow themselves to be re-nominated, were elected, and five new members were added to make our full complement. Forty-five votes were cast, and the 12 Vestrymen were all elected at one ballot.

While Mr. Ewing was still in the chair, Mr. Roland S. Morris offered a resolution to be presented to the Courts, requesting that communicants who contributed as much as $5.00 annually to the support of the Church be given the franchise as well as the renters of pews and sittings. In speaking to this resolution he pointed out that this step was a logical development of the policy of the parish. In olden days the franchise was limited to pew owners. Later it was extended to renters of pews. In Dr. Rudder's time renters of sittings were added. Now that the Envelope System had become one of the mainstays of the Church, it is proper to add communicants who contribute the specified amount annually. He also emphasized the leadership that St. Stephen's had always shown in liberality, whether that liberality were doctrinal, ecclesiastical or social, and gave it as his judgment that the permanence of St. Stephen's influence, while so many other down-town churches had been compelled to move to other sections, or had declined into feebleness was chiefly due to this Church's courageous progressiveness.

The year's record of achievement was, he held, noteworthy, even in the annals of this great Parish, and he appealed for unanimous adoption of the resolution. A hearty unanimous vote showed that his sentiments were thoroughly approved and that the loyalty of the congregation was kindled by the review of the parish's history.

On one occasion Henry Clay was visiting a farmhouse on the birthday of a son who had come to years of sufficient discretion to be trusted with fire-arms. A fine fowling piece awaited the lad when he came down to breakfast that morning. The giver had preferred to remain unknown, but the boy was wild to discover his name. Splendid as was the shotgun he could not give it his full attention while his curiosity remained unsatisfied. At last Mr. Clay suggested that he cease questioning and devote himself to the gun. "It will make its own report," said the great orator. That is how I feel about the work of these various societies; they make their own report. They show an increase of work in every department. There is, however, one feature of our winter's work that here is unrepresented. It is the work of the Committee in charge of the Night Services on Sunday. The money collected by this committee was not passed through the treasurer's books. The whole enterprise rested upon the shoulders of a group of generous contributors. It represented an experiment. As the chairman of the committee, Mr. Reifsnyder happily expressed it, it was a strong tonic for the old Church. It represented a splendid and generous expenditure, and its wisdom has been vindicated in a greatly increased attendance at the second service on Sunday, and in numerous ways. Among others there has grown out of the activities and fraternal intercourse of this committee a closer knitting together of the men who attend St. Stephen's. On two Sunday evenings a group of 35 or 40 have had supper together at 6 o'clock, and then gone over to the night service and worshiped together. The last supper was held on a Friday night, when numerous matters were discussed, and some moving pictures were shown. The next supper will be on the second Sunday in June. The place will be the Sunday School Building. The hour will be 6 o'clock. Men connected with the Parish in any way or attendants on our services are invited to send in their names and to come and bring a friend.

Now that our young men are going off to training camps, St. Stephen's is making its contribution. We claim a special interest in the following: Frank Wilbur Smith, who has received a Major's commission, Norman Turner, who is a Second Lieutenant of Engineers, Harry M. C. Hewson, Tristram C. Colket, 2d, Henry Reifsnyder, Charles Marbet and Herbert Ellis.

Though neither they nor their families are connected officially with the congregation, I feel constrained to mention also: Walter Lee Lukens, and the three sons of Mr. Meek, of The Press. Let us bear them in our hearts and pray God to keep them from danger to the body and also from the dangers that assault and hurt the soul. These are days when we ought to search our hearts and implore God to give us a right judgment. It is a solemn sight to see an only son going off to the wars, a young husband leaving his blooming young wife for a bed in the fearful trench, a youth who has just begun to taste the pleasures of manhood's vigor, placing it at hazard for the sake of the honor of his native land, the upholding of those laws of righteousness and public order that are the mainstay of civilization and the protection of free institutions against aristocracies and divine right kings.

May God show each one of us what we ought to do. May we show our loyalty to these principles by living in obedience to our country's laws and ideals, in righteousness of word and deed, in loyal devotion to those principles of brotherhood, social justice and freedom.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Ambulance for Base Hospital No. 34.

Last month at a supper of a number of the men of the congregation, Dr. Charles H. Frazier explained the system of Base Hospitals, that had been adopted by the Government. Every Base Hospital will be organized by some reputable hospital, and will be able to care for 500 patients.

Base Hospital, No. 34, is being officered by the Episcopal Hospital of Philadelphia. Dr. Frazier hoped to go as its surgeon-in-chief, but has been detained by his duties at the University. Through his exertions, however, this unit has been fully equipped. The men of St. Stephen's readily raised over 1,000 dollars and then the Treasurer of the fund, Mr. E. W. Moore, made a brief statement on Sunday, May 13th, of the nature of the Base Hospital, and appealed to the congregation to raise the required amount, $2,400 in all. Before the following Sunday the contributions had risen to within $168.25 of the $2,400, and Miss Anna Magee generously agreed to make herself responsible for the balance. On Sunday, the 20th, Mr. Moore placed the check in the Alms Basin and it was solemnly presented as a gift to the Giver of all blessings, and then formally handed to Dr. Frazier who accepted it with appropriate words. The ambulance will bear a plate with the inscription:

Provided by
ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH,
(Protestant Episcopal)
Philadelphia

It will have a white chassès, with a regulation U. S. Army body, and providing accommodations for four reclining and eight sitting patients, equipped with blankets, stretcher, etc.

Since the presentation enough money has come in to enable the committee to complete the required amount without using more than $7.25 of Miss Magee's generous gift.

Never was money raised more readily, more spontaneously, or for a cause which appealed more generally to the congregation.

The Benevolent Society opened the first Wednesday in November and had an unusually successful season. We have worked for seventeen hospitals and homes, one being the "Society of The Little House of St. Pantaleon," in France. We were glad to help them a little in their great need, and feel we were not neglecting those at home. We have made 7,000 articles, that being far the largest number we have ever accomplished.

The hospitals speak very highly of our work. Everyone in the Society is earnest and faithful. The new members, who have been a great help to us, seem filled with the same spirit, making it a very happy Society. We love to meet and are sorry to part. We are very crowded and wish some one would give us a larger room.

Respectfully submitted,
CORNELIA L. EWING, Vice-President.

St. Stephen's Aid Society.

The usual meetings of the Aid Society were held on Friday mornings during Lent. The activities of the organization are limited to this short period and to the making of baby garments to be distributed among the poor of the parish. This year we had an average attendance of 12, other members not able to attend the meetings did the work at home. Thanks are due to the King's Daughters for their assistance.

One hundred and forty-three garments and 94 miscellaneous articles were made. Thanks are due to Mrs. Austin, Miss Gebhart and Miss Kirkpatrick for their generous donations.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

Seven stated meetings of the Woman's Auxiliary are held during the season, beginning in October and closing in April. The average attendance has been twenty-three, and one hundred and twenty-two members are enrolled, including three new members.

At the opening meeting the President read an appreciation of Miss Fannie S. Magee, whose death in the summer was recorded, and due recognition was made of her great interest in and service to the Auxiliary as its first president.

Mrs. W. H. P. Anderson of India gave a pathetic account of her work among the lepers, of whom there are so many in that country, and a contribution of sixteen dollars was made toward the amelioration of their deplorable condition. At the November meeting Rev. C. E. Snavely of Cuba made an interesting address, noting the development of the people and asking for funds for Church equipment, and received forty dollars from individuals and the treasury combined.

In December the meeting was held in the afternoon, when the members of the Auxiliary were given the opportunity to meet Mrs. John Markoe, the president of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. Markoe spoke of the different missions to the Indians, and after a rapid review of the work which had been done among them and what remains to be carried on, tea was served, and, despite the inclement weather, there were forty members assembled.

At the January meeting Rev. A. Rufus Morgan of Penland, North Carolina, gave an account of the Appalachian Industrial School and the progress of the work of the Church among the mountaineers, and was exceedingly grateful for the twenty-five dollars voted him by the Auxiliary.

Miss Mildred H. Lane's intelligent analysis of conditions among the Indians in Alaska was heard with keen interest at the meeting in February, and the sum of ten dollars was donated for the door and window fund to give light and air to one cabin as a means of preventing the scourge of tuberculosis. The March meeting was devoted to a conference and satisfactory discussion of many matters arising from month to month, which could not be treated in detail while a speaker was waiting to make an address.

The last meeting of the season was held in April, when Deaconess Carroll gave a graphic description of work among the Italians in this city and made an earnest appeal for volunteer workers. The annual election was held, resulting in the re-election of the former officers and delegates with several new delegates, who are assured of a warm welcome.

In addition to these seven meetings the members have been asked to attend various other meetings held at other churches and at the Church House, among them the exercises conducted on the Diocesan Educational Day, the All-Day Missionary Meeting on St. Paul's Day at Christ Church, the Diocesan services during the week of the Pilgrimage of Prayer begun at St. Stephen's on February 5, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary, the Conferences of Diocesan and Parish Officers and Delegates, and the Pageant of the Growth of Missions at the Metropolitan Opera House. The delegates have been faithful to their duty in bringing back reports from these extra meetings, as well as from the monthly meetings of the five committees, at which meetings the annual pledges have been filled to count on the apportionment and special contributions have also been made, among them twenty-five dollars for medical supplies for Miss Conway's dispensary in Liberia. Would that every woman in the congregation could be a delegate, for her interest in the extension of Christ's kingdom would be much greater and her spiritual life would be immeasurably quickened; then, too, the Mission Study Class would be increased and a more definite knowledge acquired of missions and missionaries, and therefore more individual responsibility in being their "Auxiliary" would be felt. That more women will show more interest in the coming year is the earnest prayer of the present President of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's.

The United Offering—What It Is.

A Thank Offering for the blessings and privileges of our Christian womanhood.

An Overflow Gift, never interfering with other Offerings.

A Gift of Substitution—the gift of the woman who cannot go to help to send the woman who can go.

The only Offering by women for women.

There are about 35,000 women communicants in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, and it is safe to say that not more than 6,000 have a share in this Offering.

The Offering for the last three years is $47,000 more than the Offering of three years ago.

Of the number of women serving in our Church Missions at home and abroad, something less than 200 of our 300 workers are upported by the United Offering; and the Board of Missions is obliged to appropriate $50,000 from the general funds for this purpose. The aim of our United Offering is to provide for all the women workers.

In 1919 again that gift will care for women training, and for those who are serving in the mission field, and for retired workers, not less than $10,000 being set apart for some mission building or buildings.

The Offering of 1916 was $353,619.76. Of this amount Pennsylvania's share was $50,005.57.

Our aim for 1919 is to present $60,000. Pennsylvania has always held the first place in the list of contributing dioceses.

Received from October, 1916, to April 26, 1917, $302.13. This is the largest amount ever given by St. Stephen's. Mr. North reported the Offering this year, $8,555.07.

The Mission Study Class.

A Mission Study Class was held in the Parish House, Friday afternoons, during Lent The text-book was "The New World," by Dr. Gray. There were ten members, all of whom seemed much interested in the subject, as it dealt with Latin-America, which we had been accustomed to disassociate rather than associate with our own country, we feeling that America meant United States. We have learned that, save for language, similar needs have made us one. They need our prayers, not alone those of us who belong to the Mission Study Class, but all the Christians who must feel sympathy for the misguided Indians, Spaniards and blacks who make up the peoples of South America. Bishop Kinsolving of Brazil, Bishop Colmore of Porto Rico and Haiti, Bishop Knight of the Canal Zone, Bishop Hulse of Cuba, and Bishop Aves of Mexico are working diligently to repair the damage done by years of neglect of these people, and urge our help financially and spiritually. Their work is to reach them through material means, such as schools and hospitals, the outward and visible sign of our sincerity to share with them the light and life which have been given to us so freely. Our House of Hope, a little hospital in Mexico, under the supervision of Dr. Aves, a son of the Bishop, appealed particularly to our sympathy, so the collection of $11 from the class was sent for hospital supplies to Dr. Aves—Mrs. A. Hewson, leader.

Mothers' Meeting.

The Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's Church opened its season on Thursday, Nov. 2, 1916, with 155 names on its roll. We have lost three by death and have had an increase of five new members. The average attendance has been about 65.

We have had varied and interesting entertainments, and are grateful to the many kind friends who have so generously given us of their time and talents.

The evening devoted to a cooking demonstration by Mrs. Anna B. Scott, was much appreciated by all. Dr. Grammer gave us $5.00 to cover the expense of auto to convey Mrs. Scott to and from the meeting.

The Annual Sale was held in December, and about $100 was realized, to be used for the benefit of the Society. Dr. Grammer gave $25 for the running expenses of the meetings; also $50 for the Summer Outings to the Farm. Eighty-seven members enjoyed the hospitality of the Farm for One-day Outings. It was a great blessing to many tired mothers.

Twenty-five members used the Coal Saving Fund, which amounted to $231.95.

From the twenty dollars "Mite" money, flowers were sent to the sick and dying.

Mrs. Holman, former secretary, who has been prevented by illness from being with us this winter, has been greatly missed, and we hope to see her in her place when we meet in the fall.

The members also regret the absence of Miss Wallace, but her place has been faithfully and efficiently filled by Mrs. F. B. Keable.

The interest in these meetings shown by the good attendance, even in unpleasant weather, indicates that this department of St. Stephen's work meets a real need in the community.

MRS. HENRY P. TAYLOR,
President.
MRS. BLANCHE M. HARPER,
Acting Secretary.

Altar Society.

The Superintendent of the Altar Society submits the thirty-third annual report. The Altar Society is divided into five committees, numbering in all nineteen members, to whom is assigned the care of Chancel and vestments. During the year forty new surplices were made and orders are to be given during the summer for new veils and corporals.

Thanks are due to Miss Maulsby for her donation of six stole collars. Owing to the conditions of the times it was found expedient to increase the subscription to the Memorial Flower Fund from $1.50 to $2.00 a Sunday. This increase met with the approval of subscribers. Respectfully submitted,

ANNA E. EISENBREY.

St. Stephen's Branch of The Girls' Friendly.

St. Stephen's Branch of The Girls' Friendly Society opened for the season of 1916-1917 on Monday evening, October 2d. Dr. Grammer being absent from the city, Mr. Keable made a short address of welcome to the members.

The membership of the Branch consists of:

Working Associates	6
Honorary Associates	20
Members	114
Married Branch Helpers	41
Probationers	8
Total membership	189

The first Monday of each month Dr. Grammer and Mr. Keable have conducted services in the Church or Guild Room, and at these services have given helpful talks.

During the season several interesting talks have been given.

Mrs. Anderson gave a graphic and pathetic account of her work among the lepers of India.

Miss Renneyson explained the work of the National Red Cross.

Miss Myers of St. Agnes' School, Kyoto, told of her work with the Japanese girls and of the great need of a gymnasium. The G. F. S. in America has pledged $2,500 to build this gymnasium. Colored views of Kyoto and other places in Japan were shown by Mr. Chas. Pancoast and explained by Mrs. Pancoast.

The Branch celebrated G. F. S. Festival Week, and had as its guests at that time the Branch Secretary and members of St. Peter's Branch.

At Christmas Pamahasika and his trained animals provided a unique and delightful entertainment enjoyed by the members, their mothers and the children of the Married Branch Helpers.

The Branch again filled 50 large stockings and sent them to the Philadelphia Hospital. Among other expressions of appreciation in a letter received from the chief nurse was the following: "The stockings are perfectly beautiful. We are enjoying in advance the pleasure we know they will bring to the children. We feel that we cannot adequately express our gratitude to your Branch for the thoughtful care that has been expended on them. It was delightful to witness the joy of the stretcher men when they beheld the beautiful stockings and realized that they were for children in this hospital."

A Christmas package of dolls, games and toys was sent to St. Martha's House; and to Bishop Thurston, Muskogee, Oklahoma.

The Children's Hospital and the North American Seashore House, postcard albums, muslin scrapbooks, paper dolls and story books.

During Lent the members sewed for the House of St. Michael and All Angels, a home for colored crippled children.

The Married Branch Helpers met on Thursday afternoons in Lent and made booklets for hospitals, and also helped with the work for St. Michael and All Angels.

On Monday in Holy Week nine members of the New Century Club, under the direction of Miss Laura Bell (one of the Honorary Associates) gave the Branch the great privilege of hearing John Masefield's Good Friday Reading.

The suppers that are provided every Monday evening are one of the most successful features of the Branch. Two of the members prepare them, at a cost of ten cents to each girl who comes (and there is an average attendance of thirty girls) a good hot supper is served. Notwithstanding the advanced cost of living, this charge very nearly pays for the cost.

Reading, travel talks and embroidery have been carried on by the different Bands.

The Saving Fund has 41 depositors and $122.70 on deposit.

On April 16th a most successful dramatic entertainment was given, from the proceeds of which the Branch will make contributions to St. Agnes' School, Kyoto, and the Cape May Holiday House, put aside a sufficient sum to purchase materials for next season's Lenten sewing, add a small amount to the Beneficial Fund and contribute $46.25 for "Needs at St. Stephen's Farm."

This entertainment is to be repeated, by request, for the benefit of the First Congregational Church of Germantown.

The Branch Secretary is sorry to report that the average weekly attendance has fallen off somewhat this year. St. Stephen's Branch needs one or two more earnest, faithful Working Associates.

The Burd School.

The girls of the Burd School are going to give their May Day dance on Saturday afternoon, May 26th, at 3.30 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited to be present.

To the Rev. Dr. Grammer and Members of the Vestry of St. Stephen's Church:

It is pleasant to report on the performance of the duties of the Committee of Burd School Woman Visitors. We have paid regular weekly visits of inspection and find steady satisfaction in the good standard of order and neatness and in the courtesy and cordiality of our welcome from entering the front door to when we depart.

Under Miss Morgan's administration we consider the Burd School home-life and training exceptionally advantageous for implanting refined habits and awakening interests in these young beings that should be conducive to their loving best what is beautiful and elevating, while a sound groundwork is being laid to qualify them to be good home-makers and self-supporting citizens. Girls with good inborn instincts have much opportunity to develop their natural gifts. Girls less fortunate in their make-up, although of a high enough moral and physical type to meet the requirements of the school, find here much patience and kindness to aid them in overcoming their defects.

The girls cook the supper twice a week for the school and help in the kitchen in the summer time.

They are making fair grades in school.

An example of their general aims to live helpfully and happily together is the Pollyanna Club, the members of which are the intermediate girls. They keep their club room neat and bright. On a table is a pretty china tea-set presented to the Pollyannas by Miss Ewing after they had entertained us one afternoon during a tour of inspection. Through Mrs. Boyd's interest the Drexel Institute Dressmaking Class most kindly presented each of our eighteen little girls with a pretty, simply-made summer dress; and through Mr. Joseph Van Dusen's kind interest two new pianos were supplied to the school.

We venture to esteem the Burd School an interesting and creditable Church trust.

Respectfully submitted,

EMILY A. BROWNE,
Chairman.

We must not forget Santa Claus who gave his usual Christmas gift of two large boxes of shoes and one box of overshoes. Never before were they appreciated so much, for shoes are very high, and overshoes very hard to get. The shoes were just the right kind, good and strong and seemed to fit all who applied. A number of partly worn shoes have been received from kind friends. Gave out this year about 200 pairs of shoes and 100 pairs of overshoes.

The Church Work Fund.

The Annual Appeal issued for the Church Work Fund always contains a list of the various purposes for which this Fund is used, together with the amounts expended on each one. These are reckoned for the year ending in October, the date of the appeal.

There are two funds entrusted to the Rector's care, the Church Work Fund and the Charity Fund. The summary given below simply gives the amounts received and disbursed in each of these funds since the last Parish Meeting in May, 1916, together with the balance remaining on hand:

The Parish Visitor.

The work of St. Stephen's Parish has been very successful this year, and the results most gratifying. But one comes upon the universal cry of the high cost of living, which strikes most cruelly the poor.

The three great causes of poverty, as everyone knows, are old age, sickness and lack of employment; if two or three days a week are lost by being laid off from work on account of sickness, it means so many weeks of struggle and privation to pay the store bills and rent. Sometimes we even find the doctor's prescription waiting days before being filled, until some one in the family can earn the money to pay for the medicine.

An old woman writes: "I have been coming to the Mothers' Meeting for 20 years; I have never asked for anything during that time; now I am sick and need assistance. Miss Lewis, I have no one to go to but you—will you please send me some groceries? I am living with my daughter; her husband has a fractured leg, so he cannot work just now; my pension went to defray the hospital expenses for him, and I will have no more money until the next payment is due."

Then one comes in contact with those who are poor and yet cannot be helped out of their poverty because poverty blunts intellect. It impoverishes both body and mind. Poverty-stricken because they lack ability to express themselves in word or action, they have neither the sensibility nor the efficiency to perform the act of service that might be expected of them, or to take advantage of opportunities to help themselves. They are stunted in mind and body.

A young man living in one of the Mission Homes, distributes circulars, only working long enough to keep himself alive. He told the Parish Visitor that he heard more religion than she did, and that he was getting saved by sitting around the Mission. I really think that he thought he was doing right, although he had an old mother who needed his support. It took a number of visits, much persuasion, and we even resorted to threats, before we had his mother and himself placed in rooms, and had him working better and supporting both.

A woman with five children, and two widows with two children each, are being looked after.

We have been interested in five tubercular patients this year, and four stricken with paralysis to whom we have ministered.

Through Dr. Grammer's influence and the Rev. Mr. McHenry's kindness we were able to place a boy of ten years in the Home for Consumptives at Chestnut Hill. We were certainly favored, as there is always a long waiting list for admission. The boy is happy and his Sunday School teacher, Miss Luffbarry, visits him nearly every week. At one time she was there the children had all been taken to the circus.

Mrs. A. Brunner's gift of money has enabled us to make comfortable a family whose father has developed tuberculosis. The four children belong to St. Stephen's, as they were baptized here.

We have nine pensioners. They are either too old or too ill to work.

A physician reported a woman dying of starvation—a former member of our Mothers' Meeting. We are seeing that she is now properly nourished. St. Jude's Church is helping in this case. We are using Miss Gebhart's yearly memorial in caring for this woman.

This is the kind of work that is going on continually. When we get through with one, another takes its place. It is like the orations on Washington's Birthday, always alike, but by chance sometimes we can strike a new note.

Without the help that I am about to mention, what could we have done?

We had 23 tons of coal from Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, Mrs. Walter C. Douglas, Mrs. A. Hewson, Miss Lockhart, and Miss Gebhart.

A friend also gave us 19 splendid new double blankets. These women were so glad to get them, they did not know how to express their gratitude.

Much is being sent out daily to sick people, and groceries have been distributed. For these we are indebted to our very good friend, Mr. Samuel Moore and to Mr. Keable, who had our closet refilled twice, assisting 28 families.

We gave out layettes for 23 little babies, and we also sent some to St. Christopher's Children's Hospital, and for the House of Bethany, Cape Mount, Liberia; these were made by St. Stephen's Aid Society during the Lenten season. Miss Ridgely, who is here from Africa, writes: "I promised Miss Conway to ask you if you could send her some more baby clothes as there is great need of them in Africa."

On Thanksgiving Day 20 of our families were remembered. We sent groceries or some other necessity. All of them thanked the donors most heartily for making it possible for them to be remembered on that day.

We sent 135 Christmas baskets, and we thought they never looked more beautiful; we did not know why, unless it was that the high cost of living made us even more thankful in being able to do so much.

A friend provided a bunch of flowers for each basket that went to the old and sick. This was highly appreciated, as the following letter from one of the sick shows:

"I want to thank you very much for the Christmas basket, and those most beautiful roses which were in it; they were so perfect one would have thought they were wax, and the color was the most beautiful pale pink. I had them where I could see them all the time while I was lying down, as I was not so well at that time. I kept admiring them, and I felt myself almost a millionaire to have those beautiful roses when the snow was on the ground, a luxury that I thought only the rich could enjoy."

We thanked God for the many kind friends who had helped in giving us such a happy Christmas.

Mrs. Austin's and Mrs. Colket's donations of Christmas toys furnished presents for all the Infant Class and the little children were made happy.

Five hundred and thirty garments have been distributed during the year. The Parish Visitor wishes to thank the donors for the gifts of half-worn clothing and for all the favors which have been received.

Respectfully submitted,

K. H. Lewis.

The Sunday School Report for 1917.

With an enrollment of 176 scholars, 20 teachers, and four officers—just 200 in all—we feel that we are keeping up to a good standard for a "down-town" school.

After the successful picnic to the Farm, last June, our summer sessions, which we hold in the Guild Room in the morning, and at the Farm in the afternoon, were all well attended until the "poliomyelitis" came along and all children under 16 were kept from attending. When we opened the regular winter sessions, on October 1st, the ban was removed and by "Rally Day," held later in the month, our scholars were about all back again. We then regained the lost interest and it has been kept up increasingly ever since.

We have kept in touch with our Diocesan Association as well as the County Sunday School Association, by having our delegates attend conferences, conventions, and meetings of Sunday school workers. Our interest in Missions has been proven by the moneys we have sent direct to Miss Conway in Africa, and our recent Lenten Offering of $150, as well as the amount given each Sunday morning, as per the treasurer's account herewith.

Besides the leadership of Mr. Keable, the Associate Rector, Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, Junior, has joined us as Treasurer, and Miss Duke and Miss Kennedy as teachers. Our lessons have progressed from "The Patriarchs, Kings and Prophets" of the Old Testament, to New Testament studies of "The Life of Christ." Each quarter we have reviewed these lessons with pictures thrown on the screen. Right here we must express our sincere appreciation to Mr. H. Reifsnyder, Sr., for his excellent gift of an up-to-date motion picture machine, booth, lantern slide attachment and all necessary equipment. For this we are very grateful.

The social side has been emphasized in entertainments and weekday activities. The Christmas and Easter Festivals were kept up to a high standard. The Christmas entertainment was probably the best yet and the recent Carol Service in the Church on the afternoon of April 15th, was a most happy occasion. The Carols, which were well sung, particularly the one by the little folk of the Primary Department under Miss Corrigan's guidance, were only surpassed by the smiling faces made bright by the good and kindly words from the Rector and his Associate. Many friends, parents and former scholars were present to add cheer, and our illuminated floral cross never was quite so brilliant.

As a loyal little band in the great army of Christ we have much to look forward to and we wish very much to thank our many good friends of the church who have so often and so kindly come to our assistance during the past year.

May God's richest blessings fall upon our loyal and faithful teachers.

Faithfully submitted,

George H. Streaker,
Superintendent.

The Junior Chapter, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Report for 1917.

Our Chapter, made up of the boys of the Sunday School, has now a membership of ten and meets regularly summer and winter at 9 A. M., the second and fourth Sunday of the month. We try to keep our obligations of daily prayer and regular service and besides our duties in the school, we have been represented at the Local Assemblies of the Brotherhood. Some of our members take the annual examination at the Church House on "The History and Work of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew" and we expect three to do so this May.

In January, Mr. Keable held an admission service for us when several probationary members were duly admitted. On March 13 we assisted in entertaining the Annual Supper Meeting for Directors of Junior Chapters, which was held here at St. Stephen's. We are looking forward to the Annual Convention of the Brotherhood, which is to be held in Philadelphia October next, when delegates from all over the United States will be in our city.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES MERCHANT,
Secretary.

The Farm.

The farm will open for the summer on Saturday, June 16th. Of course, we are confronted with the problem—the high cost of living—but with care and economy, we hope to be able to carry on this important department of our church work, as has been the custom for so many years. Owing to the condition of affairs about us, there will no doubt be greater need than ever for the refreshing influence of the farm.

The following articles, or money with which to purchase the same, will be most acceptable:

Two hammocks.
Toy buckets and shovels for the sand pile.
Croquet set.
Crex rug, 5 x 9.
Half dozen rag rugs (small size).
Roll of matting.
Linen or cretonne covers for the parlor furniture.
Small wardrobe.
Half dozen blankets.

For the past two summers, we have had unusually cool weather in August, and have not had sufficient bed covering. This year, we must be prepared for any such emergency.

The Church Periodical Club.

ST. STEPHEN'S BRANCH, NO. 56, APRIL 1, 1916, TO APRIL 1, 1917.

The librarian of the Church Periodical Club wishes to offer grateful acknowledgments to all the friends who have so thoughtfully coöperated during the past year, and enabled the figures of the annual report to be doubled in almost every instance. Much of this help has been given quietly and anonymously, and I hope some of our nameless friends are here to-night to receive our thanks.

Our financial report does not show the real results. Our bookkeeping is with figures that stand for books and magazines rather than dollars.

A comparison of last year's work with this will show the growth. Whereas, in 1915, 28 contributors mailed 64 kinds of magazines to 57 recipients regularly each month or week, wrapping and posting these themselves, this last year, April, 1916, to April, 1917, we have had 43 members with 73 varieties of magazines who mailed 1,213 copies to 62 recipients. Forty-seven books found a welcome in parish or settlement houses, with a wonderful range of subjects shown in their titles, from "Hypnotic Therapeutics" to "Waylaid by Wireless," "Hitchcock's Analysis of the Bible," and "The Glory of Clementina."

Illustrated Sunday School lesson cards to the number of 1,200, especially printed in Spanish, were sent for three months to a mission in Camaguey, Cuba, which is under the jurisdiction of Mr. Snavely, who spoke to the Auxiliary one morning last winter.

The number of magazines collected at the Parish House or the librarian's home, to be sent out in bulk, was swelled this year from 1,114 to 2,235. Several hundred of these went to St. Mark's Mission, Nenana, Alaska, some to the Seamen's Mission, a few to shut-ins. But since the first of the year we have sent these all to the Social Service Department of the Philadelphia General Hospital which heretofore had been overlooked by all magazine donors, and a regular number each month to our own City Mission. These included several hundred pamphlets made up by the Girls' Friendly Society.

We have an interested and hard-working committee, two of whom meet to receive and mail books and magazines every Wednesday morning, and another renders very valuable assistance in collecting and delivering our material, thus saving our local express charges which were a considerable item.

The financial report shows the amount received from all sources to be $42.63, with an expenditure for postage, freight, cards and diocesan dues of $42.32, and a balance of $.30.

Our three needs are: First, more donors to mail magazines regularly; second, more magazines sent to the Parish House irregularly; third, a place to store the latter until mailed. Our committee dreams sometimes of a new Parish House in which the Church Periodical Club would have a footing in a space about 10 x 4 (feet, not inches,) with shelves going all the way to the roof; and then, with the coöperation of, say, 50 families of St. Stephen's who would send here not only magazines but all their waste newspapers and other papers as well, the sale of these at the present price of waste paper would not only pay our expenses with a $50 budget, but would allow us to make annual gifts to the Rector's fund and the Auxiliary instead of being a beneficiary.

During the summer of 1916 there were 94 Daily Vacation Bible Schools conducted throughout the city by the Philadelphia Daily Vacation Bible School Association, of which Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins is president, and John S. Wurts, Esq., the general director.

School No. 22 was held at St. Stephen's Church. The school was in session six weeks, opening July 10th and closing August 18th. This was the fourth year for the school in our church. It was a very successful year. Total enrollment 132; daily average attendance 60. Of the children enrolled 43 were Protestants, 27 Jewish and 50 were Roman Catholic.

The children were between four and fourteen years of age. The nationalities represented were: American, Polish, Jewish, Hungarian, Italian, Irish, German, Cuban, Spanish and Negro. The principal in charge of the school was Miss Charlotte W. Nodine, assisted by a manual teacher and a kindergarten teacher.

The principal spent her afternoons gathering the children from the congested neighborhoods, from courts and alleys, and from houses where a whole family and more lived in one room. On one occasion, a visit was made to the home of a Chinese family. The Chinese woman still retained her native dress. This mother would gladly have had her three children attend the Bible School, but she was afraid they would get lost. When it was suggested for her to bring them, she replied, "I never go out on the streets in the daytime and very seldom at night,—the people all stare at me because of my dress."

The children of all nationalities loved to come to school and when inside the building soon forgot the intense heat of the summer days. Words could not express their happiness and joy. They never wanted to go home and they could not understand why there was no school on Saturday. Because of their eagerness to come to school, they would often be there an hour or more before the doors opened. There was a girl in the school who would get up as early as three o'clock in the morning, to do the family washing, to scrub the house, and look after the other children of the family, in order to be in school at 9.30 A. M.

A little girl who lived in Chester begged her mother for permission to go and stay with her aunt who lived in Ninth street, so she would be able to come to the Daily Vacation Bible School. Other instances could be related to show how the children loved the school.

The school was open from 9.30 to 11.30 A. M., five days a week. The session opened with devotional exercises. The two minutes "habit talk" followed. These "habit talks" were given, emphasizing the importance of forming habits of cleanliness and kindness in everyday life.

The Bible period followed the "habit talk." The most important feature of the whole day was the Bible story. On the following day, the same story was repeated by some child. Sometimes the children enacted the plot. One Bible story each morning was not sufficient. The children always begged for two. Another feature of the Bible work was the recitation of verses and chapters assigned. On the last day of school all of these were recited. It is wonderful what can be done with the children from the streets. In many cases, the going to a Daily Vacation Bible School affords the children their only opportunity of learning Christian truths. The Sunday Schools cannot reach all the boys and girls. All religious teaching is prohibited in our public schools. It is therefore left to the churches and the Christian people to reach these children. This past year the Bible work in our school was greatly enlarged and its influence was greater than ever before.

Next on the program was a half hour of music. In addition to the hymns, childhood songs were taught; at the same time vocal and breathing exercises were given.

The remainder of the time was devoted to manual work. The children were divided into classes according to age. The older girls and boys made hammocks. The older girls also made dresses, aprons and other useful things. The younger boys and girls made useful and practical articles of raffia and wood. A few boys caned some chairs. Not only did the children make things for themselves, but they also made things for others. Our school made 17 pillows which were sent to the wounded soldiers in France. The children wished ours to be the banner school in the number of pillows made. Seventeen pillows might not seem to be such a large number, but when one considers the time required to make them, the number is large. The filling for the pillows was made by cutting silk or cotton goods into ¼-inch pieces. More than one child carried blisters upon his or her hands for many days. Some boys and girls took the rags home and spent the greater part of the afternoon clipping.

The closing exercises of the school are very important. The whole school is re-assembled for the flag drill. One of the children is selected as flag-bearer and another to guard the flag. While the children stand, the flag-bearer and guard march to the platform. When a chord is sounded upon the piano, all the children salute the flag. This is followed by the singing of "America" and by the Children's Benediction, after which the children march out of the building to music in an orderly manner.

The total cost of the school, including salaries, materials, outfit and supplies was $200; $175 of this amount was raised in St. Stephen's Church by voluntary contributions. The remaining $25 was given by the Philadelphia Daily Vacation Bible School Association after the school had opened and the people from St. Stephen's had left town for the summer.

The chief advantages of a Vacation Bible School are: (1) The children are kept off the streets for six weeks in the summer and as a result their lives are safer, and their habits are better and their parents are free from anxiety. (2) The children's hands are kept busy, quarrels are eliminated, patriotism is taught and their morals improved. (3) In six weeks as many Bible lessons are taught as a Sunday School could teach in many months. (4) The Church is put in happy relations with foreign communities.

War Relief.

April 16, 1917.

Dr. Carl Grammer,
19 South 10th Street,
Philadelphia.

My dear Dr. Grammer:

Through the Chapter Headquarters, we received a check of $600 from your Church in January, 1917. It was designated for the following countries: France, Belgium, Poland, Armenia, Serbia, Jews.

We sent $300 of this to Washington for the Armenians, Serbians, and Jews, on the advice of the Red Cross, as there was no way of getting any supplies through to these places at that time.

After ascertaining the crying needs of the other countries, our committee decided to send to the Polish refugees in France two cases of shoes, fifty-eight pairs in all, and to the women and children of Belgium also two cases containing sixty-six pairs of shoes. In this case we added other money designated for the same purpose.

For France, in addition to our further contributions, we were able to send fifteen cases of paraffine wax, 3,490 pounds in all. When we purchased this from the Atlantic Refining Company, they duplicated our order as their donation, making a total of fifteen cases of the wax. This is sent directly to Dr. Barthe de Sandfort, Hospital St. Nicholas, Issy-les-Moulineaux, France. Dr. de Sandfort is in charge of the Hospital where such wonderful cures for burns are accomplished.

I am sorry that we could not have gotten this information to you earlier, but we waited until all the shipments were made, so that you might know that your donation is now on its way. I feel very strongly about our not becoming too selfish now and working only for America. I wish all would follow in your steps and realize that our duty to our Allies is now even greater, and we must not selfishly work for America only as so many of us are tempted to do in our spirit of patriotism.

With renewed thanks, believe me

Very sincerely,

Marian Baird Morgan,
Chairman Foreign Relief.

Letters from France.

The following letters were written to Mr. William Rice Taylor by a French officer who has served with great distinction at the front. We regret that we cannot print fac-similes of the originals that everyone might realize the steady nerve and calm collectedness with which they were composed in the midst of the distractions and perils of war. Not a word is out of place nor ill-chosen, not a mistake requires correction, not an omission has to be supplied by supplementary carets.

The whole is marked by that artistic feeling which is so characteristic of the French and by a soldierly generosity. We believe that everyone will be grateful to Mr. Taylor for the privilege of becoming acquainted with this gallant officer of our sister Republic, and our historic ally.

C. E. G.

September 18, 1916.

DEAR MR. TAYLOR:

I have just received your kind letter of the 11th of August, and I am still moved by the friendly terms you have used to convey your sympathetic feelings toward me and my country. I ardently hope that there are in America many Americans who, like you, are able to care so passionately for a cause of such high idealism as we defend. Your sympathy, and that of those who think like you, is cheering to us who have been fighting so long and so hard for an ideal which should be that of every civilized people.

Perhaps foreigners will change their opinion of the French. How many prejudices there are against us; how many false ideas! They think us frivolous, capable of momentary effort but quickly tired; this war well shows how very unjust such criticism of us was.

We have had terrible days, and terrible months. I have seen the battle of Verdun unroll from its beginning, for I have never left this region. We have sustained bombardments from the Germans which have destroyed all our trenches, and in spite of everything they have not been able to advance. In the beginning they benefited from the immense quantity of material which they had collected, and were able to advance from one to three kilometres at certain points, but after that they were not able to do more.

What a magnificent army we have at this moment! What bravery in battle! What wonderful resignation to whatever may happen! How many times have I seen our splendid troops march to the war zone singing gaily, and on seeing them I have thought: "How soon many of them will cease singing."

For my part, I believe there has fallen around our fort more large shells than anywhere else. However, I am always there, and the "boches" have not captured me, and they won't. I have never stopped firing on them.

CAPTAIN HARISPE,
Commander of the Fort Moulainville.

March 6, 1917.

DEAR MR. TAYLOR:

I have delayed answering your kind letter of December 11. You know how much has taken place in the war since that date, and you must know that in spite of my inclination I have not always been able to find the time and, above all, the calmness of mind to answer quickly the letters which my friends are kind enough to write me. I am sure that your courtesy has already pardoned me.

Yours is dated the 11th of December, and the 15th we experienced around Douamont the wonderful success you have read about in the papers. I am certain that this victory has been for you a great joy, as it has been for all the French and their friends. I have been able to aid and contribute from Moulainville to this splendid victory. The Germans have withdrawn more than a kilometer. We have made nearly twelve thousand prisoners.

At that time I was in command of the fort of Moulainville, but since then I am in command of the fort of Douamont.

You will understand that I am prevented in my letters from saying anything which might be useful to the enemy in case this letter should go astray, and the things I have to keep quiet about are exactly the most interesting things.

I am now commander of the fort of Douamont, and this splendid command enables me to be active in all the battles which take place around here. When Douamont refell into our hands, we found it in a filthy state of uncleanness. The Germans were kept so continually under fire by our artillery that they could not easily throw outside the refuse of the fort, and they accumulated it in certain rooms where it reached up to the ceiling. We also found numerous dead bodies which we have placed in rooms which were then walled up.

The land around the fort has undergone such bombardments from both sides since the fort has been taken and retaken several times that the earth for several kilometers around resembles a country as bare and arid as a lunar landscape. Everywhere dead bodies are lying unburied, for this region has been so continually under fire that no one wishes to expose his life in burying the dead. German guns, sacks, gourds lie around on all sides, and collectors of antiques could get as many as they wished at their ease.

The prisoners whom we have made seem very well content to have finished with the war; from their first contact with the French they understood that there was nothing to fear, and that they would be well treated. We were even obliged to interfere several times, we officers, in order to prevent too much attention from our soldiers. The Frenchman isn't malicious and soon as the struggle is finished, he holds nothing against his vanquished adversary.

What is going to happen now? For several months we have been, as well as our enemies, inactive. Each one expects the enemy to commence the offensive, but each one prepares to receive it. The events in America are followed here with great interest. What is Wilson going to do; is he going to give up his weapon, the typewriter? for us the question is of primordial interest.

HARISPE.

Each in His Own Tongue.

A fire-mist and a planet,—
  A crystal and a cell,—
A jelly-fish and a saurian,
And caves where the cave-men dwell;
Then a sense of law and beauty
  And a face turned from the clod,
Some call it Evolution,
  And others call it God.

A haze on the far horizon,—
  The infinite, tender sky,—
The ripe rich tint of the corn-field,
  And the wild geese sailing high,—
And all over upland and lowland
  The charm of the golden-rod,—
Some of us call it Autumn,
  And others call it God.

Like tides on the crescent sea-beach
  When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts high yearnings
  Come welling and surging in,—
Come from the mystic ocean,
  Whose rim no foot has trod,—
Some of us call it Longing,
  And others call it God.

A picket frozen on duty,—
  A mother starved for her brood, —
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
  And Jesus on the rood;
And millions who, humble and nameless,
  The straight hard pathway trod,—
Some call it Consecration,
  And others call it God.

—Wm. Herbert Carruth.

Three Gates.

If you are tempted to reveal,
  A tale some one to you has told
About another, make it pass,
  Before you speak, three gates of gold.
Three narrow gates—First, "Is it true?"
  Then "Is it needful?" In your mind
Give thoughtful answer. And the next
  Is last and narrowest—"Is it kind?"

And if to reach your lips at last
  It passes through these gate-ways three
Then you may tell the tale nor fear,
  What the result of speech may be.

A kindly look, a word of commendation,
A sympathetic pressure of the hand;
A smile to those who journey o'er the land
Aweary of life's toil and degradation,
While struggling on 'gainst trials and temptation,
Give thou, O brother. For the Father planned
That we should love all men. Heed His command,
And pour into these sad hearts consolation.
Grim poverty thou sufferest not; ah! then,
Have mercy on the poor, for deep their woe.
Let gentle pity plead for fallen men,
For reclaimed sinners shall be white as snow.
And may God's blessing rest upon thee, when
And where thy ministering footsteps go.

—Ione L. Jones.

"In Lighter Vein."

Oh, who would not a Parson be To sing in Choir Merrily.
He sings as tho' with singing he Might to some Cherub presently
Be changed.
And so, o'er land and sea
He'd fly aloft on pinions free.
What matters if two notes in three he doesn't hit.
We all can see he does his best,
And so ought we.
Do, rah, me, fa, so, la, do, se.

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

I send you all a greeting at the commencement of the work of the new season. The Jews had two New Year's days, one at the beginning of the civil year, and the other at the beginning of the ecclesiastical year. Our year of work really begins in the autumn.

We assemble under unusual conditions and with unusual sources of gratitude. The work of the summer has been remarkable; in spite of the fact that the church was turned over to the workmen of Mr. Tiffany in August, there was no cessation of the services. Worship was conducted in the guild room of the parish building every Sunday morning, and a number of Sunday nights. The attendance was sufficient to make it quite worth while for me to come down several Sundays from Echo Lake where I was spending the summer with my family.

The great work of the summer was done by St. Stephen's Club. It opened on June 25th. The Sunday School building was turned over to the Club entirely. Upstairs moving pictures were shown on a number of nights. The films were kindly lent us by various companies.

At half past nine a buffet lunch was served downstairs, writing materials were provided and various games were put at the disposal of the men. Over 14,000 registered. Numbers of distinguished speakers were brought and spoke on different evenings. The work was conducted by a committee made up as follows:

A. Luffbarry, Chairman,	E. W. Moore
R. T. Boyd	W. Kirkpatrick
J. B. Van Dusen, Jr.	J. F. Wallace
H. H. Barton	J. E. Bacon
H. Reifsnyder	C. S. Calwell

And the Clergy Ex-Officio.

Mr. Craig Atmore's name ought to be included in this list. At the beginning of the summer he brought his staff to the parish house and took the main burden of the administration of the refreshments. It would be difficult to over-estimate the value of their services, and the zeal of himself and his helpers, of whom Mr. Turner and Mr. Adams ought to be specially mentioned. Towards the close of the summer Mr. Atmore's business responsibilities, which at this time are very heavy as he deals in food products, and the state of his health compelled him to resign from the committee. No history of the summer's work would be at all accurate, however, if it did not emphasize the work of Mr. Atmore and his associates. About the first of September the work was somewhat reorganized, and a regular steward was employed.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Luffbarry, has been uncommonly successful in bringing the Club to the attention of the men on the battleships down in the Navy Yard. All the members of the committee have worked with great zeal. Upon Mr. Reifsnyder's shoulders has fallen the chief duty of collecting the money. The report shows with what success he has met.. No contribution, of course, is refused from St. Stephen's members, but the work has been supported mainly from outside. Our contribution has been to lend the building and the working organization. We are also indebted to our friends outside the church for their coöperation. Various organizations have come down and assisted us by providing the entertainment on special nights. We have elsewhere published a list of the appointments for October to show how the work has been systematized.

One of the best features has been a postal card which the men are requested to sign, and which is mailed by us or by them to their parents. The following is a copy of the message:

> Our Club has welcomed and entertained over 10,000 Soldiers, Sailors and Marines in the service of their Country.
> It seems to us that in these anxious hours you will be comforted to learn that your > has chosen to use our Club Home and accept our entertainment and good fellowship.
> We are deeply interested in him and his comrades and will help him in any way we can.
> God grant that he may return to you whole in Body and unstained in Soul.

I give below some extracts from the letters received, which show how much the Club has been appreciated.

The registered number, 14,000, may include the same names a number of times, but there are also a great number of men who come into the Club and fail to register. I am glad to be able to announce that during October on one night a week the managers of Keith's Theatre have promised to provide the entertainment. A friend of St. Stephen's Club, Mr. F. B. Lewis, has given us a fine piano with a pianola attachment. Another group of friends, with Mr. J. B. Van Dusen, Jr., at the head, gave us another piano, and the three outworn pianos in the Sunday School building are to be removed. The work of the Club will undoubtedly be increased during the winter. As the days grow shorter and colder, the Club will probably be more generally used in the afternoon.

In the opinion of those acquainted with this work one of the most important factors is the presence of hosts to welcome their visitors. This matter cannot be turned over to employees. The boys must be made to feel that we are giving personal service and taking a personal interest in them. Among our most valuable helpers are the men who come and give the boys their friendship. In the afternoon, however, the men of the congregation cannot be present, and an auxiliary of the women of the congregation is in process of formation, with Miss Ewing at the head, to take charge of the reception at that time. The names and assignments will be published in our next issue.

None of the activities of the Church will be in any way interfered with by this Club, which will be kept up as long as it meets any real need, and which we hope to conduct as long as the uniformed men are in our midst in any great numbers. The only changes that will be made in our regular program are that the weekly dancing class will be suspended until further notice. The Boys' Clubs will also be curtailed in the use of the Sunday School building, and will have to hold their meetings in the parish house. The Basket Ball Club will probably be able to arrange some games with the sailors, and will find an additional spice given to the contest by the presence of enthusiastic spectators. The infant class of the Sunday School, I might also add, will meet in the guild room of the parish building, instead of downstairs in the Sunday School building. No other changes will be made, or will be necessary, except in this regard: Hitherto I have always been glad to extend hospitality to any outside philanthropies and charities, and have placed at their disposal our rooms and parish buildings with a liberal hand, feeling that the truest economy was to make the largest possible use of our equipment, that it might do the greatest amount of good. I shall, however, for this winter be obliged to withdraw a good many of these hospitalities. This extraordinary work among our country's gallant defenders ought to be continued even if it gives some serious inconvenience, in view of its importance. It is a subject, therefore, of great congratulation that we are enabled to continue it without inconvenience to any important activity of the parish. One thing this Club has demonstrated, and that is the value of our location at this time. Our success is, in my judgment, due chiefly to two facts: First, our splendid committee and its admirable work in reaching the Navy Yard and providing a cordial reception and entertaining features for the evening; and, secondly, our admirable position, near Market Street, in a portion of the town where the boys like to take their evening strolls.

Our greatest limitation has been the small size of our Sunday School building and its poor arrangements. A fine parish building is an absolute necessity for a large work in a down town church. Our destiny is clear; St. Stephen's Church must prepare itself in equipment and in membership to serve the community in a large way. The appeal of our church is not to people who want a comfortable pew in which to take a Sunday morning nap in good company, but to those who are anxious to find a field of service, a church that will be to them a source of inspiration.

The memorial to Miss Fanny Magee was by agreement to have been completed by November the first. The war conditions have made it difficult for the Tiffany Studios to procure material and expert carvers, and have interfered with the progress of the work in many ways. Mr. Tiffany's artistic enthusiasm has been very great, and he has not hesitated to reject work that has fallen short of his high ideal. He has in the most disinterested way elaborated upon and enriched the plan. As a result, however, it appears that we shall not be able, according to present prospects, to unveil the memorial on All Saints' Day. Still, there is a month ahead of us, and much can be done in a twelfth of a year, and I am hopeful that about the middle of the month we may be able to unveil this great improvement in our equipment for the dignified conduct of our worship. The greatest drawback in the old church was the low chancel, and at the expense of one pew all around a considerable enlargement has been effected. The congregation will only realize gradually what an immense improvement this great gift has made. I personally feel the liveliest gratitude to Miss Anna Magee for this great change.

Our losses during the summer have not been so numerous as usual; still our numbers have been depleted. By the death of Mrs. Baldwin we lost a faithful attendant, a friend of the Woman's Auxiliary, and a Christian worker who labored in the vineyard of the Sunday School in the early days of her life, and was always a helper through the sweet Christian influence which she shed about her.

After long suffering, from that terrible illness consumption, Miss Cora Reeves passed away. I came down from Echo Lake to bury her, because I always felt a special tenderness to her as one of my shut-in parishioners who never forgot the church. Every year she sent in her envelopes faithfully filled out. Whenever I called on her I was profoundly impressed by her brave Christian spirit and her sweet nature. It was wonderful to see how many friends gathered together to pay her the last honor. She had long been immured from the world, but her loving personality had enabled her to keep in touch with a wide circle.

In the death of Mr. Alfred C. Ashmead we lost one of our neighbors and friends, who never failed to do a kindness, and was a ministering spirit in his journey through the world.

The many friends of Mrs. Hall will be grieved to know of the troubles that have come upon her and her daughter in the tragic death of her son-in-law.

The numbers of our men who are going to the war are steadily increasing. It is difficult to say exactly who are ours and who are not ours, yet I think that we will all regard Dr. Hewson's son, Dr. Wm. Hewson, as in a sense one of our flock. He has received his commission as lieutenant, and will be a surgeon on one of the hospital ships. Mr. Reifsnyder's son Henry has gone to the war. Mr. Reifsnyder's partner, Mr. Gowdy, a junior member of the firm, has gone to sea in the berth of a fireman on board the South Carolina. He simply wanted to do his part wherever the greatest need might be. We publish a list of the young men elsewhere, with their addresses.

Our Church sustained a great loss in the departure of Mr. Roland S. Morris and his wife. He has been appointed Ambassador to Japan. On September 23rd, the Sunday before he left the city, Mr. Morris was present in St. Stephen's Church, and I spoke of what he was to me and to the congregation, alluded to the debt of gratitude that the Burd School owed him for his help in reorganizing that institution, and referred once more to his service on the committee that called me to the Church. He has been in ardent sympathy with all my ideals about the democracy of the Church, and has been of great assistance to us in the Vestry. In remembrance of his service to the Burd School his portrait will be hung in the corridor of that institution.

I took upon myself to instruct a florist of Philadelphia to send a suitable floral offering to the ship on which he shall sail from Vancouver, as a parting tribute to him and Mrs. Morris from his friends in St. Stephen's.

Mr. Morris, after the presentation of the alms, was asked by the Rector to come up on the temporary platform, to say a few words of farewell. He spoke most cordially of St. Stephen's Church as the leading liberal church in Philadelphia, and of the happiness that he had in worshipping within its walls and of his interest in its welfare. As it is probable that he will be out of the country for four years, he resigned his seat in the Vestry and the Rector's Wardenship. All his friends are rejoiced that Mrs. Morris has recovered her health, and is able to go with him. It will be a wonderful experience for her and the children. As the granddaughter of Mr. Shippen, one of our vestrymen, who was a warm friend of Dr. Ducachet, Mrs. Morris has ancestral ties with St. Stephen's Church.

Let me close in the words of the great Apostle to the Gentiles:

"And now, brethren, I commend you to God and to the word of His grace which is able to build you up and give you an inheritance among all them that are sanctified."

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Church Work Fund.

My Dear Parishioners:

I am making my annual appeal for contributions to the Church Work Fund. With this purse the Rector conducts his office, publishes The Parish News, and contributes to various societies in the Church. Our old members give faithfully to this fund, and it is to be hoped that our new members will also contribute to it.

By the envelope system for specified objects, and the Church Work Fund for small and sundry purposes, the worship of St. Stephen's is kept free from frequent appeals for money, a feature of our service that tends greatly to enhance the dignity of our worship.

The regular demands on this purse call for a fund of $1,600.

This appeal is given out a little earlier than usual but my treasury is depleted and there never was a greater demand for such a purse. I ought to have my secretary's services more constantly than I did last year, as there are a great many letters that ought to be written to these boys who ask for messages, and leave their names with us, and also to those who have gone out from our parish. I would be very much obliged if the contributions were sent me as soon as possible.

Special Confirmation.

We expect to have a Special Confirmation about Thanksgiving Day for enlisted men. Some have expressed a desire to take this stand in St. Stephen's and one is coming many miles to be confirmed at that time. The new life came to him at St. Stephen's and he wants to take his place among those who assume their baptismal vows in the old church. A general invitation is extended to all unconfirmed soldiers, sailors, all who have not yet enlisted in the Army of the Lord, to come out on His side at this season.

Beyond the Silent Night.

"Is there beyond the silent night
An endless day?
Is death a door that leads to light?
We cannot say."
—Declaration of the Free—Ingersoll.

He cannot say, indeed, who cannot speak
A language foreign to his untrained ear.
He cannot know, because he cannot hear
The heavenly vibrations which the meek,
Those strong ones whom the world considers weak,
Have heard like echoes from another sphere
Whose full disclosure does not yet appear.
Men seldom find the things they do not seek.
We cannot say? perhaps we do not care
To take the trouble to inquire where
Our lives may trend; we follow our own way
And trust our mortal-sense to lead us right.
How can he hope to find an endless day
Who does not seek the way that leads to light?

Mothers' Meeting.

The first Mothers' Meetings of this season will be held on Thursday, November 1st, at 8 P. M.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The first meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will take place on Thursday, October 18th, at 11 o'clock in the Parish House, when a variety of matters will be discussed and it is desired that all the members will attend, so that work may begin at once.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

Will have their first meeting Wednesday, October 17, 1917, in the Guild Room, Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock. We hope to start with sewing and a little knitting for the soldiers.

During the summer months a few housewives were made and filled with many useful articles, such as shoelaces, buttons, pins and needles, thimbles, cotton, lead pencils, combs, writing tablets, etc., which were given to soldiers who have gone to Camp Hancock, Camp Meade, and were very acceptable. We will be glad for more workers in our Circle.

Shoe Fund.

The old stand will resume work, November 6th, Tuesday, half past 10 o'clock.

The Sunday School.

With the successful excursion of the whole school to the Farm on Saturday, June 16th, a most delightful day—the winter sessions closed. The summer season began the next day, and every Sunday since, we have had a most interesting summer school, well attended and studying the "Kindly Deeds of Jesus." The same lessons being used each Sunday afternoon in the Farm services, except during August, when the clergy of the Hatboro church came to the Farm with special addresses.

So many of our scholars took vacations on the Farm that we try to keep the two sessions each Sunday united by at least the same lesson. Now the fall season is before us and we have left the guild room and back to the old building with most of the teachers back in their places.

The Rally Day, when we want every one in their class—teacher, scholar and friends, will be October 21st, at 9.45 A. M.

As this is the Day of Intercessions for all Sunday Schools let us have an enthusiastic and devout meeting. We hope the teachers will keep the next evening, Monday, October 22, open, to go with us to the Diocesan Institute at Holy Apostles Church.

Our Older Boys are enlisting in the army and navy. Bertel Elsner is at Newport Naval Training Station. Charley Marbet, Harry Dodge and Donald Gregory are out on the blue sea with "Uncle Sam." Young Weldon and Percy De Cailles are with the army, so that we are quite proud of our "Honor Roll." Besides our teachers are represented by Mr. Colket, a young officer now with the American forces. So that as we see the marines and sailors so delightfully looked after by our clergy and the Men's Club, we feel too that many of our boys are doing their bit for righteousness.

James Merchant is in Pittsburgh representing our school in the State Convention of Older Boys, so we are full of activity which Mr. Keable and the writer both think indicates a winter of much good work.

G. H. Streaker, Supt.

Evangelistic Campaign.

On Sunday, October 21, 1917, there will be inaugurated a six weeks' Union Evangelistic Campaign, at the Inasmuch Auditorium, 1011 Locust Street. The Superintendent of the Mission, George Long, will be the evangelist. Services begin promptly at 7.45, and the singing will be led by Prof. Watkin Davis.

These are anxious days, and the time is fully ripe for all of us to look well to the reason of our faith, and we earnestly hope that this effort to deepen the spiritual life of many people, and to arouse the careless, will commend itself to your prayers. Cards have been sent out, asking people to pray for the blessing of God upon this work, and sever-

St. Stephen's Farm.

From year to year, when we have presented our report of the summer work at the Farm, we have told you of the wonderful beauties of the place, and altho you may not have had an opportunity to visit this delightful spot—and if not, you have missed it—you must be somewhat familiar with its loveliness, so we need not tell you that it is the same beautiful place, and we are glad to report that we have had an unusually delightful summer. Of course, you will want to know how many people were with us, and how we made out financially, for at the present time finance is a very important and perplexing matter in every institution as well as every household.

When we tell you that we opened on June 15th with the Sunday School picnic of 200 persons, that we had with us during the summer 418 guests for a stay of one week, and that 764 extra meals were served; that we had the same "good eats" and that our expenses were not more than $135.00 over the preceding year, we think you will tell us that we have done pretty well. At least we hope you will.

While we shall not attempt to tell you all that we have been doing, we do want to mention a few of the most important happenings.

Of course, a large part of the time was spent in recreation. We had jolly days—restful days, happy days, and somehow we felt that this year we were happier than ever before; in fact, we experienced a real joy, and we believe it was because every one tried to do her bit, entering heartily into the food conservation, helping in the war garden, which by the way, was of great interest to old and young alike. Even when there was a scarcity of help in the house we did not mind it in the least, for we all worked together, and things went along in the usual way, so you see we have also had busy days.

A number of pictures were taken by our photographer, Miss Sherrard, and we hope to have slides made, so that sometime during the winter you may see in picture many interesting events.

The religious life was not lost sight of. The Sunday afternoon service in the woods which was discontinued two years ago was resumed this summer, Mr. Streaker in charge. Rev. Samuel Booth of St. Luke's Church, Kensington, was the speaker for the month of August, and we are greatly indebted to him and also to his assistant, Mr. Huntington. We are sure that those of us who heard Mr. Booth will remember his helpful and inspiring addresses. The Church of the Advent in Hatboro coöperated with us in these services, bringing special soloists and the organist. Our friends and neighbors also joined with us, and there was an average attendance of 75 each Sunday.

Our good friends remembered us most liberally, and we are grateful to them all. Mr. Ewing presented us with a splendid new victrola and a number of fine records which added much to our evening entertainments.

We are glad to be able to tell you that by the sale of postal cards, small contributions and the proceeds of our war garden, we realized $40.00 for the Red Cross.

We have had not only a delightful summer, but also a successful one, and we feel we may use this word in its truest sense.

And altho the vacation days are over, we feel that the joy and refreshing influence of the time spent at the Farm will remain throughout the year. E. D.

We gratefully acknowledge the following gifts to the Farm:

The King's Daughters—Two rugs for their room.
Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr.—Papering parlor and matrons bed-room, a new rug for the Van Dusen parlor, candy for the Girls' Friendly Society.

Further details will be given at the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Letters from Home.

Wilkes Barre, Pa.
Sept. 17, 1917.

DEAR SIR:—

To express my appreciation for the card received today. Only a card.

But to a mother it meant everything in the world. A Haven for my dear boy—yes, every mother's dear boy when he gets lonely and thinks of home and mother, a place for him to go where his mind won't be tainted.

Thank God for the Club Home. The widow gave her mite, and I a widow have given to my country my all, my only boy, and may he be a good faithful boy and serve his country well.

God grant he may come back with the same pure clean sweet kiss he gave his mother when he said Good-by.

Not to be a selfish mother but pray for my boy when praying for other mothers' darlings.

Accept my thanks, and my hope of long live the Club Home.

Gratefully,

New York, July 6, 1917.

REVEREND AND DEAR SIR:—

My son, Salvador Milton, who enlisted in the Naval Militia of this State and is now on the U. S. S. "Indiana" has written me most enthusiastically of the cordial treatment that has been accorded by all people of your good city to the men of the service, and specially of the active and helpfu interest of your worthy church.

Being our only child, you may perhaps imagine the pleasure with which we have read his letters recounting all the kindnesses he has been receiving while away from his home, and his mother and myself share most keenly his gratefulness for the hospitality of which he, as well as so many others, has been the object.

It is therefore the purpose of this letter to make known to you and to all those of your church who are so unselfishly devoting time and resources to entertain the absent ones, our most profound gratitude, a feeling that is undoubtedly shared by every parent whose dear one has had to absent himself from their fireside, upon the call of a patriotic duty. May you all be blessed to overflowing in your magnificent work, as you deserve to be blessed.

It is my sincere wish that some day I may be privileged to reciprocate so much kindness, and with my cordial good wishes for your success, believe me,

Yours respectfully,

---

16 Adams Street,
Burlington, Vt.
Sept. 27, 1917.

DEAR SIR:—

I have received your card saying that my son has been a visitor at St. Stephen's Club.

I wish to thank you and all those who have made such a club possible and express to you my gratitude and appreciation for the interest and kindness shown my son and his comrades in the service. He has written to me about the club and says that he enjoys his visits there very much.

Yours very truly,

On board U. S. S. Seattle,
Sept. 23, 1917.

DEAR BROTHER:

I like Philadelphia a whole lot better than I do New York, even if I do get royal treatment here, but there is something here that I can't explain in words that doesn't create good fellowship like St. Stephen's and Philadelphia.

I remain Fraternally,

Sept. 16, 1917.

DEAR SIR:—

I am well pleased to receive a card from your club through my brother, and am more than glad to know he has some such place to spend his spare time, Eugene has been somewhat of a wayward boy and anything that you or your club might do to help him will more than please his mother, and brothers. I will be glad to hear from you as to his behavior. He is a member of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of Buffalo.

Hoping that Eugene spends many evenings at your club and accepts your hospitality, that he might lead a better life, I am,

Yours Truly,

Oswego, N. Y.
Wed. Sept. 26, 1917.

DEAR SIRS AND FATHERS:—

Mr. and Mrs. ———— wishes to thank you all for your kindness and interest to our son William, away from home. Altho we miss him very much and feel lonesome, nothing could have pleased us any more than your message, it seemed like an angel from Heaven when your card came yesterday. To know that he had such a nice religious place to spend his spare time.

Hoping that God and his Blessed Mother will watch over him and his comrades and with your kindness and help, they will all return to their homes good religous boys and men.

May God and his Blessed Mother send down all the blessings in Heaven upon you all. And we will pray for you all. With kindest regards from,

---

Frost, Texas,
Sept. 28. 1917.

DEAR FRIENDS:—

Received card today from Wm. H. Richardson. On Committee work from your Church Club. That my son George Stanley had chosen to use your Club Home, and be with your good people, yes I do feel comforted to know God's Children away there are looking after my darling Sailor Boy. I appreciate it more than I am able to write you, but am so thankful to you for this kindness. What a great work you are doing. True these are anxious hours.

Thanking you again and again for favors shown mine and other mothers' boys. My only child. I desire your prayers.

Sincerely,

Baltimore, Md.
Sept. 13, 1917.

MY DEAR SIR:—

We have just received at home one of the cards being mailed by the Old St. Stephen's Club, showing that my son James, who is a seaman on the U. S. S. Massachusetts, has enjoyed the privileges of the Club, and can assure you that my wife and myself were much touched by the incident and by the tender message conveyed in the card.

James had already spoken of having attended the Club and enjoyed its hospitality. He has been reared in a Christian home, but you have doubtless been reaching many who have not had this advantage, and I am sure your Church has accomplished much lasting good in the conduct of this work.

Wishing you Godspeed in your splendid effort, I beg to remain

Very Sincerely,

Headquarters Company
110th Infantry, (3d Penn. Inf.)
Camp Hancock, Ga.

DEAR FRIEND:

I wish to write these few words of thanks to you and the members of St. Stephen's Fellowship Club, for the kindness and entertainment shown myself and friends while we were encamped near Phila.

I think St. Stephen's is doing a wonderful work. They certainly are doing their "bit," and I do not think that any enlisted man could regret the time spent in their little club.

Wishing you all the success in the world, I am,
Sincerely,

---

Prayer for Absent Ones

O GOD, Who art in every place and from Whose knowledge no space or distance can ever remove us, we know that those who are absent from each other are still present to Thee. Defend, we pray Thee, those dear ones (especially .....'.....) from whom we are separated, in all their dangers, both of soul and of body. And grant that they and we, by drawing near to Thee, may be drawing near unto one another, bound together by the unseen chain of Thy Love, in the communion of the Holy Spirit, in the holy fellowship of Thy Saints: that whether, or not, as seems best to Thee, we meet again, here upon earth, we may surely meet again at the Resurrection of the just; and go in together to that house of many mansions which Thou hast prepared for those who love Thee: through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

FREDERICK B. KEABLE,
Treasurer.

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

The war dominates every other interest. It invades our Church life, as well as our family circles. Ministers are called on to speak in behalf of the Liberty Loan, and of food conservation. The needs of the Y. M. C. A. and of our Church's chaplains must all be presented. All these causes have their rightful appeal. Our supreme duty at this crisis of the nation and of civilization is to help the country. Our next obligation is to assist the Young Men's Christian Association. This is the instrumentality recognized by the President for providing for the social and religious needs of the enlisted men of the Protestant Churches, which include 60 per cent. of our people, as the Knights of Columbus provide for the Roman Catholic membership of 30 per cent. Neither the Y. M. C. A. nor the Knights of Columbus exclude from their privileges men of another faith.

Our own chaplains also ought to be adequately equipped. The slogan that the boys of our church are entitled to the sacraments of our ministration wherever they go, is a mistake. The highest power of Christianity lies in the truths that we all have in common. It is impossible for our church to have an Episcopal clergyman on every battleship or in every brigade, or a chaplain at every reserve camp. The Government cannot have such a troop of chaplains as this policy would require if followed out by various churches. The expense is more than the members of our church can bear. The underlying idea is a narrow sectarian theory that no ministers except those of historic orders can kindle by their ministration the flame of pure devotion on the altar of our hearts. The proper equipment of our chaplains with religious literature, hymnals, Bibles and prayer books, portable melodeons, etc., is a reasonable and proper request. It is also most fitting that the churches in the neighborhood of these great camps for assembling and training men should be assisted in meeting the necessities of the situation. Take, for instance, the city of Macon, Ga., near which lies Camp Wheeler, with 30,000 troops. Macon itself has a total population of about 60,000, of which two-fifths are colored. These enlisted men are not in so much peril as they would be near a great city, but where there are many pigeons the hawks will soon gather, and the churches in Macon are in need of all the assistance their co-religionists can give them. We must stand by all these causes, and I believe that the order of importance is as I have named them.

Our own Club continues its excellent work. Up to Sunday, October 28th, our registration aggregated over 19,000, and in the last week we had 1,000.

The committee of ladies had an attendance in the afternoon 50 per cent larger the second week than in the first. I suggest that ladies who are anxious to help, but have not been assigned to any definite day, visit the Club on the afternoon most convenient to them, and see its working and discern by conference with those in charge where they can be most useful, and above all send in their names to Miss Ewing. The assignments as at present made are published elsewhere. The work is enlarging and, sad to say, it looks as if the war would stretch out for a long period. It is plain that we need many helpers and that the whole conduct of the Club must be systematized and conducted by definite rules.

One thing ought to manifest itself in the work done, namely, that this is a social and not a charitable function. We are not giving food to these young men because they are starving. We are inviting them into our Club-house and providing them refreshments as an expression of our interest in them, because we are solicitous to provide them with a helpful social environment. Pecuniary aid ought no more to be asked of us than a guest would ask for a loan of money from his host at an evening's entertainment in a private house. The enlisted men realize this. The worthy men can get pecuniary aid from their comrades who know them, if they have lost their car fares. As for the infinitesimal number who try to get money from us on the usual grounds, it should be understood that it is against the rules to give such help. Such grants of aid will have a tendency to attract the lower elements and drive away from us the youths whom we are most anxious to interest. It will not be necessary to refer to this again. The principle is important, but the cases that call for its application are comparatively rare.

Since I am speaking of rules, I must emphasize that only men in uniform are invited. If a man has been discharged from the service for sickness, or disability of any kind, we must respectfully ask him not to come. Only men in the service can be our guests. Our stream of sociability has to have banks, if its current is to run well. The uniform is the required wedding garment.

It will also be necessary to be prompt in closing, in justice to our workers. The men will coöperate cordially, if they understand that we are mapping out the plans of a long campaign.

Wonderful, indeed, is the uplift of this Club. The heart cannot but expand as one looks on these young men; so young, so cheerful, so free from swagger and bravado. Their mouths are filled with no strange oaths, as we hear them talk. They move without bluster or parade. Courteous, natural, direct in speech, frank and friendly—they are youths to be proud of. One shudders to think of the perils that are ahead of them, perils physical and spiritual. Of the lewd fellows of the baser sort, who will tell them tales in the camp, or in the watches of the night on shipboard; of the strain upon nerves in the trench, and of the strain upon faith when the spectacle of a world at war unrolls itself before them. But we can only bear a certain amount of pain. God has made our nerves of such a nature that they cannot carry more than a certain voltage of suffering. Neither can the full horrors of the future be comprehended. God has provided checks and brakes for lessening the shocks and He has also supplies of courage and endurance, that He provides for those who turn to Him in their hour of need.

The boys evidently take short looks ahead and live in the duties of the hour, and we must emulate their example. These are the birth-throes of a better civilization, of the parliament of man, the federation of the world. If our country's blood and treasure must be poured out, they will be expended for a pearl of great price, an enduring peace, a peace guaranteed by the confederated nations of the whole world, who have been brought together in alliance by the necessity of restraining this maniac German nation.

But I must turn from these world-wide issues, to the work of our Parish.

About Thanksgiving Day, we shall have a special confirmation for enlisted men. Some are coming back from distant camps to be confirmed in St. Stephen's. We should be glad to know the names of any who are meditating this step.

On Monday night the Hon. Edwin S. Stuart, former Mayor of Philadelphia, and Governor of Pennsylvania, made an address to enlisted men. His stirring words made a great impression on the boys. On the same night a number of members of Company I of the 47th New York Infantry, through Corporal B. Rodalsky, presented to me a formal expression of gratitude signed by 47 men, with the corporal's name at the top. A reproduction of which appears in this issue.

Great interest is felt in the church and in the artistic community in the completion of the memorial chancel and reredos by Miss Anna J. Magee, in memory of her sister, Miss Fanny S. Magee. As we anticipated, embellishment and elaboration of the original design has delayed somewhat the composition, and various checks and difficulties incident to a state of war have delayed its completion. Rapid progress is now about to be made and we hope that the formal unveiling may take place on Saturday, December 1st. We are grateful for the good nature and patience with which the congregation has borne the inconvenience of this period of construction.

The removal of the rails in front of the church has been a great improvement. The whole air of the building is much more inviting. The doors now seem to be ready to open to the wayfarer and the passer-by and the stranger. It is too costly at this time to put in new steps, and the old steps were repaired with cement. Our entrance would do very well now if it were more adequately lighted. I have no doubt that this will soon be provided.

I ought to say a word about the Evangelistic Services going on at the Inasmuch Mission. Mr. Keable has accepted a position on the Executive Committee of the Board conducting the meeting, and we wish Mr. Long all success in his efforts to gather in the down-hearted and the defeated, and start them on a new course and a new life.

Since our last issue the church has lost a number of its older members. Mrs. Mary L. Wigfall, who was buried on October 5th, was at one time the treasurer of the Benevolent Society and active in the work of that Society. She was at the time of her death the President of the Corporation of the New Century Club. Her health had been poor for years. She often said that no one need mourn for her when she died. Full of years and ready for the change, she passed from the cheerful converse of friends with a brief spasm of pain into the life beyond the veil.

After a long illness with alternations of recovery and relapse, Mrs. Olivia Ernst died October 9th. She and her daughters came to St. Stephen's from the old Church of the Atonement, and had many friends in the parish. The tender and assiduous attentions of her daughters and grandchildren sustained and soothed her last hours. After a long and full life, she fell asleep.

Another aged member passed away with the death of Mrs. Isabella De Coursey, a woman of great force of character. She bore with great dignity and fortitude the total blindness that darkened the closing years of her life. In all these deaths we could but feel that Death was a kind friend, summoning the laborers home after a long day of toil, home to rest, to reward and to the Father's house. It is no easy task to grow old gracefully and uncomplainingly, to have the windows of the house darkened, the daughters of music laid low, and to feel the strong men of the house tremble. Many of us will be inclined to say, "May the curfew bell sound before the brightness of the sunset fades away in the gloom of night." Thank God, though the night may gather here, there is another daybreak beyond.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Church Work Fund.

My Dear Parishioners:

I am making my annual appeal for contributions to the Church Work Fund. With this purse the Rector conducts his office, publishes THE PARISH NEWS, and contributes to various societies in the Church. Our old members give faithfully to this fund, and it is to be hoped that our new members will also contribute to it.

By the envelope system for specified objects, and the Church Work Fund for small and sundry purposes, the worship of St. Stephen's is kept free from frequent appeals for money, a feature of our service that tends greatly to enhance the dignity of our worship.

The regular demands on this purse call for a fund of $1,600.

This appeal is given out a little earlier than usual, but my treasury is depleted, and there never was a greater demand for such a purse. I ought to have my secretary's services more constantly than I did last year, as there are a great many letters that ought to be written to these boys who ask for messages, and leave their names with us, and also to those who have gone out from our parish. I would be very much obliged if the contributions were sent to me as soon as possible. I give below a statement of the receipts and expenditures for the year just closed:

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The first meeting of the Auxiliary was held in the Parish House, Thursday, October 18th. All members were asked to concentrate their energies for the Bazaar and Supper to be given on Thursday, November 15th, afternoon and evening, at the Parish House of the Memorial Church of the Advocate, Eighteenth and Diamond Streets. St. Stephen's is to have a booth in conjunction with St. Ambrose Mission, for whose benefit the affair is given. Contributions of aprons, bags and neckwear or money may be sent to Mrs. Samuel H. Austin, 3913 Chestnut Street. Mrs. Grammer and the Misses Grammer will be in charge of the sales of the booth.

This date is the third Thursday, so that our own Auxiliary meeting will be postponed until the following week, November 22nd.

At noon a Corporate Communion of our Auxiliary was held in the church at the conclusion of our meeting. Miss Bell hopes this may become a custom at the first meeting in the Fall.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR,
Secretary.

Notice of Bazaar.

Please remember the Bazaar and Supper to be held on Thursday, November 15th, from 2 until 10 o'clock in the Parish House of the Church of the Advocate, at Eighteenth and Diamond Streets. This is the work assigned to the Woman's Aid of the Convocation of North Philadelphia, viz., to assist St. Ambrose Church, a growing mission in the northeastern part of our city, in the Kensington mill district, where a prosperous Mormon church on the opposite corner stands as a menace to the cramped conditions at St. Ambrose.

The blocks of two-story houses in the neighborhood furnish members and many children for both churches, and at St. Ambrose the attendance at the Sunday School in the basement is so large that there is not sufficient accommodation, therefore the Woman's Aid is trying to add to the building fund by holding this bazaar.

There are about twenty parishes in the Convocation of North Philadelphia, among which are St. Stephen's, St. James and Christ Church, St. Stephen's and St. Ambrose are to have a booth together, at which aprons, handkerchiefs and neckwear are to be the chief articles for sale.

The supper will be served from 6 to 7.30 P. M., at a nominal charge of fifty cents.

The large Parish House of the Church of the Advocate with its fine equipment has been kindly put at the disposal of the Woman's Aid for this bazaar, and it is hoped that every parish in the Convocation will help by contributing money or articles for sale.

Mrs. Samuel H. Austin, 3913 Chestnut Street, is chairman of St. Stephen's booth, and will gladly receive any contributions sent to her.

LAURA BELL,
President Woman's Aid.

The Church Periodical Club.

The Church Periodical Club, like every other activity in these days, is more pressed than ever before because of the need to help our soldiers and sailors and at the same time to keep up the regular work. The missionaries who have rejoiced in our ministrations still want them, but new calls are coming all the time.

Here is a sample of the work done in the past month by St. Stephen's Branch: Besides the regular sending each week or month by our pledged donors (and this is our largest work), we have sent books to a mission camp in Virginia, Sunday School helps to a chapel in Georgia, our regular monthly quota of magazines to reading-rooms in Alaska, a special package to a chaplain with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, others to chaplains on battle ships, and several hundred to local hospitals. All these books were donated, but the sending, mostly by mail, means an outlay not provided for.

St. Stephen's Committee of the Club has a suggestion to make to those who wish to help. Some of our parishioners offered last spring to send their old newspapers and other waste paper to the parish house to be sold, with proceeds for the Periodical Club. But there is positively no room for storage of such material, even for a few days. If the housekeepers who have paper to sell would drop a postal card or telephone to the Librarian (Miss E. H. Smith, 211 South Forty-second Street, Preston 5596 W), whenever they have twenty-five or fifty pounds of waste paper, the following day a reliable dealer will be sent to buy it. A box will be placed on the shelf of the room adjoining the vestry room, marked "C. P. C." and in this the amount realized may be dropped the next Sunday, with the name of the donor, that its receipt may be acknowledged. Would this be much trouble? If each householder who was interested would get rid of her paper in this way, and turned in only say, 25 to 50 cents a year, the Church Periodical Club would be able to meet all postage and express charges.

Old St. Stephen's Club.

October 29, 1917.

To the Relatives and Friends of the Enlisted Men:

Friends and Fellow Countrymen:

I wish that you could see the uniformed men sitting in our Club, enjoying themselves at the games, and partaking of our hospitality. We have them sign a postal card, when they register, and this card is mailed to you, as a message from us, that the young man is well. Perhaps, however, you would like to know something more about the Club and its doings. The Club building is the Sunday School of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church, situated on Tenth Street, near Market. This is one of the historic Episcopal Churches in this Quaker City. It has had a line of famous preachers for rectors, and contains some beautiful monuments of art. "The Angel of the Resurrection," a memorial of the children of Col. Edwin Shippen Burd, is the work of a favorite pupil of the great Danish sculptor Thorwaldsen. A replica is preserved in Bremen. The memorial of Maria Gouverneur Mitchell, the daughter of the poet-physician, and man of letters, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, is by St. Gaudens. There are many other notable art treasures in the church.

In musical circles the church is well known for its fine choir, and for its connection for forty-six years with the blind organist, Dr. David D. Wood, who was counted as one of Pennsylvania's thirty famous men in his day.

The members of this Church began the St. Stephen's Club and the authorities of the parish turned over to them the Sunday School building, just behind the Church. It is not large enough for our needs, though it has a hall on the second floor that holds about 300 persons when packed to its utmost capacity, as it often is.

Down stairs there are four rooms. One is used as an office and writing room. The next is furnished with a "U" shaped counter, and is used as a refreshment room. The next has a pool table, which is always being played upon. The fourth has a shuffle board and Manhattan pool table, equally popular.

Every evening except Sunday, upstairs there is an entertainment, either moving pictures, or a lecture, or declamations. On Wednesday night Keith's vaudeville, which is only a few squares away, sends over some of its gifted performers. That night is a Keith night. The church has a magnificent moving picture machine, and several of the moving picture firms lend us their films, as a patriotic service. Every one is glad to do something for the boys who are going to fight for their country and humanity. To-night, Monday, October 29th, the Hon. Edwin S. Stuart, a former Governor of Pennsylvania, will say some words to the lads. We have had such speakers as Congressman Edmonds and Judge Patterson and other men of standing in this community.

The average attendance is about 150. At 9.30 P. M. the buffet is opened and refreshments are served. The men come up to the U shaped counter, and in part are served and in part help themselves as at a social reception. The order is good and every one has been impressed by the courtesy and good manners of our visitors. There is a large committee of men in charge of the Club. This committee raises the money, which is freely given by citizens of Philadelphia , irrespective of creed. Since the Club began on June 25th, we have had over 19,000 visitors register with us.

There is such a need of a free club for enlisted men that the women of the congregation resolved to keep its doors open in the afternoons, and two weeks ago inaugurated an afternoon opening from 2.30 to 5.30. The first week there were over 200 visitors and the second week over 300. The hostesses are matrons who are sometimes assisted by younger women.

The boys are evidently hungry for the friendship and sympathy of women of their mothers' age. Every now and then we find a boy without any near relations, an orphan lad who has no one interested in him sufficiently to write to him. We hear of 'shut in" people, who are excluded from life's activities and social functions; while these lads are "shut out," who are outside of home ties and home comforts. We ask them to allow us to adopt them, and place them on our lists. We have four adopted sons of the Club of this character.

On Sunday the Club is open in the afternoon and at night; but all the games are stopped at the hour of public worship and the men are invited to attend. Many avail themselves of the privilege. No effort is made to proselytize. All that is sought is to blow into a brighter blaze the fire of devotion and of consecration to the service of God, as well as to the service of their country.

After the closing service many return to the Club and sit around. Some write letters. We provide the stationery and writing materials. Some play checkers. We are no Puritans in such minor matters. Some talk with the committee and the ladies, and others gather around the piano and sing hymns.

Last night I noticed that one boy neither talked with any one, nor wrote nor read nor sang. He listened to the music, and had a far-away look, and was somewhat sad. A lady noticed him and nodded to me. "He is homesick," is whispered, and she goes over and joins him. Now one of the committee men comes up to me with a tall soldier who brings bad news. He recalls to our minds a Jewish soldier, who was in the Club a few days back and took a testament, after signing a pledge to read it faithfully. He and another youth who had also registered with us, were riding in a freight train and the news had just arrived that they had been killed, the Jewish boy with the testament in his pocket.

We look around and wonder which of these boys will be taken next, and which will be spared.

This little sketch may assist you to conceive more vividly the work of the Club. I regret that I cannot convey to you in any adequate way, the pleasure that it gave us to do this work, and the splendid coöperation that we receive from our visiting soldiers, sailors and marines. May they all be the soldiers of Christ and as loyal to that Captain as they are in the service of their country.

All the Committee are anxious to serve you and these boys in any way in their power.

Yours very sincerely,
CARL E. GRAMMER.

Special Notice.

St. Stephen's Club is to be looked on as a civic enterprise, the product of Christian philanthropy, and ardent patriotism. It is not limited in its appeal for help in the shape of money or personal service to those who belong to St. Stephen's. Outsiders are welcome. But so are insiders. St. Stephen's people must not fail to do their part either in the serving or the giving. The appeal is to all. Contributions to the Club should be sent to the Chairman of the Finance Committee, Howard Reifsnyder.

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

I regret that I have been obliged to announce the postponement of the opening of the new chancel. A carload of marble was lost for about a week in the congested freight yards of Philadelphia, and put an almost complete stop to the work of the chancel until it could be found, and in order to be safe we have postponed the date of the opening till Saturday, December 15th. As almost all the material is now on hand, and the remainder will be sent over from New York by motor truck, I think we can be confident of an opening on that night, and am making all my preparations to that end.

The music of the program will be chiefly the compositions of organists of St. Stephen's, Dr. Wood, Selden Miller, and Mr. Thunder. There will also be some selections by the American composer, Parker, and by Gounod and Haendel. The choir will be augmented for the occasion. We shall endeavor to show what St. Stephen's has done for the musical and artistic culture of the city. Cards of invitation will be issued to all the pewholders and envelope takers of St. Stephen's. To be of any value these must be presented at least ten minutes before the doors are opened to the public at 8 o'clock. Already there has been a great demand for these tickets and I am sure the celebration will be a great occasion. The beauty of the chancel and the reredos exceeds my most sanguine expectation.

I think that everyone will realize that the substitution of a stone pulpit on a somewhat lower level, which will not interfere with the view of the chancel, will be a great gain. As for the elevation of the old platform, its benefit will be felt at every service. I hope that next summer we may see our way to cutting back the south gallery as far as the gallery has been cut back on the north side. At the same time the ends of both galleries should be rounded off in a graceful curve. The right angle at which the north gallery juts out into the church is very inartistic. When both these galleries have been made of the same size and the lines are made a graceful "U" curve, the full beauty of the chancel will be even more manifest, and the church will present a very harmonious and beautiful appearance.

Through the kindness of Germantown Commandery and Mr. Luffbarry, two of the partitions in the lower story of the Parish House were torn down. They were of no value in supporting the building, and only divided the place into class rooms. As these were no longer needed, it was a great improvement to throw all these rooms together, and make a large room down stairs for the sports and refreshments.

Last week it was decided to open a coat room, and a system of buttons was introduced that will indicate the enlisted men who have participated in the festivities of the evening, and are really our guests. In this way we aim to emphasize the social features, and to retire somewhat into the background the refreshments. The work of the ladies in the afternoon receptions continues to prove its value.

These patriotic activities on a large scale must not make us forget out regular parochial work. The approach of Christmas will call for the appointment of the usual committee on Christmas baskets. I do not think I could do better than to reappoint the former committee, Mr. Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr., Mr. Reifsnyder, Mr. Keable and Mr. Carrigan, who have done so well in the past, and understand so thoroughly the best methods of purchasing and distributing. The suggestion has been made from some quarters that instead of giving out a basket, coal should be distributed, but the price of coal, high though it is, has not risen in proportion to the price of food. Therefore I think it will be wisest to stick to the old plan of giving out Christmas baskets. Christmas cheer of this kind never relaxed the energies of anybody. Let us spread abroad happiness at such a season, and relieve the gloom and anxiety that hangs over many homes by sending out generous baskets. I appeal for a large response.

Let me remind the congregation that it will be a real kindness to the clerks in the stores if they would do their Christmas shopping early. Visiting Wanamaker's the other day I spoke to a clerk who had been in the employ of that great firm for some two years, and she told me that this was the off season just now, a kind of lull before Christmas buying. What a pity it is that we cannot gird up our loins and select our presents early. Surely that is the best time; we have the largest stock to select from, we have less competition and crowding at the counter, and fresher and more willing clerks.

Shopping early is a very practical form of benevolence; paying debts promptly is a form of honesty. Another way in which Christmas may be made more cheerful for people is by joining the Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving. A great many people exchange gifts as a kind of social obligation or formal custom. They ought to free themselves from it. It might be accomplished by mutual consent and entire candor.

On Sunday, January 27th, at the 11 o'clock service, the annual service of confirmation will be administered by Bishop Garland. As it will be very difficult to get a class together in the holiday time, I am going to begin the sessions of my class about the 15th of December. The notice will be given from the chancel and I will be very much obliged if any persons who are considering this step will communicate with me.

I would be very much obliged to the members of the congregation if they would make it a point to help any of the enlisted men who attend our church to find their way in the Prayer Book and Hymnal, and generally guide them through the service. People who are not accustomed to a liturgical worship are very much embarrassed by finding themselves in a church where the service is as much of a ceremony as it is with us. Every person brought up in the Episcopal Church dislikes unnecessary directions in the service, and likes to see it conducted with the precision of a drill. Personally I dislike to anounce the page on which the Psalter is found; it seems a reflection on the intelligence of the congregation; but it is being done now at the services for the sake of these enlisted men. I suppose that we Episcopalians are too stiff in such matters, but I would not like to go to the other extreme. I can never forget an experience in Norfolk when an important society for the relief of seamen was having its meeting in the chief Baptist church of the town. I was the speaker, and quite a gathering of leading people from the other churches assembled to hear the reports of the secretaries, since Norfolk was a seaport town, and many people were interested in the welfare of the sailors. The pastor of the church announced that we would sing a certain hymn to a certain tune; whereupon the organist coolly turned half way round on the organ bench, and called out that this tune was not found in the hymnal. None of the Baptists present seemed at all surprised, but the rest of us were convulsed at such lack of ceremony in the conduct of public worship.

The attendants on non-liturgical churches on coming to our service feel somewhat constrained by our greater dignity and precision, and need to be guided and helped. I think, on the whole, they like our ordered worship. Most people like to witness a well conducted drill. A service in which the responses are taken promptly by the people and heartily given has something uplifting in it. There is a splendid roll about the recitation of the Creed. My general instructions to Mr. Thunder are that the hymns are to be given to the congregation, and popular tunes are to be sung.

I am hoping that after the new chancel is unveiled, there will be a large increase in the night congregation in particular. We had such splendid musical services last year and drew such large congregations that I think a very little advertising would enable us, with the addition of this splendid chancel, to attract large congregations. We were never in better condition to do good work.

We publish elsewhere selections from some of the letters from the enlisted men. There are bound to be difficulties and hard work in conducting the Club, but no one can participate in its activities without being uplifted and carried out of himself. Who are we that we should be coddling ourselves and bemoaning our cares and trials, when all the world is going through such convulsive agonies? Let us forget ourselves and try to do our part. One of the conditions of courage is that the imagination should be controlled and the attention firmly fixed upon the duty at hand. All effective thinking is attended by excluding from the mind all irrelevancies. All effective action is accomplished in the same way. The future belongs to God, and we must not expect the strength that wlll enable us to bear the burdens of to-morrow until to-morrow comes. Sufficient unto the day are the supplies of grace. The petition runs, "Give us this day our daily bread."

Day by day the manna fell.
O to learn this lesson well.
Still by constant mercy fed,
Give us, Lord, our daily bread.

It is good to see a number of new faces in the congregation. I wish they would make themselves known to the clergy. I am more and more impressed that the greatest defect of the Church is that it is not enough of a fellowship. The other day a soldier turned up in the Parish House and told me that he had come back from the camp in the South in order to bury his only brother. He was now absolutely alone in the world, he told me, being an orphan. "I have no near relation of of any kind," he said; "I am alone." I asked him whether he did not belong to any church, and he replied that he attended the Presbyterian Church, but only occasionally, and had never associated himself with it. Of course, the Church is not a family, but what the Church ought to provide for such a man is a household of faith, where the lonely man may feel himself, as the apostle puts it, not a stranger and alone, but a fellow citizen of the saints and a member of the household of God.

I have received a letter recently from a young girl who asked for a package of envelopes, and said she wished to associate herself more closely with St. Stephen's Church, because she thought the atmosphere was so friendly. Full of friendship and full of aspirations—that is what we would like our church to be. May God grant us the grace to work together, each doing his part to make it into such a home for the lonely, and such a source of comfort for the depressed.

In the death of Mrs. Carrie Garwood Fisher St. Stephen's Church lost one of her saints. Her residence was so far from the Church that she was not able to take part in many of its activities. For years her health had been poor, and all the energy of her nature had been called upon to meet the daily demands upon her strength, so that the congregation was not widely acquainted with her.

All who knew her realized that she was a rare and beautiful spirit. Though often racked with pain, and struggling against weakness, she had the unusual gift of being able to interest herself, even under such circumstances, in literature, and in other people. I should say that her distinguishing characteristic was her remarkable self-control, were it not that all her emotions seemed to be so pure and beautiful that perhaps it would be better to describe her as a person remarkably at peace with herself and with God. I never visited her sick room without being uplifted. She was a parishioner to thank God for. She was a living sacrament. No one could be with her without realizing the grace and power that were tenanted in her frail body.

Perhaps I ought to say a word about the suspension of Mr. Richmond. One of the jurors dissented from the verdict and has allowed his imagination to be so much disturbed by false analogies, that he denounced the trial as another Dreyfus case. The majority of the jury, however, decided that Mr. Richmond should be disciplined. I believe that intelligent public opinion will ratify that verdict. Ministers of the gospel must not express their convictions in unmeasured language of vituperation such as Mr. Richmond uses, neither can a leader of a society for the spread of holiness be permitted to show such tempers, and perform such actions. No college would endure such a man on its staff of teachers.

We need not be surprised, however, at the dissenting opinion. Since the days of Thomas a Becket there have always been clergymen who have claimed for their profession exemption from the strictness of civil discipline. The church can not allow its large tolerance of diverse theories and dogmas to degenerate into moral laxity. The diocese is to be congratulated on this vindication of the moral earnestness of the Church. Proficients in the language and manners of Billingsgate are out of place in our pulpits. We expect our ministers to behave like Christian gentlemen.

As for the conduct of the trial, I will give a sample. Mr. Richmond had cross-examined me, as to my motives in being one of the presenters. "Oh, well," he exclaimed, "I don't want to have any more to do with you. You can step down. You don't know the meaning of the word 'catholic.'" Whereupon the Chancellor remarked, "Mr. Richmond, you must reserve your argument till your closing speech." Only Dickens could do justice to that trial.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

Twenty-two members were present at the regular monthly meeting of the Auxiliary. There was no address but the hour was filled with interesting reports and discussions of the work of the various delegates to the Diocesan meetings.

The treasurer reported a balance of $85.49 and Miss Magee has collected $131.00 for the United Offering.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, December 20th.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR,
Secretary.

Card of Thanks.

As chairman of St. Stephen's Booth at the Church of the Advocate, Mrs. S. H. Austin desires to thank all members who so kindly contributed fancy articles towards her table at the Bazaar held on November 15th.

The Woman's United Offering.

At the meeting of the Auxiliary the treasurer reported having received $131.00 for this purpose. Since then about $60.00 additional has been received. It is gratifying to know that notwithstanding the many appeals from all sources, this offering by the women for women workers in the missionary field is not being forgotten.

This Circle will have its next meetings December 5th and December 19th, in Guild Room, Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock.

During the months of October and November this Circle has made 2 dozen slings, 28 pillows and 18 dozen sponges for the British Relief.

Also six housewives, well filled and given to the Red Cross and soldier boys whom they are interested in and have received many kind words of thanks for these little tokens.

The Sunday School.

The Sunday School bought a $50 Liberty Bond and voted that the interest should be added to our yearly offering for Miss Conway's work in Liberia, Africa. The bond has not yet been paid for in full, so if you wish to help, the treasurer will be glad to receive your contribution. The Advent Offerings this year, in accordance with the request of the Board of Religious Education, will be given to the War Commission for the Bishop White Prayer Books for the army and navy.

The Girl's Friendly Society.

St. Stephen's Branch of the G. F. S. has taken up as their winter's work the making of Red Cross hospital supplies; knitting sweaters, mufflers, helmets and wristlets for the soldiers and sailors. This branch has also collected many books for the men in camps, and is also doing work for the Shut-in Society.

The Parish House was the scene of a very happy gathering on the night that the members of the Friendly bought and paid for a Liberty Bond, and donated it to the Beneficial Fund of the branch. Nothing selfish about the Friendly. By the way, picture post cards and fine illustrations are made good use of by the girls, who make them into "scrap books" for children in the hospitals.

Money received from Church fund through Dr. Grammer	$35.00
From those receiving shoes	3.00

Church Periodical Club.

The Church Periodical Club, all over the country, is working in the spirit of Bishop Lawrence's slogan, "Give the chaplains strong and sympathetic support." In each diocese the stress is being laid on the necessity of sending regularly good recent magazines to the chaplains at the front and in camps; not in bulky packages, but by mail month by month; one, two, or three at a time, so that the news is really news. This is our "war extra." Please do not stop the periodicals to the missionaries; but remember that the special chaplain whom St. Stephen's is trying to help is

CHAPLAIN F. C. ARMSTRONG,
16th Infantry, U. S. A.,
American Expeditionary Forces, France.

Will you not send him something each month? If a monthly magazine, see that it is not more than two months old; if a Sunday or other weekly paper, not more than one week old. Postage is at the rate of four cents a pound.

Chaplain Armstrong said in his letter that he was in a place with Divisional and Brigade Headquarters, and near a large hospital, and that he could use "any amount" of magazines, games, candy, tobacco.

Prayers from Various Sources

O MERCIFUL Father, we beseech thee at this time to look down in mercy upon our country. Guide and protect the President of the United States, and all others in authority. Give wisdom and courage to those who bear command in our Army and our Navy. Grant to us, and to our Allies, if it be thy will, victory and success. Preserve our land from bloodshed, and remove the horrors of war from other lands. Stay, we beseech thee, the pain and the misery, the sorrow and the want, the fierceness and the cruelty, which now desolate the earth. Look down in compassion upon those who are our enemies in this war, especially upon their sick and wounded. And speedily, if it be thy will, send forth upon the nations of the world the blessing of thy peace, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

O ALMIGHTY and merciful God, we commend to thy fatherly care those who through the perils of war are serving their country by land and by sea. Thou knowest the places where they are, and the dangers which beset them. Be thou to each one a shield and a defence. In times of waiting, or of action, in sickness or in health, in life or in death, grant unto him the comfort of thy presence. Put into his mind holy thoughts of thee, his Heavenly Father, and of Jesus Christ, his Saviour. Help him to pray. And if it be thy will, keep him in safety and bring him back to his home in peace, through our blessed Saviour and Mediator, Jesus Christ. Amen.

LOOK in thy mercy, we beseech thee, O Lord, on those who are called to tasks of special peril, in the air or beneath the sea. Even there also shall thy hand lead them. Help them to do their duty with prudence and with fearlessness, confident that in life or in death the Eternal God is their refuge, and that underneath them are the Everlasting Arms. Grant this for Jesus Christ's sake, thy Son our Lord. Amen.

O LORD Jesus Christ, who by thy death didst take away the sting of death, grant rest, we beseech thee, in the place of light and refreshment, to those who have died in battle, or through sickness, in this war; receive their souls into thy holy keeping, where pain and sorrow and sighing are done away, and grant unto them a merciful judgment at the last day; Who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

ALMIGHTY God, Who hast made us citizens of this land, enable us though we remain in the safety of our homes to do our country service. Make us calm, unselfish and ready to give according to our means. Give us grace to bear the burdens of others, those known to us, and those unknown. Keep us from being at any time cast down by anxiety, and enable us to cheer and comfort those about us. Shew us at all times what is our duty and strengthen us to do it, and grant that we may with a ready will learn the lessons whch thou art teaching us, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Club Notes.

The "Home" card issued by our Club has now been adopted by the Army and Navy Commissions on Training Camp Activities at Washington, and through them has been ordered reprinted and distributed to go to different centres, to be used in the work of these Commissions.

New Testaments, bound in khaki or blue cloth are given to the enlisted men, upon request. Several hundred have been given out, and in a few days we shall have copies of the Prayer Book for enlisted men, issued by the Bishop White Prayer Book Society.

Over 700 copies of "Prayer for the Absent" have been distributed, and requests are still coming in.

On Sunday last, November 25th, Mr. Keable made an appeal for books for the boys at the camps. He will be glad if you will send one or more to him at the Parish House.

A port in Ireland
Nov. 2, 1917.

Friend of "us" boys:

Have wondered if any of the boys wrote you or any of the entertainment committee at St. Stephen's, that left the same time I did, if not, no doubt you will be glad to hear that we reached this side without adventure, well not adventure, as that it sure was to yours truly, but without mishap of any kind or without sighting any subs. or hostile craft of the enemy.

We reached here two weeks after sailing, and had a fine trip as the weather was fine, except two or three days.

We stopped at a port in France for awhile. While there the boys had a fine time; the French sailors and soldiers certainly are a fine lot and certainly have a fine contempt for the "Boches." Everybody treated us fine while there. Nearly all of the older women are in mourning and a great many of the younger ones, even many of the girls that don't look to be over fifteen are wearing crepe for some dear one.

An American Y. M. C. A. is maintained there and some entertainment can be had at it. As we were only allowed shore leave till 9 P. M., we could not get to take in any shows, as they don't start till 8.30 and no matinee is given. At the Y. M. C. A. on Saturdays a concert is given, by the sailors from different ships. Occasionally some ladies (French) would sing and some play piano and violin solos for us; although they were good and their efforts greatly appreciated by all, nothing I heard, and I was there quite a few nights, or saw can compare to "our" Old St. Stephen's Club. While there I saw about a half dozen American men but no American ladies. So you see we don't get much to talk about unless it concerns some ship or something military. Oh, but I've missed the "Old Club Rooms" and have often wished to spend another evening there, since I've crossed "the pond." Just wait till we get back!

While ashore one evening (at the French port) I saw about three hundred German war prisoners. Some of them were very young and looked worn out. These looked to be warmly dressed.

As yet I've not been ashore here, but I want to go soon. A club house is open to us, where movies and concerts are to be seen and heard. Things are awfully high here; don't see how the people get along.

I certainly appreciate the little Testament I obtained at St. Stephen's, and hope that the boys that have the chance to obtain one there, will do so, as they certainly will desire one if they have none at present, a great deal of comfort can be obtained from it.

And now as it is near "chow time" I'm going to "ring off." Write and let me know how "Our Club" is getting along.

Yours,

U. S. S. Melville,

Dear Sir:

I feel I must write to thank you for your kindness in giving, or taking the trouble to send me news of my sailor son R. Champkins. We had not heard from him for nearly two months, so were getting somewhat anxious, when your welcome card arrived telling us you had dispensed your hospitality towards him—a stranger.

I thank you gratefully for such services, also for the beautiful Testament which has just arrived here, which I am sure he will treasure as a memento of your kindness towards him.

Hoping you may long be spared to carry on your noble work I remain

Yours respectfully

I was present one evening when you told several of the boys of a little Testament you had to give out. But you did not have any that night, you told us to leave our names, but I was called out to stand guard, but I never forgot it. I would like to have one if you would send me one.

Dear _____

I received your very welcome and kind note this evening, and I am sorry that I could not see you on Wednesday, but if I am not mistaken I was down to Fort Mifflin on an ammunition party that day.

Whether or not I come back to Philadelphia, Mr. _____, (I certainly hope I will, if not on the "Indiana" then on the P. R. R.) I will always think of the fine times I had up at St. Stephen's, and of the very, very generous way you, Mrs. _____ and her mother treated me. This was at first a cold city to me, but it wasn't long before it changed greatly in my estimation. I know that I am not the only one who feels like this.

I've gained in "Philly" even in a materialistic way, because I now weigh more than I ever did before in all my life, and St. Stephen's, its pies (if I may mention them) and your and the church's kindness have done a great deal toward that.

I am very sorry that I cannot thank you personally now, but I hope to do so in the future.

I am sorry to see you speak with a feeling of regret that you are not out in uniform, because you are doing just as much as any man in uniform, and perhaps a great deal more. I guess morale counts a lot in war and the treatment we have had at St. Stephen's does a lot to develop it, which is something officers sometimes can't even develop.

Well, I don't want to bore you with a lengthy letter, because I know you are a busy man, so I'll close, saying that I now realize why Philadelphia is called the "City of Brotherly Love," and thanking you, Mrs. _____, her mother and St. Stephen's for the very fine times I've had in Philadelphia.

I certainly shall drop you a postal the first time I get a chance, and I hope I can soon see some action to tell you about.

Yours sincerely,

From France.

May 16, 1917.

Dear Mr. Taylor,

It is with great pleasure that I have received your kind and interesting letter of the 26th of April, giving me news of yourself and I thank you most sincerely for it.

We were very much moved in France by America's entrance into this war on our side and by the warm manifestations of friendship which you showed to Marechal Joffre and M. Viviani.

The war is still very fierce, it is all the more so because we are fighting a people for whom the abuse of force is elevated to the rank of a principle and who violate all their treaties which we made with them. I see what happens around Douaumont where it is impossible for us to bury our dead and the dead of the enemy in the zone we have conquered, for the Germans fire systematically on all our stretcher-bearers. What desolation in this region! What slaughter! Imagine to yourself dead bodies lying around which date from last May, from the first attack on Douaumont, and others which have been lying here since last October, from the second attack. Nothing can give an idea of the butchery in battle during the year 1916. Obus holes join one another for square miles, and the plowed up earth makes vegetation impossible. As far as the eye can reach it is a desert, one sees earth dug up by shells and sterile, one might believe he were looking at the dunes of sahara with this difference that the obus holes are full of water and that many of them are tombs.

I profit sometimes by the fog to ride around this desolated region; all around lie bodies decomposed, heads eaten by worms which seem to give us grimacing looks. Many have been partially buried by the upheaval of the earth from the obus but they are perhaps the most terrible for one sees sometimes a head projecting from the ground, sometimes legs or arms. At any moment one may stumble over a skull completely detached and polished like an anatomical specimen. It is the rats and crows which have done the work.

Day before yesterday I had the pleasure of receiving at Douaumont an American commission formed of professors from Harvard and Baltimore (Johns Hopkins). These gentlemen came to Douaumont on a calm and warm day; I received them and had them shown what was interesting at the fort. Wishing to show them the German lines, I took them on the fort and hid them in an obus hole, but the boches saw us and sent over to us two shells, one of which fell in an obus hole 10 metres away from us, happily without wounding any one. After a few moments of commotion, this incident very valiantly undergone by all these gentlemen, broke the monotony of their visit, and I am sure they were glad to have been the heroes of it.

Last Taps Sound Over Caskets of America's Heroes in France.

With the American Army in France, Nov. 7, (delayed).—By the Associated Press.

The first three American soldiers killed in the trenches in France tonight are sleeping in French soil, honored by the American army and the people and army of France. Their final interment took place yesterday.

With a guard of French infantrymen, in their picturesque uniforms of red and horizon blue, standing on one side and a detachment of American soldiers on the other, the flag-draped caskets were lowered into the grave as a bugler blew taps and the batteries at the front fired minute guns. As the minute guns boomed, the French officer commanding the division in this section paid tribute to the fallen Americans. His words, which were punctuated by the roar of the guns and the whistle of shells, touched both the French and Americans. In conclusion, the French officer said:

"In the name of the —th Division, in the name of the French army and in the name of France, I bid farewell to Private Enright, Private Gresham and Private Hay, of the American army,

"Of their own free will they had left a prosperous and happy country to come over here. They knew war was continuing in Europe; they knew that the forces fighting for honor, love of justice and civilization were still checked by the long prepared forces serving the powers of brutal domination, oppression and barbarity. They knew that efforts were still necessary. They wished to give up their generous hearts and they have not forgotten old historical memories, yhile others forget more recent ones.

"They ignored nothing of the circumstances and nothing had been concealed from them—neither the length and hardships of war, nor the violence of battle, nor the dreadfulness of new weapons, nor the perfidy of the foe. Nothing stopped them. They accepted the hard and strenuous life; they crossed the ocean at great peril; they took their places on the front by our side and they have fallen facing the foe in a hard and desperate hand-to-hand fight. Honor to them! Their families, friends and fellow citizens will be proud when they learn of their deaths.

"Men! These graves, the first to be dug in our national soil and only a short distance from the enemy, are as a mark of the mighty land we and our allies firmly cling to in the common task, confirming the will of the people and the army of the United States to fight with us to a finish. Ready to sacrifice as long as is necessary for a final victory for the most noble of causes, that of the liberty of nations, the weak as well as the mighty. Thus the deaths of these humble soldiers appear to us with extraordinary grandeur.

"We will, therefore, ask that the mortal remains of these young men be left here, left with us forever. We inscribe on the tombs, 'Here Lie the First Soldiers of the Republic of the United States to Fall on the Soil of France for Liberty and Justice.' The passerby will stop and uncover his head. Travelers and men of heart will go out of their way to come here to pay their respective tributes.

"Private Enright! Private Gresham! Private Hay! In the name of France, I thank you. God receive your souls. Farewell!"

Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

Best wishes for the New Year to each and all! For us as a parish the new year opens with many encouragements. Perhaps the most obvious of our sources of thankfulness is the new chancel. The more that it is used the greater is the delight and comfort. It is so good to have a suitable place for morning prayer. The new pulpit, too, is a great source of thankfulness. The stand for holding the manuscript has been taken away, as it was too large. Mr. Tiffany, with his generous desire to make everything satisfactory, took it back and is going to cut it down. There will also be some other small improvements. The principle of that great house is expressed in the motto of a great Boston publishing house, "Tout bien, ou rien."

Some of us bind up our copies of THE PARISH NEWS, and in that way keep a history of the Church. For the sake of such a memorial, and also for the information of our friends at a distance, we are publishing in this issue the program for the evening of the dedication.

It is the general judgment that the service of Presentation and Dedication was a great success. The effect obtained through the electric light in the Sunday School building was so fine that it is a pity it could not be made a permanent feature. The prayer of dedication is published, as an expression of what this chancel ought to mean to us. May its petitions be fulfilled! We ought as a congregation to show our thankfulness for such a gift by endeavoring to make this Church a true house of God, and a true home of the soul.

The fine work of the choir on the night of December 15th, calls for special recognition. Mr. Thunder added to the dignity of the occasion by composing the organ number, which he most courteously dedicated to Miss Magee. The fine bass of Mr. Conly was heard to great advantage in the Date Pastores, with its thundering amens. Mr. Pontius gave a beautiful rendition of the Sanctus. Mrs. Heaton's clear soprano soared high and clear, in the Hallelujah Chorus, and in Dr. Wood's fine anthem, "There Shall Be No Night There." The bell-like quality of the voice of our contralto, Mrs. Vail, was admirably brought out in "Hark, Hark, My Soul!" The whole choir did splendidly. We were proud of our music.

As might be expected in these war times, there have been a great many marriages recently. The advantage of the superior elevation of the chancel has been strikingly manifested. The marriage service begins, "We are gathered together . . . in the face of this company, to join together this man and this woman." In old times at St. Stephen's when the couple stood down on the level of the pews, and could only be seen by people in the very front, these opening words were not very appropriate. Now, however, they are quite applicable, for the bride and groom, and the bridesmaids and groomsmen all stand out clearly, and can be seen all over the church. It is a splendid chancel for a wedding, far better than a recess-chancel. Indeed the recess-chancel has made people misunderstand the whole wedding ceremony and treat it as two services: the first of betrothal and the second of marriage. A careful reading of the office will show that this is an entire misapprehension. The couple comes to be married. The betrothal has usually been publicly announced some time before, indeed, in olden days was preceded by the publication of the bans for three Sundays. The service opens, as I have said, with the remark that, "We are gathered together to join together this man and this woman in Holy Matrimony." Any objections are asked for. Then the couple are warned that the proposed union must be lawful. In the form of a question the minister next defines the contract into which the parties are about to enter and asks them if they are willing to enter into a bond of this solemn nature. When both assent that this is the kind of a contract they desire, then the minister asks a question which is a survival of past ages in which women could not sue in court nor hold property separately; he asks "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" and proceeds to pledge the parties to one another. The whole ceremony is one and ought not to be divided. This recent fashion of conducting the portion before the pledging of the troth, at the steps leading up into the choir, was simply a device to bring forward the bridal party and let them be better seen than is possible when they retire to the depths of the chancel where they are often hidden by choir stalls and a gloomy rood screen. Our chancel enables the whole ceremony to be enacted in the face of the company. I would rejoice if this new chancel should inaugurate the day of a more Protestant chancel. St. Stephen's began the Noonday Lenten Services. Perhaps from St. Stephen's will date a movement in favor of the kind of chancel that was so popular in the latter part of the seventeenth century, the time of Sir Christopher Wren's great London churches.

Confirmation.—On January 27th Bishop Garland will visit our church at the 11 o'clock service, to administer the rite of confirmation. A class of candidates has been gathered together, and will meet regularly on Sunday afternoons at half past three, in the Vestry Room. Already seven have joined, and it is hoped that in spite of the shortness of the time, and the numerous engagements of the season we can secure a number of new recruits for the Army of the Lord. Indeed, when I come to think about conditions, it ought to be one of the largest classes we have ever had in St. Stephen's. Who can work with these young men, and call upon them to enroll themselves courageously on the side of good without realizing the importance of strengthening all good resolves by a public profession of allegiance, and by the bond of Christian fellowship?

I can't help hoping that out of the workers among these enlisted men the Church shall gain some new recruits. What valid argument is there against joining the Church? Is the Church imperfect? Join it, and try to make it better. That is the argument we advance to men about politics. If they say they won't take part in public affairs because the politicians are such a low class of men, we always reply, "So much more incumbent is it on good men to bear a hand."

Are there hypocrites in the Church? What does that prove? Hypocrisy is the tribute that vice pays to virtue. If bad people try to pass themselves off as good by joining the Church, this action indicates that most church members are esteemed as good people. There is a good deal of human nature in the Church, and there are rivalries and jealousies and self-seeking, it is perfectly true; but is there any place on this planet inhabited by man that is free from rivalries and jealousies and self-seeking? A happy home is supposed to be the nearest place to paradise, but there are rivalries and jealousies and self-seeking in homes. In the best homes these evil passions will enter, unless they are kept out by conscience and the power of God.

I do not believe in construing the doctrinal requirements with any rigidity. I don't believe there is a confirmation class that could pass an examination before a board of theological examiners upon the different clauses in the Creed—certainly not in the Nicene Creed, and I doubt whether they could in the Apostles' Creed. I am fond of quoting the invitation to the Communion, as the best invitation to Confirmation. "Ye who do truly repent you of your sins, and are in love and charity with your neighbors, and intend to lead a new life, draw near with faith." Draw near with the confidence that God who knows your difficulties, will stand by you and help you to a solution. Draw near in self-distrust, asking God to supply your need. That is the right spirit in which to come to the Confirmation, as well as to the Lord's Supper.

Transfers.—One other point, and this is especially for the enlisted man. It may be there will come into our services at this time some whose families belong to different churches, guests who are not apt to settle down in our midst. They may say to themselves, "I would like to enroll myself publicly among the followers of Jesus Christ at this time, but what is the use of my joining St. Stephen's when I do not expect to make my home in Philadelphia?" I reply, "Let us treat this matter of confirmation in a large way. All I am asking you is to dedicate yourself publicly to God and to the Christian life. Begin to live the Christian life if you have not lived it before. If after a while you wish to join another church I will give you a letter from St. Stephen's to the chosen church. These are no times for standing on technicalities. It may be you are going to France; you may be going on a battle ship. You have no time to go home and enroll yourself in your home church. Just as a man deposits his securities in a bank and gets them out afterwards, so I ask you to deposit your church membership with us, so to speak. You can get it out and deposit it elsewhere later on. Think what a comfort it will be to you to feel that you have dropped an anchor somewhere. That is what we need to make of our churches. They are anchoring places, roadsteads in which to take refuge from the storms, roadsteads where the anchorage is good and there is shelter from the storm."

Just as the Y. M. C. A. calls upon the attendants at its meetings to give themselves to God, and then turns them over to the churches to which they belong, so I will be glad to do with those who are confirmed at this time in St. Stephen's if they so desire.

The other day I married a most interesting couple. The bride had come on from South Carolina to marry a sailor. When I asked him where she would live, he replied that he thought he would settle her in Philadelphia, as that was the point to which he would most frequently return. I asked her to make St. Stephen's her church home and said we would be glad to do what we could to give her friendship and counsel. She felt drawn to me as the clergyman who was associated with them at this sacred moment, and assured me that she would be very glad to come to the church.

Christmas Baskets. Everyone will be delighted to learn from the report of the Committee on Christmas Baskets that we were able to send out one hundred and fifteen baskets which contained an average of ten dinners apiece. I cannot but think it is a good work to send out over a thousand Christmas dinners. Through the kindness of a generous friend the clergy have been able to make this an unusually happy Christmas to some of our poor members by special gifts.

On Thursday we had the usual Christmas festival of the Sunday School. In some schools the children gave the money usually spent for candy to sufferers in foreign lands, but we decided that, inasmuch as the Sunday School festival was given to the School by the congregation, we would not present this alternative of self-denial to our guests, but would provide the usual entertainment. The children are entitled to the bright joys of this season. There is enough privation that cannot be avoided in the homes of the poor. I am sure God means the young to be happy. Often in the midst of this tragedy on the French frontier we read that in the springtime the birds were twittering and merry-making and the lambs were frisking.

Christmas at the Club.—During the Christmas season the Club was kept open as usual. On Christmas Eve a tree was trimmed by the men, and on Christmas night there was an entertainment with special music and a fine attendance. The Club has been very much improved by the opening of the coat room, and the work has been further systematized by engaging a steward who comes on at 2 o'clock and remains till the Club is closed. At the meeting of the Executive Board it was decided that more directors for different nights be appointed, and we sincerely hope that the gentlemen who have been requested to join us will accept our invitation and give us the assistance of their counsel and their co-operation. This is too great a task for one church to shoulder. It is a municipal enterprise, and we ought to have assistance from outside the parish as well as from within.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

At the December meeting of the Auxiliary Miss Louisa Pharo made a short address on the "Isolated Church Women." Many women because of illness or duties are not able to attend the Diocesan meetings and Miss Pharo's plan is to send them some written report of each meeting, and booklets from all the fields of mission work so they may be kept in touch with the church activities. It requires much work and members were urged to pledge themselves to write a few letters each month. The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held January 17th.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR,
Secretary.

A Minute of the Vestry.

At a regular meeting of the Vestry of St. Stephen's Church, held January 7, 1918, on motion duly seconded it was:

Resolved, That the Rector, Church Wardens and Vestrymen of St. Stephen's Church accept the handsome and appropriate Chancel given to St. Stephen's Church by Miss Anna J. Magee as a memorial to her sister, Miss Fannie S. Magee, with a deep appreciation of her kindness and generosity, and further direct that this Resolution be spread upon the minutes of the Vestry, and a copy thereof sent to Miss Anna J. Magee, as a slight token of their profound gratification for this addition to the many substantial gifts by the members of her family to St. Stephen's Church.

Wool.

We have a quantity of unusually fine wool for sale at a very low price. Miss Ewing or Miss Davis will be pleased to receive any orders. Perhaps some of our members who do not care to knit, will be willing to purchase some of this wool and donate it to someone who will knit it into scarfs, etc. The girls of Burd School having already used several pounds of wool, and have appealed to Mr. Keable for more. Contributions of cash or of wool will be acceptable.

One of our former Vestrymen was taken away from us by the death of John Austin McDowell on December 9th. He entered the Vestry March 7, 1898 and was a member at the election of the present rector. The committee on which he served was the Burd School Committee, and he was always especially interested in that trust. When he decided to make a world tour that would take several years, he resigned from the vestry, since he felt that the office should be held by some one who could give his time and energy to the cause. He was fond of travel and of art.

On the death of his wife he presented to the Church, in her memory, the window showing the Angel of the Resurrection, seated on the empty tomb. It was copied from an altar picture that he had seen in Molde, Northern Norway.

His last years were marked by great debility. He had a long struggle against ill health.

His life was undoubtedly prolonged for years by the unremitting care of his physicians and friends, and by the loving ministrations of his only child, Miss Martha A. McDowell.

Shoe Fund.

Money received from those receiving shoes in December $6.25

Donations of boxes of shoes and overshoes from Santa Claus, the dear old man who never forgets his little friends at St. Stephen's Church, even if he has so much to do for the soldiers and the little orphans in the foreign countries. Thanks!

Gave out in December 14 pairs of shoes and about 10 pairs of overshoes, which were the delight of the children. It is really funny, how much they admire a shiny overshoe and very often they are afraid of wearing them home.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

The meetings for January have been changed at the request of the Rector, to January 8th and January 22nd, meeting in the Vestry Room at quarter to 8 o'clock.

The last two meetings the Circle was busy making surgical dressings of all kinds, about seven dozen in all for the soldiers for the British Relief. Also filled a box with all kinds of nice things given to the Red Cross for some lonely soldier who had no one to give him a Christmas present, also a "housewife."

On Thursday last two large boxes of groceries were brought by the different members and given to Miss Lewis to put in the church baskets, hoping that all would have a merry Christmas.

Parish Visitor's Report.

On account of the "high cost of living," we had many misgivings and fears that our basket supply this Christmas would have to be cut down and many who were anticipating a good Christmas dinner would be disappointed. But to our joy, this was not the case. St. Stephen's people always rise to the emergency, and our fears had been in vain. We had just as many baskets as usual, one hundred and fifteen. Many members of the congregation came and filled the baskets for distribution and the result was beautiful, but each year we think them better than the previous year.

Mr. Atmore sent us so many mince pies that after supplying the baskets, we had thirty pies for our Club of Soldiers and Sailors, and these enlisted men showed most keenly the appreciation that nearly all men feel for a pie. None were left.

Our Sunday School Festival was a very great success, too; the children were all happy, and the parents of those who took part were all proud, and it was a great entertainment and thrilled our hearts because it was so patriotic.

A friend sent money for each child to have a warm pair of mittens and a pound box of candy, while our friend of the Big Heart sent money to distribute among the needy. As he turns everything into beauty, so he exchanged this money into gold pieces, and we took it to those who, we thought, needed it the most.

One of these was a deaf mute suffering from varicose ulcers. We found her in a small room, back, on the third floor of a shabby house, trying to sew on a machine, which was certainly bad for her.

Another to whom we gave one, was partly paralyzed. Another was in consumption. Another was a nurse, who, in her days of usefulness, nursed a president of one of our big railroad lines, she also had some patients of Dr. Weir Mitchell, but now after a fall, she is only able to walk on crutches. She is living in a little dark room in a furnished room house, but she has such a bright sunny disposition, she really brightens the room and it is a pleasure to visit her.

To another we gave, who is slowly dying of cancer. And so we could name many other homes we visited, homes of poverty and deprivation, but all gladdened and made happy by the sympathy and generosity thus shown.

Mrs. Brunner's donation went where she wanted it to go—to make some hearts and homes happy at this beautiful Christmas-tide, for it is to buy the coal promised to some who are waiting for it, with scarce concealed joy at the prospect of getting warm once again.

K. H. Lewis,
Parish Visitor.

By a mistake of the printer the name of Captain Hanspe, the distinguished French officer who has sent us such interesting letters, was omitted at the end of his letter to Mr. William Rice Taylor, which we published in the December issue.

Members of the Congregation will be interested to know that First Lieutenant John E. Ewell has been assigned to the Aviation Section, Signal Officers Reserve Corps.

FROM A FRIEND AT THE FRONT.

Just a few lines before I have my supper and go off post and back to headquarters.

There is nothing new, except that the American Ambulance is soon to be taken over by the U. S. Army. As I understand it there will be no change in the aim or purpose of the organization, and we will still do our work with the French troops, loaned by our government to the French government, as it were.

Have fallen easily into the routine of things and feel as though I had been here for a year or more. It takes so short a time for one to get accustomed to any new mode of life.

It's raining this afternoon; I'm writing this in the front seat of my car with the curtains all down. Quite cosy, but, I must admit it, somewhat stuffy. The rain has its pleasant patter on the canvas shields, but there is ever in my ears a sound not quite so soothing. There must be a strong offensive of some sort taking place not far from me, because the big batteries have not been silent for any appreciable time since early this morning.

The early fall of Northern France is coming upon us; the days are still quite warm but they are getting so much shorter and the nights are really cold. Weather not at all unlike that of fall at Echo Lake.

This last twenty-four hour shift of mine has been very quiet; only one short run, last night. A poor poilu was brought down from the front, body burned about the back and head from the premature explosion of a star shell. Hoist by his own petard, so to say.

It must seem rather odd to hear a man continually preach the gospel of his own contentment, when he is within just a few kilometers of the firing line, but that's just what I am doing. I am absolutely happy and at peace in my mind. Recreation in its fullest sense.

I have grown so fond of the French people. A wonderful, wonderful nation; the heart of a child and the courage of a lion. It seems almost impossible that a country could have endured the misery of France for three years and still smile. The smile is a little forced sometimes, but still it's there and a marvellous reserve of stamina and courage behind it.

I see poilus bearing steaming caldrons of soup, so I guess the evening meal is about to be.

* * * *

Winter has come in deadly earnest, and the great struggle to keep warm is on. I'm so cold right now that my fingers almost refuse to guide the pen. A season of cold wet fog; it's horrid for driving, that fog. Such a distortion of everything. It's hard to tell whether a vehicle is coming toward you or going away from you. The huge horse munition wagons simply won't stay on their own side of the road. They clatter so, too, that the driver can't hear your horn. One yells and whistles, and finally gets by.

Among the eight new men who have recently come into the sector, are two boys from the vicinity of Chicago. Their father is of the clergy. They are splendid boys, and I like them.

It seems hardly possible that the sun could set so early as it does now. We very seldom see the sun; when we have a clear day, Sol seems to describe a pitiful timid little arc in the sky, and disappears about four-thirty. No warmth to it, either. The suffering from the cold in store for the men in the trenches hurts me. Cold is the one thing which saps every ounce of nerve from a man. Pain, hunger, thirst, heat can all be borne; marrow-gnawing, penetrating cold is suffering to the nth degree. If the good ladies at home could know the absolute comfort derived from wool socks and mufflers and sweaters, it would do their hearts good. So tell all the knitters you know that their efforts are more than appreciated. As I write I have about my neck and shoulders a muffler which I have just received.

I don't see what you can find in my letters to quote. To me they seem very futile. Coupled with my own inability to express my thoughts, are the restrictions of the censors. We are not supposed to tell anything about anything. As a matter of fact we know very little to tell. Our horizon is the sector we are working in, and for the rest we must rely upon the press—just as you do. If you have not done so already, it would pay you to subscribe to the "London Daily Mail." Its war news is splendid.

I often wonder if you at home realize the extent of the war. From my own experience I should say, no. Nothing is here but war. A man out of uniform is a rarity. This is true, not only of the war zone towns, but also of the other parts of France. France is dedicated, heart and soul, to the war. Her courage and fortitude in this great crisis of her history will go down through the ages as symbolic of all that is good and pure and steadfast.

The man has come in to set the table for lunch, so I must go. I'm sorry for such a poor letter. I expect I'm not in the proper mood for writing. My brain feels numb. Sometimes the magnitude of the war hits one, and it's so overpowering that everything else is crowded out. War, robbed of its glamour and heroism, is the dullest, deadliest, ugliest thing in the world.

Had quite an interesting run last week. I was stationed at the town in which is the headquarters of the medical staff of the division with which my section is working. I got up there about 5 in the afternoon and soon as I got there, was told to be on the job at 4.30 the next morning to take one of the medicine chiefs up to the front. Of course, I knew what was coming off; a bunch of the boys were going over the top. I was right on the dot at 4.30 (woke up about every fifteen minutes all night, because I had to wake myself) and found my doctor waiting for me, and another car from cantonment, another ambulance, I mean.

We started out, and that ride was one to remember. A beautifully brilliant moon, and in the lowlands a faint feathery mist, turned to silver in the moonlight. Old No. 322 was behaving like the lady she can be, and all I had to do was steer and enjoy the thrill of things. We got up to the front about 5.15 and proceeded to make ourselves comfortable in the poste secours (dressing station). By "we" I mean the driver of the other car and me. The men on duty in the poste made us welcome, as they always do, and heated tea for us on an alcohol lamp. Our abri was in the side of a hill. In front, a valley, then another range of hills, and at the foot of them the French batteries of big guns. Behind us, over the hill of our dug-out, were the opposing lines of trenches. We sat around for about 45 minutes smoking and trying to talk French.

At 6 o'clock, right on the second, hell let loose. Every French battery, for miles around it seemed, started pouring shells into the German lines, to cover the attack. I can't possibly give you a picture of the effect. By this time the dawn had come, and with it a heavy fog. The shells, of course, were going right over our heads. Bang! bang! bang! and a continuous whee-whee-whee. Gosh! how those birds did sing, and the wickedest sound you can imagine; a sort of whistling whine, feline, eager and full with death and destruction. There was one big portable right out in front of us, across the valley. That gun was without doubt of the feminine gender. Not a bang from that one; just a wicked, vicious spat! spat! spat! at regular intervals. There was venom in that gun, and it came out, too.

Terrific is a weak word to describe that noise. The French artillery is perfect, anyway, but they seemed to be outdoing themselves this day.

After a bit we got tired of staying "calmly and quietly at home," so we went out in front, and the racket was just about double. A boiler factory on a gigantic scale, a perfect orgy of sounds—a concert, opera, what not. Every size of sound; a lull in the batteries in front of us, and away back in the interior the boom-boom of some old giant of a piece. Then the crack, crack, crash, crash, crash of a little machine gun up on the hill; but always and always that deadly spat, spat, spat, right out in front. The motif of the piece, there.

Ordinarily it is easy to distinguish between the noise of a depart and an arrivé; not to-day, though; what few boche shells did drop in that valley in front of us came unannounced—their whine lost in the thunder of our own artillery. One hour and fifteen minutes of that, by the clock, and then, as if by signal—silence. Just absolute stillness. Honestly, after that hell of noise, the silence hurt.

Do you know I have often read that the birds keep on singing during a bombardment. They do; I heard them.

Right out in front of the abri where we were, and in the valley, one of the doctors on duty at the front has a little garden, the pride of his heart. A group of us were standing just outside the abri watching for the boche shell; the little doctor was with us. All at once an enemy shell did come—quite a big one, and right in the center of the garden! The little surgeon was wild. "Bon Dieu! Bon Dieu! mon salad! mon salad!" and I do believe, if some one hadn't restrained him, he'd have rushed right out there and started in to repair the damage. That was funny, and we all laughed.

We had a gas mask test the other day. That is, a tear gas mask test, to see if the chemicals were still on the job. Shut us all up in a room, a French lieutenant did, and told us not to put on our masks until we heard a revolver shot. Maybe we didn't listen careful like, because those pistol shells contained tear gas.

Bang! and I betcha my mask was on before the echo started. He fired a couple more and we stood around looking foolish and giggling. My nose started to itch and then I happened to think what in the world one would do if one had a cold in the head. That made me laugh so hard that I almost blew my mask off. Pretty soon we were allowed to go out, and some of the adventurous ones of us went back for a second, maskless. It was there, all right. The minute you went in you started to weep, and your eyes burned like fire.

I'm glad I'm not out to-night. Dark as pitch, and raining cats and dogs. My post was not far out to-day, so I got in before night. Its 9.30 now, and T———. has just come in from the front, looking like a drowned rat, and swearing like a trooper at the world in general, and rain and darkness in particular. It's getting cold enough now, to make starting a Ford no small job. The oil is heavy and clogs things up and by the time you've got your voiture to voit, you are pretty near ready to rest. When the weather gets really cold, you have to drain your radiator every time you stop for any length. Nice, to get a call about 4 in the morning, and go cherchez some oil, cold like ice, and spatter it on your feet!

There is a rumor that our division is going en repos; that is, going back out of the war zone, to rest up and fill the gaps made by deaths. Of course, our section will go with them and rest, too. That will give us a chance to get rid of some of the piled up permissions, and to swank up our cars. My boat is fairly shrieking for a coat of paint, but I'm afraid the old girl won't get it until we go en repos, because we can't afford just now to have even one car en panne.

Perfectly rotten day this. Cold and rainy and dark. I am in our dug-out, and writing by candle light. Absolutely cozy and comfortable, though, because—and I'll bet you can't guess why in a thousand years. We have at this post a most superior abri; we've something here that you have been missing in F———. for years—a fireplace. It's no end cozy, that fire. Got a good draft, too, and crackles and sputters in a way most cheerful. The trouble of splitting the wood to burn is small labor in comparison with the comfort gained. This is a two car post, and my fellow conductor is out cutting wood.

I came up here last night about 6 o'clock, and just as soon as I arrived had to turn right around and take a blessé back to the evacuation hospital in town. Dark as pitch and foggy and cold. I took a French corporal down with me, as aide; he had the ride of his young life. (Scared blue he was, and yet he'd probably go up in the front trenches and spend a few weeks without turning a hair.) I delivered my man all right and got back O. K. barring climbing a pile of stones in the dark, and then maybe that little old fire didn't look good to me. The other chap had come back from a run while I was gone, and had everything fixed for my return.

The black smudges on the paper are jam. I'm writing this on the dining table and it is rather sticky, always. Speaking of jam and sweet things, I hope I get some candy in that box I'm going to get by New Year's. Candy and chewing gum go large in France. Sometimes it isn't so much what we "hard driving gentlemen drivers" are doing, as it is what we are ready to do, and what we are sure to do, sooner or later. The other day a shrapnel shell spattered against a church wall, about a hundred yards in front of T———. and his load of wounded. He sure hit the high spots passing that church; scared blue, and the next night when he went on the same stretch, was kinder peeved and disappointed because nothing happened. That's the spirit of us, and of war—this war.

There is one thing you can do to earn the everlasting gratitude of Section 8, if it isn't too much trouble. We have a phonograph, which is the pride and joy and salvation of the section. It's hard (and dear) to get records, so if you can part with any of the old rag-time and such records at home, we would love them.

. . . I couldn't be content at home, so long as the war lasts, and since what I am doing is just what I want to do, I think we should all be perfectly happy. Of course, I'm homesick for you all; every man-jack of us is that. Still, one of the fellows put the whole thing in a few words: "I want to be home, but I don't want to go." After you've once been in the thing, you've got to see it through.

U. S. Army Base Hospital.

Camp————

It is hard to be lonesome and downcast even in a hospital where some of the boys are suffering the worst sort of misery, most of them are smiling today with their cots loaded with cherished gifts from home. Even the friendless and lonely have not suffered, for the good folk everywhere have sent all sorts of practical gifts to them. To-day there are smokes, eats and countless other goodies for everyone.

This afternoon the ladies of A—— assembled here with their cars and carriages piled high. Not a sick one was forgotten. My! how good they have been to the boys. Twice every week they come, not just laden with silly gifts, but real practical things. I have seen many staid "White Ribboners (W. C. T. U. members) open up their handbags and gingerly pull out a package of cigarettes and hand them to a sick boy dying for a smoke. I know, too, that many of the same ladies have entirely given up their own Christmas that they may give to others. It's beautiful. This war is an awful thing, but it is doing one thing; it is making real people out of Americans. The old arrogant selfishness is going; everybody is learning to find happiness in doing all he can for others.

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

This winter will certainly long be remembered as that trying winter of 1918. None of us can recall such a long stretch of unbroken cold weather. It began back in October, and has had few intermissions. Never has it been so hard to keep warm. Never has it been so difficult to get coal. Such times call for unusual fortitude and ability to stand suffering. Those are the qualities that win life's victories.

We need to meet conditions in the spirit of Kingsley's fine ode to the Northeast Wind. I wonder how many know it. It is one of the best and most spontaneous of Kingsley's verses. Let me quote a few lines:

Welcome, wild North-easter!
Shame it is to see.
Odes to every zephyr;
Ne'er a verse to thee.
Welcome, black North-easter!
O'er the German foam;
O'er the Danish moorlands,
From thy frozen home.

Tired we are of Summer,
Tired of gaudy glare,
Showers soft and steaming,
Hot and breathless air.
Tired of listless dreaming,
Through the lazy day;
Jovial wind of Winter,
Turn us out to play!

Through the black fir-forest
Thunder harsh and dry.
Shattering down the snow-flakes
Off the curdled sky.

Let the luscious South-wind
Breathe in lovers' sighs,
While the lazy gallants
Bask in ladies' eyes.
What does he but soften
Heart alike and pen.
'Tis the hard grey weather.
Breeds hard English men.
What's the soft South-wester?
'Tis the ladies' breeze,
Bringing home their true-loves
Out of all the seas.
But the black North-easter,
Through the snowstorm hurled.
Drives our English hearts of oak
Seaward round the world.
Come, as came our fathers,
Heralded by thee,
Conquering from the eastward.
Lords of land and sea.
Come, and strong within us
Stir the Vikings' blood;
Bracing brain and sinew;
Blow, thou wind of God.

That's the right spirit in which to meet biting weather and hard times. Let us take them as tonics. Above all, let us have faith. The love of God gives us assurance that he will not suffer us to be tried above that we are able, but will, with the trial, provide a way of escape, that we may be able to bear it.

Those who cling to the Rock of Ages find that strength comes as they need it. If we see the storms of possible bereavement and trial gathering in our skies, let us mount above the clouds into the upper regions, where the vault of heaven is unsullied by a cloud, where there is no lightning flash, no pelting rain. Let us remind ourselves that God is in Heaven, and though clouds and darkness are round about him, righteousness and judgment are the foundations of his throne. In this conviction let us not quail, nor blench, but keep a stout heart. Man's extremity is God's opportunity. When all our resources are exhausted then the unseen Helper comes to our aid. This has often happened in the past. Let us trust that this will be the experience of the future.

On the evening of last Sunday we discovered a number of people who would like to unite with St. Stephen's by confirmation. Five people are ready, so that we intend to begin at once to gather together another class. We hope to have another confirmation not long after Easter. We should be glad to learn of any names. The churches that grow are the churches where the ingathering is not left to the minister, but the members themselves seek to draw in new recruits, and ask their friends and associates to join them in this fellowship.

By the time that this little paper is in your hands, Lent will be close upon us. It ought to be the best Lent of our lives. Never had people so many inducements and motives and helps to self-discipline and devotion. Fasting is no longer a mere spiritual dumb-bell for developing strength, it is also a help to national economy. Prayer is often injured by egotistical and selfish absorption in one's own peculiar trials, but now that the boys are crossing the seas our thoughts must go with them and carry along our petitions and intercessions. Never was there greater need for energy of mind, body and spirit. Our list of Lenten speakers will show that we have been singularly fortunate. Bishop Williams has a message for the times and is a most prophetical speaker. Bishop Thurston made many friends when he preached for us last year. The Rev. Dr. Twombly has a national reputation as a reformer of social conditions. The Rev. E. J. Van Etten is rector of Calvary Church, Pittsburgh, one of the greatest churches in the whole country, where his predecessors were Dr. Vincent, late Bishop of Southern Ohio, the Rev. George Hodges, the present Dean of Cambridge Divinity School, and Dr. McIlvaine. Dr. G. Johnston Ross preached for us some years ago in a course of Lenten addresses that will long be remembered in St. Stephen's. Before he became a professor in Union Theological Seminary, he was the pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Bryn Mawr. I will deliver the noonday addresses myself in Holy Week, and a number of the clergy of the city will help us out on other days. Bishop Garland will open the series by the noonday address on Ash Wednesday, and Bishop Talbot will, according to the ancient and highly prized custom, speak for us on the first Thursday in Lent.

We are looking to the men of the church to help out in the ushering, in taking up the collections, and in handling the situation.

It will be of interest to the congregation to learn that Mr. J. Austin McDowell remembered St. Stephen's in his will and bequeathed $10,000 to the Church and $10,000 to the Burd School. Mr. McDowell was on the committee on the Burd School, when he belonged to the vestry. Inasmuch as the purchasing power of the income from our endowments has greatly diminished in consequence of the high cost of living, these kind bequests of Mr. McDowell are especially helpful.

Speaking of gifts, I must record another generous gift from Miss Anne J. Magee. She contracted with the Tiffany studios for two candelabra, so to speak, or light-holders on either side of the lecturn, and for rugs and kneeling cushions for the chancel. I hope that we can secure them about Easter. Certainly St. Stephen's is happy in possessing such a friend and benefactor as Miss Magee. She is resolved that this new chancel shall be complete in all its appointments.

A friend who desires to remain unknown has promised an electric lamp to be placed in the Sunday School building and light our chancel windows on Sunday nights.

This is a time for many appeals, and we must not grow weary in well-doing. Let me urge upon the congregation our duty to cooperate with the rest of the Church in a campaign to raise money and put more chaplains into the army. Let us try to do our part. It would be splendid if we could raise a thousand.

Sweet Briar College in Virginia has only 280 girls in all, yet the girls have given $7,000 to the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. work. Isn't that splendid! Our Club is a magnificent work, but we must also help the general cause of the Church.

No report on conditions in the parish would be complete that did not mention St. Stephen's Club. That is the greatest work of our Church this year. Never has it done a finer work than last month. Our total registration is now over 32,000. The numbers continue to increase and the work develops. Mrs. John K. Walker is getting up a reading room for the enlisted men. It will be on the platform in the Sunday School room. We continue to receive letters from mothers whose anxiety about their sons is relieved by our card.

The following incident occurred on the afternoon of January 21st: A marine from League Island came to the Club, bringing with him two ladies, one of whom he introduced as his mother. She was anxious, he explained, to see our Club, since she had received a card from us, informing her of her son's good health. It was very welcome in distant Ohio, and now that she was on a visit to him in the East, she was curious to see the Club that took such good care of the enlisted boys, and cheered the hearts of anxious mothers by those cards, bringing good news from a far country. The second lady, dressed in deep mourning, proved to be a resident of West Philadelphia, and was clearly the hostess. The sympathic hospitality of the Club drew from them the following story:

The only son of the Philadelphia lady, George G. Strattan, was a soldier in Fort Riley, Kansas, training camp. All seemed to be going well with him, and his last letter reported him in good health, when the mother received word of his death. He died on December 29th, after an operation for appendicitis. His body was shipped without escort, but Marine W. R. Kidd and others from the Navy Yard were asked to act as pall bearers by friends of the family. If the Government had been somewhat lacking in tokens of respect and honor, this comrade-in-arms rose fully to the requirements of the case. His sympathy, courtesy and thoughtful consideration deeply touched the bereaved widow. Learning that he was to be at League Island Navy Yard for a time, and that he had a mother in Ohio, she decided, without letting him know of her purpose, to invite his mother to come East and make her a visit. If she could not see her own boy, at the Christmas season, she would rejoice the heart of another mother by the sight of her son.

The Ohio mother accepted the invitation and came on to West Philadelphia. When the marine called in response to an urgent summons, the woman, to whom he had brought the body of her dead son, presented him as a living son to his own mother. The joy of all parties—of the united mother and son, and of the sorrowing and yet rejoicing friend who united them, may be better imagined than described.

They subsequently came down to the Club, which the Ohio woman was curious to visit. Against the dark cloud of war, such an incident as this stands out in its commingling of grief and joy like a rainbow in a stormy sky. That Philadelphia mother is a nature whose afflictions abound for the consolation of others. She belongs to the fellowship of the saints.

So wonderful was the exhibition of friendship and kind feeling at the wedding of my daughter that I cannot forbear to express our deep appreciation of it on the part of my family and myself. Heartily grateful am I for such a loyal and friendly congregation. When I recall how few people we knew when we arrived in Philadelphia, and then consider what a great company of friends gathered together in St. Stephen's Church to witness that marriage and to wish those young people happiness; when I realize what staunch and true friends they are and think of all the kindnesses that we have received here, I can say with the Psalmist that the lines have fallen to me in pleasant places, and I have obtained a goodly heritage.

The singing of the choir at the wedding made it an occasion that will long be remembered in the annals of the Parish. I believe that this was the first wedding of a daughter of a rector, and certainly the glorious choir, the great congregation and the new chancel made it a most notable occasion.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There were twenty-one members present at the January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary. The treasurer reported a balance of $81.45, and Miss Magee has collected a total of $225.50 for the United Offering.

Miss Helen Littell was the speaker and she made a strong plea for money towards new buildings for the church general hospital in Wuchang, China. The General Convention Board has authorized $130,000 for the purpose, but $36,000 more is needed.

Outside of the Treaty Ports and Missionary Hospitals there are only forty-five trained physicians in all China to minister to four hundred and eighty millions of people—one-third of the earth's population. Tuberculosis, leprosy and smallpox rage unchecked, and thirty-five thousand perish daily from filth—little being known of sanitation.

Dr. Mary James and Miss Dexter operated on nearly ten thousand patients in the hospital in Wuchang in nine months.

The Auxiliary voted $25.00 to Miss Littell. The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, February 21st, at 11 o'clock.

Notice of Box for Miss Conway.

Miss Bell is exceedingly anxious to have St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary help generously toward filling the annual box for Miss Conway, formerly from St. Stephen's Parish, who is at St. Timothy's Hospital, Cape Mount, Africa.

The following articles are asked for: Money for surgical instruments, small towels, wash cloths, soap, physicians' samples, gauze, surgeons' cotton, adhesive plaster, aprons (both gingham and white), picture books, dolls and toys.

Any of these, or money, may be sent to Mrs. Samuel H. Austin, President of the Missionary Box Committee, 3913 Chestnut street. Please mark the value on the package.

The Mission Study Class.

The Mission Study Class, with Mrs. Addinell Hewson, leader, will hold its weekly meetings during Lent, beginning with the organization meeting on Friday, February 15th, at 3 o'clock in the Parish House.

The study of missions has become a recognized branch of parish work, and this is an opportunity to devote some hours during the next few weeks to the study of the Gospel of the Kingdom, the text book prepared by the Bishop of the Diocese as an outline for missionary study of the Bible.

This class is open to any woman of the parish who cares to come.

St. Ambrose Mission.

It may interest those who so kindly helped the project in different ways to learn that the receipts of the Bazaar and Supper held at the Memorial Church of the Advocate in November, for the benefit of St. Ambrose Mission, were eight hundred and fifty-four dollars, a goodly sum considering the many demands made upon everyone in these times of stress, although it was hoped to realize one thousand dollars.

As has been stated heretofore, the Bazaar was the joint effort of the Woman's Aid of the Parishes in the Convocation of North Philadelphia, of which St. Stephen's is one. Any woman of the parish may become a member of the Woman's Aid on payment of fifty cents, annually, and full information will be given at the meeting of St. Stephen's Woman's Auxiliary.

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

The members of this Circle folded thirteen dozen sponges and three dozen surgical dressings. A housewife was filled and given to Mr. Swain Miller, one of the sailor boys of St. Stephen's Church. Several letters were read from different soldier boys, one particularly whom the Circle sent a Christmas box. He returned thanks and has written several letters since. He is from Scranton and belongs to the 13th Regiment, 109th Infantry, and shoes the horses, which he finds a difficult task.

a stranger, he has written such interesting letters, that we all enjoy them very much.

On January 22d the weather was so stormy that the meeting was postponed until February 6th and February 20th, in the Vestry Room, quarter to eight o'clock.

The librarian of the Church Periodical Club is obliged to take back a request made a few months ago, that the donors who were housekeepers should save waste paper to sell for postage. Owing to war conditions, the paper mills have closed down, and the small dealers who formerly bought newspapers at 40 to 60 cents a hundred pounds and heavier paper at higher rates, refuse now to take any at all, as they have no storage places. This embarrasses us in several ways, as our waste paper accumulates unmanageably and our mailing fund shrinks proportionately. But we are very grateful for what was received through this source before Christmas, and would be glad to give names and addresses to all who would like to help by mailing directly instead of sending magazines to the church.

The following letter has been received from the chaplain adopted by St. Stephen's:

The 16th U. S. Infantry,
American Ex. Forces, France

Dec. 18, 1917.

My dear Miss Smith:

Thank you very much for your kind and interesting letter. I received your bundle of Saturday Evening Posts and took them at once to our regimental hospital.

You would be surprised to know how much the men appreciate magazines of all kinds. For my part, I have no time to read, and when everybody else has turned in for the night I write my letters.

I have just been appointed Chairman of a committee to arrange a Christmas tree for the refugee children and other children and our own soldiers. I am having two trees, one in the afternoon at 3 P. M., and the other in the evening, but this reaches only a small part of my regiment, and the other battalions are in other villages. I wish you ladies at home—if the men are not doing it—would see that more chaplains are appointed, as it is utterly impossible for one chaplain to do the work thoroughly. . . . Whatever organizations there may be here to look after the soldiers, nobody comes in contact with them as we do. The men respond splendidly to my services. I have a class for baptism and, I hope, for confirmation.

I am also regimental postmaster and athletic officer, and I also write an account of events as they have happened since leaving the States; but am pleased to do the work as the time passes so quickly, and life out here would be awful if we did not have plenty to do. I shall be pleased to distribute the sweaters and anything else you good people care to send.

Give my kindest regards to the ladies of St.

Stephen's Auxiliary and tell them that our boys out here are deserving of all that they can do for them.

Yours faithfully,
F. C. Armstrong
Chaplain 16th U. S. Infant.

The Club Library.

We expect to open the library of the Men's Club within the next week. Everyone has been most kind and generous. All the furnishings have been either loaned or donated and quite a number of the current periodicals have been given. Although I have received a good many books, I want still more. Some of the special books which I want are sets of copies of Bret Harte, Robert Louis Stevenson, Poe, Kipling, Conan Doyle, Masefield, Robert Service, the various war books—and a dictionary. There has been quite a demand for the latter.

We propose to have the library a circulating one—not merely a comfortable reading room—and books may be taken out on deposit of a nominal sum, which will be refunded on return of the book. Thus, the splendid standard of "every thing free" at the Club will be maintained. The deposit will simply be a protection against unthinking carelessness. There will be a librarian in charge every afternoon from two until six.

FLORENCE S. WALKER.

Miss Ewing wishes to acknowledge the following amounts to be used for the Club:

Mrs. Oliver A. Judson	$10 00
Mrs. Joseph Grubb	5 00
	$15 00

THE following article was sent by Mr. Norris who visited the Club several times last November. In a letter to Mr. Keable he says: "I think it describes the feeling of any outsider who comes in contact in any way with the work of Old St. Stephen's."

F. B. K.

Getting Across at "Old St. Stephen's"

LOWELL AMES NORRIS, OF THE B. Y. M. C. UNION, BOSTON, MASS.

An enlisted man doesn't feet the least bit churchy at the "Old St. Stephen's Club" which the St. Stephen's P. E. Church maintains for men in the Army and Navy on Tenth Street above Market. It's impossible to be formal to congenial guests and that's what these boys are when the shyness wears off and they find themselves somewhere at home with their local newspaper in a regular place. Plenty to smoke! Plenty to eat! AND—there's always some genial men present willing and wanting to talk about things chaps were interested in when they were "civilians" before the war. There's women folks, too—the very same kind they were neighbors with back home. Even though the quarters are not so luxurient as some of the other clubs for soldiers and sailors, is it to be wondered at that most every kind of a fellow feels right at home?

Every man is requested to observe two bits of formality. One of these bits is causing thousands of mothers all over the United States to carry a warm feeling in their hearts for Philadelphia and for "Old St. Stephen's Club" in particular. Each guest signs and addresses a card which is mailed free to folks at home. On it is information telling the next of kin their boy is well and enjoying the hospitality of the city. A prayer is also added that he may return unscathed in body and unstained in soul. This card must be signed and each man must register. After that he's a guest as long as he remains in Philadelphia.

"We are absolutely non-sectarian," declares Rev. Frederick B. Keable, associate rector. "The uniform admits to full membership privileges. We are doing our best to make the boys feel that they are our guests and that it is a pleasure to entertain them. Too often they have been made to feel a bit of charity is being extended. This false impression must be eliminated or else this work will prove a great failure.

"While all games are suspended during the services at St. Stephen's Church on Sunday, they are resumed the instant church is over. We generally ask the boys if they won't come over to the services or if they don't care to go to a church of their own denomination. If the suggestion is not received with enthusiasm we never urge them. We are very careful not to bring too much religion—the church kind—into our work.

The atmosphere of a Club working on these lines can not be stimulated by cultivation. It must be sincere and spontaneous—otherwise it would never get across to the fellows who are constant visitors.

"Old St. Stephen's Club" is divided into three parts—the writing and reading room—a small cosy compartment with a piano which sees more or less active service—the desk for registration and where minor luxuries are given out. Afternoon teas are held here. Behind this room is a "Canteen" or "Post Exchange" from which a light lunch may be secured. This might also be called the Game Room for there are pool and billiard tables in addition to other games.

Upstairs a movie show is given every evening. Sometimes there is other entertainment. The pictures are not of the "Vamp" variety or of the "Desperate Desmond" type. Neither are they the willy willy stuff. They're just the kind which gets under the skin and makes a man in the service think especially when he reads stories of German atrocities there's a mother and a girl back home you're fighting for—some of the pictures visualize just the way you know they all are back there. You come out of St. Stephen's with a thought you may have never had before. It's the same thought which has made red-blooded men leave their comfortable homes and profitable business to endure the mud of the western theatre of war.

You didn't enlist because you wanted excitement or adventure. It wasn't because you wanted to see the world, and this was perhaps the first chance you had gotten. You know the real reason why you signed up now.

You wanted to save your folks from the fate of Belgium. You wanted them to live as happily as the reel folks do in the movies and in the story books.

These folks who are entertaining you, are Americans, the kind which make up the United States. You're going to remember them and make them proud of you especially the girl you kissed good-bye when it comes your turn to go over the top, or chase submarines, or do any gol darned thing Uncle Sam'l. asks you to. The sport of the thing is forgotten in the responsibility acquired in knowing the big thing you are doing. One experiences an emotion akin to pity for the man not in uniform. St. Stephen's has made you realize the true reason we are at war. It is the real reason and the vital thing worth living and dying for.

While I was there some of the boys were clustered around the piano singing rag. Others were reading. Quite a few were writing letters. A lot just sat around talking and laughing as I know they used to do back home.

The singing stopped. The room became silent. Presently a dear old lady wearing a service button—the kind any fellow would naturally call mother sat down upon the stool and began to sing some of the songs which have always been sung and which will never grow old. She sang alone for a few minutes, her quavering voice growing stronger as she sang the familiar words. It was just the way my own mother sings at home and I thought of Boston several hundred miles away. The boys in the game room forgot their bashfulness and began to hum—some whistled quietly under their breaths. I knew they were thinking the same as I. Before very long every fellow on the lower floor was gathered around the piano singing. It's a way they have at "Old St. Stephen's." War seemed far away and improbable. Until one glanced around and saw the uniforms and remembered the latest newspaper scarehead it was hard to believe it was not a congenial crowd of young people enjoying themselves as only young people can.

In the afternoons, the ladies of the church add the essential feminine touch. Luncheons and teas are served. Kind of feeds which take you back to early remembrances of kid days before you had been introduced to Mr. High Cost of Living, and you went to church suppers where your neighbors served. Do you remember how Mrs. Jones urged and urged you to eat and eat and how joyfully you obeyed. Will you ever forget how the coffee tasted—forbidden at home and how many cups you drank. You get the sensation all over again at "Old St. Stephen's"

Only Philadelphians are allowed the privilege of contributing to the running expenses of the Club heavy as they are. Outsiders can contribute one thing which every boy from another city wants—the next thing to getting home—and that is the local paper.

"Back in Boston," I told them, "Where Scrapple is replaced by Boston Baked Beans we are organizing the same kind of clubs for soldiers and sailors and we are planning to do very much the same kind of work. How can it help getting across if we inject some of the real home spirit which everybody connected with the 'Old St. Stephen's Club' seems brimming over with?"

"One of the things we will always remember and thank Philadelphia for," said a Catholic priest recently speaking before a crowd of blue jackets on the deck of a departing battleship, "is the 'Old St. Stephen's Club' which St. Stephen's Church is running for the benefit of the men in the United States service."

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

I feel like beginning my pastoral letter with the opening lines of Horace's "Ode to Spring," Solvitur acris hiems. But no one quotes Latin nowadays. Let the lovers of classical scholarship say what they will, the new training is crowding out the tongues of Greece and Rome. H. G. Wells is, however, wrong when he depicts the Old Bishop in his story, "The Soul of a Bishop," as spending his time looking up Greek tags. Phrases and sayings in these ancient tongues linger in the mind and become part of the mental furniture of the student and really impede his utterance. Often he finds it difficult to express himself without their aid. This was exemplified by a famous Presbyterian clergyman, Dr. Cox, the father of Bishop A. C. Coxe, of Western New York. On one occasion in a public prayer he addressed our Lord as the sine qua non of all religion, the ne-plus ultra of our hopes and the ultima Thule of our desires. No man of any literary culture would express himself in such a hybrid speech willingly. The trouble with Dr. Cox was that these Latin words choked up the channels of his mind and prevented him from finding more suitable media of thought.

These scholars often quoted because they knew no other language. Doubtless it was often done, as an embellishment or ornament. This was the reason for its employment in public orations. It was a fashionable stunt. There is good reason to doubt whether these resounding quotations from the classics which used to be highly esteemed in the British Parliament were generally understood even in that house. I base this remark on a story in the life of Sheridan. That great wit and orator had no Greek learning, but he had a quick ear for the music of speech, and in one of his speeches poured out a flood of resounding phrases, which he ascribed to Demosthenes. Edmund Burke came up afterwards and congratulated him on his fine Greek quotation. No one in the house detected the hoax. Whatever purposes the classics may serve they are no longer available for quotation; so that without the assistance of the overtones of delicate suggestion that go with the lines of Horace, to those who have studied this favorite author of all classical students, this witty, kindly and sensible critic of life and literature, I congratulate you that the earth is now wheeling rapidly towards the equinoctial and winter will soon be a thing of the past.

In our parish all things are going pleasantly. The attendance on the club continues to increase and our total registration is over 36,000. The library and reading room has been proven to serve a useful purpose. Keith's people still entertain our guests on Wednesdays, and the various sub-committees do their work faithfully. Bishop Williams gave us splendid addresses for his week, and Bishop Thurston is continuing the good work. Next week we shall have Dr. Twombly, of Lancaster. The attendance at the Sunday morning, and also at the Sunday night service has increased.

The contributions for Diocesan missions have not yet reached the amount asked for—$900. We have on hand only $703.38.

It is hoped that those who have not contributed will send in their gifts. We must not fall short in raising this amount. It is a poor-spirited thing to economize first of all in one's giving; let economy begin elsewhere, in luxuries, in pleasures, even in comforts, before we withdraw our support from our Diocesan workers in hard places.

The contract has been awarded for the erection of an electric light in the Sunday School building, which will light up the chancel windows on Sunday night. The giver of this fine addition to the beauty of our chancel wishes to remain unknown. By Easter I hope that it will be in place, and that the new rugs and other ornaments and improvements of the chancel will be complete. The more I use it the better I like it and I dare say that the congregation feels the same way about it.

On Thursday at 3 o'clock I teach a mission study class of ladies. In spite of the numerous demands of the season about fifteen have joined. "Yet there is room," but I cannot go out and compel others to come in.

I had made up my mind to accept no further responsibilities outside of the Parish for this year at any rate, but on Monday, February 18th, advantage was taken of my absence from the annual meeting of the Inter-Church Federation, and I was elected its President. I had been working with the Federation in a campaign for scrutinizing the treatment of street-walkers and people of that class by the police and the Municipal Court, and this election came as a result of my co-operation. If I had been present, I should have declined; but I did not feel that I would be justified in declining the office after the annual meeting had adjourned. At this time the Federation has a great part to play in solidifying and directing the activities of the Protestant churches in behalf of the best conduct of the war, in the control of vice, in working for prohibition, in the censoring of moving pictures, and in behalf of many forms of social betterment. Fortunately many of our own problems are less troublesome than they were in former years. The Burd School is in good condition and we have settled on our policy with regard to the farm. If we could adopt a budget, and bring our income up to its requirements, so that the deficit could be stopped just where it now is, and not allowed to increase, I should feel happier about the Parish. We are doing a great work, but we must not get into the dangerous habit of letting our expenditures exceed our income.

It is good that in these years of serving and worshiping together I have grown to know the congregation fairly well, for I have had no opportunity for any parochial visiting, except in cases of sickness or bereavement, or upon some of my older members, who are, in my judgment, entitled to special consideration in view of their age or services to the church. Yet I want you to realize that Mr. Keable and I are always at your service. We have no time for complimentary visits, but we stand ready to take our place beside you, if we can be of any real service. You do us a real kindness when you call upon us at such times. I esteem it a great privilege that I was able to be with the Wallace family in their great bereavement. I am sure that the whole congregation sorrowed with them in the loss of that promising son and nephew. The only consolation at such a time is the belief that there is a life and a reunion beyond. To quote the president of a great university: "When a man has run the appointed course and reached a ripe old age, where the long strain begins to tell, it is possible to connect him with the idea of rest; it is possible to conceive of his lying down 'like one who wraps the draperies of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams.' But when a person in the full vigor of life passes on, it brings a curious sense of reality to the hereafter. It is impossible to conceive of the ceasing of all this mental and spiritual vitality, activity and interest. We think of them as going forward into a Higher School, where "The Master of all good workmen shall set us to work anew." So we think of young Richard Wallace, an honor boy at school, a loving boy at home; he has been carried to a higher school and reached the Final Home. May God at last unite them there.

I will be very much obliged if any one who wishes any special hymns sung will kindly let me know. We are solicitous that the hymns should be of a popular and familiar character in Lent.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There were twenty members present at the last meeting of the Auxiliary held the 21st of February. The Treasurer reported a balance of $85.72 and Miss Magee reported a collection of $96.00 for the United Offering, making a total of $321.50. Miss Austin has received $5.00 and books valued at $3.00 for Miss Conway's box. The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, March 21st, at 11 o'clock.

BEULAH S. HOLLAR,
Secretary.

What the G. F. S. is Doing.

The Girls' Friendly Society has never had a better winter, and it is because the girls are all finding such joy in serving and working for others. Owing to the continued use of the Sunday School building for the Old St. Stephen's Club, it was necessary to give up the annual play for raising money for missions. This year every girl was given a dime and told to make it "grow." The G. F. S. was divided into two teams, each had a captain and a lieutenant. Last Monday night the girls made their returns, and it was a most successful evening due to the efforts of four of the seniors.

The returns were flashed on a screen, and the girls were called upon to tell how they earned this money. One girl who had taken a new position charged herself with each error she made in her work; another girl gave the bonus she received on her salary; one washed her husband's soft collars; some made candy, and the efforts of the girls brought in the splendid sum of $143.96.

Two weeks ago Elsie Whitnell Rose gave a most interesting talk on the work being done by the surgeons in France, and told interesting stories of the little French children.

Next Monday evening Mrs. Fullerton Waldo will show lantern slides and tell about the work women are doing in France.

Knitting has been very popular with all the bands, and when the winter work is closed there will be a splendid showing.

Frederick B. Keable, Treasurer.

Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

It is a cardinal maxim of public speaking that a man may begin in a moderate tone, because it is assumed that attention is at the maximum at the opening of a speech. A speaker must have disappointed his audience very frequently if they are not interested to know what he is going to talk about. Acting on this principle that the maximum of attention is possessed at the beginning, I am going to give out at once some important notices.

The first is that our Annual Parish Meeting will be held in the room above the vestry on the second Wednesday of May, the 8th, at 8 o'clock. At that time the renters of pews and sittings who alone possess the franchise according to our unamended constitution, will be called on to elect the vestry for the ensuing year. In order to facilitate the election, names are suggested by a committee of the vestry, but any voter is at liberty to nominate any qualified person.

Secondly, let it be remembered that at this parish meeting, according to our custom, all the societies and agencies of the Church make their annual report. These reports should be brief, and tell the story of the various societies' doings in the large. I hope that the members will come with the intention of spending the whole evening. At the close there will be a reception.

Among the reports I want to include, although it is not exclusively a parochial work, a brief statement of the operations of Old St. Stephen's Club. It is a matter of great thankfulness that we have had the privilege of inaugurating this Club, and of providing the building and a large number of the workers. A chaplain writing from France, said that he met many boys who spoke to him of St. Stephen's Club, and of their desire to return to it, and of how much it had meant to them. He sent us a most significant message to the effect that we had a unique opportunity in our Club; that it was difficult to reach the men in the turmoil of the army, and that the most favorable time was in the hour of waiting and preparation. It is good to know that the Club means much to the boys. I am sure that it has meant much to the Church, and that there is a new spirit of fellowship, consecration and service among the men and women of St. Stephen's because of their association with these enlisted men. These young men are going to risk their lives for the sake of their country and for the good of mankind.

Our PARISH NEWS travels to many an old friend of St. Stephen's outside of the city, and I think it important for the sake of our records, as these numbers are bound up in a volume and kept for future reference, to record that on Easter Sunday I announced to the congregation that our generous friend, Miss Anna J. Magee, sent for me to come to her house two weeks before, and requested me to write to the Tiffany Studios on her behalf for plans and suggestions with regard to the further improvement of the church. Miss Magee feels that the church should be decorated in harmony with the beautiful chancel. She also most generously determined at the same time to alter the galleries and to re-light the whole church. She has now definitely engaged the Tiffany Studios for this purpose. The plans are to be worked out in detail and approved later on. I am not at liberty to speak more specifically about Miss Magee's plans, but when she has finished, the whole church will be decorated in a way that will enhance the beauty of the chancel and make it one of the most exquisite interiors in the country.

These are times when artists suffer, and it is good that this work should be given to this needy class. It is the tradition of the Magee family to devise generous things for St. Stephen's, but they have usually been given as memorials by survivors. Miss Anna has chosen a more excellent way; she is making her gifts during her lifetime, and it is a great source of satisfaction to me that she should sit in front of this beautiful chancel Sunday after Sunday, and feel its loveliness and the deep joy that must belong to its giver. I am glad that she can look forward to the pleasure of seeing the whole church in harmony with that exquisite color scheme, and properly lighted and adorned. I shall not lessen the delightful curiosity of the congregation by revealing any of the details of Mr. Tiffany's beautiful designs. It is enough to know that he is emulous to make it one of his supreme artistic achievements. Enough is said when I declare that it will be in harmony with the reredos and chancel.

I am going to make a confession, and I suppose, endure a salutary humiliation. A friend gave me a brand new notebook with detachable leaves, which was the pride of my heart, and in it I entered the names of a number of people in my evening congregation who were anxious to join my confirmation class. That notebook has disappeared. Some of those names, of course, I know, but some of the candidates were strangers to me, and they must have wondered that they heard no further word from me. I have been perplexed as to how I could reach them. I know no other way than by publicly stating my misfortune or confessing my fault, and letting them know that I will be very glad if they will once again give me their names. I am anxious to have this confirmation before the summer holiday.

The mention of summer reminds me that we shall probably be obliged to close the church for three months this coming summer. I hope we can have service either in the room above the vestry, or better still, in the Sunday School room. Perhaps we will be able to secure more of the soldiers and sailors in that way. There will be some advantage in that. The contract with Mr. Tiffany requires completion by October first.

The repairs and improvements on the church have been a tremendous drain on us during my entire rectorship. When I came here, holes in the windows were puttied up; there was a canvas cover on the roof; the decorations within were growing moldy; the vestibule was shabby and dingy. In the last twelve years there is not a surface within or without that has not been gone over. The church has been rewired, the windows have been re-glazed, the interior has been re-decorated, about ten beautiful memorials have been gathered. The pews have been re-carpeted and re-cushioned, and now Miss Magee comes forward and re-decorates and embellishes our whole interior. The church will be put in such a shape that the bills for repairs will be reduced to a minimum for several decades, and the burden on the shoulders of our successors greatly lightened. But I shall not anticipate the Parish Meeting. I can only say I am very thankful that the financial drain on the congregation will be lessened.

It is, however, a matter of concern to me that the income from our endowments, pewrents and envelopes all combined has not recently been meeting our expenses. I think we ought to look the situation in the face. Everything is going so well, it would be a pity to shorten sail. We have never had such a good choir in all my connection with the church as we have today. As the singers work together, their voices will more and more melt and flow and intertwine, and gain in beauty. We have in Mr. Keable an associate who is in the prime of his strength, able to give the energies of a man in the vigor of his days to the tasks of the church—not a neophyte, or an invalid, but a man who is throwing his full strength upon the oar. We have had some new members come in to us, and I hope they will exhibit the missionary zeal of which they themselves are the products. A church grows chiefly by the missionary activities of its members.. A fine choir can bring musical auditors, effective preaching can draw listeners, but church members are won in the main by the cordial invitations, friendliness and missionary zeal of the members of the congregation. I know quite a group in St. Stephen's whose presence among us can be ascribed to the activities of a few members. Something is the matter with a church member who never tries to bring in anybody else. It is the nature of leaven that it seeks to permeate the whole lump, and it is the nature of Christianity that it should endeavor to spread itself and enlist others in the cause.

No one can be really said to be participating fully in the life of St. Stephen's who does not take the envelopes. The list of the envelope users is the list of people who can be depended on to respond to appeals, and to take an interest in the welfare of the church. I hope that every communicant can be found on this list, and I should be glad if every attendant on the church would show his sympathy with the cause by accepting a package of envelopes. It will be a great pity if a church that has had so much done for it by the generous past, and by one liberal member today, should not be stimulated by these gifts so that every member will do his utmost to help on the good work.

The Sunday evening services have been well attended, especially for a second service in an Episcopal church. In that aspect they may be regarded as remarkable. In spite of the fact that we have had no extraordinary musical attractions, the second service has shown a marked improvement upon the average of former years. Night is the natural time for the second service. There is a solemnity about the evening hour that is favorable to the reception of religious truths. Thoughts taken into the heart at that time are not so likely to be dissipated by the distractions of life. The beneficent habit of prayer at night continues with many men who seem to have abandoned all allegiance to Christian institutions. The truth of the sermon is apt to come home at such a time.

The work of the Inter-Church Federation is going to make very heavy demands upon me this spring, but I want the congregation to consider it as a form of war service. They were willing to have me go as chaplain along with a hospital unit, if the government would accept me, but I was authoritatively informed that a man of my age would not be accepted. Here is an opportunity for doing a large work in behalf of the enlisted men. The ministers of Philadelphia did not wait for Mr. Fosdick to disclose conditions in our city by a special federal investigation. The Inter-Church Federation has been keeping watch on the courts for six months. I myself have served on a committee attending the municipal court and making reports. Some of the judges seem to be animated with zeal for the protection of society, but others exhibit a weak lenity, and a maudlin sympathy with the dangerous women who prey upon the young.

No one can look at the streets of our city without realizing that Philadelphia is not a well governed town. But there is not only filth in the streets, there is also corruption and vice on every side in certain sections for the destruction of the young, and the guardians of the public welfare are not above reproach. The Inter-Church Federation is charged with the duty of rousing the members of the churches to the responsibilities of Christian citizenship. It has been appealed to for assistance in providing suitably placed and distributed houses of worship for the men at Hog Island. We are also the channel through which the churches express their unanimous approval of prohibition, and do all they can to bring about the election of a legislature that will ratify the amendment to the National Constitution.

The machinery of the Federation is sadly in need of repairs and oiling; I might say of a new engine and driving wheel and of a new boiler, so badly is it out of condition. But through the great meetings in behalf of the National Committee on the Churches and Moral Aims of the War, our local Federation has been brought into high relief, and this is an opportune moment for developing it. It will, however, take time, thought, energy and the coöperation of many people. Yet when we consider the goal—the development of the Kingdom of God on earth through the coöperation of the various churches in those moral aims in which they are all one—I believe that the people of St. Stephen's will be willing to allow their rector some release from the usual routine obligations of a clergyman. Let this be as one of their contributions as a congregation to the common cause at this crisis. Let me act as their agent in the way in which I can be most useful to the community. That is all I ask.

In another part of THE PARISH NEWS will be found an account of the death of Joseph F. Covert, the first of our soldiers to die in France. May God sustain and comfort his family.

I should not close this letter without saying a word of sympathy to those who have been recently bereaved. In the death of Miss Rebecca A. Lowenberg we lost a faithful member. At one time she sang alto in our choir. She was a great admirer of Dr. Wood, and loved the house of the Lord. She overexerted herself by attending the service on Palm Sunday, and went home to die. Such a death is surely a translation; she passed from the courts of the Lord's House here into the Inner Court beyond the veil.

In the death of Mrs. George L. Crawford we lost one of our most faithful members, for many years the secretary of the Benevolent Society, and an efficient worker. Her husband was one of the vestry when I came to St. Stephen's, and was especially dear to me as one of the first members of the church who held out to me the hand of personal friendship. There is always an anxious moment in the minister's life in entering a new rectorship, an anxiety that is shared by the committee that has nominated him to the vestry. They are all wondering whether the congregation and the rector will suit one another. Many people cannot make up their minds how the wind is blowing until they have gone out and looked at certain vanes. Mr. Crawford was not of their number, I remember how he heartened me by his words of cheer and appreciation from the first, and I always feel particularly near to his family. But Mrs. Crawford was bound to church not merely by her husband's position. She was one of the Board of Managers of the Benevolent Society, and in former years gave much to its activities. Her health has been showing signs of failing, yet none of the congregation suspected that she was suffering from a dangerous illness. It was not known to me. I think it was a general shock when she was taken from us. She has left a record of Christian service, of great staunchness, and of faithful discharge of the high responsibilities of a wife and mother. One of her sons, Allan, is a captain in the army, and one of the stars in our service-flag will be in his honor. Her daughter, Frances, is a faithful worker in our Altar Society and a most excellent helper in the Old St. Stephen's Club. May God comfort and sustain them all. Her three sons and her three daughters rise up and call her blessed. Would that we could send some message of sympathy to her daughter, Mrs. William L. Neilson, who is now with her children in England, while her husband is in India. They are indeed sundered far, but by faith and love they can feel themselves one at such a time.

A loss of peculiar poignancy was the death of Mr. James Armstrong, who has left a wife and one daughter, Grace, for many years one of the honor pupils of our Sunday School. and a son. May God sustain and console them.

So long Thy power has blest me, sure it still Will lead me on,
O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent till
The night is gone.
And with the morn those angel faces smile
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Sale.

There will be a sale of articles by the Benevolent Society on Wednesdays, April 17th, 24th and May 1st, from 10 to 12 A. M., in the Parish House. The congregation are requested to avail themselves of this opportunity to aid the work of this Society.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on the 21st. We had no special address but the hour was taken up by interesting reports by our own delegates. The treasurer reported a balance of $48.74.

The next meeting will be held in the Parish House, April 18th, at 11 o'clock.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR,
Secretary.

The United Offering.

The Fourteenth Annual Service of the Woman's Auxiliary, with the presentation of the United Offering, will be held on St. Mark's Day, Thursday, April 25th, at 10.30 A. M., in the Memorial Church of St. Paul, Fifteenth and Porter streets.

We are constantly reminding the women of the diocese that this is our annual service of Thanksgiving, and that it is not "just for the parish treasurers of the United Offering," or the active members of the Auxiliary, but is the privilege of all who can possibly attend; and we have found that usually to go to this service once is to go again! Will the clergy please remember that they are always most welcome?

This month we stand midway in the triennium of 1916-1919. Of at least 35,000 women communicants in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, only 6,000 had a share in the offering presented at St. Louis. It seems a far reach to "the Ideal," but, some day there will come the vision of the opportunities and possibilities of our United Thank Offering—what it may mean in the individual life, and that it is the most wonderful channel we have for fellowship in missionary praying and giving and thanksgiving. The Indian women seem to have discovered this—even if all unconsciously—for every baptized woman in South Dakota is a contributor to the United Offering! Here in our own diocese we have one realization of the ideal—at St. James', Prospect Park, where every woman communicant—senior and junior (about fifty), has a share in the offering. There will be other parishes on the Honor Roll before we come to Detroit in 1919!

MARY C. S. NORTH,
Diocesan Treasurer (U. O.)

Miss Anna J. Magee, the Parish Treasurer for the Women's United Offering, would be very glad to receive the offering of any women in St. Stephen's. Our contributions for the support of the noble women doing the church's work at home and abroad are needed today as they were never needed before.

ROBERT E. SPEER ON THE CALL OF THE HOUR FOR MISSIONARY ENLARGEMENT.

Extracts from an Address at Northfield, 1917.

"The first American missionaries went out to the foreign field during the war of 1812. The great British missionary organization grew up in days that were darker for Europe even than these days, for in those days the foe of Europe was not hemmed in on his own soil in the center of the continent; but he was roaming abroad over all the nations of Europe, east and west. Even during our own Civil War, when our nation was passing through as trying hours as it ever knew, the American churches did not feel obliged to draw back from the missionary undertaking. The foreign-missionary activities of all the churches of the Southern States were begun in those dark hours. As Doctor Houston used to love to point out, it was when the Southern Presbyterian Church was girt around as with a wall of fire, and did not have it in her power to send a single one of her sons out to the field, when for the first time she unfurled her banner to the air, that she inscribed upon it the declaration of her faith in the headship of our Lord and her obedience to the last great commission, which she understood to be the primary and ultimate reason for the existence of the Christian Church. If in the dark days of the past, our fathers, and their fathers before them, did not flinch, what would they say of us, their children, if in this vastly easier day, in the midst of our immensely richer affluence, we showed cowardice that in their harder situation they had never shown.

"All the principles underlying the missionary undertaking are precisely what they have ever been. The facts on which missionary obligations rest are today just what they were before the year began. The year has not affected in the slightest degree any principle or any fact underlying the foreign-missionary undertaking. What consideration can it have introduced, therefore, that would justify us in curtailing or abridging that undertaking? The great commission was not given on the supposition that it would not cost anybody anything to carry it out. All the conditions we face today are as nothing in comparison with those faced, when Jesus Christ first laid on them in clear terms the obligation to evangelize the world. No; there is absolutely nothing that you and I could allege to our own moral judgment, much less to our Lord Jesus Christ, as a valid reason why now, because there is a great war going on, we should abridge our contributions as a Christian Church to the work of making Christ known to the non-Christian world."

King's Daughters Whatsoever Circle.

February and March this Circle in four short evenings folded sixty dozen surgical dressings.

Also made for the Red Cross some property bags for the soldiers in the hospitals.

Gave a donation to the Army and Navy League of $3.00 for wool.

To the woman's Auxiliary a box with soap and wash rags for Miss Conway in Africa.

Owing to meeting in the Vestry Room this winter, we were sorry not to help the Aid Society with their Lenten sewing as in other years, but we could not use the sewing machines. We hope to do better another year.

Their next meeting will be in the Vestry Room, April 2nd, and Wednesday, April 17th, in Guild Room, quarter of 8 o'clock, with the Rector's approval, as it suits the members better on that evening.

Shoe Fund.

Gave out in February and March thirty pairs of shoes and ten pairs of overshoes. Received from those receiving shoes, $3.80. This money goes towards buying a pair for some other little girl or boy and the children are quite proud to have their names put down and to help a little.

On March 27th an official message was received, stating that on March 22nd Joseph Francis Covert died in a Naval Base Hospital, "Somewhere in France," and that he had been buried with the rites of the Church.

Joseph F. Covert was born in Selims Grove, Pa., on June 6, 1890. He was a member, and for seven years organist, of All Saints Episcopal Church of that town. Five years ago he came to live in Philadelphia and became a regular worshipper in St. Stephen's. In May, 1917, he volunteered in the Episcopal Hospital Unit, and after serving for some months at Allentown, Pa., and Camp Mills, L. I., he was sent to France and stationed in a Naval Base Hospital.

Only a few hours before the arrival of the cablegram announcing his death, a letter was received from him stating that he had been on field duty, and had just come in from a fifteen hour watch. It is not within the power of any man to make a true record of a man's life. God alone can give a just judgment. But I would bear witness to the singularly loving and gentle character of my young friend. There was something about his kindly smile and earnest hand-clasp that left me with the conviction that he thought more of "being" an upright man than of "seeming" to be one.

"I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead.
He is just away!
With a cheery smile
And a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there,
And you—oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There, as the love of Here.
Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead—he is just away.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

In Memoriam.

At a special meeting of the Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church, held on Wednesday, March 27th, the managers gathered to express their sorrow over the death of a former member, Mrs. George L. Crawford.

They spoke of her long term of service as Secretary, her unfailing attendance and the accuracy of her minutes.

Her attention to every business detail and the alacrity with which she met every request of the Society. Her record as an official was perfect.

As a member of the Cutting Committee she equally efficient. Year after year she was to be found at her table in the Parish House cutting garments with unusual skill.

For the last year or two, ill health and domestic changes had caused her absence. We thought of this absence as only temporary and always supposed that some time she would resume her place among us, but she has passed from us.

We, the managers and members of the benevolent Society, desire to express to her children and family our sense of loss and our sympathy with them in their great bereavment.

For Those At the Front.

Lord God of Hosts, whose mighty hand
Dominion holds on sea and land,
In Peace and War Thy Will we see
Shaping the larger liberty.
Nations may rise and nations fall,
Thy Changeless Purpose rules them all.

When death flies swift on wave or field,
Be Thou a sure defence and shield,
Console and succor those who fall,
And help and hearten each and all.
O, hear a people's prayers for those
Who fearless face their country's foes!

For those who weak and broken lie,
In weariness and agony—
Great Healer, to their beds of pain
Come touch and make them whole again!
O, hear a people's prayers, and bless
Thy servants in their hour of stress!

For those to whom the call shall come
We pray Thy tender welcome home,
The toil, the bitterness, all past,
We trust them to Thy Love at last.
O, hear a people's prayers for all
Who, nobly striving, nobly fall!

For those who minister and heal,
And spend themselves, their skill, their zeal—
Renew their hearts with Christ-like faith,
And guard them from disease and death.
And in Thine own good time, Lord, send Thy Peace on earth till Time shall end!
—John Oxenham.

My Country 'Tis of Thee.

(A new version.)

My Country! 't is of thee,
Sweet land of Liberty
Of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died;
Land of the pilgrims pride;
From ev'ry mountain side,
Let freedom ring.

Our fathers' God to thee,
Author of Liberty!
To thee we sing;
Long may our Land be bright
With freedom's holy light,
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King!

God save our splendid men
For them we pray often
God bless our men!
Keep them victorious
Patient and chivalrous
They are so dear to us
God save our men!

God save our splendid men
Send them safe home again
God bless our men!
Happy and valorous
Dauntless and generous
Winners of freedom glorious
God save our men!

The Bells of St. Stephen's.

Philadelphia Evening Ledger, Mar. 25, 1918.

We have a particular affection for the sound of church bells, and a chime ringing above the clamor of a city street always halts us with something of a thrill.

Those who have passed down Tenth street just below market at midday during this Lenten season have been grateful to St. Stephen's Church, where the chimes are rung daily to announce the noonday Lenten service. Above the din of trolleys and traffic the clear peal of the bells rises dominant and arresting. The Rev. Carl E. Grammer, rector of St. Stephen's, says: "We only had a few bells and could only ring peals and changes till I added some additional bells a few years ago for the express purpose of playing hymns, with the patients in the Jefferson Hospital near by, in mind. They like to listen to them as they lie in their beds."

Crowded thoroughfares give all too few reminders of solemn things, and many a thoughtful passerby heard the message of beauty in St. Stephen's chimes. A peal of bells, a basket of daffodils, a policeman helping an old lady across the street—such tremendous trifles all have their place in the strange and vivid mosaic of metropolitan life. Set a message of beauty adrift in the world and no one knows to what waiting eyes and ears it may bring refreshment.

St. Stephen's Club.

The Club has received scores of letters from parents expressing their appreciation of the work of the Club. These letters have come from thirty-five States, and two countries across the sea—England and France. First at hand on my desk is from some one's dearest girl in all the world, saying: "Would that I could find words to express my thanks to you, in behalf of my Sweetheart for the kind and courteous hospitality of your Club." The next is from Arkansas: "In regard to your comforting card I received a day or two ago, I thank you many times for what you have done for my husband. Your card was a comfort to me for I am so lonesome without my husband." From a sister in Illinois: "I sent my brother a sweater two weeks ago and he has not received it. Would you please look it up, he has been sent to New York." From Texas: "The last I heard from my son he was in the hospital, if you can tell me anything about him please do so." A Massachusetts mother says: "I have not heard from him since before Xmas. He sent me a Xmas gift, but no letter has come. Would you, in a disguised way, find out why he does not write?"

Quite recently I was able to send a glad reply to this: "My son had me send his violin to your church. I started it on the 6th and have heard nothing since. If he has gone to France will you take care of the violin?" From Spartansburg comes a request for a "Couple of Testaments for me and my chum. We were at the Club one night and heard you speak about them." Sometimes a little grim humor unconsciously appears. This from a Counsellor-at-Law. After the usual legal verbiage "about one Mr. ——— having received a card from his brother. The said Mr. ——— received a letter written by his said brother S., on stationery from Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A., in which the said brother S. stated he was to be shot at sunrise on the 20th inst." The said brother S. probably received what the boys call a "shot" from the doctor's needle. At any rate I took occasion to remind the counsellor-at-law that if a sailor was sentenced to be shot the next morning, he certainly would not be at liberty.

I am afraid some dear child will think we are cruel for on the back of mother's letter thanking us ever so much for being good to her son, there is written evidently by a little six-year-old, these words: "Write soon and tell us if Julius is there. We pray every night, etc. So good by kiss. Write soon please. Please leave Julius come home Christmas because mabe this will be the last time we will see him. So good by kiss."

A father says: "While we have heard frequently from him the thoughtfulness and kindly spirit which prompted the card received from your Committee saying that my son G. had recently enjoyed your hospitality, has greatly touched his mother and myself, and I am taking the liberty of enclosing my check for a small amount as we should like to feel that we are privileged to assist in what must be so great a service to the soldiers and sailors of our country."

The next at hand is barely decipherable but one can read: "Your card was a surprise, it was like a spring of water in a barren land. May God bless us all and keep us all from sin." From far off Oregon a father wrote that he was glad to learn of the existence of such a Club and doubly glad to learn that his son F. has been so fortunate as to find and accept our good fellowship. But ere the letter was finished that household must have been plunged into great anxiety for a pencilled postscript says: "Just received a telegram that my boy is critically ill in the municipal hospital." What anxious hours must have passed before they received my own message stating that F. was out of danger. And this week a letter came from F. himself thanking me and saying he is feeling fine.

I am indebted to Miss Dorothy Grammer for the translation of a letter from Port en Bessin, France.

The Director:

I thank you many times for giving me news of my little brother. For a long time I have been uneasy about him. The days seem so long to us and above all when he has gone so far away. He has neither father or mother, he has no one but me, who am twenty-two years old, and two brothers who are also in active service. Therefore I thank you for having lifted my anxiety. I am very happy that he has chosen your Club, and if sometime, he should be sick and incapable of letting me know how he is, I pray you dear sir, to give me news of him. I beg you to accept my best wishes.

Mr. Reifsnyder delivered a letter from Madamoiselle to her brother who was at the time on a French boat in League Island, and also sent a cheering reply to France.

Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

It is pleasant to greet you once again in this way. Without the Sunday services October seemed like a month spent away from home. I am looking forward to our first service after this suspension of public worship. There was no service on the last Sunday in October because the Church was not ready for use, and we would have been obliged to assemble in the second story of the Sunday School building.

Early in October, it seemed as if we would be able to have our dedicatory service on October 31st. Everything was progressing rapidly. Then the influenza swept down on us. Mr. Briggs, who is in charge of the work, was stricken down. The families of our workmen were afflicted, and it became clear that the formal opening would have to be postponed.

I shall not now dwell on the alterations further than this: that they are revealing their beauty more and more; that they carry with them many improvements, and will relieve the Church of all expense from interior repairs for many years. St. Stephen's will be a shrine of beauty as well as of worship and of truth. I am making all my arrangements for a formal opening late in November.

It will be a subject of rejoicing on the part of the congregation to learn that we have not lost many members in this pestilence. There has been much sickness—out at the Burd School 20 children and Mrs. Anderson, the housekeeper, have been down, but all the patients were promptly put to bed and alarming symptoms did not continue long. We were very fortunate in securing the services of a trained nurse, who is a member of our own Parish, Miss F. C. Wilder.

Some of the workmen on the Church lost members of their families, but none of the workmen themselves caught the infection.

From the Parish Register of St. Stephen's no one will be able to ascertain the virulence of the disease, or the necessity for the extraordinary precautions taken by the Board of Health. To ascertain the true extent of the plague, one must meet some undertaker and hear his tale of bodies piled up in his establishment waiting coffins, or if coffined, waiting burial, or go to Blockley and learn that there had been 2000 deaths there in three weeks, or hear how it ravaged some of our transports, where 500 fell victim to it.

Where the paths by which such a pestilence travels can be ascertained, such knowledge lays upon us the duty of erecting barriers to its progress. The disease was undoubtedly spread abroad among us from the military camps and naval stations. I do not know whether it would have been possible to quarantine them so as to prevent the infection of our civilian population. Certainly no effort was made in that direction. I learn through a letter from my daughter, Mrs. Torrey, in California, that they are quarantining the camps there. So it came to pass that through the forces gathered for the protection of the people, this plague was widely spread among us. Drastic remedies had to be adopted, and churches as well as other places of assemblage were closed. It was a misfortune that the people should be deprived of the consolations of public worship at such a time. But fortunately God has revealed Himself to us as an omnipresent spirit, who can be approached in the closet as well as in the Church. People are not deprived of religion by closing their church-edifice for a brief season. They suffer discomfort and privation, but it is for the sake of the welfare of others and therefore is a sacrifice acceptable to our Heavenly Father.

As President of the Inter-Church Federation, I headed a deputation from the Protestant Churches to the office of the Director of Public Health. Dr. Krusen, and assured him that the Churches would loyally stand behind him and cooperate with him. All that we asked was, one rule for all and that rule clear and explicit. Of course we are rejoiced that the ban can be lifted. I did not take advantage of its removal on Oct. 27, as I have mentioned, because I understood that it was desired that Sunday School buildings should not be opened. I could only have held service in the Sunday School building, as the Burd School is infected, and that second story room is such an inaccessible place for the older members of my congregation and so ill-adapted to a dignified worship, that I thought it better not to ask for any special privilege and decided to wait till Nov. 3rd.

Old St. Stephen's Club closed even before the Churches, though it has been open a few hours every afternoon and evening for mail-delivery. The recess has been utilized to make substantial repairs; the ceilings have been replastered, the walls repaired, new lights hung, and the whole place is greatly improved. The regular reopening, with refreshments, and entertainments, began Wednesday, Oct. 30. The only change of any note will be that in the new roster the names of the heads of the women's committees will be published, as well as the Chairmen of the men's committees.

During the summer a most interesting folder entitled "Some One Does Care" was published giving extracts from letters of relations of the boys who have visited our club. There is a letter from every state and territory in the Union and from foreign lands. The cost of the folder did not fall on the treasury of the club; but undoubtedly the treasury will receive contributions wherever the folder is read. It is literature of the heart and cannot be read without heartfelt emotion. God has been wonderfully good to us in enabling us to do such a work, and send such influences circling through the world.

We are grateful, too, that such good news comes from our boys at the front and in the service everywhere. We have two gold stars on our service flag to commemorate the names of those who perished in their Country's service. We hope that this war will come to an end before others are taken. But none of us want it to come to an inconclusive ending, or to anything short of the surrender of the Central Powers. They must be placed in the criminal's box and have their fate determined with an eye to the best interests of the world.

This is not a war of the Democratic party, or of the United States only. It is a war in which the whole world practically is united for the first time in a great league to put down wrong doers and establish justice and peace on firm foundations. It must be pushed to a decisive victory.

After the war is over, I want to place a tablet on our wall with the names of those that went out from the Congregation to the service of their country to fight for humanity, with golden letters for the names of those who paid the last full measure of devotion. Our gold stars now stand for Joseph Francis Covert and James Stork. Lieutenant Musselman of the Buena Ventura, who was thought to have perished, we have learned was picked up and landed on the coast of Spain.

Many of our boys are on the firing line, but thus far none of them have even been wounded. This is a great source of rejoicing and gratitude.

In our delight over the vast improvements of our interior we must not overlook the beautiful window that has been given by Miss Martha McDowell in memory of her father, who was for many years a Vestryman of this Church, serving on the Committee upon the Burd School. The upper window is by the same artist as the widely admired lower window. The subject is the Ascension. The two windows harmonize in tone, and everyone must appreciate the beautiful conjunction of subjects, the Resurrection and the Ascension.

A most useful gift has been presented to the Vestry room by Mr. Jos. B. Van Dusen, Jr. It has often been difficult to receive messages over the phone by reason of the noise in the room. All our phoning will be made easier by the booth, which he has given us. Neither ought I in speaking of gifts to omit the new lights and other improvements made in the Sunday School Building by Old St. Stephen's Club and by Mr. Reifsnyder.

The sudden death of Mr. Timothy B. Clemens on the 5th of June was a shock to the whole congregation. Mr. Clemens was widely known in the church, having associated himself with the Brotherhood of St. Andrew at its organization in the parish some ten years ago, and proved himself a faithful member, assisting in the Lenten services, especially by his friendly greeting of all new comers, and his comradeship and courtesy. On the Sunday before his sudden death he had been out in the country with his wife and daughter. No one had any idea that his end was so near. He left behind a blameless name and sweet memories of a home made happy through his loyalty and care, and of steadfast friendships. The sympathy of the congregation goes out to his wife and daughter.

Mr. Clemens had an interesting history. At the age of 18 he received an appointment as cadet at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, but after being there about a year he was obliged to leave on account of trouble with his eyesight. He afterwards entered the service of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company and rose to be the head of the freight station at 13th and Callowhill Streets. The last eleven years of his life were spent in the services of the John Lucas Paint Co. He came of an old Philadelphia family. His grandfather's residence in Germantown, near the Chew mansion, is said to have been an underground station for fugitive slaves on their way to Canada. His grandfather, Charles Woodrow Clemens, went to Pottsville in 1829, during the intense excitement of anthracite coal mining. He found his wife in that city in Sarah Shoemaker, who was the daughter of Col. George Shoemaker, of whom it is told in the history of anthracite coal that in 1812 George Shoemaker loaded nine wagons of coal and hauled it to Philadelphia. It was with great difficulty that he sold two loads. The other seven loads he was obliged to give away. He was regarded as an impostor who was attempting to sell stones instead of coal, and had some difficulty in getting out of the city to avoid arrest. One of the loads was bought by White & Hazzard, a firm operating wire works at the Falls of Schuylkill. The whole night was spent in the effort to make the coal burn. The workmen at last gave it up in despair and abandoned the fire, leaving the door of the furnace shut. One of the workmen forgot his jacket and returning for it fortunately discovered that the "stones" were combustible, for everything was red hot.

Another Philadelphian, united with many ties with the town, was taken from us in the death of Mr. John Coats Browne. His canonical membership was with another parish, but Mrs. Browne's connection with our church made him take a warm interest in St. Stephen's, The sympathy of the congregation goes out to Mrs. Browne, who did so much to cheer her husband's last years. Mr. Browne was in such good health up to the very last and was a man of so much vigor that it was hoped that their delightful comradeship might last longer.

The congregation will be much interested, I am sure, in a brief outline of Mr. Browne's career.

Mr. John Coats Browne was born February 18th, 1838 and died June 20th, 1918 in Philadelphia and was the son of Peter and Ann Taylor (Strawbridge) Browne. He was educated in the Episcopal Academy and other schools of Philadelphia and at the age of fifteen went into the old wholesale dry-goods house of Kent, Santee & Company of which his stepfather, William C. Kent, was a member and remained with the firm for 3 years. A business career did not appeal to him and he then studied and graduated in chemistry under Professor James C. Booth in his laboratory in Chant Street, back of St. Stephen's Church. He devoted attention to mineralogy and made a fine assorted collection of well crystallized specimens of minerals for the microscope. He was one of the leading amateur photographers of the country and won several gold medals in open competition at photographic exhibitions. In 1867 he photographed moving pictures on the Delaware and in 1868 he was elected member of the American Philosophical Society on nomination of Pliny Chase in recognition of his work in the development of instantaneous photography. In 1869 he accompanied a U. S. Government party to photograph and make observations at Ottumwa of the total eclipse of the sun.

In his early life he commenced to collect Americana, particularly early prints of Philadelphia and New York and helped to preserve and build up the history of his native city by his careful assortment of prints and information. He helped to organize the Photographic Society and was its President for seven successive years. He was a manager of the Philadelphia Dispensary from 1868—1883.

In 1872 he was elected a manager of the Episcopal Hospital and gave greater and longer personal attention to it than any other manager in its history. In the minute on his death drawn by Mr. Francis Lewis and Mr. W. W. Frazier, they say, "these facts are noted because they show remarkable and unusual fidelity to a great trust." He was deeply interested in the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, became a member when a young man, did much to promote its growth and value and at the time of his death was President of its Council.

He was descended from Colonel Coats of the Revolutionary Army in whose honor Fairmount Avenue was formerly called Coats Street.

Another loss that we have sustained was the death of Miss Katharine MacRae. On account of the infirmities of age she had long ceased to attend the services of the church but she was interested in its welfare, and was always in close touch with the Rector.

I wish to pay a brief personal tribute to this remarkable woman. Her father, who was an Episcopal minister, married twice. Miss MacRae was the child of the first marriage. I met her years ago at the Virginia Springs, when I was a professor at the Virginia Seminary, and found that she knew very little of her father's children by his second marriage. It was my good fortune to tell her that her half-brother Cameron MacRae was a very promising student at the Virginia Seminary, and to bring them together. Cameron MacRae subsequently went out as a missionary to China, and his welfare and progress became one of the great interests of Miss MacRae's life. She was a lonely woman towards the end, outliving all her family in this community. She had, however, some friends who stood beside her to the end. She was one of the brightest spirits that I ever knew, never complaining or repining. In her day she had been a woman of wide reading, and had collected a fine library. She had a real passion for literature, and loved to quote fine phrases and brilliant lines. She occasionally wrote herself. She was the soul of generosity, and it was difficult to get out of her room without being presented with a book or a picture or a pamphlet.

It is a matter of regret to me that I was not in the city and able to officiate at her funeral. She had a marvelous spirit of camaraderie, and I do not suppose there was a person in her boarding-house that did not admire her for her resiliency and gracious way of looking on the bright side of life. She left behind her the example of a brave and uncomplaining Christian, living out her days of loneliness without any repining, and always seeking to do what she could to brighten the lives of others.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Church Work Fund.

My Dear Parishioners:

I am making my annual appeal for contributions to the Church Work Fund. With this purse the Rector conducts his office, publishes The Parish News, and contributes to various societies in the Church. Our old members give faithfully to this fund, and it is to be hoped that our new members will also contribute to it.

By the envelope system for specified objects, and the Church Work Fund for small and sundry purposes, the worship of St. Stephen's is kept free from frequent appeals for money, a feature of our service that tends greatly to enhance the dignity of our worship.

The regular demands on this purse call for a fund of $1,600.

My treasury is depleted this year and there never was a greater demand for such a purse. I ought to have my secretary's services more constantly than ever before, as there are a great many letters that ought to be written to these boys who ask for messages, and leave their names with us, and also to those who have gone out from our parish. I would be very much obliged if the contributions were sent me as soon as possible.

Letters from Our Boys.

Extracts from letters of Lieutenant Tristram C. Colket, 2nd, to his parents. The lieutenant is now on the firing line:

July 29, 1918.

My room is quite large, with a wonderful bed. It looks exactly like some we have seen in our towns through chateaus and museums. I am sure it could pass for a king's. By the way, Henry IV once spent the night in this village. I guess that's not a military secret. Took my first bath today. Some lady runs a bathing establishment. Baths ordered in advance. Equipment, one tin tub and a stove to heat hot water in the garden. Price about 3 frs. It's worth it.

August 2d, 1918.

This afternoon I called on the Marechal de Logis and it was a regular picture from the 18th century. The Marechal happened to be out and in his office we found three soldiers in their quaint shabby uniforms bending over their dossiers at a wooden table. The room was part of the old guardhouse which was built during the age of massive bolts and locks. A few minutes later the Marechal came in all bedecked in his very best; a dark blue jacket with two silver chevrons on each sleeve and the Medaille Militaire on his breast, light blue trousers and a cap to match the blouse. He had outfitted himself to call on the General. We had a long conversation over trifling affairs. I was with the M. P. Captain and in five words I would tell him what the exuberant Marechal would take five full minutes to say, working overtime at that.

August 8, 1918.

This morning I walked out to the machine gun range with a lieutenant back from the Front, recovering from a broken leg, and after watching them awhile we each shot a few rounds. It is good sport and worth knowing something about. The day before I did some grenade throwing. Before we were through it began to rain very hard so we hopped into a nearby Q. M. wagon which contained all the grenades. It was my first experience with grenades at such close quarters, and I treated them with a great deal of respect. Tomorrow night I expect to go on a boar hunt. One of my neighbors has invited me and I think it will be good fun. The woods are quite full of them.

September 1, 1918.

Look how the time flies. Here it is the first of September and under ordinary conditions I would be worrying about going back to school. I am glad that I don't have that same worry any more.

August 25, 1918.

Yesterday afternoon after lunch the Interpreter and I climbed the Church Steeple. It is about one hundred feet high. Built by the Spanish and is the only part of the Church which remains as the rest was burnt. There is a wonderful bell up there which can put it all over our bells at St. Stephen's. Treated myself to a bath last evening in the only tub in town, a town of two thousand inhabitants.

Letters from Lieut. Robert T. Boyd, Jr., to His Parents. Lieut. Boyd is Now on the Firing Line.

July 19, 1918.
La Courtine, France.

Dear Dad:

As you can see by the heading, I am now at La Courtine, France, a little town in the southeastern part of the country, situated on the slopes of the Pyrenees. It's almost Uncle Sam's town now, for at night the streets resemble Broadway with the tread of Sammies. It is here that we have left our troops and in a few days I will be off to the front.

As you may have read in the papers, the Huns have started a new offensive but without success. Today I learned that the Americans captured some seven or eight thousand Huns in an early morning battle. The Sammies can't be beaten and they are the idol of France.

Censorship as you know prevents me from relating very much regarding the war except in a very indefinite way, but I may say that France is a wonderful country and deserving of all the praise she can get. After facing four years of war and hell, she stands today with her face towards the Hun and bears a smile. She is not beaten or bled as accounts go but has her back to the wall and her guns pointing towards Berlin.

And I thank God that in such a cause as this I am able to do my share to wipe out that damnable German Kultur. Not until one comes here can its vile rot be known and until Germany cries on her knees the fight will go on.

And some day, when our boys start to come home,

America will fully wake up to the last man that every ounce of her power and strength must be thrown into the melting pot to help wipe out the scourge.

Father, it's a wonderful thing to fight for Uncle Sam and belong to a country like our own. At home we drift along but over here one realizes the love for our land. I'll tell you it brings tears to one's eyes to see the old men of France and those disabled by war tip their hats as they pass us on the streets and to see mothers raise their babes up to the car windows that they may touch the hands of the Sammies and all with a smile. Then to march down a street desolate of men and have the "women in black" shower flowers in their path. To fight allied to such a nation makes all one's blood boil to kill the Huns.

And last but not least never let anyone tell you that Uncle Sam is not prepared. She's over a million strong in France and cares for us as a mother. Our food, etc., is equally good, if not better, than back home and it's amazing to see what has been accomplished in a year. Motor trucks are here by the thousands; Baldwin's locomotives and box cars and as for supplies, they are all here. Another year and she will drive the Beast to hell.

There's not much more I can say except that I am well and happy and I trust that all at home are the same.

With love to yourself and Mother and my best regards to all who may inquire,

I am your son,
Robert.

France, August 25, 1918.

Dear Mother and Father:

France and August 25th, '18. Tell me what could be better than to be over here on my birthday helping to fight for the most sacred of all causes and the greatest of all lands? And as my memorable day rolls around again what is finer than to know and really know that the land of my birth has made it possible to turn that tide from almost sure defeat to a fast-coming victory, and I almost swell with pride in being with the first American Army overseas.

I thank God for the privilege of being in the Zone of Advance where the roar of the guns and the bursting of bombs are with us day and night. Even over here I am thankful that I am not located miles back of the line but up in the zone with the red blood of America, fighting for existence and their land of birth.

So my dear parents you can readily see that even though thousands of miles away, my birthday is a happy one for my heart is in the right place and my mind is at ease because I feel that I am a part of a real and wonderful power that has made great strides to win an honorable victory. It may take time to crush the foe but his resistance is fast crumbling and already he is starting to beg for peace. Of course, he wants "his peace" but when peace comes he shall have "our peace" and none other.

So, France and August 25th '18, shall always be remembered in the days to come and so saying I will say farewell and adieu for today. With lots and lots of love, I am,

Your son,

France, Sept. 12, 1918.

Dear Mother:

And now Mother, I come to the closing chapter of my letter, but the best. By this time and perhaps even before my letter is finished, you have read the good news. For a long time I have wished that I could tell you all about it but war prevents. By this time you have read that America has struck her blow and offensive against the beast across the Rhine. This morning it started and now we are seven or more kilos nearer the promised land and the sun has not set. Until I die, I shall never forget the last evening when our little bunch gathered together and sang, "Nearer My God to Thee" when told that the Yanks soon would be off. Now they have started, time will tell the location of the future battle line.

With love to yourself and Dad, I am,

Your son,
Robert.

France, Sept. 16, 1918.

Dear Mother:

Your letter of August 19th and Father's of August 12th reached me this evening; also one from Uncle Joe written on the 12th. I certainly was glad to receive them for it has been almost a week since I have had any mail, though your letters are coming through much quicker now. I am sorry to hear that my letters are so slow in reaching the States but I guess that the ships are pretty well laden and mail is a secondary thing aboard. I have written three or four times each week and the letters should reach you sometime if they have not gone to the bottom of the sea.

Well, the last few days have been hard and trying ones and thank God most of us have come through successfully. We are all pretty tired as the strain has been great but the victory gained has more than made up for the work and energy expended. We are all very exalted over our success and the straightening out of the four year battle line. The papers at home have told you all the news and how the Yanks came through, so there is no need of my repeating. When all is over my story will be told around the fireside at home but now there is still much to be done before we sail back across the seas.

Yes, Mother, I am glad that I have been able to see some of France while here. It's a beautiful country. Paris is a wild and wonderful city, but if I get over the "hump," as we call it, and get my two feet planted on U. S. sod, I will never leave the States again. I know you have always desired to sail the seas and visit the land beyond but as for Robert and 99 per cent. of the Yanks, there is no lure outside of the States. America has beauty and grandeur that cannot be touched over here and it is romance that leads our people across the seas rather than beauty. We are now here because it is our duty and our privilege and I am glad I was fit to come. I want to stay until it is over and I would not be home during the war even if it meant my life, but when the battle is o'er, I shall never apply at a steamship office for a ticket abroad.

I see by tonight's paper that Austria asks for peace. I trust she shall only be granted it by the bullet and sword. It would be a crime against the world to stop now until victory is made certain by force of arms. No shells or gun fire is too good for the Huns—they deserve all that can be given them and even then they will not be repaid for the wrong they have done the world. It's not the Kaiser alone, it's all Germany. They have fought war since the cradle and now in their old age they are beginning to fall.

Yesterday in a small village, eighty French women found liberty for the first time in four years. Since the war started in 1914, they have been confined, chained and shackled in dugouts by the Huns. For four years they have been harlots for the German soldiers. Two days ago, American gun fire liberated them from their dungeon homes where they came out and saw light—old, weak and feeble—and back home some people have the nerve to say the German people are good at heart and only the Kaiser should be made to pay the price. Shut your ears to such people—God nor man has not yet created or invented anything like that which we call a "Hun."

And from the little dugout where the eighty French women emerged the Yanks brought back their masters. We have them now and I am enclosing a shoulder strap which I got from one of their uniforms. I wish I were permitted to tell you the names of their regiments and divisions but I cannot until I return.

If there is a God, I ask you can there be anything but a defeat by arms for such a nation as that across the Rhine?

I will close for tonight. With lots of love to yourself and Dad, I am,

Your son,
Robert.

P. S. Don't worry about me for I'm safe and well, and having a great time. Uncle Sam takes fine care of us—plenty of food, a warm bed and lots of smokes. What more could one wish during war?

From Private Theodore Hein.

Wednesday, Sept. 25, 1918.

My Dear Mr. Keable:

Just a few lines to let you know of my safe arrival over seas. Had a nice trip and never once experienced seasickness. Spent most of the time on deck enjoying the sea breezes and gazing at the sea and sky. We were glad when it ended as it got very monotonous. Spent a while in England at rest camps and must say I was very favorably impressed. The towns were rather nice and was surprised to see nothing but brick houses and all so well built. The English children are sure very pretty with their chubby faces and red cheeks. In taking the train from camp to a seaport town we travelled third class and while it is the lowest, it compares favorably with our regular steam coaches and the seats were very comfortable. The only marring feature was it rained so much; we were always caught in showers and managed to get drenched. Am at the present somewhere in France, and it is some camp, wonderful for its rapid growth and also size. Am in the best of health and still gaining weight. Afraid chances are slim of your getting one of my photos, as I wouldn't know where to go to get one taken at the present. From the reports perhaps it will soon be over and then you will get the chance to see me in person. We had a two day trip through France in freight cars, and while it had its discomforts, which were great, yet it was an experience and one to be envied. It is hard to realize we are so far from home. The country looks the same as ours, only when you get to the villages and see the houses and the cafes with the tables all set on the pavement, then I know we are abroad. I hope the work on the alterations in the church is progressing favorably and that Sunday School will have a big attendance during the coming season. Remember me to all at St. Stephen's and Mrs. Keable.

Sincerely,
Theodore.

The Benevolent Society.

Our President, Mrs. Grammer, thought it would be best not to open at the regular time, the first week in November. Meanwhile many garments will be cut out ready for the opening, which will take place later. Due notice will be sent to every member.

Cornelia L. Ewing.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The first meeting of St. Stephen's Woman's Auxiliary for the season of 1918—1919 will be held on Thursday, November 21st. There will be a Celebration of the Holy Communion at 10.30 A. M. and the stated meeting will take place at the close of the service. The Advent Call, Pennsylvanians' plan for the Women of the Church, will be explained, and the co-operation of all the women of St. Stephen's Parish is earnestly desired. Attention is also called to the annual devotional Service of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary on Wednesday, November 13th, at Holy Trinity Church at 10 o'clock, conducted by Dean Rousmainere of St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston.

The Woman's United Offering.

The United Offering of 1919 is to be given to the Board of Missions to be devoted to the training, sending and support of the women for the mission work at home and abroad, and to the care of workers when sick and disabled; provided that $10,000 be expended for a completion or a renewal of a building or buildings in the Mission Field. The Parish Treasurer of the United Offering, Miss Magee, will be glad to receive contributions for this Fund from every woman in the congregation.

The Parish Visitor's Report.

Notwithstanding the church has been closed for remodeling, the Sunday School services were not interrupted until the order came from the Health Department that all gatherings in churches, schools, theathres, etc., were to be discontinued until the passing of the epidemic.

A short year ago our Club was opened, and the boys in khaki and blue flocked here, for everything was done by members of our congregation and loyal friends to entertain and make happy by suppers, teas, and games these soldiers of ours who so soon left hospitable Philadelphia for the grim war, somewhere in France. Then the "grim war" came to us in the form of the scourge, into our comfortable homes, where we imagined we were so safe. Many of the families of our Sunday School scholars and our Mothers' Meeting were stricken. We found three in one family, the mother, the baby and a little boy all lying in one bed, all with the influenza, and the father trying to care for them.

Much work had to be done in infected homes, dressing the dead, and assisting the undertaker, until one's heart was sick with the misery one could only alleviate, but was helpless to cure. There was one amazing coutome of the epidemic—the stand taken by some physicians and some undertakers; in one case the latter absolutely refused to touch the body until one hundred and thirty-five dollars was paid him. The poor woman had her life insured for one hundred and five dollars, and although her daughter promised to pay the balance in small instalments he refused absolutely to go on with the arrangements. Fortunately they were able to borrow the balance from different friends who were as poor as themselves, and the mother was laid to rest.

Respectfully submitted,
H. K. Lewis.

The Mothers' Meeting.

The Mothers' Meeting will not take place until December.

The Girls' Friendly Society.

The Girls' Friendly will meet on Monday, November the 11th.

The Farm.

Just six weeks ago, St. Stephen's Farm closed for the season of 1918. Perhaps never before has the work been carried on in the face of such difficulties. With a very limited train service, "no goods delivered" and the scarcity of help, in the beginning it seemed almost impossible to get started; however, with the assistance and co-operation of our friends and guests, we were able to overcome the inconveniences and go on in the usual way.

As has been the custom for several years, the Sunday School Picnic opened the season June 22, and from that time until the close we had from 30 to 36 guests each week. In addition to these regular guests, there were the Mothers' Meeting picnics on Thursdays and the Girl's Friendly Society parties July 4th and also on Labor Day. 8,050 meals were served during the summer, and despite the drastic food regulations, which we conscientiously tried to observe, our food on the whole was about the same, but we did have a fearful time trying to keep up the reputation of the Farm for "Good Eats." We are especially grateful to our treasurer, Mr. J. Hunter Ewing, whose generosity made it possible for us to have extra good things, which otherwise we would have been obliged to do without. It will also be of interest to know that our expenses were $50.00 less than in the season of 1917. This difference was probably due to the fact that we opened one week later and closed one week earlier.

It is sad to know that so many of our people who were with us this summer, happy and light-hearted, have been plunged into grief by the horrors of war and disease.

In spite of the many war activities in which all are interested, the Farm was not forgotten, and our good friends remembered us most generously. The Girl's Friendly Society expended $50.00, presenting us with a beautiful flag and refurnishing their room. The Kings' Daughters also renovated their room and we are indebted to Mrs. J. Spencer Lucas, Mr. Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr. and Mrs. H. C. Eckman for various gifts.

The "Boys" who spent two weeks at the Farm deserve special mention not only for their behavior, which was excellent, but also for their helpfulness, keeping the wood-pile high, etc. They had an unusual example in their leader, a certain clergyman, who worked

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

I wish you all the joys of this happy season. The period between Thanksgiving and Christmas is, I think, one of the happiest times of the year, especially for the children. No amount of insistence on early usage can make Advent a penitential season. Indeed, its predominant note is, and I think ought to be, one of glad expectation. Busy little fingers are now preparing Christmas gifts and loving parents are consulting what presents to make.

We must not forget the poor, so I make my annual appeal for the Christmas baskets, and the envelopes to receive your offerings will be distributed in the pews. I only repeat what I have said in former years, that no one is injured or has the nerve of his energies cut by receiving a Christmas basket. This ought to be one of the most joyful Christmases of the Christian Era. The world has peace, and we want the homes of our poor to have plenty on that day. I shall be very glad if more people would join in the work of preparing the baskets. I reappoint the same committee, Mr. Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr., Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, and Mr. James Carrigan, to take care of the purchase of the material, and Miss Lewis as the distributor of the cards which will enable the holder to receive a basket.

I hope that by the time this copy of The Parish News appears, word will have been received from all our men in the service across the water, and their anxious relations and friends will be assured of their safety. These have been trying days since the Armistice, to those whose boys were in the trenches. It is said that there is no greater test of courage than such waiting for news. We ought to thank God for the duties of the day that arouse our energies and engage our thoughts. I trust that no more gold stars will have to be affixed to our service flag.

I wish that it were possible to publish extracts from all the letters received from our boys; they are full of inspiration, and often give one new insight into the situation. For example, in a letter received from Lieutenant Harry C. Kelso, there is this brief description of the view from an aeroplane, which is very vivid, and is sure to waken in every adventurous breast a desire for such an experience:

"I have been permitted to take several joy rides, or 'jazzes' as we call them, through the air, and am more thrilled every time I go up. Never before did I realize how beautiful this world is. Fortress Monroe looks like a wonderful mosaic from a few thousand feet, and the woods, fields and roads are more beautiful than they ever seemed before."

Dr. Old writes me from a comfortable club, a portion of Baron Rothschild's private residence, which was given by him for the use of officers for the duration of the war. The Doctor belongs to Base Hospital No. 41, which has been situated at St. Denys, where so many of the kings of France have their tombs. But I would swell this Parish Paper beyond all reason if I should attempt to publish all the communications.

Although for the sake of our friends at a distance, and in order that we may have some permanent record—for the numbers of the Parish News are bound into volumes—I am publishing in this number the program of the service on December 5th; yet as the stream of charity, according as old Thomas Fuller says, must have banks as well as a flow, so the Parish News must have limits in order that it may circulate cheaply through the mail.

Now that we have received this splendid gift of a renovated, redecorated and improved church, the responsibility falls upon us of making it more widely useful. I should like a campaign to be inaugurated, under the leadership of the Vestry, for the extension of the envelope system, and the raising of a sufficient amount in pledges to meet the demands of our budget. The church ought to go on the budget system. After finding out how much is needed, we ought to make a systematic effort to secure it. The remedy for a deficit is, of course, the envelope system. There are more people who might take the envelopes, and if all those who accept them would pledge themselves for definite amounts—a voluntary pledge, mark you, but nevertheless an engagement, not enforceable in the courts of law, but good in the courts of conscience—our income would be greatly increased. I do not think most people realize how little they give in proportion to what they spend on pleasures and luxuries. There are some people who think nothing of the expense of theatre tickets or concert tickets, who limit their Sunday contributions to a quarter, and think they have done very well at that. Bishop Peterkin, of West Virginia, always used to make a distinction between the gifts that were made for the support of the church and those that were given for the uplift of others; for he claimed, and I think rightly, that people who belonged to a church and enjoyed the privilege of its services, the support of its fellowship, and the comfort of its associations, received an adequate return for the money that they contributed. Take the Church and compare it with a club, with its dues, and think of the many functions which the Church fulfills, both to the individual and to the community as well, and I think we can say that money expended on a Church is money that brings in a return of benefits to the contributor. I have known worldly men so much convinced of this that when they were establishing a new town, they would offer sites and large contributions to the different churches in order to secure their presence in the community. So I hope the congregation will bear in mind that there are two compartments in the envelopes, the one which contains the gifts which go to the support of our parish organization, and the other that contains the offerings for general philanthropy, and for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God. That is the main difference between the two compartments.

The other field in which our work ought to be developed is the missionary activities of the congregation. We ought to have more people, and the members ought to assist the ministers in gathering them in. A great many people attend our services and help us by their presence and co-operation, and I think would like to come in, but they are shy. They don't realize that we really want them. We want them whether they are rich or whether they are poor, whether they have collegiate degrees or whether they are without collegiate degrees. No church can prosper and no church is filled with the spirit of Jesus that does not emphasize the truth that God seeth not as man seeth, but that He looketh upon the heart; that every child of God is of inexpressible value as a spirit with immortal destinies, and that in the light of these eternal issues our earthly distinctions are of small moment. This is a democratic age, and if the church is to prosper it must be filled with a democratic spirit. But the real motive is deeper than any compliance with the spirit of the age, for it is the essential nature of Christianity that it seeks to alter conditions. The religion of Jesus is to be a leaven, leavening the lump, whatever the character of the age. It aims to bring about ideal conditions. This is a truth that must be emphasized in the church. Why do we sing the splendid words of the Magnificat about God exalting the lowly and meek, and bringing down those of high degree, and rejoice in His reversal of the judgments of earth by bringing men to the standards of a higher law if we are not to exemplify these principles in our own lives? We have been entirely too apologetic in our attitude, too timid, too much afraid of seeming interested in securing new members. The truth of the matter is we are bound in duty to be desirous of securing new members. We are fishers of men. The Church is a net for ingathering. It would do us good if in addition to this work, of ingathering among individuals, we should undertake some service in public institutions. I think great honor ought to be given to the faithful people who carry the Gospel message to the jails and penitentiaries. Ought we not to have a committee to take a Sunday a month at Moyamensing or the Eastern Penitentiary? Some such service ought to be assumed by the men of the Church. After the Club closes, the experience of Christian work that has there been acquired ought to be utilized elsewhere. It would be good for the prisoners, because they want fresh voices, and need friends; they ought to be brought in contact with a different class of people from those with whom they have associated outside. It would be good for the workers. One of the means of developing emotion is to express it. Of course, if all the energy runs to expression, it would be a mistake. Nevertheless it is a general rule that within limits expression deepens and develops emotion. Many a man first realizes how thin and nebulous his whole conception of religion is when he endeavors to impart it. I was going to say inculcate, but religion cannot be inculcated; that is, it is not something external that can be handed over to the other person in a set of propositions. It is a part of our life and spirit that is communicated mysteriously partly through words and propositions and also largely through temper, disposition, and numerous intangible and indescribable means; chiefly by the impact of personality upon personality and by life upon life. Still there must be some definite convictions and some theories that can be expressed. It is well to search ourselves, and find out what these convictions are.

I must not close without saying a word about the Club. Its activities were renewed last month, and the attendance has reached the old proportions. A great task is now opened to us. We shall soon have the duty of welcoming the returned men. We must exert ourselves to tone up the men, who feel that much of the spirit is taken out of the service by the cessation of hostilities. Home begins to appeal to them, and some of them have forgotten their solemn engagements. In a Club like ours they must be stimulated morally and helped to the right point of view.

All those who have been acting as hosts and entertainers are invited to take part in a subscription banquet at the City Club on Tuesday, December 17th. I am sure it will be a delightful occasion. What an enduring basis is laid for permanent friendships in common experiences, common tasks and common ideals! I am looking forward to a splendid gathering.

The Bishop of the Diocese will visit St. Stephen's to administer the rite of confirmation on Wednesday evening, January 22nd. The service will be at eight o'clock. I will have the first meeting of the Confirmation Class on Friday, December 13th, at eight o'clock in the vestry room, the meeting to last forty minutes. The second meeting will be on Friday, December 20th. We shall omit the meeting in Christmas week, and reassemble on Friday, January 3rd, January 10th and January 17th. No one is committed by attending the classes. At the last meeting, on January 17th, the young members are examined in the catechism. It is assumed in the case of adults that this modicum of information is in their possession, and the emphasis in their case is laid upon the spiritual side of the subject, the ideals of the Christian life, the mission of the church in general and the Episcopal Church in particular. But in the case of young people, it is of importance that some tasks be set them as proof of their earnestness, and some intellectual standard be set as a test of their comprehension and maturity. There have been some misunderstandings about this in the past, and I want to reiterate that the young people—those who are under eighteen—are expected to know the Church's catechism by heart. This test will not apply to adults.

It is a great help in leading the Christian life to associate oneself definitely with the followers of Jesus, and it is a great protection amid the entanglements of the world to show one's colors and come out bravely on the Lord's side. I hope that we may have a large class, and that it will include some of our enlisted men.

In conclusion may I beg the congregation to remember to ask in their prayers for God's blessing on this church, and for the guidance of the rulers of the world at this crisis, that we may have a righteous and durable peace, in which Christian principles and the Christian spirit may have their due place, and a clear manifestation be given to the world that the Kingdom of God is being set up in our midst?

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The congregation will, I am sure, be interested in the following extract from the letter of one of our members, Miss L. E. Cornish, who is the head of a hospital at Port Arthur, Texas. She keeps in touch with our church, and regularly receives the Parish News. There are more people in the service of the country than are carried on the roster of the Army and Navy.

"Port Arthur has not escaped the influenza epidemic, though it has not had as many fatalities as other towns with the same population. This hospital has no isolation department in which to care for contagious diseases, and the question of providing nursing for the sufferers was put up to the Red Cross nursing service Committee, of which I am chairman. After holding a meeting with the Mayor, Mr. John W. Tryon, who by the way is a former Philadelphian, and the doctors of the town, the problem was left for me to solve. After a few days we opened an emergency hospital in one of the discarded school buildings. I placed one of my graduate nurses in charge by day and one by night, and with the assistance of some laywomen we cared for a number of very severe cases of influenza and pneumonia. We also sent nurses to families, women to clean and care for the children where the mother was ill, served soup and soft diet for families who had no one to cook for them, provided necessary food and clothing and bedding.

"This week the 'ban' has been lifted, schools opened yesterday, and we fumigated and closed the emergency hospital today. The great need is past, though there are still a large number of persons ill with influenza and pneumonia. My nurses, good faithful girls and myself worked day and night with very little sleep for four weeks, but have kept well. So we have much to be thankful for.

"Thirteen graduate nurses who have been employed since I took charge are in the U. S. Service. Two have died, one in the Naval Hospital at Washington, D. C., and one at Camp McArthur, Waco, Texas; both very fine young women; so Mary Gates Hospital, like St. Stephen's Church, has two gold stars in her service flag."

Money received through Mr. Hunter Ewing, Interest from Estate of Mrs. Patton—$34.89.

The first meeting of this Circle was held in the Parish House, Dec. 4th, with a good attendance. They are working on some little skirts for the Red Cross to send either to France or Belgium for the little children.

Their next meetings will be Dec. 18th and Jan. 15th.

Shoe Fund.

The Closet is fixed and the winter work, with giving out shoes, will start and Mrs. Vanderslice will be there at the Parish House Tuesdays from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Letters from Our Boys.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER OF LIEUT. S. H. WATKINS TO HIS SISTER.

I've seen hundreds of wayside shrines shot to pieces, sometimes the whole top and arms of the Cross would be entirely shot away and the Figure held in place by the nails through the feet, but I've never seen a single figure of Christ touched by shell or any other kind of fire nor have I seen one on the ground. Does that convince you that God is with the Huns? It looks more like a symbol of His defiance to me.

I have nothing but pity for those Americans who could not or would not come over—they are deprived of the greatest, saddest and most magnificent thing this world has ever seen.

You adjure me "to be good;" you can be nothing else here—that is, if you have a soul within you. When I leave France for home, which please God may be soon, my slate will be clean, and that's the case with the great majority of Americans—some few who are not worthy of that name (it's here you learn its true meaning) are not going to do that—but it's a new Young America which will set sail westward within the next few months.

They've learned a big lesson and are to learn more and the little, nasty things are being eliminated from their natures.

Church Periodical Club.

The Church Periodical Club has not been inactive during this time that our parishioners have been scattered. The work goes on as before, the need for magazines is as great as ever, and it seems a little harder to get new donors than ever before.

To our old friends: Please keep up sending as you have always done, and we thank you in the name of our grateful missionaries.

To our new friends: If you have books or magazines of any kind whatever, that would not do for the soldiers (such as Ladies' Home Journal, Delineator, etc.,) please ask the Librarian for a name and address that you may place them fitly. Do not send them to the Parish House.

To all our friends: Remember our chaplains and especially "our" chaplain—Chaplain F. C. Armstrong, 16th Infantry, American Expeditionary Force.

Liberty Loan Items.

When a desire or longing is strong enough almost anything can be accomplished.

This is well illustrated by a patient in the Philadelphia Home for Incurables who for years has been confined to a wheel chair and who is, at times, a great sufferer, but who has a deep longing to do her part in helping to win this war. She has made five warm knitted blankets, has collected several hundred comfort bags and by selling candy at a small profit, putting thousands and thousands of pins on 1919 Red Cross buttons and by selling over and over again to any willing purchaser a "penny for the benefit of the Red Cross," has earned and sent to the Red Cross the very substantial sum of over three hundred dollars.

We can surely learn from this cheerful, patient, worker that no matter how handicapped one may be much can be done to help our fellow man in these days of suffering and distress.

Let me take this opportunity to thank again those who subscribed to the Fourth Liberty Loan through Old St. Stephen's Church. The notes asking for subscriptions were answered promptly and courteously, both by those who did and those who did not subscribe, thus making the work a pleasure as well as a privilege. Almost everyone had already subscribed through other channels but notwithstanding this $19,200 was added to the Fourth Liberty Loan, to help our Nation win the war for justice, freedom and righteousness.

Alverta S. VanDusen,
Woman's Committee for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

During the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign, Girl Scout Troop No. 84 at the Burd School worked very enthusiastically to secure as many subscriptions as possible. Although the number of girls was slightly depleted by the epidemic, they did their utmost to help the Liberty Loan go over the top. Through the generous contributions of several members of St. Stephen's Church and also by the girls' house to house canvassing in Bryn Mawr and Haverford they obtained the grand total of $7,500 for the Fourth Liberty Loan.

Sincerely,
Lola Bryan, Secretary.

Sunday School.

Like all other Schools our ranks have been lessened by the War. Our Secretary, Theodore Hein, is now in France, and several others are there or on their way. We are glad to report that none of our scholars died from the recent epidemic.

After 31 years of faithful service Mrs. Vanderslice has resigned as Teacher. It will be strange not to see Mrs. Vanderslice in her accustomed place. In retiring from the School she carries with her the consciousness that she has indeed been as a mother to the many girls who were her scholars.

Ministering Angels.

Dedicated to the Red Cross by James H. Penniman

(Air: Integer vitæ.)

Pure as the flowers brought with sweet devotion,
Beaming with sunshine, ministering angels,
Round the white couches serve with faithful tenderness,
Sisters of the Red Cross.

Comfort our heroes, ministering angels,
Care for the wounded in their pain and anguish,
Bind up their hurts, send messages to loved ones,
Sisters of the Red Cross.

Blue service stars are turning into golden,
As shadows deepen, ministering angels,
With holy fervor, whisper inspiration,
Sisters of the Red Cross.

Letters to the Club.

FROM OUR ALLIES.

France.

THE DIRECTOR: (Translation)

I thank you many times for giving me news of my little brother; for a long time I have been uneasy about him. The days seem so long to us and above all, when he has gone so far away. He has neither father or mother. He has no one but me, who am twenty-two years old, and two brothers who are also in active service. Therefore I thank you for having lifted my anxiety. I am very happy that he has chosen your Club, and if, sometime, he should be sick and incapable of letting me know how he is, I pray you, dear sir, to give me news of him. I beg you also to give him this little leaflet which I enclose with yours.

I beg you to accept my best wishes.

England.

DEAR SIRS:

I received a very welcome P. C. from your Club from my boy saying he had arrived safely at Philadelphia. It being his first voyage in the Mercantile Marine Service, I was very anxious. The P. C. came as a great joy to me. Today I have received letters from him saying he was in Philadelphia and had been to your Club and how great it was and how he had appreciated it and how very kind one of the Directors had been to him. All this coming to me—a widow. I feel I want to thank this good work. Here in England, it will make me feel my boy has somewhere to go when he is on shore in Philadelphia, and so once more I thank you. My boy is young, not 17 yet, and the best boy a mother ever had, and he is very precious to me. God's blessing on your "Home."

Canada.

DEAR SIR:

Kindly allow me to express my gratitude for all kindness shown my son, ————, while in your city.

Truly these are anxious days when our boys are meeting new surroundings and great temptations and I feel such work as your Club is doing shall not lose its reward.

The name St. Stephen's Club connected with your own, has made your city very dear to my heart and I pray that the Great Father who said "A cup of cold water will not lose its reward," will sustain you in your good work. That he may prosper you in many ways; that finally you may hear that glad "Well done, good and faithful servant," is the prayer of a loving mother this day.

Somewhere in South American Waters.

DEAR FRIEND:

I am not going to make any effort to express my sincere gratitude to you for writing to my mother as you did in your thoughtful kindness.

How are things going on in St. Stephen's? I often think of the good times I have spent in Philly. It certainly is the best town I have ever been in for a sailor. All Navy men who have been there agree on that. But St. Stephen's was my home and made things a hundred times as good by giving me a welcome that took all the chill off homesickness.

In conclusion I wish to thank the minister who readily put himself out to give me a little comfort and help through the Communion. The moments I spent with you in Church are the most holy ones I've spent since my entry into the outfit. Sometime I'll let you know what the trouble was if I ever come to Philly again.

With all kindest regards to all in St. Stephen's, I am.

FROM AN AMERICAN Y. M. C. A. WORKER.

Somewhere in France,
September 18th, 1918.

MY DEAR MR. ————:

Have just received by mail a letter from "M. L. Marshall" enclosing a medal of Old St. Stephen's which was kindly forwarded to me.

Mr. Marshall thought I was located at some port at which he would touch, but found I am nearer Germany, and so sent it through by mail. As he gave no address I cannot acknowledge the receipt of it to him, so I trust you will inform him of the success of his mission. I appreciate greatly the message from Mrs. Bingham he delivered, and regret that I could not meet him.

On my behalf, kindly express my deep appreciation to the Committee, of whom I suspect you may be a member. I feel greatly honored, and am sure this splendid idea will make a very tender spot in the hearts of the men of the sea for all the kind friends at Old St. Stephen's. Many of the Marines have visited there, and many more have heard of your hospitality and plan to visit when they get to Philadelphia—I am sure no earthly record can contain the good wrought by your folks in your loving service.

We have just come "out," after starting off this American drive. It is a great hour in which to live. I followed, with our Regimental Staff, the attacking waves, through our trenches, across no-man's land, through the first line of German trenches, and on through the second, into territory which had been held by the Germans for four years, and all in ten hours after the opening of our battery.

Our artillery was terrible. Every fifteen or twenty yards for a width of half-a-mile and for ten miles there were shell holes. One can scarcely conceive what a sight such a large extent of battle ground is. The Germans retreated so fast the first two days that our front lines could only occasionally get in contact with them.

We have heard something about peace talk, but we who have seen and experienced this war in all it means of hardship and suffering, do not want peace but victory. Germany must be beaten, then peace will follow. We hope the people at home will not begin to get tender hearted for the "poor Germans" now that we have the upper hand. We have not seen our comrades killed and wounded without finding in our hearts to make such an outrage against humanity forever impossible. The world wants peace, but victory for our arms must come first. We do not love war, nor do we court the hardships it brings us, but we do not want to come home until the horrible monster which has cursed the world with this war has been crushed never to rise again.

I keep very well. Strange how well one can keep under such circumstances. For a week we had rainy weather, and that means Mud in France—and I had only my raincoat for an extra covering; of course I did not take my clothes off once in that time, and was able to change my socks once, because I secured a pair the Germans left. It has been so long since I had a bath, I almost forget how it feels, and my underwear —well try to imagine having only one set in which you sweat through mud and dust for two weeks.

My kind regards to Mrs. ————. Thank you for your kindness to Mrs. Bingham on her visit home. With very best wishes, and God bless you.

Sincerely,
(Signed) JAMES J. BINGHAM.

FROM A SAILOR.

Sept. 24th, 1918.

MY DEAR FRIEND:

Have the time, and thought I should pass it better by writing. It seems so long since I've been away that somehow or other the time I left you all seems to be very far back. I have passed through a lot since I saw the dear faces I left behind, but will be willing to pass through a lot more to be with them again. There was no aim in my life before I left, but now, if God wills that I may return, I think and feel I have an aim in life. The things that the people pass here unnoticed have brought me that other self and aim in life. Just an hour ago I picked up a child off the street who was pushed off the tram car, and the indifference shown to the child cut and cut deep. Its little sister trying to carry it home made me mad at the elder people. However, I took the child and carried it home. No bones were broken but he was frightfully scarred up. Maybe I should not be angry at the others, for they see it continually—the wounded soldiers and sailors and the like, every day; some others who just the week before were enjoying to their heart's content the life God gave them, now, in utter gloom, cripples for life. I do not like to draw the blood of another, and won't until I know my life is endangered or that others' may be, but will draw blood that this war may stop sooner, and then the rest may enjoy peace that He above wishes us to enjoy. You understand, don't you? You have felt pain when a loved one passed away; and as a woman you felt that tightened feeling in the heart, when others suffered before your eyes, haven't you? Well, that suffering, and that pain at the heart have brought me to realize there was some use that I could put my life to, better even than where I am now situated. I think I could bring something far better to this world than fighting or the like. Vice, cruelty, indifference to children, broken down men, and above all, mothers, all looking for that sublime peace that He alone can give or understand. As an artist, you understand what I mean. God gave us life to live, to create and to bring happiness to others, to lift the fallen and strike the cruel, and then teach them not to strike again.

I wish I was back amongst you all; the boys when they look happy put me in high spirits; the work of you and your loving friends make me love you all. The suffering and sickness of Mrs. ———— and the way she took that suffering, with that smile of hers radiating from her face; the way her husband, knowing her suffering, her pain, with sleepless nights; how he came down to see the boys, make me feel as though this world ought to know what they may enjoy if they but heed their heart and soul, which God gave them; the contented feeling and clean joy of living would surely repay them more.

Tell all the dear ladies and men folks back there I send my thoughts of them with that feeling at heart that makes us look at things pure and sweet. Drop a card to Mrs. ———— and tell her I'm sorry I did not send her that picture I promised her, but will send her one from here soon.

There is not much to write you that you do not know, of what the boys are doing at the front, the feats of bravery, the advances, the suffering, and the help and care they receive, for it's all published in the papers as soon as the government censor passes his word. So will not spoil this letter by writing something he may censor or cut out; so will have to drop off, although I could put my thoughts down forever. And I hope and pray that I may hear from you continually, that I may know what is happening at the Club.

Papers I very seldom read at all, though I may read some article some one may bring to my notice. Books, I have read thousands, it seems, yet they are never all read. But the reading of people is my hobby. I try to read the good in each one and put my trust in them. The others that I can't read, I give the benefit of the doubt, and let their actions speak for themselves.

Say!—there are my little Belgian refugees outside, and I'm going out to play with them. You know the little curly-haired girl whom I love back there; well, these tots look like her. And I love them. My heart goes out to them. Mother, and father, sisters and brothers, they have all lost. So you see, my love for them has come up ten-fold. The happy smiles on their innocent faces would bring love out of stone, I believe.

Give my love to the sweet child I saw at the Club; tell her I send her a kiss, and give my love to her mother. Also give my kindest regards to all my friends at the Club.

I remain as ever,
Yours respectfully,

P. S. Write to my friends at home and tell them to write.

Christmas Parcels for American Expeditionary Forces in Europe.

October 5, 1918.

The War Department is desirous that each man serving in the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe shall receive a remembrance from home at Christmas time, and advises that because of transportation and distribution difficulties but one parcel of standard size and weight can be sent to each. To this end arrangements have been made with the War Department whereby Christmas parcels may be mailed to members of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe under the following conditions:

1. Each soldier or other member of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe will be allowed to receive one Christmas parcel for which purpose he will be furnished, through Army channels, a "Christmas parcel label" bearing the correct name and address of the soldier or member and also the name of the person designated to mail the parcel. The labels will be prepared to serve as address labels for the parcels. The label furnished each soldier or other member of the American Expeditionary Forces will be sent by him to the person who is to mail the Christmas parcel. No Christmas parcel for members of the Expeditionary Forces in Europe will be accepted for transmission without such label.

2. All Christmas parcels must be of standard size, three (3) inches by four (4) inches by nine (9) inches, and shall not exceed three (3) pounds in weight, for which purpose cartons of the size prescribed will be distributed through the local Red Cross chapters throughout the country. No person will be furnished a carton except upon presentation of a "Christmas parcel label" received from abroad.

3. The parcels must contain no prohibitive or unmailable articles. Perishable food products are not permitted.

4. After the cartons have been filled by the persons who receive them they shall be returned to a Red Cross receiving station where inspectors appointed by the Red Cross will carefully examine each parcel and supervise its wrapping and the affixing of the "Christmas parcel label," and the necessary postage stamps, the latter to be furnished by the sender of the parcel. When the parcels have thus been packed and wrapped and otherwise prepared for transmission, the Red Cross will affix to each parcel a certificate in the form of a seal, showing that the parcel has been inspected and contains no prohibitive or unmailable matter. Such certificates will be accepted by the postal service and Army authorities as evidence that the parcels conform to the conditions prescribed and obviate the necessity of subsequent examination. The parcels must be left at the Red Cross receiving stations which will deposit them in the mails for dispatch.

5. Christmas parcels must bear the name and address of the sender and will be addressed substantially as follows:

"Christmas Box Department, Port of Embarkation, Hoboken, New Jersey.
For.....
Organization.....
American Expeditionary Forces."

Parcels so addressed will be chargeable with postage at the fourth-class or parcel post zone rate applicable between the office where mailed and Hoboken, New Jersey, to be prepaid by stamps affixed.

6. Parcels may bear inscriptions, such as "Please do not open until Christmas," "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," and the like.

7. In order to assure the arrival of Christmas parcels abroad and the delivery to the addressees by Christmas all such parcels must be mailed on or before November 20th, 1918. The foregoing does not in any way change the instructions heretofore issued regarding the acceptance of parcels up to seven pounds in weight for members of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe which contain articles sent in response to the written request of a member approved by his Regimental Commander or other officer authorized to approve such requests.

In paragraph 7 (above) you will note a reference to "instructions heretofore issued." I am enclosing herewith 5 copies of the "instructions" mentioned. These have nothing whatever to do with Christmas parcels.

Christmas Parcels for Officers and Men in the United States Naval Service.

The Navy Department has advised that parcels intended for officers and men on United States naval vessels in home waters and abroad or stationed at Naval Bases or Stations in foreign waters should conform to the following regulations:

1. Parcels may not exceed twenty (20) pounds in weight and must be so prepared for mailing that the contents can be readily examined. Substantial boxes or other suitable containers should be used.

2. The parcels must bear the name and address of the sender in the upper left corner of the address side and be addressed in the following manner:

(a) Name of addressee in full together with his rank or rating.

(b) The designation of vessel or station or naval base to which addressee is attached.

(c) "Care of Supply Officer, Fleet Supply Base, 29th St. and 3d Ave., Bush Terminal Station, Brooklyn, New York."

(d) The words "Christmas Box" or "Christmas Present."

3. Parcels prepared and addressed in accordance with the foregoing will be chargeable with postage at the fourth-class or parcel post zone rate applicable between post office where mailed and Brooklyn, New York.

4. No perishable food products other than those packed in tin containers should be inclosed in Christmas parcels.

5. Parcels may bear inscriptions such as "Please do not open until Christmas," "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With best wishes," and the like; also the names and quantities of articles inclosed together with such other marks or words as may be necessary "for purpose of description" of the articles.

6. Christmas parcels for naval officers and men should be mailed as soon as possible so as to reach Bush Terminal Station not later than November 15, 1918.

(Signed) A. M. DOCKERY,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

October 7, 1918.

Memorandum.

Regarding paragraph three of this Notice, it may be stated that these parcels, if mailed in Philadelphia, Pa., for Brooklyn, N. Y., will cost five (5) cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound; for instance, a parcel weighing twelve pounds would cost sixteen cents.

FREDERICK K. KEABLE, Treasurer.

A STATEMENT BY MR. EWING.

Our Rector and Vestry have asked me to make a statement of the financial condition of the Parish, which I will now give you in condensed form.

Last year we received from the Endowments of the Church		$ 8,951 30
Pew Rents	$5,500 00
Parochial Maintenance	2,731 14
		$ 8,231 14
Total receipts		$17,182 44
The Expenses of the Parish were		$21,917 33
Leaving a deficit of		$ 4,734 89
We have subscribers to the deficit fund who last year contributed	$2,130 00
Leaving an unpaid balance of	2,604 89
		$ 4,734 89

When I came into the Vestry in 1905 the Church was running with an annual deficit, and it has been the custom to pay it from the principal of the Endowment Fund. This was stopped. Subscriptions were then taken for a Deficit Account. At the time I succeeded Mr. Cleeman as Accounting Warden, these subscriptions, amounted to $3,900, and since I have been Warden the Endowment Fund has not been drawn on. Death has taken from the Vestry: Cleeman, Crawford, McDowell, Caldwell and Hollar, all of whom were liberal subscribers.

What we desire now is that all of our people shall know just where we stand and realize that it is our debt and do something towards its payment; this is an important matter that we should take to heart and all see what we can do to provide for our normal expenses. There is no cause for anxiety. It has never worried me, and it will not anyone when we get together and are all taking our part in it.

We have been greatly blessed, especially in the past year. We have cause to feel we are a live Parish, and should have a just pride in the work we are doing for others—in our Girls' Friendly Society, The Women's Benevolent, The Farm, The Burd School and last but greatest of all the Army and Navy Club. Our works must go on. We realize that the last four years have not been normal times and the increase in our expenses was to be expected. We must be equal to the occasion and hope to secure more takers of the envelopes (they produced $2,731 for maintenance last year), and definite pledges for the Deficit Fund.

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

I send the heartiest New Year's greeting to all of you. Like Simeon we ought to lift up our hearts in gratitude to God that we have lived to see this day. Future generations will look with envy upon us as people who lived in the midst of great movements, and were called upon to preserve high ideals. I am sure there is not an American that does not feel his heart thrilled with pride at the reception that has been given to our President, and the cordial endorsement which his words have received as he has claimed that America loves freedom unselfishly.

In the next few months our homes will be gladdened by the return of the soldiers. I do not think this coming Lent will be much of a penitential season if the boys continue to come back to us through the spring. They will receive a hearty welcome, and will return to us, I am sure, enriched by wonderful experiences.

As a church we have much to be grateful for. Our improvements and decorations have made the church very attractive, and the increase in the attendance in the morning and evening congregations is quite noticeable. I would like to inaugurate a campaign to put one hundred new names on our list as users of the envelopes. We ought to achieve that result. No one is really properly connected with a church organized like ours who is not on the envelope list. The two great lists through which the parish is administered and by which notices are sent out, are the envelope list and the list of pew holders. However, as there is hardly any pew renter who is not an envelope user, the envelope list is rapidly becoming the list of the church. The communicant who is not on that list is not a source of strength to us. There are many people who worship with us regularly, who ought to take the envelopes, and in that way become part of the organization.

The envelope system has so commended itself that a concerted effort is going to be made in the Diocese to get all communicants and church attendants enrolled in it and definitely pledged to give a certain amount, first, for the maintenance of their own church, and second, for the extension of the Kingdom of God throughout the world. As the fiscal year now begins with the first of January, I do not see why we should not begin the drive right now, and I have requested a committee of the vestry, with Mr. Reifsnyder at its head, to circularize the congregation and get pledges. I publish elsewhere in this paper the statement that Mr. Ewing made before the congregation recently. After we established the contingent fund, the church met its expenses every year until the war. Lately we have been going behind. This drift must be stopped and I am sure it can be stopped if we work together energetically and whole-heartedly. A congregation which has received such a splendid addition to its equipment and has been saved such large bills for dilapidations and repairs ought to be able to pay the expense of operating the machinery of the church. The task of raising the money to support St. Stephen's is peculiarly the vestry's task. On the other hand it is the rector's duty to stir the congregation up to build the Kingdom of God throughout the world. Our contributions to missions fall under two heads: diocesan and general. The Diocese has asked us to give for all purposes $1190.91. We are also asked to give to the general Church for all missions, Foreign, Domestic, Indian and Colored, the sum of $4954.08. I am sorry to say that I consider these figures beyond our power to reach, and I don't think that the Committee should have assessed us at such a high figure for the reason that as a down town church we have many responsibilities which are peculiar to us. For example, the rich suburban churches do not have to give out Christmas baskets, nor do they run a farm; yet these two items together cost our church about three thousand dollars. This is money raised, not for our own expenses but for benevolent objects, and yet it does not count on these apportionments, nor is it considered that because we have these expenses less ought to be asked of us. These generous contributions are rather taken as evidence of the strength of the congregation, and increase the amount that is demanded of us. Let us add together these totals that are asked of us, and then subtract what is given to the farm and the Christmas baskets; the remainder will be the amount we ought by all means to raise. Of course we should aim to give all we can and would be glad to raise the total asked, but we should not fail to raise at least $1000 more than we have given.

When I came to the church we gave to Diocesan Missions $500. Last year we contributed $790. I think that is doing pretty well, though of course I should like to do better.

Undoubtedly we ought to do more for general Missions. I know that a great many of our missionaries proclaim what seems to me a very medieval message, but we have to be broadminded. After all, the essentials that are handed on are very much the same, whatever the school of thought of the missionary. A pure-minded, unselfish follower of Jesus Christ in any community must be a source of good. I think it is all the better if he is a married man, maintaining a Christian home, for I think the most manifest proof of the beneficence of Christianity is the Christian home. I don't wonder that pagan women are attracted to a religion that has put women into the position that they find the missionary's wife in her husband's rectory.

I am very grateful to the congregation for their indulgence in the matter of visiting. I called the other day on one of the older members of the congregation, to whom I thought I owed special attention by reason of her long connection with the church, and after a most cordial greeting she told me that I ought not to take upon myself the task of such visiting; that it was not expected. I was very much touched by her thoughtfulness. I am anxious to be of service, and to be on hand where there is sickness or distress, but it has always seemed to me after a congregation and their minister have become fairly well acquainted, a round of formal visits, so many a year, ought not to be kept up. We all live under such pressure nowadays that according to my experience, in four out of five visits, the servant will report that the family are not at home. I have especially needed this indulgence this past year because of the demands of the Inter-Church Federation. This organization has taken a great deal of time and energy, yet I have thought them wisely expended. Our churches are feeling their way towards closer association. For my part I do not think we will ever get together by Commissions on Faith and Order, by definitions, by formulating confessions that will be considered the essence of the Christian faith. The critics have done their work very successfully, and have destroyed the fences that separated us into different bodies. Hardly anyone now believes that a certain amount of water is necessary to the validity of baptism. The Presbyterians no longer regard the deterministic philosophy of St. Paul, Augustine and Calvin as an essential part of Christianity. Our own Church is obliged to come out frankly with the admission that nobody is expected to accept Episcopacy as a divine institution, since all that we are asking is that it be adopted as an ancient and historic mode of government. Most people are willing to grant that Episcopacy is the best form of government if we can only get rid of this divine right theory, which has been a veritable Nessus shirt to poison and inflame the wearers. The world, I think, likes Episcopacy; it is prelacy that it can't endure.

But it is one thing to remove barriers, and another thing to draw the different bodies together. The natural attraction is some common task. The Inter-Church Federation endeavors to grapple with these common tasks. There are a number of great problems which are asking the churches to help in their solution. One is the League to Enforce Peace. When the churches beat the drum and enlisted the men for the war, they were highly praised for their effective co-operation. They ought to be still more efficacious in arousing enthusiasm for an alliance of the nations that will make such wars impossible in the future.

Since Christ told us that the fruits would be the test of his followers, the churches ought to interest themselves that the fruits of righteousness be made manifest in our city government. Experts assure us that a city governed under such laws and administrative machinery as ours, is bound to be badly governed. We need a new charter, and it can be readily secured at this time if the people unite in demanding it. It is a real reproach to our Christianity that such a large proportion of the non-voting male population is found in the churches. It will be the task of the Federation to arouse these church members to their civic duties.

The account of Old St. Stephen's Club banquet in December is published elsewhere. It was a great success. I do not think that many of us realised that we were such a large band of workers. I have decided that we make a mistake in not inviting people more earnestly to associate themselves with the church. Where people are only nominally connected with other churches and take no real part in the church life, we are not injuring the other churches by taking away from them such members, but we are helping the persons whom we bring into more congenial surroundings. I have been astonished at the way in which a great many people will continue in churches where they find themselves in ceaseless opposition to all the religious influences around them. Often they will tell me they don't like the theology, they don't care for the ethical tone, they are offended by this or that in the church they attend, and yet they will stay on in it, sometimes for social reasons, sometimes from mere inertia, or lack of courage to take a definite stand. I think that people ought not to belong to churches that are not helpful to them. They ought to go where they get an impulse toward a better life, or strength and comfort to bear the inevitable shocks of our daily struggles.

At the Bishop's own suggestion the date of Confirmation has been postponed. The class will, however, be assembled, and will meet on Friday at eight o'clock until further notice. No one commits himself by attending the sessions. If it is impossible for an adult to attend I will be very glad to talk with such a person privately.

I could but feel as I looked over the church at the morning and evening congregations on the last Sunday of the Old Year—the evening congregation being within forty of the number, in the morning—that we had every reason to be of good courage, and to be thankful. May God lead us and preserve us through this year, and bring us in undiminished numbers and increased strength to 1920. We have only four more years until we celebrate the Church's Centenary.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The November meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held the 21st, after celebration of Holy Communion in the Church. There were twenty-six members present including two new members.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $57.28 and Miss Magee reported having collected $150.00 towards the United Offering.

By motion, Miss Townsend was made an honorary member of the Indian's Hope Committee. She has been a faithful delegate for several years, but sent in her resignation on account of illness.

At the December meeting, held the 19th, there were thirty-two members present. The Treasurer reported a balance of $310.51 and Mr. Keable announced that the collection from the Presentation Service amounted to $123.45. Half of this was given to Miss Magee for the United Offering and half to the Woman's Auxiliary. By motion the Treasurer was ordered to give that received by the Auxiliary ($61.72) to the Diocesan Committee.

Miss Bell, our President, had sent out invitations to a tea to be given after the meeting at which Miss Magee was the guest of honor. A good many women active in church work outside of our Parish were invited and came. It was a delightful Christmas party.

Mrs. Garland, Mrs. Grammer and Mrs. Keable were in the receiving line with Miss Bell and Miss Magee. Miss Emily Bell and Mrs. McKeehan were at the tea table.

The Girls' Friendly Society.

Sometimes a name or a phrase loses some of its significance owing to its frequent use. We do not stop to think of all the name implies. This may be true of the Girls' Friendly Society. Many of us know of the existence of such an organization, but I doubt if we all know very much about what it does. The Motto of the Society is "Bear ye one another's burdens," and St. Stephen's Branch certainly is doing its best to live up to the motto.

During the last few months the members bought a Liberty Bond and presented it to the Beneficial Fund of the Branch.

About a hundred sweaters and other woolens have been knitted and given to the Club for Enlisted Men.

Books have been sent to Camps and fully 500 articles consisting of Hospital Supplies have been sent to the Red Cross.

Last month as usual the girls acted as Santa Claus Aides and prepared 50 large stockings and 29 additional packages for the children at the Philadelphia General Hospital. The stockings contain such things as would delight any youngster. Of course all the things could not be put even in extra large stockings, so Miss Dollie or the Cho-Cho had to be tied outside. And what a jolly time the girls had filling the stockings! The Parish House resounded with their cheerful noise.

On Dec. 30th Mrs. Lucas gave a dinner at the New Century Club to the Girls' Friendly Society, including the husbands of the married members. Covers were laid for 142. Miss Shellenburger, Miss Tweedie, and Miss Alverta Van Dusen assisted Mrs. Lucas in receiving.

Between the courses Miss Hess gave some recitations in a very enjoyable manner, and songs were sung under the leadership of Mrs. D. D. Wood.

Towards the close of the very delightful evening the girls expressed their love for Mrs. Lucas by singing with much feeling a Toast composed for the occasion by one of its members.

The Sunday School Festival.

We had another truly happy Christmas in the Sunday School. The Sunday before Christmas the Story of the Birth of Jesus was told again and illustrated by beautiful lantern slides.

The Festival was held on Thursday, Dec. 26th and proved to be a delightful occasion. A musical play called "Elsie's Christmas Dream" was given under the direction of Mr. Streaker, ably assisted by Miss Nodine, who served as musical director. Elsie, a young girl, on Christmas morning falls asleep under the influence of the dream man and sees all the nursery rhyme children of her younger days, including the fairies and old Santa Claus, who does not come in a sleigh as she expects but in an airplane with sailors and soldiers and other surprises from over the seas.

It was astonishing how well the various characters were taken by the little folks.

Mr. Streaker and Miss Nodine deserve much praise for training the children for their parts.

As Mrs. John Coats Browne has attended St. Stephen's Church for a number of years, and is a much beloved member of the Benevolent Society, we think many of the congregation will be interested to hear of her work. She writes:

"You have asked me to tell you the nature of the War Emergency work I have undertaken. It is to organize the instruction and work of a training unit of the Army Nursing School in Fort Riley, Kansas. The students are all well educated women; the college graduates are remitted nine months of the three years' course, one year of the course is spent in a civilian hospital. Thousands of applications poured in. The principal trouble has been to find experienced women to take charge and instruct." This is exactly what Mrs. Browne is—an experienced woman who knows how to instruct them and after her sorrow it must be a comfort to her to feel how useful she is in this great work.

The new hymn boards are in course of construction and will soon be in place.

The Parish Visitor's Report.

Many people thought this year that on account of the general prosperity and high wages, there would be no further need of the usual Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, but upon inquiry I learned that at Hog Island a man who received four dollars a day had work only five and a half days, and he had a family of four to support; and there were many more like him.

At any rate the baskets we sent out were received with joy and brightened many a home on Thanksgiving and Christmas Day. On Thanksgiving we sent seven baskets, and on Christmas our number was eighty-six.

Mrs. D. D. Wood telephoned that she would send two baskets to families named by us; also jellies to a Shut-in. I called upon the three later to see whether they were received, and I have scarcely ever beheld such joy and gladness. Truly such appreciation is good to behold.

During the influenza epidemic we had forty-five cases in the Mothers' Meeting, and the Sunday School, with five deaths. One mother's death from the influenza left a family of three young girls who are trying to keep up the home. We sent them a basket, and when I called to see if it had arrived safely, I found the youngest daughter had it hidden in a dark corner of the little room, while on a blackboard she had written in large letters: "A great big surprise for you. Guess what?" to greet each of the other two sisters on their return from work. Can you not just see and feel their happiness when they unpacked that basket and found two fat, young, tender chickens, celery, cranberries, cabbage, carrots, turnips, white and sweet potatoes, rice, tea, sugar, apples, oranges, a large mince pie, and Bliss! a box of candy! !

So each basket was filled, and many, many prayers of gratitude ascended to the Throne of Grace, and many blessings were besought for all those in St. Stephen's Church who made such happiness possible.

The faith of little children is a very sweet thing, but sometimes it is hard to enable them to realize their hopes, as in this case: The Sunday before Christmas a little boy and girl in our Sunday School came to me in distress. Their mother, who had gone to the store to buy them some underwear had her pocket-book stolen, and they wanted me to ask Dr. Grammer if he would please try to stop people from stealing on the streets.

I now ask him.

Respectfully submitted,
K. H. Lewis.

Christmas Dinner for the Poor of the Parish—1918.

To the Parishioners and Contributors:

Your Committee regrets that it is unable to render a financial account of the dinner for the January issue of the Parish News as it is unable at present to secure the account for the purchases of the articles.

Miss Kate Lewis, Church Worker, distributed 86 baskets, each basket containing 15 articles, as follows:

Oranges,
Onions,
Apples,
Sugar,
Cabbage,
Carrots,
White potatoes,
Sweet potatoes,
Turnips,
Celery,
Rice,
Tea,
Candy,
Poultry,
Mince pie.

Each basket contained sufficient articles for a Christmas dinner for at least twelve to fifteen persons, giving a Christmas dinner to about 1,290.

Through the usual annual Christmas kindness of Mr. Clement Richstein the Committee was able to add a large number of pounds of poultry to each basket; also through the kindness of Mr. Craig Atmore each basket contained a large mince pie.

Yours respectfully,

Howard Reifsnyder,
James Carrigan,
Joseph B. Van Dusen, Jr.,
Dinner Committee.

King's Daughters (Whatsoever Circle).

The King's Daughters (Whatsoever Circle) will have their next meeting Jan. 15th. No meeting was held on the 31st, it being New Year's Eve. They have finished their work for the Red Cross, and donations of flowers and Christmas baskets and other groceries have been given to the poor.

This Circle has missed very much one of their faithful workers, Miss Bella Townsend, who has been sick so long and who grieves that she cannot be with us this coming winter.

St. Stephen's Club

On Tuesday evening, December 17th, one hundred and eight of the workers in St. Stephen's Club sat down to dinner at the City Club. As the various committees work on different days or evenings, the little groups seldom meet, and the evening offered an unusual opportunity for getting acquainted.

Dinner was served promptly at six, in order to permit the committee on duty that evening to leave in good time. Between the courses some fine music was rendered by the soloists of St. Stephen's choir, under the leadership of Mr. Thunder.

At the conclusion of the meal, Dr. Grammer, who presided at the Speakers' Table, conferred a medal of honorary membership on the speaker of the evening, Mr. Robert D. Dripps, Chairman of the Committee of National Defense. Mrs. Dripps and Miss Anna J. Magee were also made honorary members.

Mr. Dripps spoke in the highest terms of the work of St. Stephen's Club, both as to its extent and its character and ideals. He said its work had been excelled by no other organization of its kind in the city, and incidentally mentioned that Philadelphia stood first in the record of War Camp Community Service, and that committees from Chicago and Boston had visited us in order to study our methods. He reminded his hearers that for some time to come there would be urgent need of just such work as the Club is doing, with the large number of men still stationed at League Island, and with the wounded and convalescent soldiers who were coming to the city in increasing numbers. Mr. Luffbarry and Mr. Calwell spoke briefly and in happy vein, dwelling on the benefit which the Club has conferred, not only on the guests but on the workers themselves.

As the hour was comparatively early, a number of the diners visited the Club, some of them seeing the evening entertainment for the first time. It is said that the day after the armistice was signed, a lady who had been furnished with wool by the Red Cross, came to their rooms, laid down an unfinished sweater, drawing out her needles, and said, "There! the war's over, and I'm through!" The helpers at St. Stephen's Club realize that the time to lay down their knitting has not yet come, and that they are in honor bound to complete the task which they have so successfully carried on.

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

It seems to be the fortune of St. Stephen's to anticipate general movements. I notice that an effort is being made to have a memorial service to Theodore Roosevelt on February 9th, four weeks after our memorial service.

The Diocese is getting ready to wage an Every Member Campaign in the interest of the envelope system. Our committee has already been appointed, and its appeal is in your hands. I am hoping for large results. The first step, of course, must be to secure more users of the envelopes. For this purpose cards have been placed in the pews. I want everybody who attends St. Stephen's to take the envelopes. There are many people who come to our church who do not care to ally themselves with the Episcopal Church permanently. It may be they are only in the city for a time, and prefer some other church in the community in which they live, but while they are in the city they are attendants of St. Stephen's. Very well; this is a way in which they may become in a sense members of St. Stephen's; they may become its supporters by signing this card and receiving these envelopes. They will be numbered among the maintainers of the church. They will be on our mailing list and receive our literature. They will be counted as belonging to our fellowship; they will be co-workers in the common cause.

It has been a great source of encouragement that for a number of Sundays past, numbers of people have come in after the service and asked to be put on the system. I feel sure that between now and Easter we can add one hundred new names to the list if we go about it energetically. That is the goal I would like to set up. We must not grow weary of a little reiteration here. For several Sundays I must ring the changes on this subject. Every communicant, of course, ought to be on the envelope list. Everyone who is old enough to assume his baptismal vows and stand up as a professing Christian, claiming the full right of membership in the Christian Church, ought to contribute to its support according to his ability. But we must not stop with the communicants. There are numbers of people who sit in our galleries and join in our worship, who ought to be brought into closer fellowship with us. I value the envelope system fully as much for the tie that it establishes as for the additional income that it secures for the church and its charities. I feel perfectly certain that anyone who will accept the system will take a new attitude toward the church; he will no longer speak of it to me as "your church," it will become "our church." He will have a part in the work, a pride in its achievements, and a sense of responsibility for its success.

Just as it is important that the church should set itself a standard for its work, so it is important for the individual. His giving ought not to be a mere matter of impulse, an emotion dependent on his feeling after a sermon or a moving appeal. We ought to sit down and estimate our income and calmly decide how much we think we ought to give. Everyone now is adopting a budget system. It is realized to be good not only for institutions and business, but also for the individual. In every well devised budget system there is a certain amount set apart for rational enjoyment, and a certain amount for religious and charitable uses. Now if you will put the amount down that you decide on for this latter purpose on the card, your conscience will be assisted very much. If a man wants to bind himself to any course of action, it is a wise procedure to commit himself. We all know that it is very easy to revise and modify decisions that have never been announced. Your communication will be regarded as confidential. You help your conscience by making us your confidants.

Beginning with a few congregations, this envelope system has spread over all the churches. It is not a peculiarity of the Episcopal Church, but is found in all the Protestant churches. In the Episcopal Church it is not confined to one class of church; the richest churches in the city are adopting it as well as the poorest, and they are adopting it in all its features, signing the pledge card. Many of the churches also send a note at the end of three months to those who have pledged themselves and have forgotten their pledges, reminding them of their engagement, and asking them if they cannot be more faithful. It may be laid down as a general axiom that just as teachers are failures who do not ask much of their pupils, and do not value their subjects enough to make serious demands for them, so churches are failures that do not value their task sufficiently to call upon their members earnestly for assistance, and press upon their consciences the claims of God's work in all departments.

The system in the modified form in which we have been using it, without any pledge, has proven of great value to the parish. Indeed, it has been the basis of such measure of prosperity as I have achieved in these latter years, and if every regular attendant on the church will coöperate, and all will make a definite engagement to give regularly according to their ability, then I am sure we shall enter upon a new era of larger prosperity and greater spiritual power. Year by year I have marked with pleasure the growing cordiality and fraternity of the congregation. Strangers have commented on it, and said they find it the most friendly church in the city. By the steady working of this system a new spirit of earnestness, of strenuosity, of zeal will descend upon us.

I am composing this editorial on a stormy night. According to my notebook I ought to be present at a meeting of the Charter Revision Committee, but I am afraid of risking a cold by exposing myself to the elements. These public activities have absorbed a great deal of my time for the past year, but I do not think that my efforts have been in vain. I feel that the congregation whose agent I regard myself in these matters will be gratified as the measure of success which has been achieved by the Inter-Church Federation becomes manifest. It is as the President of that Federation that I am a member of the Charter Revision Committee. I suppose every intelligent citizen of Philadelphia realizes that reform is impossible in our city unless we get a better charter. We must have a smaller Council, of one chamber. The world is more and more coming to the opinion, as a result of its experience, that two chambers are excellent for delay and concealment. Between the two, responsibilities can be shifted, and important measures can be lost. Certainly in the case of our city there is no occasion for such cumberous procedure.

I notice that in one of our prominent papers a popular essayist who purveys agreeable information for the tea table has undertaken to read a lecture to the ministers. He thinks that we are hysterical and inaccurate. These remarks are, of course, intended to apply to the Federation's appeal to the Christian voters of the city to improve our civic conditions, and I suppose particularly to the utterances of the various ministerial associations in which they assert their confidence in the motives and integrity of Dr. Delk, and their pleasure that the conditions of the police force can be tested in the courts. Surely such admonitions from the pen of this essayest are a boomerang that must return and smite him on the head. How does he know that we speak without information, as he implies? The fact of the matter is, we have had committees attending the courts, and have had official reports of various experts, some of them confidential, but all of them with the highest authority. Our general position has been justified by the conviction of five policemen for interfering with the freedom of the police in the Fifth Ward. I have on my table an appeal from a policemen's protective association of 3,500 members, asking that the force may be delivered from the domination of the politicians. The extraordinary revelations now being made in the trial before Judge Audenried ought to prove to the whole community that the ministers know what they are talking about. On one occasion in a hearing before Parliament, somebody flatly contradicted Cardinal Manning in some statement he had made concerning the moral conditions of the part of the city in which he lived. The Cardinal replied: "I have been hearing confessions in that part of the city for some thirty years. I would like to know whether my contradictor has any equal source of information."

In addition to these official reports the clergy in their pastoral relations come in contact with a great deal of sin and misfortune. I would like to know what equal source of information is open to the agreeable essayist who lectures us upon our inaccuracy and our premature judgment. I would not publish all this in the Parish Paper, but what other means have we open to us when the paper that makes the animadversion refuses to publish our reply? Fortunately for Philadelphia the pulpits are free, and we have some papers that will speak out.

But in talking about this campaign for civic righteousness I have wandered too far from the storm without and my thoughts as I watched it. I could but think as I looked out the window and saw the lights of the Gladstone near by, and the homes around, what a helpful exercise of the imagination it was to let one's thoughts roam abroad. Here we are, comfortably housed in this vast antheap of a city, important enough in our own eyes, and how small a part we are, after all, of the country! This rain, which here falls upon the roofs and our paved streets is dropping into the river and the bay, on the plowed fields, on the great mountain forest which, like a sponge, is gathering it into its leaves and mosses, storing it up into its springs. Then our thought roams still abroad, over the vast continent, some of it watching the sun set into the Pacific, while it is night here. I do not wonder that Carlyle and Browning were both very fond of walking out at night. How little we would know of the universe if it were not for this curtain of night! The great planets would all be hidden from us, and the splendid constellations. This darkness that hides us from one another reveals the universe. Is not that the way it is with sorrow and trouble? The great spiritual realities which we never have appreciated disclose themselves in the hours of stress and storm. If anyone descends in the shaft of a deep mine on a dark day, he will notice that the stars come out. So for many people, only when they are carried down into the depths of sorrow do the stars of immortality shine out. The world believes more fervently in a life to come since this war began. As the men have dug themselves down in the trenches they have seen new lights in the skies.

I think it is well to exercise the imagination at times, and try to realize what is going on in this world contemporaneously. Now while we sit in our warm, lighted rooms, the engineer is peering out of his cab window as he rushes through the rain, the pilot on the river is looking for the range lights, the sailors are keeping their night watches on the stormy sea, and all around this wide world people are struggling and grieving and rejoicing, and going through those manifold and chequered experiences which spin that parti-colored web which we call life. How wonderful it all is! To the skeptic it is a maze without a plan; it is a vast welter of things. But to the believer in God it is a great battlefield on which victories are being won, and the kingdom of order and righteousness slowly pushing back chaos and sin. In this great fight we may regard St. Stephen's as a fort, the people as a regiment, occupying it. May God bless us, and give us discipline, order, system, and above all, give us zeal and love! Let that be our motto, speaking the truth in love. Nothing in the world is so powerful as love. The great trouble with so many reformers is that they are not able to fight against sin without despising the sinner, whereas the Christian attitude is to fight against sin and to pity the sinner. I thing that ought to be the attitude of our church.

As Tiny Tim says in the Famous Christmas Carol, "God bless us, every one."

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

At the January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary the Treasurer reported a balance of $416.51. Miss Magee has collected $119.00 during the last month for the United Offering.

After our usual reports of the various committees we had an interesting address by Rev. Charles W. Shriner, of the Church Farm School, at Glen Lock, Pa. The aim of the school is to take boys from 12 to 15 years of age who have no way to be educated or for any reason need just such a home. They hope to keep them five years and teach them one of five trades—farming, floriculture, carpentering, cabinetmaking or engineering—and give them the equipment of a high school education.

A scholarship of $200.00 finances a boy one year.

BEULAH H. HOLLAR, Secy.

Through inadvertence the name of Mr. Clement Restein, one of our most generous contributors to the Christmas baskets, was incorrectly spelled in our January number. We make the correction, with apologies for the error.

The Confirmation Service will be held on Tuesday, March 4th, at 8 P. M., when Bishop Rhinelander will officiate.

Girls' Friendly Society.

The appeal from the Philadelphia City Mission was called to the attention of this Society on Monday, January 20th, and immediately there was something doing. Just one week later over 170 garments had been turned in, and more on the way. Some of the girls clubbed together and purchased 17 pairs of new stockings, others contributed 44 pieces of underwear, 22 dresses, 18 coats, and three skirts for women. Ten dollars in cash was sent to the City Mission. Garments may be sent to the G. F. S., at the Parish House, or to Mrs. Griffith, at 225 South Third Street.

Special services are being held at the Episcopal Hospital on Tuesday evenings, beginning the second week in January and continuing until Easter. January 28th, the Associate will conduct the service and afterward a short organ recital will be given by Mrs. Keable and vocal solos by Miss E. J. Bacon.

At the January meeting of the Vestry, Mr. Charles S. Calwell was elected a member of that body.

Senior Lieut. Lewis Gouverneur Smith, U. S. N.

READ IN CHURCH, JANUARY 19, 1919.

More than two months have elapsed since the armistice was granted. Yet the list of our losses still increases. One of our members was taken from us by the death of Senior Lieutenant Lewis Gouverneur Smith, which was announced in the papers this week. Though in recent years he had not been able to attend our services, his name was on our Communicants' list, retained there by his special request, since he had a loyal affection for the church in which he had been confirmed, and cherished the purpose of resuming his attendance at its worship, when he made his home in the city. He was the son of Lewis L. Smith, of the Philadelphia bar, and of Gertrude Gouverneur Smith, who will be remembered in the congregation as an active member of our Woman's Auxiliary.

His gold star will, therefore, be added to our service flag, and when in due time we erect some permanent memorial of those who went out from this congregation to serve in the great war, his name will be placed there among those who gave their life for the cause. It is fitting that he should have such record in this community and in an Episcopal church, for he was closely bound by descent to this old Commonwealth and to our historic communion. Born in this city, trained in its schools and its great university, he was a product of its best influences, and was united to his environment by many far-reaching and close-holding ties.

At the stage when I knew him best in the Confirmation Class and in his home, he was a bright, sociable boy, loyally attached to his church, and unusually friendly with the rector. His most manifest traits were his alert interest, his friendly responsiveness and his agreeable sociability. As he grew older, he developed qualities of initiative, daring enterprise and leadership that a chance acquaintance would never have suspected beneath his bright agreeability. Within two years after his graduation from the university, while he was still only 22 years old, he was at the head of a successful and enterprising firm of his own organization. The same dash and initiative were displayed in his relation to the war. As early as 1916 he joined the Naval Reserve, and when America entered the war, he enlisted at once in active service, going as a machinist's mate on the submarine patrol on the Delaware. Selected for the first class in intensive training at Annapolis, he was detailed at the end of the course in September, 1917, for foreign service on the U. S. Submarine Destroyer Rowan. In this peculiarly dangerous and arduous service he reached the grade of Senior Lieutenant.

All his prospects were full of the brightest promise, all his plans were laid, eager hands were stretched out to welcome him, when he was washed overboard on January 7th, somewhere off the coast of Spain. Deeply do we sympathize with his family, smitten so suddenly, in the midst of our rejoicings over victory, with such an unexpected bereavement.

We can only stay ourselves with the thought that with him, all is well. He ran his course bravely, and now enjoys the reward. He was faithful in the battle of life, and the Great Captain will now use him on some larger, higher service. We can only remind ourselves that as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are God's ways higher than our ways. We can only resolve that such gallant lives shall neither be forgotten nor wasted, that their memory shall long be piously and gratefully revered, and their example cherished and by the grace of God made potent in the generations to come.

A Letter from Lieut. R. T. Boyd, Jr.

November 24, 1918.

DEAR DAD:

This is Dad's letter, that is my letter to my Dad for there are perhaps a couple of million more of us writing to their Dads on this day, 1918, that their letters may reach the States on Christmas Day.

First, let me wish you a very Merry Christmas, and though this is supposed to be strictly a Dad's letter, I think it is proper to wish Mother the same for this is perhaps the only letter that will have any chance of reaching you on the festive day. Yes, Dad, I think this should be a very happy Christmas all over the world, for it is the first in four years that has not been saddened by war. Of course, many homes are saddened this day by the loss of those who have given their lives on the field of battle, but even they can be comforted with the thought that their dear ones have not died in vain, but to win the greatest war in the history of the world, and crush the most damnable foe that has ever risen against civilization.

As all censorship rules have been lifted I am going to confine this letter to telling you some first-hand information regarding the foe we have been fighting, the work of our army and our squadron as I believe that this would be about as interesting as anything.

First, for fear the last two or three of my letters have not reached you, I am going to repeat a little and I know you will bear the same story twice. Our squadron, which was attached to the First Army, has been transferred to the Third Army, or the Army of Occupation, which is made up of 250,000 picked troops. All divisions and units are those who have seen the longest service abroad, and we are now on our march to the Rhine. Our present location is Pretin, France, which is about three miles from Spincourt, and two days ago we arrived in this little village as our first stopping place en route to the Rhine.

Eight days after the outbreak of the war (in a previous letter I said two months) the Huns occupied this town, and it has been in their hands up until six days ago when they evacuated in accordance with the terms of the armistice. For four years and two months this land has been under German rule and now for the first time it has been freed. Oh, Dad, if you could only hear the stories of the poor women and civilians that have lived through these four years of hell; if you could only see their joy of freedom and their love of Americans, it would do your heart good. They are dazed at the realization that it is over and the Boche driven from their land. Their hour has come and well do they deserve it.

The world will never know, nor has it ever known, the hellish things done by the Germans in this war. We have read much but now I have seen and heard it with my eyes and ears. At home you will never know what war is, for all the reading you can ever do will not bring before your eyes the figures of those who have now gained their liberty. All the words that writers can turn into pictures will never bring before your eyes, cities and towns, forests and hills that have been laid to waste by shells and powder. Nay, even we Americans over here can never truly realize the hell of this war, for it has not been our land that has been razed to the ground, and, thank God, it has not been our mothers and sisters who have been forced to live at the point of Hun kultur.

In 1914 when the Huns first came into this town there was a wagon load of French wounded on the roadside which the troops were unable to take with them because of their speedy retreat. And how did the Boche treat them? A fire was made under the wagon and their bodies burned. One man, wounded in the arm, fell out and they merely picked him up and threw him on the burning coals. The prisoners that they took placed their hands upon a block and their hands were cut off at the wrist.

Downstairs in this little old house there is a woman about forty years of age, and what has been her lot? Since 1914 until last Saturday she has been forced to work in the fields under armed guards from 6 A. M. until 9 P. M., in rain, snow, on Christmas, New Year's and, in fact, every day of the year. If sick, she was put in prison, and if she refused to work her lot would have been death.

For four years these people have been sent food by America through Belgium, and have they received it? Yes, a small portion after the Huns stole all they wanted for themselves. The family in this house have gone months at a time without a bed or a place to sleep because the Boche took everything, and they have been forced to do anything and everything, without a cent in return. These facts yes, first-hand facts, are but a drop in the bucket, but they represent German kultur, and now that the tables have been turned they have asked us to send them food to help them out. Dr. Solf begs that we lessen the armistice terms lest they be brought to hardships. I don't know what America's answer will be, but ours is, "let them starve."

Father, I have said perhaps enough about that which I suppose should be left untold, now that the war is over, but you at home should know the facts as we see them.

Now, to tell you a little about our squadron. As you know we were the First Army Observation, now the Third Army. We worked direct from the headquarters of the First Army and our work consisted of taking pictures of the whole sector previous and during an attack. Our planes were Salmsons, a French plane, carrying a pilot and observer. It carried three guns, one a Vickers in the front and two Lewis in the rear, making a flying speed between 90 and 120 miles per hour. Our squadron has had great success with these planes and not once during its six months of operation on the American front have we had one brought down in flames. As to the number of our casualties, I can say nothing, for censorship still prohibits us to speak on that subject.

But it's over now, and the world can spend this Christmas rejoicing, for the fruits of victory are ours, and even though we may have to camp on the Rhine and many of us will have to remain in France for sometime to come, the worst is over and the enemy of civilization has been beaten and defeated. The rope which Germany tried to stretch around the world has choked out her life, and may it continue to hold her in death for many years to come.

So here's wishing you just the happiest Christmas ever, and may this time next year find us all together again.

With lots of love and best wishes,

I am your son,

ROBERT.

An Appeal from the Philadelphia City Mission.

The City Mission pleads for clothes, both new and worn. Do you realize that the recent epidemic left a death rate greater than war casualties; and in the majority of cases, it was the home-maker or home-keeper who died, leaving little children fatherless or motherless, often both, and without adequate clothing to face the winter?

You know that the City Mission does more relief work among the poor than any other society; and the Mission visitors not only relieve—wherever possible—the physical needs, but get in touch with the minds and souls of those they are trying to help.

To some of us, the City Mission has represented only a big Bureau of Information, or an "office" to which one applied for entrance to institutions. But it is vastly more than that, and has possibilities of a wonderful scope, if sufficient help is given. We need principally clothing for children and infants, but please don't forget that bigger boys and girls also wear underclothing—or should. Women, too, often need that same practical help. Won't you sew for us this Winter? Always bear in mind that the City Mission is part of the Church, and while we help every unfortunate who appeals to us, it is the parishes of our own Diocese that should furnish us with the means to offer that help.

Please remember us in your prayers—and your work.

Sincerely yours,

MRS. W. O. GRIFFITH,

St. Stephen's Club

St. Nazaire, France, Jan. 2, 1919.

Old St. Stephen's Club of Philadelphia, Pa.:

I am taking the honor of writing to you a few lines of friendship. As a member of your Club I think it is my duty to write to you. Really what I miss most since I left the States, are the pleasant evenings I spent at your clubrooms. I for one recommend your Club as being the best place in Philadelphia for any man in uniform to spend his leisure time.

What interested me most of all are the willing workers that helped your Club to be so well known. Even over here in St. Nazaire, France, I hear different boys talk of your pleasant and untiring workers.

You may show this letter to anyone whom may be interested in what I am writing, and really, you know, if we young fellows of the Army and Navy did not like your treatment we would not brag about you so.

Hoping this letter finds you enjoying the most pleasant times in your hard work and may you always be thought of in later years to come. I will close for the present time.

Respectfully yours,

RALPH CORRIGAM,

A copy of a letter written by Calvin L. Lewis, Esq., Philadelphia Director of the War Camp Community Service to Old St. Stephen's Club a letter of great interest to every worker of Old St. Stephen's Club:

January 27, 1919.

MR. ANDREW LUFFBARRY,
Chairman of the General Committee of Old St. Stephen's Club, Philadelphia.

My Dear Mr. Luffbarry:

I am writing to say to you that War Camp Community Service has every reason to be grateful to Old St. Stephen's Club for the splendid work it has done during the past year in behalf of the men in the service. My attention has been brought to your annual report which shows that you entertained during the year 1918, 162,000 men. This is a great record and one that you and Philadelphia both should be proud of.

Will you permit me, as representative of the Commissions on Training Camp Activities, to congratulate you and to thank you in behalf of these Commissions for this splendid work?

I would be derelict in my duty, however, if I did not at this time say to you that our work is not yet over, and in the judgment of many it will be eighteen months or two years before we can begin to slacken up. Surveys that we have recently made in this city and in other cities indicate that the Service Clubs are more needed and more used than at any time since the war began. Doctor Shippen, on January 3rd, wrote: "The Atlantic City conference brought out clearly the fact that the work of the welfare clubs is still a necessity, perhaps more than ever needed and that we must look forward to an extensive work for at least one year." Mr. Braucher, in a recent letter to our organiaztion, says: "We are all part of a great organization that has accepted the sacred trust for the fighting men of America. We can not lay down our task any more than the soldiers can lay down their arms until this is completed. I appeal to each worker in the name of the service which has become sacred to all of us, to stand by this service until our task shall have been completed;" and Woodrow Wilson, himself, recently wrote: "The Federal Board is commanded by law to develop the capabilities of each man so that he may again take his place in the ranks of our great civilian army. The coöperation and interest of our citizens is essential to this program of duty, justice and humanity. It is not a charity. It is merely the payment of a draft of honor which the United States of America accepted when it selected these men, and took them in their health and strength to fight the battles of the Nation. They have fought the good fight; they have kept the faith; and they have won. Now we keep faith with them, and every citizen is indorser on the general obligation."

I have no fear that Old St. Stephen's will become one of the laggards, but I want you to know what our leaders' opinions on the general question are. With hearty thanks for your previous coöperation and with best wishes for future successes, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

CALVIN L. LEWIS,
Director.

The Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

The chief task of our parish just now is this "Every Member Canvass." As I said from the chancel, it has often been charged against the Liberal element in our Church that its members cannot work together. Undoubtedly we have been extreme individualists, everyone wanting to go his own way. This has been a source of weakness. One of the great lessons of the war has been the duty of greater coördination in the various departments of life. We must develop a social conscience and act with more deference to the general judgment. The churches of our whole country have given their approval to this envelope system. Our own church has swung into line, and our own diocese is endeavoring to persuade everyone to coöperate. I hope that we may be able to say that in St. Stephen's Church one hundred per cent. of the members accepted the system and agreed to coöperate with it in some fashion. The Committee is quite willing to accept a card with some modification of the pledge as may seem best to the signer. I believe that no one can adopt the system without finding it a helpful influence. It is pleasant to realize that one has agreed to give a certain amount and is fulfilling his stipulation. That text "Let everyone give as he is disposed in his heart," is to be understood as addressed to people who are at heart of one mind and of one spirit, and are all anxious for the same things, and eager to present a united front. When the new envelopes are received the old envelopes are to be thrown into the waste basket. The new system, it is to be observed, will end on the last day of December, and after that time the carton will contain envelopes for a year. In meeting with the Committee the other day I learned that only about one-half of the envelope users had as yet responded. I hope that in a few Sundays all will respond. We shall follow the method of other parishes in the Diocese and have a canvass of those who have not answered.

Confirmation will be on Tuesday evening, March 4th. It is the first time we have ever had a confirmation on a weekday; I hope we will have a fair attendance. For several years we have been unfortunate in the time at which confirmation has come with us, either just before Christmas or just after Christmas. I wish a regular time could be fixed. The Bishop has made a commendable effort to distribute these visitations around fairly, so that the larger parishes should not have an undue advantage, but thus far the system has not worked helpfully for St. Stephen's.

The names of those who have signed the attendants' cards will be given elsewhere. We have had, as you will notice, about 67 signers. I am hopeful that we can bring the number up to a hundred. I am sure that no one signs a card without feeling more closely drawn to the church. I have received a letter from a Commander of the U. S. Navy, in which he says, "Please accept my thanks for the services and sermons I have heard in St. Stephen's. If I were stationed in Philadelphia I should avail myself of your invitation and become an associate member." That is a very pretty acknowledgment from a visitor. I have heard so much about the attention that the occupier of the pulpit ought to pay to the people who sit in the pew that it is very pleasant to find some one who sits in the pew thinking how he can encourage and cheer the man who stands in the pulpit.

I am very much indebted to those zealous members who assist me in getting signatures from attendants. That is the way to make a church grow.

I call your attention to the list of Lenten speakers. We are very happy in having secured such men. It would not seem Lent unless Bishop Garland and Bishop Talbot opened the series of addresses for us. Bishop Thurston's addresses are made doubly valuable by his loving personality, and our realization of the fine and self-denying work that he is doing in Oklahoma. Dr. Reiland, of St. George's, New York, will come to us after an experience abroad; we hope that he will give us news from the boys at the front. Dr. Birckhead, who will give us three addresses in the following week, has had the same thrilling experience. His address at the Contemporary Club recently made a profound impression, and I am sure that there will be many to hear him. Dr. Twombly is one of the chief prophets of social righteousness in our Church. I am delighted to have him for a week. With the permission of the Bishop I have secured the Rev. Dr. W. J. Dawson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Newark. His life of Christ and essays on the English poets are widely known in religious and literary circles. His son, Coningsby Dawson, undoubtedly derives his literary gifts from his father. I will deliver the addresses in Holy Week myself. A number of the younger clergy of the city have kindly consented to speak on Saturday, and the Rev. Edwin Heyl Delk and the very eminent missionary, Dr. Zwemer, will each give an address. I hope we may have one of the best Lenten seasons we have ever enjoyed.

The increased congregations, both morning and evening, are in large measure due, I am sure, to the beauty of the new church, and I hope that it will maintain the same attractive power at the noonday services.

It is just now very interesting to be a minister in Philadelphia; there are so many causes calling upon the Church for assistance. These enlisted men must be looked after, and we must not allow our energies to weary in administering the Club. The Social Hour on Sunday afternoon has proven a success. We have never gotten less than fifty men over to the church service. Last Sunday there was a falling off in the number of young ladies who assisted in the reception. The boys who remain throughout the hour and go afterwards to the church are the lads in whose circles there is a hostess. I hope the young ladies of the congregation will continue to give me their loyal assistance in this endeavor.

Never did the prospects for successful reform in Philadelphia seem brighter. In asking for a new charter the reformers have laid their axe at the root of the tree. With our present body of laws we can never take the police and the firemen out of politics, abolish assessments and secure efficient administration. A bad system of laws and a supine citizenship are the sources of our troubles. All the world is now awake to the necessity of putting one's house in order to prevent radical excesses. It is not enough to deport Bolshevists who refuse to become American citizens; oppressive measures will never check the evil. The real remedy is to do away with the abuses and give the poor sanitary homes, clean streets, cheerful playgrounds for their children and wholesome conditions of existence, freedom from the oppression of politician-ridden policemen, a cheap and expeditious administration of justice and make them realize that this is a land of freedom and order combined in a blessed union. The churches have brought about prohibition in spite of the vast vested interests that have been seeking to protect it. The despised Anti-Saloon Leagues and Women's Christian Temperance Unions have gone over the top and taken the entrenched positions of the distillers and the brewers. In the same way the churches of this city can storm the feudal castle of the politicians that has so long frowned down upon us and taken tribute from us. Nothing can be accomplished by the timid and half-hearted. The Church of Philadelphia has really on this subject been the Church of Laodicea, neither cold nor hot. Let the churches be aglow with zeal with the spirit of disinterested service for the public welfare, and this old system is doomed.

The four points of the new Charter are, and they ought to be emphasized again and again until they are brought home to everybody's comprehension:

1st. A new kind of City Council; that is to be a single chamber of council of 21 members, receiving a salary of $5,000 each, prohibited from occupying any other civic position or from being connected with any business that will interfere with the singleness of their loyalty to the city.

2nd. An efficient Civil Service, a single commissioner appointed and removable only by a two-thirds vote of City Council, receiving a salary of $8,000 a year. Political activity on the part of police, firemen and city officials made a misdemeanor to which a penalty of fine or imprisonment or both is attached. Levying or paying assessments by such officials forbidden under the same penalties.

3rd. A better fiscal system, that is to say, the budget system, whereby the city pays its expenses as it goes along, and knows where it stands.

4th. Freedom for the city to do its own work or to contract to have the work done as it may see fit. This last spells freedom from the rule of politician contractors.

These four reforms will not give us a good civic administration without watchfulness and care, but they will make such an administration a possibility.

Last year I undertook to teach a Mission Study Class myself, but I am overburdened already with engagements, and cannot assume this duty a second time. The manual for the year is "Our Church and Country" by Bishop Burleson. It tells of the growth of the Episcopal Church in our country and of the development of the organization in new fields. The class will be formed, and a teacher, if possible, will be secured who has taken the course at the Central Agency. Intelligent people ought to know something about the history of their own church and the spread of its institutions.

I ought to say a word before I close this editorial about the loss that this congregation has sustained in the death of Miss Elizabeth M. Dale, the efficient matron of St. Stephen's Farm for the last eight or nine years. Her death came as a great shock to all of us. Her resiliency was so great that we confidently looked for her to throw off this attack of sickness and resume her place among us. It is good to know that she had every attention and was surrounded by loving friends to the last. She will always be associated in St. Stephen's Church with Dr. Wood, to whom she was like a daughter. She sang for years in our choir, and was widely known through her activities at the farm throughout the parish. She was buried from St. Stephen's Church on Tuesday, February 18th. The sympathy of the congregation goes out to her only sister and to Mrs. Wood and her daughter, Elsie, who have sustained such a severe loss in the death of this dear friend. She was a brave and efficient woman, and her departure leaves a gap that will be hard to fill.

We are sorry to learn that one of our faithful workers in St. Stephen's Club, Mr. George M. Reed, 3rd, lost his little daughter, aged two years, on the night of February 24th. How could we bear such losses if it were not for the assurance that in our Father's house are many mansions—"abiding places" is the exact meaning of the Greek—places where these bright spirits wait and grow, wait for reunions, and grow in all spiritual things.

Let me make a Lenten suggestion. I have been very much cheered by the splendid congregations we are having on Sunday evening. For the last three or four Sundays they have been larger than the morning congregations in former years, and indeed are as large as our average Sunday morning congregation now. I think it would be well if people tried in Lent to attend both the morning and the evening service. The evening service is short and uplifting.

And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of His grace which is able to build you up and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Confirmation.

The Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, S.T.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, will visit St. Stephen's on Tuesday, March 4th, at 8 P. M.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

Owing to Miss Bell's absence, Mrs. McKeehan presided at the last meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, which was held February 20th.

We had no speaker but the reports of our delegates were full of special interest and appeals, and much good work has been done by each committee during the last month.

The treasurer reported a balance of $99.01, and Miss Magee reported a total to date of $397.23 for the United Offering.

Beulah E. Hollar, Secretary.

The Woman's Auxiliary records with sorrow the death of Miss Elizabeth Dale, and will miss her presence and earnest manner at the meetings. She took a deep interest in the Advent Call, was one of the messengers, and spoke of the spiritual impetus it had given her life during the week in which she made the visits. Laura Bell,

President Woman's Auxiliary,

Church Militant.

"It is to the permanent interest of true religion that it should not be drawn into the wranglings of politics."—Evening Bulletin.

What worth religion, pious laws
That dare not mingle in the fray
Or turn to battle for a cause
That stirs the very soul to pray.

God made the churches—yes, His will Lies on their altars plain to read;
God made the race, shall it be still
When it can battle through its creed?

Shall honor, treasure, freedom, life
Be threatened by a crew low-browed,
And God be shrouded from the strife,
Because His pulpit is too proud?

Shall all our rights be trampled down
By lock-step of a convict gang;
And that one Fortress never frown
Which unto Luther's clarion rang?

No, no! This is the day to bring
The hidden Ark forth to the light—
Let priest and choir and organ sing
The civic hymn of human right.

Through street and factory, mart and home
Echo the truth, let it be free;
God hides not in the dim-lit dome;
Throw wide the aisles for liberty.

—Harrison S. Morris,

St. Stephen's Aid Society.

Members of the Congregation desiring to continue the Lenten work of the Society will find Mrs. Campbell or Miss Lewis in the Parish House on Friday mornings during Lent, between 11 and 12 o'clock, to give out and to receive finished work. The work of this Society is confined to the making of baby clothes.

Note.

We would be very much obliged if M. J. Price, who wrote those pretty lines on the handkerchief, and pledged himself for a monthly subscription, would kindly introduce himself in the vestry room, and give the clergy his address.

Not knowing the address of Mrs. E. Poole the Treasurer takes this method of acknowledging with thanks the contribution of five dollars sent to the Rector for the McAll Association.

King's Daughters (Whatsoever Circle)

Will have their next meetings March 5th and March 19th, in Guild Room of Parish House, quarter of eight o'clock. Dues received from Miss Elizabeth Jones, $1.00.

In February this Circle helped to finish some little dresses for the Red Cross that were to be sent to the Belgian and French children.

The next work will be for the Home Missionary Society.

Shoe Fund.

Donation received from Miss Laura Bell	$1.00
From those receiving shoes	5.40
	$6.40

Shoes given to the Shoe Fund, (partly worn), Miss Walsh, Miss Daley and others whose names have been lost. Many thanks.

We have given out 12 pairs of shoes and 6 pairs of overshoes in February.

The following account of Rev. William J Dawson, D.D., has appeared in the newspapers:

Dr. Dawson was born at Towcester, England, in 1854, educated at Kingswood College, Bath, and Didsbury College, Manchester, England. He was for fifteen years a Wesleyan minister, part of the time at Wesley's Chapel, London. His ministry attracted great crowds, and during three years he achieved national fame as a lecturer. In Glasgow, Scotland, his ministry was successful in an unprecedented degree. At his concluding service more than 4,000 persons were present, and an equal number of persons failed to gain admittance. An interesting story is told of Dr. Dawson's earliest lecturing in London. When he proposed to lecture in a large church, accommodating 1,200 people, he was told on all sides that it would be impossible to attract a hundred persons, for lecturing had fallen into general disrepute. Nevertheless Dr. Dawson issued 2,000 tickets, printing on each the significant warning, "Come early to avoid crush." His faith was justified. The lecture delivered was the now famous lecture on "Sir Walter Raleigh and His Times." The church was crowded to excess, and a week later he delivered the same lecture in the same building to another thronged audience. There is no great city in England in which Dr. Dawson has not lectured. He has been heard in the City Temple, London, by an audience of 2,000 people, in St. George's Hall, Liverpool, by 4,000 persons, in the Music Hall, Aberdeen, Scotland, by 3,000 persons. Everywhere his success has been complete.

In 1904 Dr. Dawson visited this country as the guest of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, of Brooklyn. He came for rest, but soon found himself engaged in a vast scheme of public work. From Boston to Seattle he crossed the continent, preaching and lecturing everywhere. In the first six weeks of his tour he addressed 70,000 persons. The welcome given him in America was so enthusiastic that in 1906 he resigned his church in London and removed with his family to the States, taking up his residence at Taunton, Mass. During July and August of 1906 he was widely heard upon the Chautauqua platforms. For an entire week he delivered three addresses a day at the mother Chautauqua, N. Y., and made a deep impression upon some of the largest crowds which had ever assembled in the Auditorium. Oberlin has recognized his talent by conferring on him the degree of D.D. He has already become one of the famous figures in American life, and there can be no doubt that his residence in the States will open for him much wider opportunities of service than any which he has hitherto enjoyed.

Dr. Dawson is in the prime of life. He has all the qualities of the great orator. He is also a poet, and an author of world-wide reputation. His triology on English literature, the Makers of English Poetry, Prose and Fiction, has attained a very wide sale, and has been pronounced by leading literary journals of the States one of the most able books of literary criticism in modern literature. He has published two volumes of poetry, four volumes of fiction and many books on religion. His book, "The Evangelistic Note," is on the shelves of multitudes of ministers, and has had a great influence on pulpit methods and ideals, as well as on the general religious thought of the time.

Interesting Letters.

The congregation will be interested, I am sure, in a letter from a Swiss friend of Mrs. Grammer:

Lausanne, le 5 janvier, 1919.

Votre bonne lettre m'est parvenue un ou deux jours après l' envoi de la mienne. Le "Parish News" est arrive quelques jours plus tard. Il m'a vivement interessée, d' autant plus que c'est le premier journal americain de ce genre qui me soit tombé entre les mains. Merci de me l' avoir envoye.

Une chose que j'ai notée en le lisant, c'est l'activité que la Paroisse de Saint-Etienne deploie dans toutes sortes de domaines; elle me parait être une grande famille dont tous les membres sont solidaires les uns des autres. Quant aux lettres du front, elles ne font, helas! que confirmer ce que onus savons deja des crimes épouvantables commis par les représentants de la "Kultur." Il faudra decidément envoyer des missionnaires en Allemagne pour l' evangeliser à nouveau!

Le President Wilson est en ce moment à Rome ou on peut dire qui il a fait une entrèe triomphale. Pendant la guerre, a-t-on assez entendu rèpèter que nous assistions a "la faillite du Christianisme"! Eh bien! le rèsultat de la Guerre Mondiale c'est au contraire le triomphe des preceptes de Jèsus-Christ, quisque l'homme à qui tous les peuples règardent en ce moment est un chrétien authentique, le President Wilson.

Dear Dr. Grammer:

Your letter of October 14th unfortunately was not forwarded to me because my return was expected in November. My work as Commissioner in France for the American Women's Hospitals, which is the War Service Committee of the Women's National Medical Association, was not completed until the middle of January, therefore I could not sail for home until January 18th.

Miss Julia MacAlister assisted me in organizing two hospitals and thirteen dispensaries in the Aisne—one of the devastated regions of France. We had our headquarters in Paris, but the work of organization and inspection took us through many interesting places, such as Chateau-Thierry, Villers-Cotteret, Soissons, Dormans and Rheims, and we spent some time with our unit at the hospital at Luzancy. We were happy to join with our Allies in rejoicing at the overthrow of our enemies, the Central Powers.

With best wishes I am

Very sincerely yours,

Caroline M. Purnell.

My dear Miss Smith:

Will you please thank the good people of St. Stephen's Church for the magazines and papers that have come to me for the men I have worked with; they were always very acceptable.

I am now at the port of Brest and I expect to be here perhaps for a long time, as we are busy getting the boys home.

All good wishes for the New Year.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Miss Smith:

I've just reached home, to find your very kind letter, and also leaflets. Please accept my sincere thanks; leaflets are very useful to me.

I have marked in red a few books, from list you offer, and I'm returning same today.

I am also very thankful for Sunday School books sent.

The Bishop has recently appointed me Archdeacon of the colored work, and I have now a number of small missions to which I am able to lend some of the leaflets and books sent me.

I am very grateful for your kindness, and beg that you accept my thanks.

I am, always, most respectfully,

Your servant,

E. L. Braithwaite.

Rector's Letter.

My Dear Parishioners:

In Longfellow's poem on Agassiz he represents Nature as ever leading her pupil into new paths of endeavor.

> "'Come, wander with me,' she said,
> 'Into regions yet untrod,
> And read what is still unread
> In the manuscripts of God.'"

Divine Providence is leading us all in exactly the same way. Certainly for St. Stephen's new avenues of usefulness are opening up on every side. The attendance at the noonday services has been so large, and there have been so many girls in offices around us who are making a practice of coming in on stated days that I believe it would be worth while to open every Wednesday for just such a service. It would be a service of song, devotion and exhortation. In order to ascertain the mind of the Lenten noonday attendants, and of the congregation, cards will be placed in the pews, and all who would be willing to attend such a service with reasonable frequency will be requested to sign. I do not want the signatures of people who would like the services to be attended by other people. I used to have in one of my parishes a group that were very strenuous about a communion service at half past seven on a certain Sunday morning. They thought that the parish would be absolutely defective in its schedule of services unless that half past seven communion service was held on certain days. But those people never came themselves. They wanted to feel that the minister was up having that service with a few devout women. Now I do not wish people to sign in that spirit. We want them to sign because they will sometimes attend, and if there should be any indication on the card as to how often they could attend, whether twice a month, or regularly, it would be an assistance in deciding as to the right course. I should begin by making these addresses myself, and Mr. Keable and I between us would hold the fort for a while; but eventually we should call in the assistance of other ministers as we do in Lent. As Henry James said of Stevenson, "There is nothing that attracts as much as freshness and variety." We are singularly well situated for such a service, and we ought to avail ourselves of our opportunity.

As the attendance of the enlisted men upon our Club diminishes with the approach of peace, it is necessary to decide what we shall do with the Club. It would be a great pity that a group of people who have learned to work together so harmoniously should disband. Some reorganization will be necessary, of course, and some readjustment, but we ought to be able out of Old St. Stephen's Club to fashion an organization that will be permanent. As soon as prohibition goes into effect there will be a great need for clubs. I am very anxious to open a forum every Thursday evening under the auspices of St. Stephen's Club. Undoubtedly when men cease to befuddle their brains with liquor, they will wish to talk more about the problems of civilization. In that sense it is probable that the stopping of the sale of vodka helped on the Russian Revolution. A man who is a drunkard may injure his own family, but he can't conduct much of a revolution, for he usually winds up in the gutter; but a bad man who is kept sober can spread his wild vagaries abroad. We must undertake the additional task thrust upon us by prohibition. We must provide men with other amusements, we must guide these untrained thinkers into right lines of thought. Nothing is more helpful than free discussion. There are many foolish notions that are revealed in their folly as soon as they are stated in public, but pass themselves off as solid grounds for conduct when they are cherished in secret. It is no argument against prohibition to say that the abolition of the saloon brings special responsibilities and perils. It is only an illustration of the truth of Christ's parable: When the unclean spirit has gone out of a man his nature is swept and garnished, and seven other worse spirits will enter in unless the vacant house be occupied.

I wish we had a more adequate equipment. For example, we ought to have on our roof a cage such as that on top of the building formerly occupied by the Delancey School on Pine Street, so that the boys could play basket ball without tearing a room to pieces. But if our equipment is poor, our location is splendid, and that is half the battle, as we have discovered. Moreover, we have a fine group of workers. We cannot expect to have the moving picture people continue to give us free films, but that is not really much of a disadvantage. We can have our young people give little performances. We ought to be able to get up a band of musicians. I have been amazed that we have not been more successful in organizing a glee club. I offered free music lessons on one occasion to the Girls' Friendly for such a club, but for some reason or other they did not take an interest in it. Perhaps if we had a glee club of boys and girls, it would be more successful; or we might start a community sing.

It is a question that I would like to talk over with the men of the church whether we ought not to merge our St. Andrew's Brotherhood into a St. Stephen's Club of this sort. I found in Norfolk that the young men of my congregation were unwilling to take the St Andrew's Brotherhood vow. I made a great success of a brotherhood of my own, molded along the lines of the parish's need. There are advantages in being connected with an organization that extends throughout the nation, but there are also disadvantages, inasmuch as a large organization is all the time making heavy demands for contributions or delegates, and endeavoring to mold each part into a standard form. As I keep saying over and over again, but cannot emphasize too much, the real strength of St. Stephen's is derived from the uniqueness of its position theologically and spiritually. We stand for a liberal theology and a free progressive spirit. Our relation to the general Church is very much like the relation of the private school to the public school system. The public school system cannot make experiments and break into new fields in the same way that a private school can. Each has its own merits, and each has its own function.

I have been very much gratified at learning from the verger that all the copies of the pamphlet "Concerning Charter Revision" have been taken by the members of the congregation. I hope that they will read it carefully, and that they will also sign the card on the inside of the back cover. If you will send a card to the committee, assuring them of your support that will be a help; it will be a still greater help if you will write to your senator or representative at Harrisburg. At the hearing the other day State Senator Vare, who presided, said that very few petitions for charter revision had been received by the representatives. The chart on the inside of the front cover gives the representatives from the Philadelphia districts, and also the eight State senators. By a little study you can ascertain who is your representative and who is your senator.

Everyone assumed that it was right for the churches to advocate war against the oppressors of Europe. Now if it is right for the Church to cry aloud and spare not and rouse up its members to resist wrongdoing and injustice in Europe, how can we be excused if we do not protest against wrongdoing and injustice in our own city? Shall we care for the sufferings of the Belgians and the people of Northern France and of Servia, and care nothing for the children in our streets, without adequate playgrounds, or for our poor living in fearfully unsanitary homes, or for the evil influence upon our young of seeing manifestly unjust methods condoned in our administration and manifestly improper arrangements, such as having a political boss as the chief contractor of our city, supinely acquiesced in? When unscrupulous and indelicate men are, by reason of their unscrupulousness, indelicacy and moral toughness, allowed to prosper, the whole community is perverted and injured. Youth sees the unscrupulous flourishing like a bay tree whose leaf is not allowed to wither but is replenished by constant streams from the public treasury. We owe it to morals and we owe it to religion to exert the influence of the churches in behalf of civic righteousness. It is difficult to decide exactly on the method. If every clergyman would stir up his people, and every church member would vote with an enlightened conscience, there would be a new Philadelphia at the next election. It is a crying shame that the smallest proportion of voters is found in the wards where the churches are numerous—I mean in proportion to the number of assessed voters, who might exercise the privilege—and the largest proportion is found where the saloons abound. There cannot be the slightest doubt that Christianity has been too much interpreted as a religion of prudent self-seeking, and that we have not realized sufficiently that it is a religion of love, of service, and of thoughtfulness for others. The God of love has not so made the world that the path of wisdom can be found by this simple rule of selfishness that if everybody looks out for himself, the total result will be the best result for all. That is the clubman's philosophy; if everybody is selfish the world will be wisely guided. But that is inconceivable for the Author of the world is a Being of love. It is absolutely opposed to the experience of the race, for if selfishness were universal, the race would soon die out. Civilization will come to an end unless love abounds, as life perished on the moon when the atmosphere was taken away.

I am profoundly grateful to those who have been helping me in securing signatures on the attendants' cards. About 125 people have signed these cards, and every Sunday we gain some new signatures and some new members. A church ought to be a place of ingathering. Its Captain came to this world to seek and to save, and to carry out His commands we must be animated by the same spirit. Only in a few instances have I known people to be angry because others took an interest in their welfare, or were anxious to bring them into the organization. I hope that we will be able to have a band of associate members of two hundred, and I should like to see a hundred people join the Wednesday band of worshippers. I ought to state that on these Wednesdays after Lent the bells will be rung beforehand, just as at the Lenten service, and the doors opened to invite the passer-by.

On the evening of April 23rd, the first Wednesday after Easter, at eight o'clock, we will have a reception for those who have signed the attendants' cards, and also for those who have recently associated themselves with the church. It is especially desired that this date be reserved. Inasmuch as the Sunday School building is occupied by Old St. Stephen's Club, the reception will be held in the Parish Building. There will be an informal gathering in the Guild Room, above the Vestry, and at half past nine there will be some light refreshments. The vestrymen and their families will be requested to act as a reception committee.

In a few Sundays the envelopes in our present packages will be exhausted, and the new system will go into effect. We had hoped to get it out earlier, but with as widely scattered a congregation as ours it was impossible to make the change sooner, and it was thought better to let the present envelopes run out. The new system will only extend from Easter to the end of January, in order that from that time on our parish year may correspond with our diocesan fiscal year. I am very much indebted to the committee for the thorough way in which it has done its work, and also to the congregation for the kindly spirit in which it has responded. We want to put the finances of the church on a sound basis, but we also wish the giving to be cheerful and free and truly Christian giving. Gifts ought not to be forced out of people by external pressure, but ought to be the willing response of a grateful heart, anxious to help on the good cause. I am sure that the committee endeavored to bring the matter before you in that spirit: "Let every man give as he is disposed in his own heart," but we see no reason why he should not tell us beforehand what his heart will dispose him to do. I am confident that the offering will be enough to wipe out the debt, and I hope that we will be able to put our finances on a sound basis for the future.

Miss Magee has made so many gifts that we are in danger of failing to acknowledge them adequately. I cannot allow the costly improvement that she has made in her window to pass without due acknowledgment. In the renovation and redecoration of the church all the gallery windows were protected by an additional pane on the outside, after the fashion in which the Tiffany Studios protect their windows. Miss Magee's great double window, however, which was put up by an English firm in the day of Dr. Rudder, after the design of the famous pre-Raphaelite, Henry Halliday, was entirely unprotected from the weather, and the leaden framework which supports the glass had been sadly injured by the elements—the whole window has suffered from exposure. Miss Magee turned the window over to the Tiffany Studios for renovation. It has been restored to its original freshness of color and releaded and is now protected by an outside glass. It is a glorious window and a great adornment to the church.

I ought also to mention that Miss Magee has generously placed screens around the radiators to prevent the heat from staining the walls by the dust that is carried up. We are very fortunate in having such a friend and helper as Miss Anna Magee, as I am sure that the congregation realizes.

Last month Miss Julia C. MacAlister gave an address before the Girls' Friendly Society, telling of her experiences in France. The lecture was illustrated by pictures which belong to Dr. Purnell, who was Miss MacAlister's chief. They went out to France together to inspect the hospital work conducted by the Woman's Medical Colleges of the United States, which served the French inhabitants of the war region. I was so much delighted with the address and the pictures that I requested Miss MacAlister to repeat the lecture before the Mothers' Meeting. She has kindly consented to do so on Tuesday, April 8th, at 8 o'clock. The ladies of the congregation are invited to attend.

Last Sunday the music of the Jubilate was the composition of Miss McCollin, one of our congregation. It occurred to me as I heard it that I would like to get up a little booklet for the Wednesday Band of Worshippers, with hymns and music that can only be heard at St. Stephen's, the compositions of members of the congregation. For example there is Selden Miller's setting for "Come, My Soul, Thou Must Be Waking," and Miss Edwards' hymn, which ought not to be lost. Take these two stanzas:

"Christian soul! Great days await thee;
Consecrate thee
To the task that nearest lies.
Question not that God will use thee,
Nor refuse thee
Blessings on thy sacrifice.

"Walk not thou as one benighted,
Nor affrighted;
Where the foolish see no God,
Thine to glimpse the fiery column,
Thine the solemn Comfort of His staff and rod."

Then, again, Selden Miller's tune for "Saviour, When Night Involves the Skies," should be made more widely known. I would like some more verses written. I wish some of the members of the congregation would try to write a hymn. I tried my hand on an ode recently, but as Mr. Thunder and I could not get our spirits quite in tune on the matter, nothing came of it. To show that I have been trying along these lines, let me quote my tribute to France:

Great Sister Commonwealth, we hail
With swelling breast thy high renown,
That wide on every breeze is blown.
Freedom to thee is Holy Grail,
And thou hast freedom nobler shown.
Freemen to freemen holding true
As subjects to an ancient crown,
Have blazoned Freedom's shield anew.
Great Sister Commonwealth, we hail
With grateful thanks thy high renown.

Our freedom grew on English soil,
Wrought out by centuries of toil.
Like lightning thine from Heaven fell down,
With earthquake and with storm.
With love of thee our hearts are warm,
By crosses marking many a mound
Where sleep our boys on holy ground,
Thy land is ours,
Thy land is ours,
And thine are all this country's powers.

In England the Nonconformists believe in freedom in prayer, but they adopted a standard hymnology. The Church of England believed in standards of prayer but preserved freedom in hymnology; a result of that freedom in song has been a great development of hymnology in England. In the United States the Episcopal Church adopted standards in hymnology as well as standards in prayer, and the result has been that our Church has contributed very little to the hymnology of the world, and the fountains of creative energy have been choked. A church like the Temple Church, London, has its own hymnal, and our own church (for I have always thought of St. Stephen's as occupying in Philadelphia a position very much the same as the Temple Church in London) should have a hymnal of its own; of course, chiefly based on the great hymnologies, but with hymns that were written by members of the congregation. It is through such individual hymnologies that the total mass of English hymns has continued to grow.

One of our great sources of encouragement is the fine attendance at our Sunday night service, which is about as large as the morning attendance. I am hopeful that it will continue to improve. For the past two seasons, by reason of improvements the church was not open until near Christmas. We, therefore, began the season with a great handicap. I anticipate that next season we will be able to do even better than this. Undoubtedly the beautiful improvements given us by Miss Magee have been of great assistance. They are not merely ornaments and decorations; they are also attractions and instruments of power. I wish we had a better entrance to the church. I never saw a church of as much importance as ours with so insignificant an approach. On Sunday mornings in the wintertime the central doors are closed, and the people creep in like ants into an ant-heap. The approach is especially uninviting at night, and the front of the church is badly lighted.

Due notice will be given of the Parish Meeting, which the congregation will remember I aim to hold on the second Wednesday of May, a fixed date, so that the meetings will be a year apart, and not subject to the fluctuations of Easter. May is the traditional month for great church meetings.

I ought not to close without expressing my gratitude for the splendid attendance at the Lenten services. Not for years have we had such a constant large attendance. I am anticipating the largest for many years during the week when the Rev. Dr. Dawson will be with us. He may be known to the novel-reading public and to those who read war books, chiefly as the father of Coningsby Dawson, but without any derogation from the literary fame of the son, I think I may say that the father is a writer of greater distinction. His "Life of Christ" is a book written with glowing eloquence and large knowledge. He is an essayist of high standing and a lecturer of established fame, both in England and America. He is the pastor of a large church in Newark, and a man of great literary versatility. We are very fortunate in having him with us.

I want to say a closing word. The old-fashioned preachers used to have a regular sequence: "Lastly—one word more—in conclusion," and this will be my concluding paragraph. A number of persons who have signed the attendance cards have expressed the desire to become communicant members of St. Stephen's Church. I shall endeavor to collect them in a class and see if I can have an additional visitation from the Bishop. These are days for letting down the bars and letting people in easily; I do not mean on easy moral terms, but I mean on liberal doctrinal and ritual terms. The important matter in belief is not the extent but the depth of one's faith. It is of very little assistance to a man to hold, with a feeble grasp, a large, well thought-out system of theology; whereas it is a veritable sheet anchor to believe earnestly some simple articles of the faith, such as that there is an over-ruling Providence, or that God is our friend, or that there is a moral government in the world and that we shall eventually reap what we sow. Take this last conviction. A man may hold that with very vague beliefs about heaven and hell. For example, he may think that hell is only a reformatory, but if he believes it is an experience to be dreaded and avoided, that is enough. If he believes with strength he has an impetus toward right doing, and if he believes that heaven is infinitely desirable he has another inducement to struggle against his lower nature. I am in favor of a church of much intellectual liberality, and believe that such liberality is absolutely safe, provided there is also moral strenuousness.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Presentation of the United Offering.

The Annual Service with the Presentation of the United Offering, will be held on Thursday in Easter Week, April 24th, at 10.30 A. M. There will be a Celebration of the Holy Communion, and the Rector of St. Stephen's will preach the sermon.

It is requested that the whole congregation will be present.

Anna J. Magee, Treasurer.

If twenty-two dollars more are received by April 17th, for the United Offering, this will be the banner year. I suggest that the husbands, brothers, sweethearts of the members of the Women's Auxiliary help them make this a banner year by contributing the above amount.—F. B. K.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There were twenty-five members present at the March meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary. An unusual amount of work was reported by the committees of boxes of clothing, magazines and money given during the last month by the members of St. Stephen's Branch.

Miss Magee has collected $400.23 for the United Offering.

After the regular work was completed Mrs. Lucas gave us a most interesting outline of Diocesan work. The Diocese of Philadelphia includes Philadelphia and Chester and Montgomery, Delaware and Bucks counties. There are sixty-four thousand Episcopalians in the district with 143 Parish buildings and eighty institutions to be supported.

B. E. Hollar, Secy.

To the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's Church:

Dear Ladies:

The box received a few days ago. Mr. ———— is very much pleased with the nice warm coat you sent.

The sweater is very nice. Marion claims it; says she has wanted a sweater "always." She will be fourteen in June, but is as large as a girl of sixteen. She grows so fast, is tall and broad, weighs 130.

The records we can all claim. So there was no dispute there. We were delighted to get the records. Music drives away all cares. I don't know how I could have gotten along all these weeks without it. Time is beginning to hang so heavy. My foot seems so slow in getting strong, but I guess it just needs time for broken ankles, so there is nothing else to do but smile and wait.

I have planned to do so much during Lent. The Guild has stopped. The choir has fallen away. Waiting for me. How lovely it would be if we only had three or four women who have been raised in the church and love it, to help us. These people never attended any church. They say they have lived all these years without a church and they can't see that they need one now. There are a few families who come and try to take an interest, but it is so new to them.

The majority of the people's standard of morals is very low. They dance till 4 and 5 o'clock Sunday morning, and play cards all day Sunday. I could write all night, but fear it would not be very interesting to you. Since dear Bishop Funsten died it seems more desolate and lonely here than ever. He was the dearest and best Bishop. Thank you again. God bless the "Auxiliary of St. Stephen's."

Very sincerely,

Mrs. Will S. J.

The writer of the foregoing letter asked for second-hand clothing that could be made over for children. The appeal met with an instantaneous response, for in five days a box of both new and partly worn clothing was on its way. The Missionary Box Committee could make good use of many more garments; and by the way, if you will contribute some of those Victrola records which you think would please the "folk out there," they will also be appreciated, as the following extract from another letter will show:

"We were so glad for those records the ladies sent. That little old machine is the thing that keeps us alive. I love music so; have never had half enough of it. I have never heard any of the great singers. I can only sit and dream of what they must be like."

Finish the Job

Finish the Job will be the slogan for the Fifth and Last Liberty Loan. We did not begin the war, but we were in it, and helped to bring it to a speedy end. We all prayed for Victory, and the Victory has been given to us and our Allies. The Boys went "over the top." Now it is up to us to send the last bond issue over the top, and bring the Boys back to Home, Sweet Home. If we really believe in Government of the People, by the People, for the People, we can prove it by depositing as much money as we possibly can in the Greatest Savings Bank in the World; the Bank whose officers we ourselves elect. The Government's honor is, after all, our own honor, and we surely do not intend to let the bills incurred during the war remain unpaid. Thus it is a choice between Government Loans or Taxes. A loan to the Government means your money back at maturity with interest paid semi-annually. Taxes never come back, nor do they pay interest.

A committee of St. Stephen's will be in the Parish House daily during the campaign from 10 A. M. till 12.30 to receive your subscription blanks. Now, then, all together for the Victory Loan.

Victory Loan

During the Fourth Liberty Loan St. Stephen's did not have a fair chance; the church, Sunday School, Burd School and Boy's Club all being closed on account of the epidemic. A feeble effort was made through personal notes, to which a generous response was made. Now let us see what the whole Parish can do for the Victory Loan. Secretary Glass says it will be the last. Such sayings as, "The War is over," "Can't subscribe," "I've done enough," "Let the banks do it," "I don't approve of this or that," are simply German propaganda, or, to say the least, poisonous gas!

You are not asked to give, you are simply asked to place all the money you can in the best savings bank in the world—the United States Government. —A. V. D.

The Girls' Friendly Society.

On March 3rd the Talent Fund was turned in by the members, and the result far exceeded that of any other year. Two hundred and forty-three dollars were given for missionary and charitable work—a splendid result. Fifty balls of rags for a rag carpet were also brought in. This carpet was to be given as a surprise to Miss Dale for the Farm.

On March 17th Miss Julia MacAlister gave a most interesting lecture, illustrated with stereopticon views, "My Experiences in France." Miss MacAlister was with the Woman's American Hospital Unit, and has kindly consented to repeat the lecture on Tuesday, April 8th.

The Society has suffered a loss in the death on Friday, March 28th, of Miss Mary J. Nutt. Miss Nutt was a faithful and devoted member for many years and by her kindly manner had endeared herself to all the girls.

King's Daughters (Whatsoever Circle).

Interest received from estate of Mrs. William Patton, through Mr. Hnuter Ewing, $34.15.

This Circle will have its next meetings

April 2nd and April 16th, in Guild Room, Parish House, quarter of eight o'clock.

Owing to the bad weather and sickness the work for the Home Missionary Society has been put back, but we hope to finish it by the end of Lent.

Shoe Fund.

Money received for shoes, $5.00. Have given out in March about 24 pairs of shoes and 10 pairs of overshoes.

It is very amusing this year to see the children, how very particular they are with the fit of their shoes, and they twist their little feet all around and wonder if they are tight enough. You might think they were paying eight and ten dollars a pair.

The boys are as particular as the girls. I quite enjoy it.

Letter from One of Our Boys.

France, March 2d, 1919.

My dear Mr. ————

Your letter received last week and was surely glad to hear from you but owing to the fact that Base —— was ordered away quickly and I have been awfully busy helping the property officer straighten out his property, I have not had the opportunity to answer.

Being a class "D" patient and unfit for duty I was transferred to Base ——, still waiting orders home. I don't believe I ever wrote you that this was to be a 15,000 bed hospital center, but at the time the armistice was signed there were only five of the ten base hospitals here, namely 47, 61, 77, 80 and 96. They are now going to turn it into, in fact, it already is, a university center. They intend to have 40,000 students here. Only one hospital will be established, that is 77. Eighty was ordered to Mons and then split up, the officers and men being ordered to other units.

Am feeling O. K. but I just want to get away from the game. As long as I stay in it I will remember the wounded being brought in and the apparent uselessness of such a sacrifice of individuals. One day we had two trains of 600 patients come in, wounded, gassed and ill, and there seemed so little you could do for them. I was Supply Officer and while we had a fair equipment there were many things the doctors said we needed that I could not get.

At this end all the glory of war was gone and we saw the sordid details. The reaction from the excitement of battle had come and it was no longer an army, but just wounded, gassed and sick individual boys, the majority of whom were beginning to wonder what it was all about and a doubt to enter as to whether it was worth while. We received them at their worst stage; they were dirty, cootie-infected, and their physical sufferings overbalanced and numbed their spirit. The greater percentage by far after they had been bathed, shaved and deloused, regained the spirit that has made the American, Canadian and Australian famous, feared and hated —others would lie in a stupor for days.

None of them who have been through it will fear anything in this life. This war has made more men believe in God and the future than all the preaching they would hear in their lives. It will be a new class of men and women people at home will have to deal with. They know camouflaging in all its phases, human and nature, and as far as they are concerned the day of your petty politician, fake social reformer, etc., is over.

If labor conditions in the States are as they are quoted in the French editions of American papers, there will be trouble unless it is remedied by Fall. Germany and Austria are going through it now, England will be next and America, unless something is done. France will not in all probability, as her population has been so greatly depleted and more of her population being engaged in agriculture, there will be places for all of them.

They cannot expect to take a boy from his home, pet him, praise him, instill him with the idea he is making a sacrifice for their sake, send him off with a blare, let him go through battle, send him home, give him a great welcome for a week and forget that he needs work, forget him altogether. There will come a period of play for him and realizing he is forgotten he is going to do a little thinking and thoughts of idle boys, especially these boys who fear nothing, will mean trouble. To-day he is in a condition where he believes in God and the people at home, but to be kept this way he must have work to do when his period of play is over.

Please don't think this is Bolshevism or Socialism I have turned to, both of these I despise, but I have taken the viewpoint of those boys who were at the Front, listened to their delirious ravings and talked with them when they were convalescing, and when they were well, and am putting myself in their places.

Have not heard from Henry. As I told you in my last letter I wrote him. I sure am glad he came through all right.

It has rained here for about ten days straight and is fairly teeming now.

Please remember me to my friends, with kindest regards to yourself and Mrs. ————, and with hopes of seeing you all soon, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

Rector's Letter.

My dear Parishioners:

The important feature of the month will be the Parish Meeting on Wednesday, May 14th. According to our charter only those who are pew-holders or renters of sittings are entitled to a vote at the election of the vestry. I am advised by lawyers that if we were to seek to change our charter some of our privileges might be lessened, and we might also have a conflict with the Convention. A new charter must be approved by the Convention and must also be approved by the courts. Now it is very difficult in Pennsylvania to get a charter that will satisfy these two parties. The Convention of the Diocese, under the influence of High Church theories and of the prevalent tendency to consolidate authority in a few hands, is always anxious to gain as much power as possible over the vestry. On the other hand, the policy of the State is that property is not to be controlled by the Convention, but is to be held and controlled by the corporation created by the State known as a vestry. The Convention has no corporate existence and is not allowed to hold property. These conflicting theories are seen again and again in our Convention in the failures of charters to go through in the form desired. So I have been advised by one of the highest authorities on such matters that it would not be wise to endeavor to amend our charter, and that the better plan would be to have it understood among ourselves that the pew-holders and pew-renters will simply delegate their function to a committee and that this committee will elect the vestry nominated by the attendants at the Parish Meeting.

In former years the vestry was regularly elected by a few of the vestrymen, who elected the old vestry year after year. Now the plan agreed upon by all of us is that at this Parish Meeting every renter of a sitting or pew and every envelope-user be requested to vote for the vestry. The people who are chosen by that meeting as their preference will thereupon be duly elected by the pew-holders. Arrangements of this kind, I learn, are very frequent in England, where there are old charters that would be difficult to change, and where new conditions require that a larger participation be given to the supporters of the enterprise. I hope I make it perfectly plain. Our church is no longer supported entirely by the income from the endowment and the pew rents, as was once the case. We now draw our income from three sources: the endowments, the pew rents and the envelopes, these last being the free-will offerings of the people. These last have been steadily increasing in importance, and the people who contribute through these envelopes are entitled to a voice in the affairs of the church. By the plan that I have just outlined this will be secured. Every contributor by this plan will take part in electing the body that manages the financial affairs of the church. They indicate their preference, and then a small committee will carry out their wishes.

I am looking forward with great interest to the reports. The meeting will be held in the guild room, where the reports can be heard, and it is hoped that they will be brief and explicit. I am curious to hear the report of the Special Committee on Finance that carried out the idea of the Every Member canvass, and tried to get such definite statistics as would enable us to make up a budget. The spirit of co-operation shown by the congregation I know was splendid. Zeal and co-operation will accomplish wonders. You remember the lines of Kipling:

"It ain't the guns nor armament nor fund that they can pay,
But the close co-operation that makes 'em win the day.
It ain't the individual nor the army as a whole,
But the everlastin' teamwork of every bloomin' soul."

It is a great source of gratitude that the deficit has been wiped off. It is bad for the morale of a church to get into the habit of drifting behind. I feel very strongly that we ought to do away with that special fund: that is, no small group ought to be asked to provide for a deficit. All of us together ought to raise enough money to maintain the church. But I will not anticipate the report of the committee.

The Sunday School celebration on the Sunday after Easter was such great success that it may now be considered an established custom in the parish that on that Sunday morning the children shall have their Easter celebration. Sermons for children seem to be popular with grown people. Perhaps it is their brevity that commends them. One of our city poets, Mr. Grif Alexander, was so much pleased with the singing of the children at our celebration that he wrote the following verses, which have appeared in The Evening Ledger:

THE CHILDREN'S CHOIR.

The little children shyly rise
To sing their carols sweet;
Their song ascends to listening skies
And to the mercy seat.

Their treble, sweet as harp or lyre,
Enchants the listening ear;
The leader of the heavenly choir
Harks to their voices clear.

Upon his face there grows a smile
As sweet as flowers in spring;
He bids the angels rest awhile
To hear the children sing.

The Noonday Wednesday Service, after the model of the Noonday Lenten service, promises to be quite a success. On the first Wednesday after Easter one hundred and twenty-seven persons were present. It is impossible to have a successful midweek service down town at night, but I hope that this noonday service will serve the same purpose, and that the congregation as well as outsiders will use it.

Let me restate here my views in regard to the moving pictures on Sunday and the Victory Liberty Loan. Now that the war is over, as we are settling down to the usual tasks of peace, we discover that there is a great restlessness. I heard two business men talking over the labor situation. Both of them said that they had vacant places, but that the laborers were not willing to accept the old rate of wages. A struggle is going on between the sellers of commodities who cannot afford to conduct business at the old rates while labor is asking such high wages, and the wage-earners who cannot accept the old wages while the necessaries of life are being sold at such prices. The good Ship of State is being buffeted by these cross-currents. There is also a good deal of wild Bolshevism abroad. Mr. Scott Nearing is waging the red flag of rebellion, and talking like a wild man. At a time like this we need everything that can steady, calm and sustain. Now one of the most conservative influences in all the community is the Sunday day of rest, when people have leisure both from business and from dissipation, and are able to commune with their own hearts. I don't think that the value of this great day of rest can be exaggerated.

The chief foe of this sacred day is, of course, the spirit of gain. I think it is very important that people should learn to abhor any efforts to use the day for commercial purposes. In order to strengthen and conserve this feeling I have shrunk from having subscriptions taken for the Victory Loan on Sunday. The Government politely calls this a loan, but really it is an investment. I do not see why investments should be made on Sunday, especially as there is time enough in the week to make them; and if it is absolutely essential that sales should be made on Sunday, the banks should be opened for that purpose. As for the moving picture shows on Sunday for the sake of the loan, as long as they are free, I do not see my way to make any formal protest, because I am not opposed to the opening of art galleries on Sunday, nor to free concerts for the people on Sunday. Still, I think it very unfortunate the Government should be infringing our national custom of preserving this day for rest and devotion. The churches have deserved well of the country. Never has a government been more heartily supported by the pulpits of a country. They have justified the war to the conscience of the people, and they have done their utmost to raise the ideals of the country to a high level. I do not see why in a matter of this kind the desires of the churches should be disregarded. I feel very certain that if the Roman Catholic Church was as sensitive about Sunday as the Protestant churches are, nothing would have been done to shock the consciences of such a large body of religious people.

It seems to be inseparable from democracy that we should have a great many wild, unofficial utterances. Freedom of speech opens the door for folly as well as for wisdom. These Monday ministerial associations are not authoritative bodies, but they are groups of clergymen, and inasmuch as ministers are supposed to be moral experts and are people who are especially interested in public morals, it is inevitable that such associations should express their opinions at such times. One of our great troubles is that people of light and leading are too timid to express themselves; they often lie low in order to watch developments, and see which way the winds are blowing. In that way they become reflectors of opinion instead of shapers of the public mind. Dr. Arnold used to say that the temptations to timidity and laziness were so great that he would prefer to see a public man make a mistake rather than lie low at critical junctures.

We have been grateful for an unusually good Lent. All our speakers were helpful. The congregations were unusually good. I was particularly gratified myself that I was able to make so many addresses. My voice usually gives out before the close of Lent. I ascribe this greater strength in large part to the operation that I underwent last summer. I never made so many addresses in any Lent, not only speaking five times consecutively in Holy Week, but also making four other addresses in other weeks.

The services on Easter Day were very beautiful, and it was splendid to see the increased attendance. All during this winter the attendance has been steadily growing. For example, last Sunday night I had as many as we used to have on Sunday morning. It may be said that we have two different congregations every Sunday.

Before I close, let me urge all the members of the congregation, especially the pew-holders and envelope takers, to make a point of attending the Parish Meeting. I attach great importance to this annual gathering.

Sincerely yours

Carl E Grammer.

Sunday School.

For the second time the Sunday School held its Annual Service at 11 A. M. instead of 4 P. M., on the First Sunday after Easter. Those of us who were present know what an impressive service it was; but the little paper goes to many a home where the "shut-ins" eagerly turn over its pages to learn what has been going on in the Parish. For them these lines are written. The service began at 11 A. M., when the whole Sunday School marched in through the transept singing with cheerful voices "Welcome, Happy Morning." After the appropriate sentences of Scripture were read, the 145th Psalm was recited. The lesson was from the 20th chapter of St. John, and was followed by Phillips Brooks' carol, "God Hath Sent His Angels to the Earth Again." The Creed and Collects having been said, the Primary Department sang "'Tis Easter Time; Glad Easter Time." The singing of the children was indeed a delightful sound, for they sang as only children can sing.

The School and Congregation then sang a National Hymn, written in 1845 by James Russell Lowell. The tune is a quaint Welsh hymn melody:

Once to every man and nation,
Comes the moment to decide;
In the strife of truth with falsehood,
For the good or evil side.
Some great cause, God's new Messiah,
Offering each the bloom or blight;
And the choice goes by forever,
'Twixt that darkness and that light.
Amen.

Then to side with truth is noble,
When we share her wretched crust;
Ere her cause bring fame and profit,
And 't is prosperous to be just.
Then it is the brave man chooses,
While the coward stands aside;
Till the multitude make virtue
Of the faith they had denied.

By the light of burning martyrs,
Jesus' bleeding feet I track;
Toiling up new Calvaries ever
With the cross that turns not back.
New occasions teach new duties,
Time makes ancient good uncouth;
They must upward still and onward,
Who would keep abreast of truth.

Though the cause of evil prosper,
Yet the truth alone is strong;
Though her portion be the scaffold,
And upon the throne be wrong.
Yet that scaffold sways the future,
And, behind the dim unknown;
Standeth God within the shadow,
Keeping watch above His own.

During the singing of this stately hymn, with slow and measured tread, Sailors and Boys of the School advanced along the centre aisle to the Altar Rail, bearing in order: The Church Flag; the Stars and Stripes, the British, French, Belgian, Serbian and Red Cross Flag. Immediately behind the Red Cross Banner marched five girls dressed as Red Cross nurses and bearing in their arms bunches of roses. The scene was very impressive. The flags were held aloft on the north and south sides of the altar rail.

Directly in front of the gate stood a large cross filled with white carnations, and outlined with a border of purple electric lights. As the Rector read the names of the members of our Parish who died in the service of the country in France, each girl laid her bunch of roses at the foot of the cross, a tribute to those who, like our Blessed Lord, died that others might live. Never shall we forget the sweetness of the bugle notes as Taps were sounded amid a breathless silence.

The sermon by the Rector, "Lessons from the Flowers," was a children's sermon, full of food for thought for young and old.

After the Sunday School offering had been received, it was announced that the school had contributed for Missions the splendid sum of $186.00. The recessional carol was "Golden Harps Are Sounding."

Many members of the congregation declared that it was one of the most impressive services they had ever attended. It was the Sunday School tribute to the Boys who will never come back, and the roses were sent to their homes as a token of remembrance. Now we are looking forward to a day, let us hope not far distant, when we can participate in a welcome home service for all our boys whose lives have been spared.

The Little House of St. Pantaleon.

The contribution on Easter Day for the Little House of St. Pantaleon amounted to $165.20, and two orphans were adopted, at the cost of $36.50 each, making a total of $238.20.

An Acknowledgment.

Just before the end of Lent I received a charming note, containing the surprising news that I was to be the recipient of a new silk cassock, a gift from the Women of the Congregation. The "Secret" was well kept, for not a word of it was known to me until I read about it in the letter. The cassock is now being made by a New York concern, and will be ready in about two weeks.

I sent a letter of acknowledgment to the Secretary of the Altar Society, asking her to thank the women for their splendid gift. But I want to take this opportunity to again express to all my most hearty appreciation of their very thoughtful action. I assure you it will be a pleasure indeed to wear the cassock.

FREDERICK B. KEABLE.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

There were twenty-three members present at the April meeting of the Auxiliary.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $56.79 and Miss Magee's sum of this year's United Offering is $405.23.

Mr. E. R. Rogers, Superintendent of a Home for Homeless Boys, near Covington, Va., was our speaker. From a cottage with six boys the school has grown until they now own a farm of 450 acres and have seventy-five boys. Several new cottages are being completed so that they soon can accommodate a hundred and fifty boys. Last year Mr. Rogers had eight hundred applicants.

Five hundred dollars will give a home permanently to a boy. One hundred and fifty dollars will support him for a year.

BEULAH E. HOLLAR, Secy.

The Victory Loan.

The Victory Loan Committee of St. Stephen's has secured subscriptions to date exceeding 31,000 dollars. Have you subscribed? The boys who rest in Flanders Field gave their all forever. You are asked merely to invest for a time, and the country will pay you interest for doing it. Members of the Committee are at the Parish House daily, from 10 A. M. to 12:30 P. M.

The Woman's Auxiliary purchased a $50.00 Victory Bond, and will send the same to the School for Homeless Boys at Covington, Virginia.

On Thursday, April 24, a meeting of the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese was held at St. Stephen's Church at half-past ten o'clock. The service was very well attended, and there were two hundred communicants. The Bishop, Dr. Grammer, Mr. Keable and Rev. Alfred Clay officiated and the address was made by Dr. Grammer. The presentation of the offering was made during the singing of the hymn and the amount realized was over nine thousand dollars, the sum total for the three years being over forty-three thousand dollars. Mrs. Keable played the organ.

In the previous Loan Campaigns the Girls' Friendly Society had charge of one booth. They were so successful that the Women's Campaign Committee this time asked the girls to take charge of two booths, one in front of the Franklin National Bank, and the other is on Market Street. By the way, do you know that the G. F. S. is raising funds to endow a bed in the Episcopal Hospital? After their day's work is done, these girls are trying to help the Government put the Loan over the top. If anyone would like to assist both of these noble efforts they can easily do so. Buy a bond and then present it to the Friendly for the hospital bed.
